TENDERS

ONTARIO WATER RESOURCES COMMISSION
Project No. 8-0249-68
TENDERS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF STORM SEWERS AND APPURTENANCES for the VILLAGE OF TWEED

Tenders, sealed in the envelopes provided for the purpose, shall be timely received as to contents, will be received by the Secretary, Ontario Water Resources Commission, 1415 Yonge St., Chir Avenue West, Toronto 7, Ont., until 2:30 p.m. Toronto time on for the construction of the works described below:

On the same day, commencing at 8:00 p.m., Toronto time, the tenders opened and read publicly in the Council Chamber, Municipal Office in the Corporation of the 12th Place, at the place mentioned address.

Each tender must consist of a lump sum price for all materials and equipment and for all labour, services and supervision for the construction of approximately 2000 lin. ft. of 12" to 48" dia. storm sewers, together with all related appurtenances and works.

Complete tender documents may be obtained from Oliver Lloyd and Associates Limited, 170 Downey Road, Suite 104, Don Mills, Ontario, on payment of a deposit of $25.00 in the form of a certified cheque in the form of a bank certified cheque payable to the Ontario Water Resources Commission in the amounts of $25.00 and $10.00. Upon the return of the complete tender documents within three weeks after the closing date for tenders of complete sets and tender deposits will be refunded, cheques will be returned as received.

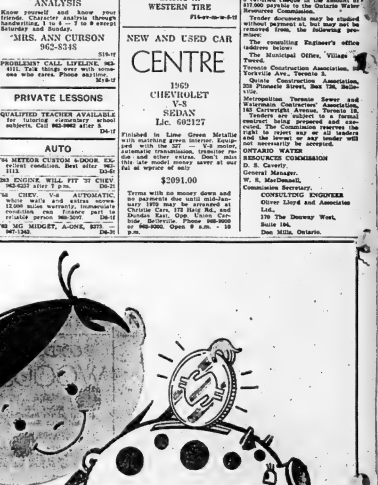
All such cheques will be returned in respect of one set of documents only. Each bidder and contractor who has submitted to the Commission a tender may obtain one set free of charge.

Of the cheque for the amount of $25.00 only $10.00 will be returned on the receipt of each other set of tender documents.

Each tender must be accompanied by a certified cheque in the form of a certified cheque in the amount of $17,000 payable to the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Tender documents may be studied at the following offices, where they will be removed from, the following persons:

The Consulting Engineer's office in Toronto.



The Municipal Office, Village of Tweed.

Tenders are subject to a formal contract being prepared and executed. The Commission reserves the right to reject any or all tenders and to accept any tender not necessarily be accepted.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market moved into its fifth successive decline this session today with a moderate mid-morning loss.

On index, industrials were down .75 to 183.78, golds 1.70 to 154.27, western oils .80 to 180.20 and base metals .34 to 114.18.

Volume was light with 442,000 shares traded by 11 a.m. compared with $65,000 at the same time Friday.

Declines outnumbered advances 122 to 90 with 174 issues unchanged.

Eleven of the 17 industrial components were lower led by oil refiners. Consumer-service construction and material, general manufacturing and trust and loan issues showed fractionally. Real estate and steel stocks were unchanged.

Among oil refiners, Imperial Oil lost ¼ to 16⅝ and Gulf ¼ to 17⅛. –

Oil refiners were strong Friday, reflecting rising hopes in the oil industry that the United States cabinet will give favorable consideration to an open market for Canadian oil.

SKD Manufacturing was up ¾ to 8⅛, a high for the year. Continental Can did not trade but closed Friday at 81 bid and 82 asked.

Continental Can has offered to buy at least 95 per cent of SKD's outstanding shares.

Blake Kerr Midgets Causing All-star Stir

Belleville's Blake Kerr Midgets are starting to make themselves recognized in minor hockey all-star circles.

The local Midgets blasted Napanee 7 - 0 Sunday at the Memorial Arena to bring their record to three wins and two losses in Quinte-St. Lawrence League play.

Ricky- Meagher and Rob Foster had two goals each for the local club. Doug James Peter Ackerman and Brian Onusiu were the other Belleville scorers.

Harold Wilkinson and Gord Bridge both had hat tricks for the Aces while Gord Thompson had the other goal for the winners. Dick Fobert and Glen McMechean had the Tigers goals.

Saturday the Belleville Kinsmen Bantam journeyed to Peterborough to participate in a tournament and returned to the city with two 5Oben in two overtime games.

In Sunday action the Kinsmen got back on the winning track with a 3-2 victory over Picton. Andy Ricketts had two goals and Mark Coates one for the city banmen. Hyatt getting both Picton goals.

The local Towers Food City Novice A team defeated Cobourg 9-1 yesterday at the Memorial Arena. Randy Hutchinson had three goals for the Belleville Club. Bobby Crawford and Andy Lapezette scored two goals each while Thompson scored the others.

Belleville's Wilson Concrete Tyke all-stars beat Port Hope 9-0 to record their fifth victory in a row and their third over Port Hope by the same score.

Chris Valentine had three goals while Steve Mofina and Peter Fradette had two each for Belleville, Shawn Mulrooney and Mike Crawford scored the other local goals. Don Cook collected a three-shot shutout.

Barrage Girls Take One on Chin

Mel Barrages Landscapers, Belleville's entry in the Bay of Quinte Women's Hockey League, were defeated 7-3 by Kingston in Sirling Centennial Arena Saturday night.

Sandra Claus scored two goals and Nancy McCallum one for the Barrages.

Annabelle Twiedy, Cookie Cartwright and Pat Passmore scored two goals each for Kingston. Nancy Seale had the other goal for the visitors.

Jerri Rushlow received the only Belleville penalty, for playing with a broken stick.

The loss brings the Mel Barrages' record to three wins and two losses, good enough for third spot in the six-team league.

Bonkers Blanked By Comets' Douglas

Lorne Douglas recorded his second shutout of the season in Sunday's first game of the Northern Electric Hockey League with the Cometa bombing the Bonkers 7-0.

In Sunday's second game, the Dukes and Bruins played to a 3-3 tie.

Scope of Fitness Test Limited

By RAY STAFLEY

A reader writes:

"I recently bought a three-year-old sedan privately. Since the vehicle had just passed the mechanical fitness safety check, as required by the authorities I assumed it would be in perfect condition and did not have the car examined by my mechanic before buying it.

"I had only driven about 200 miles when the engine developed a knock and the automatic transmission started to shift erratically. The automobile to repair both these units is $500-$600. I suggested to the vendor that we split repair costs, but he claims the car was sold on an 'as is' basis and refuses to assume any responsibility.

"My mechanic, whom I know to be honest and knowledgeable, tells me that the problems in the engine and transmission must have existed for quite some time. Why would these important items have been overlooked during the mechanical fitness inspection? — Mr. L.B., Toronto."

Other readers who have experienced the same misfortune make it obvious that many used car buyers haven't a clue as to what is and is not included in the mandatory mechanical fitness check.

When compiling the list of items that must be included in the mechanical fitness examination, the authorities were primarily concerned about ridding our roadways of unsafe vehicles. Therefore, it is quite possible for a vehicle to pass this test and still be in need of hundreds of dollars worth of repairs which, in fact, have no bearing on the safe operation of the vehicle.

Included in the check list are such items as steering components, service brake and parking brake mechanism, tires, wheels, universal joints, wheel bearings, suspension springs, frame and shock absorbers.

Mirrors, windshield and windows must be free of cracks and blemishes that impair the driver's vision. Headlights are tested for intensity and adjustment. Parking lights, stop lights, signal lights, horn and windshield wipers must be functioning. Collision or rust damage resulting in sharp protruding metal objects on the car's body brings rejection.

While passing this test offers reasonable assurance that there is no immediate danger of the vehicle suddenly going out of control, it is well to remember that the parts inspected do not have to be as new in order to gain a clean bill of health. Safety items such as brakes and tires may well need replacement just a few thousand miles after the test.

Don't be misled by the mechanical fitness certificate. The engine, transmission and various other units could be breaking down fast and still the vehicle could pass this test. Also, various body panels could be paper thin due to internal corrosion.

When buying a used car, to minimize the possibility of staggering repair bills follow this advice. Take the vehicle to a reliable mechanic and pay him to do a thorough bumper-to-bumper check, including the body for signs of rust, and ask for an estimate on total repairs.

Don't make a deposit or sign forms of any kind until this has been done.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Astronaut, Too, Wary of Exercise

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm beginning to come around to your way of thinking that exercise is unnecessary for physical fitness. What's good enough for Neil Armstrong, the first man to set foot on the moon, is good enough for me. I read recently that he said, in answer to a question, that he did not believe in taking any necessary physical exertion to become fit for his duties as an astronaut. In fact he was quoted as saying something that sounded familiar: that he believed in saving his heart beats.

Has he read your book? I have your book open at Page 36 where you say: "I believe that each of us was born with a given number of heartbeats in our heart-bank. Some of us, because of poor heredity or congenital illness, were born poor. Others were born rich. Those of us who are fortunate were given an initial deposit of two to three billion heartbeats for a lifetime of living.

"What I want to stress is that persons born poor (with fewer heartbeats in the bank) should not indiscriminately throw away those beats in the unnecessary exertion known as exercise. Instead they should become heartbeat misers."

Lately, too, I have been reading articles by other doctors who now warn against too much jogging, bicycling, etc., as possibly being dangerous. I think, at last, I'm turning into a believer of your theory rather than the disbeliever I used to be. Aren't you happy? — Mr. B.

Whenever I can make a convert out of an overexerciser, I consider it an accomplishment. Jogging? Often harmful. Bicycling? It's the best exercise if you "coast downhill."

As for Neil Armstrong, I don't know if he has read my new book. It's possible that he hasn't, and has arrived at his sensible philosophy of conserving heart beats because of his apparent intuitive good sense and intelligence.

Whatever it is, I am not presumptuous enough to believe that I can honestly tell my grandchildren that I had something to do with getting the first man on the moon. But between you and me, I'm secretly pleased.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: At last I've got over a bout of bursitis in my right shoulder. Ye gods! I never dreamed that I'd suffer from calcium deposits at my age (38).

My friends tell me to give up bowling. After three years of the sport, and having a ball of my own, how can I do this? I used to bowl only once a week, and in moderation.

Will it make my shoulder worse? My doctor says it's OK to bowl. That it will prevent my arm from getting stiff, "Frozen shoulder," he calls it. Please answer yes or no. — Mrs. G.

Comment: I agree with your doctor. The answer is yes. Bowling in moderation is a sensible way to limber up. Sur prise! I'll wager you expected me to say no.

Insane People Are Logical

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Like all columnists, I get quite a few letters from crazy people. They write much more often than sane people, they write much longer letters — and they also write much more logical letters.

That last statement might surprise you, but it wouldn't surprise any psychiatrist who has had firsthand experience with the mad. For the essence of insanity is utterly logical thinking based on a false premise they are incapable of examining or shaking.

Most of us do not reason logically or precisely; we wander, we skip, we leave larger or smaller gaps in our thinking processes — for the relatively sane mind is loose, flexible and open.

The mad mind is tight, rigid and closed. It operates inexorably from its first premises, and has an absolutely airtight explanation for everything that seems to contradict its assumptions. Once you accept its main premise, however, you are relentlessly swept along to its conclusions.

And this is why logic, or reasonable persuasion, is of no use in trying to convince the mad that they are victims of a gigantic mistake. As Dean Swift once said, in a favorite quotation of mine, "It is impossible to reason a man out of something he has not been reasoned into."

There are different levels and degrees of madness, to be sure. But there is one paranoid strain running through most of these people that makes it easy to detect their aberration — they tend to find one single main cause for the woes of the world, past and present.

They may blame the "Communist conspiracy," or the Catholic Church, or "international Jewry," or the eating of animal flesh, or the gold standard, or miscegenation (which they commonly call "mongrelization"), or the use of spirituous beverages, or anything ranging from the paternity fuction to the dangerously plausible.

But history is not made this way; human events do not revolve neatly and predictably around a single core, like so many electrons whirling around a nucleus. The real world is diverse, contingent, discrete, and most of all over-determined in its chain of causes and consequences. This means that many convergent factors (some of them accidental) combine to decide what will happen historically.

Orthodox Marxism, if carried far enough, becomes a form of political madness, for it oversimplifies the pattern of society, based on its inflexible (and erroneous) premise of "dialectical materialism." But we ourselves, in blaming the bulk of contemporary problems on some horrendous monolith called "Communism," are likewise the victims of the same sort of social insanity.

Robarts Raps Party Pessimists, Says Ottawa Ignoring Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — After months out of the limelight, Premier John Robarts came out fighting this weekend—accusing the federal government of ignoring Ontario's needs and warning pessimists in his own party to stop undermining voter confidence.

The premier's strongly-worded talk Saturday to 800 delegates at the Ontario Progressive Conservative party's annual convention was his first major speech outside the legislature in several months. It served two political purposes:

—On the eve of the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa, he warned that the Ontario government will not allow its views on tax-sharing to suffer federal defeat like its opposition to a national medical-care scheme.

—He dispelled some defeatism about the party's electoral prospects that have permeated Ontario Tory ranks since the September byelection loss in Middlesex-South to the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Robarts indicated a provincial election can be expected in 1971 and told his supporters they had better take a positive attitude if they wanted "to stop destroying things and start building."

"Let us have confidence in ourselves," the premier replied. "Let's not undermine our own confidence or let anyone else do it either."

Premier Robarts has been premier and party leader for eight years and the Tories have formed the government in Ontario for the last 25 years.

'Too Many Stuffed Shirt' Tories: Delegate

TORONTO (CP) — Too many "stuffed shirts" and "party socialites" and too few members of the working class belong to the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association, a party member told the association Saturday.

Stan Rowe of London, Ont., said the party has "all kinds of socialites participating at executive levels", but when there's work to be done, such as before elections, these types disappear.

District and riding associations rotate the same people in executive positions year after year, he said. What the party needs are members from unions who are organized and can carry the vote.

"We're stuffed shirts," he said. Even convention name tags carried the proper "Mr., Mrs., or Miss" instead of the friendlier first name.

President Alan Eagleson said only 800 of a possible 1,000 delegates for the annual meeting attended. A $10 registration fee, new this year, might have held back some members, he said.

But the fee had made the convention self-supporting for the first time. Usually it costs the party from $10,000 to $11,000.

During the two-day meeting, delegates rose at seminars to say they feel cut off, both from the association executive and from the government.

Mr. Eagleson said the association plans to send out minutes of PC caucus meetings as background material for the ridings.

Glen Hodgson, provincial member for Victoria-Haliburton, said the ridings want to know practical techniques such as how to raise money and the ridings should share new ideas with each other.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

"And if he WON'T give you a raise ask him if he'll marry me if I divorce you!"

Sees Society Degenerating

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A law school professor says the tendency in our society towards uncontrolled collection and swapping of data on individuals will lead eventually to suppression of idealism and degeneration of society.

Prof. Edward Ryan of the University of Western Ontario, who earlier this year prepared a brief for the Ontario law reform commission, said individuals will tend more to conform with the behavioral norms set by the assessors.

He suggested to the Unitarian Fellowship that Christopher Columbus, considered to be an eccentric in his day because he insisted the world was round, today would never have received credit to obtain ships for his historic voyage.

Prof. Ryan, who is currently on a three-man team studying the problem, said there are no laws in Ontario that protect the individual from invasion of privacy. He said the only way a person can find out his credit rating is to have a lawyer buy his record from a credit bureau or other data-gathering organizations.

Medicare Protesters Boo Wells

TORONTO (CP) — More than 7,000 unionists and students booed and hissed Ontario Health Minister Thomas Wells Saturday as he attempted to explain the government's position on medical care insurance.

The minister was jeered as he told the Queen's Park rally all aspects of the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan are "under consideration" for revision.

Only a few minutes of Mr. Wells' address was audible above the crowd's roar, and the demonstrators finally drowned him out completely as he tried to leave them with a "parting thought."

The crowd, supported by small student and church groups, asked that private carriers be phased out as collection agencies for OHSIP, called on the government to use the $176,000,000 federal contribution to reduce premiums and demanded OHSIP pay 100 per cent of health costs.

A brief presented to Mr. Wells later by the sponsoring Ontario Federation of Labor and the Ontario region of the National Farmers Union also asked that OHSIP coverage be extended to cover drugs, psychiatric treatment and physiotherapy.

The demonstrators marched from city hall to Queen's Park carrying signs in an orderly and cheerful procession. One sign said: "Robarts took good care of himself. Now how about our sick society?" Another, carried by Hamilton rubber workers, read: "Citizens of Ontario deserve full medicare, not semi-care."

Four Die, Four Born at Rock Fest

TRACY, Calif. (AP) — A sea of trash covered a speedway Sunday where the day before a crowd estimated by police at 300,000 youngsters attended a free rock-musical festival and four persons died.

A few heaps of litter turned out, on closer inspection, to be sleeping bags with someone inside. A man sat on a 30-foot light stand contemplating the scene.

At least 200 youngsters stayed through the night rather than enter a massive traffic jam that for at time stretched almost 30 miles.

The Rolling Stones and other rock groups performed all day Saturday.

An unidentified man was fatal ly stabbed in the back and face when he leaped on the stage and pulled a gun during a performance. His assailant apparently escaped, authorities said.

The body of a youth was pulled from the nearby Calidre sia Aqueduct after, witnesses reported, he accidentally toppled in.

A car driving out of the speedway ran off the pavement and killed two persons lying on the ground. A woman was seriously hurt.

Four babies were born and their mothers were cared for in an emergency medical tent set up on the grounds.

Europe Facing Great Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has returned from the NATO ministerial meetings in Brussels apparently convinced that circumstances are ripe for a major breakthrough in East-West relations.

"There is a coming together of events in Europe today that opens the way to profound change," he said in a report to the Commons Monday.

"Basic differences between East and West will not be resolved overnight but there is reason to believe that a new era of genuine negotiation has begun."

It was the most optimistic report that a Canadian delegate has brought back from the annual Brussels meeting of NATO foreign and defence ministers for many years.

Mr. Sharp told the House that three developments herald "this era of change" which he said is taking place in East-West relations.

This was the opening of strategic arms limitation talks between the U.S. and U.S.S.R. at Helsinki. The others were West Germany's recent overtures to the Soviet bloc, and last week's Common Market summit meeting in The Hague.

Canada Has Veto On Arms

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government holds a veto over the use of nuclear weapons by Canadian forces assigned to NATO.

This was made clear by Defence Minister Leo Cadieux Monday under a barrage of opposition questions in the Commons.

The questions were touched off by a reference to nuclear weapons in Mr. Cadieux' report to the House on last week's NATO ministerial meetings in Brussels.

Tip to Hosts: Let Each Pour His Own

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Motor Association is advising holiday hosts to let their motoring guests help themselves at the bar.

"We have found that guests generally take it easy on the drinks when they are allowed to drink at their own speed," says Don Carlson, AMA public relations director.

The AMA's safe driving slogan for the Christmas season this year is "first a friend—then a host."

Won't Give Up Say in Pensions'

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia today teamed up to reject the federal government's bid for over-riding powers in the field of pensions legislation under a new constitution.

Arguments involved meaning of federal paramountcy in the field.

The matter was referred back to further study by officials after Prime Minister Trudeau said that "if you don't like the word paramountcy we will find something else." By referring it back to officials for a clearer definition, he said, it could be established exactly where this paramountcy would apply.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec said during the second day of the federal-provincial constitutional conference that federal paramountcy in this field could mean "federal action without any concern for provincial governments."

Both Mr. Trudeau and Justice Minister John Turner told the premiers that the word paramountcy was not needed to suggest that the federal government would over rule provinces in deciding the types of pension plans to be established.

Mr. Turner said it was meant to apply to such areas as portability—to ensure that Canadians would not suffer by moving from one province to another.

Premier John Robarts of Ontario agreed with Mr. Bertrand that problems of portability of pension benefits could be worked out by negotiations among federal and provincial governments.

While the centralization of power would contribute to efficiency, "I don't want to change the face of federalism in the name of administrative neatness."

He said Ontario did not want to surrender its bargaining rights in this way. The Canada Pension Plan had been negotiated in good faith, portability had been achieved, and this type of arrangement could be continued.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia said he fully agreed with the points advanced by Quebec and Ontario.

Mr. Bertrand opened provincial discussion of the issue by saying Quebec wants the right to go it alone on welfare programs even if other provinces want to cede their rights to run such programs to the federal authority.

It would cause no problem for the rest of Canada if Quebec operated its own pension plan under a revised constitution.

Mr. Robarts asked for clarification of the suggested federal paramountcy.

Mr. Turner said there could be both federal and provincial laws governing pensions. When OTTAWA (CP) — Government and union negotiators today awaited the report of a conciliation board before starting a seven-day countdown to a national air strike.

The dispute between government treasury board bargainers and the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, which represents 1,850 employees who direct air traffic across Canada, reached a stalemate Monday night.

Los Angeles Police Raid Panthers' Lair

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police say a series of attempts by armed Black Panthers to intimidate officers day behind a decision to raid the militant Negro organizations Los Angeles headquarters.

The result was a four-hour siege and shootout Monday in which six persons, including three policemen, were wounded.

It was the latest in a series of police-Panther encounters which have resulted in the death of 28 members of the Negro group since January, 1968, said Charles Garry, white lawyer for the Panthers' national headquarters in Oakland. Two Panthers, were fatally shot during a police raid in Cairo Thursday.

Acting police chief Harold Gates said the purpose of his men was to serve warrants for illegal possession of weapons.

Gates said an officer went to the Panther headquarters last week to check a complaint of an overly noisy juke box, and was ordered to leave by persons armed with a pistol and a shotgun.

The same week two patrolmen passing by the building reported they saw a man at a window, a machine-gun poised at the ready, Gates said.

He said the Monday raiding party — which eventually swelled to nearly 250 officers — culminated with the confiscation of 25 automatic weapons, three shotguns, two Thompson sub-machine-guns, eight rifles, three hand guns and a large quantity of ammunition, some of it armor piercing.

Optimistic Nixon Is Planning To Bring More Troops Home

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon today appeared to have strengthened his hand in Vietnam policy with a pledge to withdraw more troops by the end of the month and a firm condemnation of the reported massacre of civilians at My Lai.

The president Monday night told his first televised news conference in 2½ months that he would order another pullout in two or three weeks—just in time to give war-weary Americans a reason for extra celebration around Christmas.

But Nixon indicated he did not expect much at present from the Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

He refused to predict how many men would be withdrawn this month, saying the number would depend on events between now and the time of his announcing the figure.

His report of progress in unloading the war on the South Vietnamese was so generally optimistic that observers speculated that the withdrawal might involve up to 40,000 troops.

He also went further than any administration official to date when he seemed to accept that a massacre of civilians did take place 19 months ago in the hamlet of My Lai.

Nixon referred to "what appears was certainly a massacre," adding "and under no circumstances was it justified."

The president said one of the goals the U.S. is fighting for in Vietnam is to keep the South Vietnamese people from having imposed upon them a government (Hanoi) that makes a policy of carrying out atrocities against civilians.

For this reason, Nixon said, "we cannot ever condone or use atrocities against civilians in order to accomplish that goal."

Nixon said there are several individuals who will be tried in connection with the My Lai incident, in which South Vietnamese civilians are reported to have been murdered by U.S. infantrymen. Lieut. William L. Calley, has been charged so far.

But he cautioned that the charges "alleged" will be applied to it because of judicial proceedings involving army men who had been or would be charged with participating in the incident.

The president said he believed My Lai was an isolated incident against U.S. policy, and should not be allowed to uncover decent men who had gone to Vietnam.

Snowmobile Fun--but Not for Some

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

This is the winter of content for snowmobile fans in the Quinte district.

Their numbers are legion, their sport has come into its own.

But the carefree career of the intrepid little vehicle also is raising some trepidation.

So much so, Belleville city police now are opening a file to determine the dimensions of public discontent.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie today confirmed his department also will launch a public education program on the use of snowmobiles.

The city's traffic committee yesterday discussed such an approach — after several citizen complaints to police during the weekend.

Last week, city council also heard an indictment against the sightling noisiness of the vehicles on city streets.

But the situation ranges beyond city limits.

Conservation authorities have warned that the snowmobile's phenomenal popularity could become a major problem in harassment of wildlife in critical winter periods.

Railroad officials also complain that the use of train rights-of-ways by snowmobile sportsmen is creating a problem for maintenance crews.

Taken in total such areas of complaint indicate that this winter will decide official public response to the snowmobile's usage.

Main Costs Bug Residents OMB Told

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A group of North Sidney Street residents will have to await an Ontario Municipal Board decision to learn whether they will be required to pay local improvement charges on a planned new watermain from which they claim they will receive no benefit.

The residents are objecting to proposed frontage charges for a new 18-inch watermain to be run up Sidney Street to serve a new industrial area south of Highway 401.

They are not objecting to the watermain installation — they feel it should be paid for on a use basis and not through local improvement charges.

The OMB hearing into the Sidney Street watermain objections was heard at city hall Monday with decision on the objection being reserved.

The objectors live on the west side of Sidney Street between Maple Drive and Parkdale Drive where there is now no watermain.

They get their water by way of private "parallel lateral" mains extending down the street right-of-way to connect with six-inch mains at Maple and Parkdale.

The Public Utilities Commission wants to run an 18-inch main up Sidney Street from just north of the CN double tracks to serve new industry in the Hanna Street and Davey Road areas south of Highway 401.

The local improvement charges, however, would apply only in the section between Maple and Parkdale Drive where there is now no watermain.

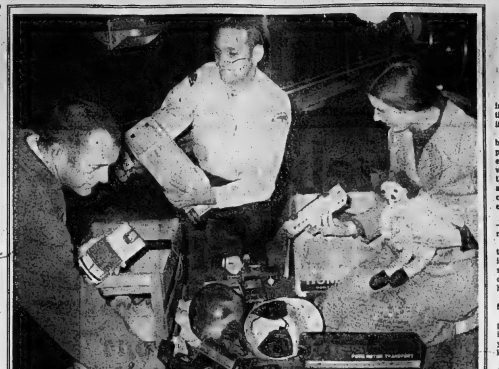
The objecting residents say they are happy with the service they now receive and to be forced to pay local improvements on the new watermain would be tantamount to being charged twice for service they already have.

Some of the residents in question have relatively wide frontages and local improvement charges would range up to a high of $900 over the 15-year payment period.

On the other hand, PUC manager E. L. Burnham thinks the proposed new watermain would benefit most of the objecting residents in that it would relieve them of possible future repairs to their now privately-owned mains.

If any of these mains sprung a leak and had to be replaced, the PUC would do the repairs and in all probability bill the owners concerned, Mr. Burnham said.

If the objecting residents connected to the proposed new main when it was installed, there would be no service connecting charges.



The private parallel watermains owned by the objecting Sidney Street residents are a carry-over from the days when the area was still outside the city limits. The east side of the street was then in Thurlow Township and the west side in Sidney Township.

In reserving decision on the objection, the OMB hearing chairman said he felt the city should pay more toward the cost of the proposed watermain than it intended.

He noted the proposed 18-inch main was not being put in at the request of residents, but to service industry which would benefit the entire city.

On the other hand, he felt the new main would be of some benefit to the objecting residents and said they should not get off without any charge.

The matter will be discussed by Toronto with the OMB Chairman before a decision is reached.

Toys for Tots

Mrs. Jane Haslett, director of the Christmas Exchange, and firefighters Bob Andrus (centre) and Reg Christopher, keep their project on the road as they box some of the toys that have been donated by the public. Toys in good condition may be dropped off at either fire hall, where they will be sorted and boxed, and later distributed to the more than 1,100 needy youngsters in the city.

City Firefighters Collecting Toys To Brighten 1,100 Christmas Morns

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Not just any kind of children — but those children less fortunate than the rest.

Again this year the association, in co-operation with the Christmas Exchange, is gathering enough toys for the more than 1,100 underprivileged children in the city.

This kind of involvement on the part of the firefighters is par for the course—they have been working to assure that needy children have a merry Christmas for the past 20 years or more.

Since the onset of the festive season, association members have been asking the public for toys — new or in good condition — to aid them in their bid to enable the many youngsters in the city to have a happier Christmas morning.

Almost every firefighter gets actively involved in the project, donating his free time to package candy, help pack boxes of toys and distribute them to the children.

In past years, firefighters have spent hundreds of off hours repairing and cleaning up toys.

This Christmas, no toy repairs are being made at all.

The reason, explained Mr. Christopher, was simply the fact that the majority of toys on the market are made of plastic, and once broken, are irreparable.

This fact has forced the association to accept only toys that are new or in good condition.

"We appreciate each and every donation. Toys can be brought to either fire hall, where they will be sorted and boxed", said Mr. Christopher.

The Firefighters' Association has been working closely with other groups in a sort of "pooling resources" type operation.

Their recent drive for toys through the city schools was most successful.

"The response to our toy boxes placed throughout schools in Belleville was excellent.

"We received real support not only from school principals, but from the students, too," remarked Mr. Christopher.

Mr. Christopher mentioned the 150 dolls donated to the project by the Women's Branch of the Progressive Conservative Association as well as the willing assistance of Brownie, Guide and Scout groups.

"The Quinte Tuirlers are holding a square dance later in the month, at which each member will bring a new toy or gift to be given to our project, to be turned over to the Christmas Exchange", the project chairman explained.

Mr. Christopher stressed the need for public support of the association's drive for toys, and for donations to the Exchange itself. A portion of donations will go toward the purchase of candy, mitts, coloring books, crayons.

Response as far as toy donations go, has been "very good", Mr. Christopher related.

"There are more than 1,100 children that need our help. Without it, these youngsters will not have a Christmas morning, it is as simple as that."

"Without the assistance and co-operation of the public, this project would not even get off the ground. By lending their support they can become an integral part of this giving — and that is what Christmas is all about," concluded Mr. Christopher.

In addition to donating their time for the success of the toy project, this year the association voted in favor of donating the money normally used for its annual Christmas party for its own children — $150 — to the Christmas Exchange.

Snowmobile Fun But Caution Urged

Recent licence registrations in Belleville alone reveal how the machine has finally inherited its own sporting kingdom.

Last week the city's licence bureau ran out of snowmobile plates. By that time, officials estimated some 1,200 of the vehicles are now registered in the city area. In two days alone, 100 owners sought licences before the supply was exhausted.

But its popularity is obvious — in the open countryside and now in city suburbs.

Increasingly, the sporty little machine has been making its appearance on wintry city streets — once the exclusive domain of automobiles and hardy cyclists.

Thereby, hangs the reason for increasing public wariness.

In Belleville, city police report only one traffic mishap involving a snowmobile this year. But it was the first of its kind within city limits.

"We're going to have to sit down and take a close look at this situation," admits city police inspector Ralph Blatchford.

It's potential as a hazard depends on a factor common to all machines — the operator, emphasizes the officer.

"It depends on the guy who is driving it," says Insp. Blatchford.

However, there must be some form of official response. Sheer numbers alone make it impossible to ignore the snowmobile's presence in the community, he indicates.

"We're going to have to do something about it, because there are so many of them," says Insp. Blatchford.

There is a reluctance to legislate.

Traffic committee chairman Alderman Roger Keegan says the group is not contemplating any regulatory bylaw "at present," although "it will come to that."

There also apparently is reluctance to enforce the law on a sport that is "basically a lot of fun."

Other communities already have faced the bylaw issue with mixed reactions.

Peterborough city council last month approved an ordinance banning snowmobiles from municipal streets. Ten men already face court charges for alleged contraventions.

The snowmobile ban has raised stormier response in Peterborough.

A proposed restrictive bylaw was tabled there last week after 1,200 signed an objecting petition.

Among other sections, the act forbids persons under 16 years from operating a snowmobile on public thoroughfares.

Yet, says Belleville Ald. Keegan, there are complaints that youngsters have been driving the vehicles on city streets.

Further afield, a senior Canadian National Railways police official in Belleville says the snowmobile is "a terrific problem".

The Railway Act was amended two years ago to unofficially prohibit snowmobiles on railroad tracks.

The vehicles pack snow between tracks on branch lines and sidings. Switches are jammed and movement of the rails hampered, he says.

The problem is particularly acute in the bush country of the Bancroft area.

Bush landscapes are ideal for the sporty snowmobile. But in this area also comes warnings of a potential problem.

A news bulletin published last week by the department of lands and forests includes this reminder:

"The harassment of wildlife is one of the major problems conservation agencies are in the growing use of snowmobiles. Perhaps the problem has its source in the fact the majority of snowmobilers are not old-line outdoorsmen."

"This reserve," warns the bulletin, "can be depleted and the animals left physically exhausted if forced to back through deep snow in a futile effort to elude curiosity seekers."

But, the Quinte district is ideal for the use of snowmobiles and the organized efforts of various clubs have demonstrated the popularity of the new sport. It has put people back in the outdoors.

As Insp. Blatchford says, "It's opening up a whole new field of recreation. Two years ago you couldn't get outdoors on a Sunday afternoon no matter what you did."

"The snowmobile is to wintertime what the small boat is to summer." And organized facilities apparently are growing to meet the boom.

Among local organizations gearing to meet the demand is the Oak Hills Ski Club.

Already, the organization provides snowmobile trails across its property, stretching around the local countryside for "20 miles or more," says a club official.

It also is installing a racing track and will organize competitive snowmobile meets — already popular events in other Ontario communities, including Peterborough.

Between the major events the track will be available to the individual sportsman.

"We think that in future the main emphasis of snowmobiling will wind up on the racing track," he says.

Grape Boycott Urged

Organized labor in the Belleville area is seeking local public support for California's grapepickers.

The Belleville and District Labor Council last night passed a motion supporting the U.S. United Farmworkers in the California grape boycott — designated for Dec. 15-22.

During that period Belleville labor will be asked not to purchase the products of California vineyards — the scene of a protracted labor dispute over working conditions.

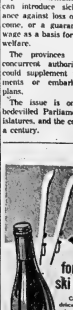
and if they were in conflict, the federal law would prevail.

Mr. Bertrand said this seemed to be a reversal—and Mr. Turner confirmed that it was—of the existing provision of the British North America Act, as amended in 1964, declaring that no act of the federal Parliament in the field of pensions could ever rule a provincial law.

This would mean that the Canada Pension Plan would have priority over the Quebec Pension Plan, he said.

If all the other provinces prefer to leave the exercise of power over pensions to the federal government, "it would cause no problem to the rest of Canada if Quebec operated its own scheme," Mr. Bertrand said.

The prime minister and the 10 premiers argued to a draw Monday on the issue of whether the federal government showed have unquestioned power to make direct payments to individuals for income security.



The government here wants clear authority to do so under any new constitution so that it can introduce sickness insurance against loss of regular income, or a guaranteed annual wage as a basis for anti-poverty welfare.

The provinces would have concurrent authority so they could supplement federal payments or embark on other plans.

The issue is one that has bedevilled Parliament, the legislatures, and the courts for half a century.

Hees Urged to Save Company After 30 Workers Laid Off

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — "The future is not overly bright," plant manager John Warden said this morning of J and S Industries after it laid off 30 workers last Friday because of lack of funds.

Mr. Warden, who is one of two investors in the newly established furniture plant just west of here, said he was looking for financial backing, probably from the Metro Toronto area.

Meanwhile, George Hees, MP for Prince Edward Hastings, reported this morning that he had received telegrams from 19 of workers laid off, asking him to intervene in the situation.

The workers say they will not be able to obtain unemployment insurance before Christmas and will be forced to go on welfare in order to provide for their families unless a quick solution can be found.

"I will do everything I can to keep the industry going, by approaching the Ontario Industrial Co-operation and the Industrial Development Bank as soon as I get the necessary information," Mr. Hees asserted.

Mr. Hees then explained that last Thursday in a phone conversation he had asked Mr. Warden to send him a letter outlining the plant's problem, and setting down a plan for the use of the borrowed money if it could be obtained.

Having received no word from Mr. Warden by this morning, Mr. Hees contacted him by phone. Mr. Warden promised he would send Mr. Hees the information required today.

"Upon receipt of the information, the two lending institutions, will look into the situation, for they have to satisfy themselves that it is a sound undertaking with a good chance of success", Mr. Hees emphasized, "after all they are dealing with the taxpayers' money."

"I don't feel there is much Mr. Hees can do, because I don't qualify for a loan, so I am willing to let someone else take the plant over," Mr. Warden said this morning.

"I will even drop assets and absolutely no return to allow someone to step in and keep this business going."

Mr. Warden noted that he had been refused a loan by both the Industrial Development Bank and Commercial Banks. He said that the plant failed to meet the qualifications of the IDB, because it utilized used machinery. The commercial banks refused a loan because the plant had not been in operation for a year.

Following a shift from Peterboro to the J and S Industries began manufacturing office furniture here in late September. The plant is located in the old Canada Packers building two miles west of Brighton, just south of Highway 2.

Cheaper facilities and a superior labor force were cited by Mr. Warden as the reasons for the shift from Toronto. He said that he had personally invested $44,000 in the plant and all but $14,000 of the machinery valued at $70,000 was paid for.

"We had projected for 85 employees when we were in full operation, and I know that we could sell $1 million worth of office furniture each year in the United States," Mr. Warden stated.

However, the plant manager has not given up hope yet. When he laid off the 30 workers Friday, he kept three or four lead-hands to help him get things in the event that the plant got on its feet again.

Inspectors — Paul Stephenson and Reg Christopher — Check Tree Lights

Christmas Fire Safety Major Concern

By BARRY GRILL
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Fire Department is intensifying its Christmas fire safety program as Yuletide holidays and celebrations draw near.

Fire inspectors Paul Stephenson and Reg Christopher have their hands full, informing the public of safety tips.

And it's quite an involved sphere. Part of their job is to address schools, organizations and industries and to provide any information needed by the public concerning safety at this and any time of the year.

This morning, for example, Mr. Stephenson and Mr. Christopher paid a visit to Dolora Stellike with a collection of Christmas safety material.

The company had requested them to bring the material to the plant for publication in its newspaper.

And part of the safety problem of this time of year is the danger which lurks among the age-old preparations for the festive season.

Christmas trees, flammable wrapping materials and decorations may pose grave threats unless they are handled with care. Even the spirit of the "party season" itself may add its own dangers of momentary carelessness or neglect, which could bring terrible consequences.

But it is children and their safety that most concerns the Belleville Fire Department.

"Never leave little children unattended," urged fire chief Leo Culhane. "Never take a chance on slipping out for a few minutes. Only a few seconds can turn happiness to horror when decorations, gift wrappings and trees bring increased dangers of fire into homes."

Under the Criminal Code of Canada, heavy penalties for negligence, which may endanger the life or health of any child under the age of 10 years, are authorized.

Chief Culhane also warned that parents should make sure that any natural tree set up in the home be bought when it is fresh and green, and kept with its butt immersed in water throughout its stay indoors.

Under certain conditions, he said, a single match may ignite a tree. They should be removed immediately after Christmas.

Lighting should be checked for frayed insulation or other damage. Discarded wrapping paper, cigarettes and matches should be kept away from the tree.

Christmas trees must not be set up where they will obstruct access to doors or windows in an emergency.

The first rule in the event of fire is to get out safely. Then the fire department should be called.

"Enjoy the happy season," Mr. Culhane said, "but be sure that Christmas cheer does not bring a careless attitude to fire risks."

Board Budgeting 'Piecemeal': Trustee

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Hastings County Board of Education has been "establishing the 1970 budget piecemeal, without knowing the over-all picture" a trustee charged last night.

Paul Fleming told his fellow trustees, "We have approved expenditures at every meeting over the last few months, when we don't know the total effect".

He objected specifically to a proposed expenditure of $329 for photographs of pupils for inclusion on school record forms.

In the past, pupils paid for the pictures themselves. A new policy, drawn up by administration, calls for photographing of all kindergarten, Grade 7 and Grade 10 pupils each year, at a cost of eight cents a pupil.

The board approved the photograph policy in principle, subject to budget approval next spring.

Mr. Fleming's comments sparked debate on another item involving expenditure of $35,000 a year for films the next three years.

The board was asked to buy films from the department of education's film library, now being phased out over a five-year period.

After considerable debate, the board referred the matter to another meeting, asking for more information and a report on the advisability of operating a film library in conjunction with other neighboring county boards.

This comes under the category of commitment," director of education Eric Nurse told the board. "It's a unique moment in the history of the department."

Robert Wyll, audio-visual co-ordinator, said the county owns about 250 educational films now and should have 2,000 prints for "an optimum library."

Costs are $25,000 annually for three years the board could buy 1,000 films from the department and start its own library.

However, at the suggestion of Macdonald Smith, the question of the necessity of a film library and its cost was deferred until more information could be provided by administration officials.

The board decided to pay $3,677 for 1970 membership in Trustees' Association and the Trustees' Council.

"I'd hate to go into salary negotiations without the support of this organization," commented Mr. Smith. "We can't go it alone."

'Manna' Fund Grows

Calvinettes, a youth group from Bethany Christian Reformed Church, raised $200 last Saturday in a door - to - door sale of Christmas wrappings, cards and ribbons. Proceeds from a movie, "Angel in My Pocket", shown last night at Picton's Regent Theatre, boosted the project by an additional $50.

Rev. Robert Jones, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Picton, an organizer of Operation Manna, commented on "a positive feeling" of the young people attending the film last night.

Rev. Jones has placed collection cans in many of Picton's downtown stores.

Tonight, volunteers will gather at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for a brief rally before beginning door-to-door canvassing in Picton.

Tomorrow evening, Stanley Burke, former CBC newscaster, who has visited Biafra, will speak at Picton United Church.

Canvassing throughout the county will be carried out during the remainder of Biafra week.

Piasecki Buys Flying Club Land

BY MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Piasecki Aircraft Canada Ltd., has purchased land surrounding Prince Edward Flying Club and intends to extend the flying club's runway more than 7,000 feet, adapting it as a landing strip for jet aircraft.

The announcement was made yesterday by Piasecki representative Walter Symmons during a Chamber of Commerce directors meeting here.

This is a long range program, he said, emphasizing that a number of city-dwellers looking for a scenic place for holidaying, might join the jet-set and fly into Picton.

Mr. Symmons also hinted one day a commercial airline might show interest in the sight.

Murray Clapp, a pilot instructor confirmed urban-dwellers' interest in Prince Edward county as an ideal holiday site. He said there was every indication of cooperation between the club and Piasecki — the club's new landlord.

Operating independently, the flying club this year has recorded 500 visiting aircraft.

According to Mr. Clapp, about 10,000 movements (landing and takeoffse) are reported by the club during 1969.

Mr. Symmons urged the Chamber to support the flying club, suggesting donations could be made to a scholarship fund to assist interested young people in obtaining helicopter pilot's licences. Cost of securing these licences is about $1,000, he noted.

Weekend Scene

There are probably few greater follies a Bellevillian can commit than to take his car downtown on a Friday afternoon. When traffic stretches all the way along Coleman, not to mention Front street and other arteries, and it takes up to half-an-hour to travel less than a mile, one might just as well walk.

Yet by some perversity — or is it just stupidity — citizens insist on perpetuating this weekly ritual of tieing up much of the downtown area and filling the air with gaseous exhaust and getting each other all riled up.

A much better scene was Saturday's Christmas parade when traffic, of necessity, gots lost, and a happy atmosphere prevails. Not only is the air comparatively clean but good humor abounds and most people have a happy time watching the festive march-past.

Yet it nearly failed to come about; but thanks mainly to Don Foster it did. It should be an example to everyone of what individual initiative can accomplish and an encouragement to the community to ensure the parade is never dropped again.

Murder Charge

One of the sickening aspects of hippiedom, of the gang now in custody and charged with the murder of actress Sharon Tate and four others, is the fact that some at least of the group have good family backgrounds.

One is a 24-year-old being held on a murder warrant in Texas. A picture of him in his senior high school year depicts a typical clean-cut young American. A cousin who is a sheriff says he knew him in school as "one of the nicest boys you could ever meet."

In California, meanwhile, two young women who deserted comfortable, middle-class homes to follow the leader of the hippie group, Charles Manson, described him as "magnetic," and that he seemed "kind."

A young woman — alleged to have been at the scene of three murders said she was led there while in a hypnotic trance. We are left with the sad conclusion that too many people in this world are easily led; they fall under the spell of plausible, smooth-talking individuals.

It makes a good case for the need both at home and in school to train youngsters, boys and girls, to really stand on their own feet, to take nothing for granted and to be very critical indeed of the mental calibre of their fellows.

Of the Spirit

Every now and again television presents something of value, something of the spirit that touches the inner being.

Such a program was an American-produced documentary Sunday on the celebrated Chilean poet Pablo Neruda. Whether walking the streets of Santiago, talking with students, visiting the zoo or exploring the rocky shore below his coastal home, Neruda's poetic vision is all-encompassing — eloquent of Lord Chandos' advice that "it has got to be" part of your being that nearly everything and everybody is fascinatingly interesting."

Add—to this the beauty of the poet-diplomat's verses meaning—the richness in the English translation narrated by British actor Anthony Quayle, and it became a memorable 30 minutes.

A line from one of Neruda's poems sums up his philosophy — "the little treasures forgotten by all." So many of these have been engulfed in the rush of everyday life. Yet they may be recaptured by reading the Chilean's work which is the most widely read of any poet in any language.

The Fashion!

Young Canadian women interested in a service career and anxious at the same time to stay in fashion, find they cannot have it both ways. That is clear from a recent news picture of a navy Wren modelling her uniform the way she would like it — with the hemline of the skirt several inches above the knee.

But unified, integrated, and newly-packaged as Canada's three services are, service regulations do not extend to accepting this contemporary fashion; all of which probably discourages recruitment, and leaves those who do join among the few who have any regard for knee-length outfits.

Could it be, though, that those responsible for the regulations (indeed, one wonders about them) are relenting? After all, the picture of the girls was an official Department of National Defence photo. And if Air Canada and other airlines allow their girls to be "with it," why not the services too?

Canada Target of International Conspirators

Extremists Take Advantage of Lax Immigration Laws

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau's caution about extremist elements from Mexico and the U.S. coming into Canada and stirring up revolutionary activity, seems less far-fetched with each passing day.

Last year in a speech at Queen's University, Kingston, about the poor of Mexico linking up with the oppressed Negroes of the U.S. and then pouring across the Canadian border to make common cause with Indians and Metis.

The prime minister then said he was far more concerned about these prospects of social unrest than he was about the Berlin Wall and the nuclear threat.

He was criticized at the time for supposedly exaggerating social problems as an excuse to downgrade Canada's military commitment to NATO.

But social unrest — student riots and bombings have made their appearance in Canada, granted that most of the violence has been in Quebec.

It is ironic though that the policies of the Liberal administration at Ottawa appear to be aiding the upheaval that Mr. Trudeau fears may come to Canada.

To this country come people like black power advocate Stokely Carmichael, ripple leader Jerry Rubin and Black Panther spokesman Fred Hampton, invited by student groups at various universities. The relaxed policies of the federal immigration department permit these people to enter Canada, even though they may have criminal records.

The federal position now is that if a reputable group wants to hear the views of people like Carmichael or Rubin, the immigration department will not interfere.

This attitude by the government hilarities former prime minister John Diefenbaker who condemns the practice of permitting extremists free entry into Canada to preach sedition.

Mr. Trudeau's prediction about a link-up between Canadian Indians and activists from other countries was right on target. In the last few weeks, Black Panther personnel were in Alberta and Saskatchewan, reportedly to speak to university students.

But Saskatchewan Attorney General Darrell Heald says it is clear the Panthers came to seek disciples and allies among the Indians. Mr. Heald protested to Ottawa but got the brushoff from Immigration minister Allan MacEachen.

Just how frustrating the government policy must be for Immigration Department officials was demonstrated by the fact that they had to let three Black Panthers enter at Winnipeg, only to discover later that two of them had used false names.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in 1968 he was perturbed about "great risks or the beginnings of civil war in the U.S. during the next half-dozen years." And he cautioned about this violence "overflowing into Canada."

There has been violence and to spare in Montreal with millions of dollars damage to Sir George Williams University and with foreign students playing a prominent part in the destruction.

There have been indications that unrest at some universities has been encouraged by professors from other countries.

Certainly, the ideas and the ferment of revolt against the establishment, as demonstrated at Simon Fraser University in British Columbia, have been essentially an export from the U.S.

Prime Minister Trudeau predicted it all last year but he has not supplied the remedy. It may be that his promise of a Just Society in the 1968 election campaign is his ultimate answer to any revolutionary tendencies in Canada. Thus far, his Just Society still seems a long way off.

Lindsay's Lead On Municipal-Regional Government Issues

Peterborough Examiner

It is not extravagant to say that Ontario municipal governments are currently facing their most serious challenge and to predict that the next decade will decide the fate of local government for a long time to come.

The re-election of Mayor John Eakins in Lindsay suggests that Lindsay voters are more aware of this challenge than voters in many other municipalities and their choice of Mr. Eakins endorses the city's continued, aggressive response to that challenge.

As a former Liberal candidate for election to provincial Parliament and as an active member of the Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association, Mr. Eakins has demonstrated a keen interest in provincial affairs as they relate to local municipalities and has consistently demonstrated his concern over the gradual erosion of local powers to the provincial level.

The mayor demonstrated his belief in the need for local initiative when he originated the now well known 'Lindsay Eyesore Bill' and saw it pass in a private member's bill.

The bill gave Lindsay the right to order the clean-up of an unsightly, burned - out building and set a precedent for local control over commercial buildings specifications and building standards.

Control until then was confined to residential standards, and while the new jurisdiction applies only to Lindsay, there are indications that all local municipalities will soon have this power.

Mr. Eakins has repeatedly said that Lindsay and Victoria County should anticipate regional government rather than passively sit back and let the province impose artificial boundaries and administrative centres on them. He has insisted that county officials join other municipalities in the area and plan for the future before the provincial government does it for them.

He specifically proposed that Victoria County put its house in order by consolidating several of the rural municipalities within the county boundaries. In addition Lindsay council has been actively and successfully attracting industry in an effort to establish itself as a significant centre which could eventually become the centre of a regional government.

The reasoning is that if this is not done, Lindsay will end up being attached to a regional government jurisdiction with headquarters either in Oshawa or Peterborough.

The move towards greater-than-local control is a welcome one. This same course was advocated strongly by the municipal Liberal party in Toronto's election; but the voters rejected it there.

Lindsay's leadership in local government and local responsibility could well be heeded in other spots.

It's Time to Update Election Practices

Brockville Recorder and Times

Before another civic election is held in Brockville city council could give some thought to many of the antiquated election practices that are still very much a part of today's "matchinery". The polling subdivisions, the location of polling booths, the proper signs directing people to such booths and a better method of posting voters' lists would encourage greater interest in municipal elections. Such elections should not be an exercise that is fraught with frustration.

A special committee of council could be created to study the present methods and make recommendations for improvements. Some of the old tried and true methods of grandfather's day may not be adequate today. There are a great many newcomers in Brockville who are not aware of who their neighbors are let alone the ones in the next block.

Time was when everybody knew everybody else in Brockville. There were no problems as to who was on the voter's list or where one had to vote. The polling booth was always in the same location. The location of the booths and the voter's list both pose problems today, however. And we wonder about the polling subdivisions. Could they be redesigned to better serve the city, using the neighborhood boundaries that are outlined on the city's official plan? This plan is scarcely ever used for anything, yet it could serve the city in many more ways than it does at present.

We noticed that the people of Toronto were complaining about not being able to find polling booths which were not marked by sufficiently big signs. As in Toronto, Brockville uses, for the most part, private homes for polling booths, a circumstance that is hardly conducive to a heavy poll, for its own subtle psychological reasons. It was recommended in Toronto that future elections should require that polling booths be located in churches, institutions, schools, etc., or in the lobbies of apartment buildings, rather than private living rooms. Perhaps one school could serve three or four polling subdivisions.

The matter of marking ballots is another point. Any mark opposite a candidate's name should be considered a good ballot. Consideration is being given this problem in so far as provincial and federal elections are concerned. Another matter that a special council committee could study would be that of the date of the election. Some attempt should be made to develop uniform election days for all municipalities but it should not be a date when the snow is likely to be a foot deep. October or early November would be far better than the current practice.

The Anatomy of Red Tape—or How Not to Do Business

By IRVING C. WHYNOT

CP Business Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Put 100 people in any given situation and some of them are bound to turn it into a business venture.

Then the complicated laws of economics and bureaucracy take over and some weird and wonderful things start to happen.

The Canadian Importers Association, whose members probably deal with as much red tape as anyone, takes a tongue-in-cheek look at one such fictional situation in a recent bulletin.

Lock 100 people in a room without food or water, give them each $100 and tell them it will cost $200 to get out.

A three-man committee will immediately be elected to find a way out and they will call themselves a democratic government, which will promptly decide it needs funds and assess everyone $10, appoint two people to collect the tax, three to check that the tax is paid and four to consider what should be done to those who balk at the idea.

The government will appoint two commissions, one to find out why they are all in the room and one to find a way out. Within 20 minutes all funds in the room will be committed.

Someone will feel thirsty talk two or three people into feeding him some of their money to pay the $200 exit fee, go out and return with a pail of water which he sells at $5 a sip. He will be called an entrepreneur.

Two or three will tire of paying $5 a sip, get together to form a water company. Issue shares at $10 each, ask the government for a tax-free, interest-free loan and pay the fee to send a man outside to push a pipe through the wall with a tap on it. They will offer water at $1 a handful and be called industrialists.

A small, humble man will begin to tire of water, borrow some money, go out of the room for a long time and return with a pail of orange juice. He'll be called an importer.

The water company will complain and the government will pass new laws taxing the orange juice when it comes into the room.

The price of orange juice goes up and the people turn back to drinking water and more and more water starts coming into the room.

Then one of the water company men will find out where orange juice concentrate can be obtained and start selling water to mix with the concentrates outside. He is an exporter.

Eventually, no more orange juice comes in, and the high price cuts off the outside demand for water.

With no water going out and more and more coming in, the room is soon filled to the ceiling.

'Ten Against One,' Says Bertrand

Sharp Sense of Isolation Shown by Delegation from Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — A sharp sense of isolation, complete with undertones of bitterness, was expressed by members of the Quebec delegation at the constitutional conference Monday.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand told reporters that he sensed that none of the other provinces supported Quebec in its call for decentralized federalism.

Mr. Bertrand said:

"It amounts to two solitudes. The other provinces favor a certain centralization. Quebec is fundamentally in favor of decentralization."

Marcel Masse, the nationalist minister of intergovernmental affairs in the Bertrand cabinet, said the talks are becoming "less and less worthwhile."

The comments came after discussion of division of powers in the proposed new constitution in which Quebec seeks control over social security programs.

Around the conference table, only Quebec opposed the federal government's bid to conserve its right to make direct cash grants like family allowances to individuals.

For the first time since the constitutional conference began, the Quebecers got the impression that only they really want constitutional change.

"It's 10 against one," said a Bertrand aide.

A high-ranking member of the Quebec delegation said bitterly that English Canadians had elected Prime Minister Trudeau "to break Quebec."

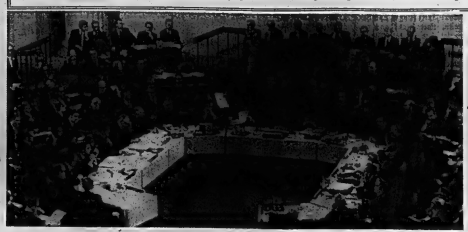
He said:

"The English-Canadians don't even answer our arguments. I doubt that they even read our documents. They are just sitting back and letting Trudeau do the dirty work."

Mr. Masse, at 33 the youngest man in the Quebec cabinet, said the English-speaking provinces do not view constitutional change with the same urgency as Quebecers.

He said Quebec's governing Union Nationale party might have to reconsider its constitutional position in Quebec politics.

He noted that the Union Nationale advocates "constitutional renewal," advocating a middle-of-the-road line between the federalism of the Quebec Liberals and Quebec separatism.



Mr. Masse, co-chairman of the Union Nationale's 1965 policy convention, said the party might one day have to abandon the idea of constitutional renewal.

In this case, he said, it might have to choose between "Canadian orthodoxy" and Quebec separatism.

Premier Bertrand, a long-time advocate of constitutional negotiations, told reporters that this is the wrong time to display impatience. "I think it best to be tenacious and fight for our ideas."

Mr. Bertrand did not elaborate, but he noted that 1970 will be a general election year in Quebec province.

Differences Are Great

New Constitution Will Require Ten Years to Write--Robarts

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier John Robarts of Ontario says the first day of the federal-provincial constitutional conference confirmed his conviction that it is impossible to write a new constitution in much less than 10 years.

"We won't come to any rapid conclusions," he said at a news conference after the three-day conference, which opened Monday morning, finished its first day.

"And I hope there are no misconceptions that we will be able to write a new constitution in one or two years of conferences.

"It just is not possible, with the great variation of opinions among governments. Some of our differences may never be reconciled and we may, in fact, never be able to reach final agreement."

Leaders of the two opposition parties in Ontario, here as observers, in interviews criticized Mr. Robarts for what they called "waffling" over federal proposals for concurrent powers with the provinces in the field of social assistance.

The premier in his opening remarks said the conference should not attempt to discuss specific types of assistance and relegate them to one level of government or the other. It should first discuss "some of the broader principles and issues which underlie" the subjects of income security and social services.

Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, said Canada has been discussing broad principles for two years. If specific social problems cannot be solved through a new constitution then they should be solved under the old one.

Donald MacDonald, Ontario NDP leader, said he is disturbed by the "waffling attitude" of the provincial delegation.

Government leaders should first find the solutions to serious social problems, then try to write a new constitution to fit the circumstances, he said.

"If they can't be made to fit, we can live with the old constitution."

Mr. Robarts told the news conference his views on a guaranteed annual income as a federal responsibility are similar to Prime Minister Trudeau's, but he cannot accept the federal proposal that Ottawa be given paramount power in the field of sickness insurance.

If the federal government believed a guaranteed annual income program necessary for the welfare of Canada, but was unable to get a provincial consensus, "then the federal government will have to assume its responsibility and do what has to be done."

Mr. Robarts said he sympathizes with the position of Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec, who rejected federal action on social assistance on jurisdictional grounds. But that position is acceptable only "in the terms of Quebec." Mr. Robarts added.

"I don't happen to agree with him, but I see the problem in the terms of Ontario and his problems are not Ontario's."

Ontario, and "probably no other province," agreed with Mr. Bertrand in his rejection of direct federal payments to individuals under such programs as family allowances. But no other province had Quebec's deep-felt desire to protect language and cultural rights.

Mr. Robarts said he does not believe lack of support by Ottawa for Mr. Bertrand's position will necessarily strengthen the hand of separatists in Quebec, an argument used by Mr. Bertrand.

"Quebec has taken the same position he does at conferences for 33 years and stayed in Canada."

The Ontario delegation, in a position paper, accepted federal proposals for sharing powers in social assistance fields, but only where the base of federal programs is narrow enough not to interfere with programs to which the provinces give higher priority.

Ontario wants most direct services to individuals left as the responsibility of the level of government closest to the people, in some cases the municipalities and in others the provinces.

The federal government should limit its responsibility to "services of a more impersonal nature" such as redistribution of income and the provision of an income floor.

The floor, however, "should not be so high that it jeopardizes the goals of provincial programs," the province maintained.

Atlantic Premiers Not Worried About Powers If They Get Money

OTTAWA (CP) — The premiers of the four Atlantic provinces aren't worried about the federal government muzzling in on provincial preserves in a new Canadian constitution — not if it means more federal money to help pay the bills.

They made that clear at Monday's discussion of constitutional powers at the federal-provincial conference.

Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick even proposed that Ottawa assume full financial responsibility for basic education, minimum income standards, health services, shelter and equality before the law.

Premier Campbell of Prince Edward Island foresaw the federal government providing "a foundation program" for education, now a provincial responsibility.

Nova Scotia's Premier Smith said in an interview later that "if Ottawa is prepared to provide more money for education we certainly have no objection."

* * *

Mr. Campbell seemed to sum up the Maritime approach to constitutional reform when he said: "Prince Edward Island is not primarily concerned with who shall deliver these programs as in how we are to pay for them."

The Atlantic premiers saw no objection to Prime Minister Trudeau's proposal that Ottawa have equal power with the provinces in the field of income support, including such things as sickness insurance or a guaranteed minimum income.

Thatcher Says Ottawa Putting Boots to West

OTTAWA (CP) — Western Canada's voice on constitutional matters sounded like a whisper Monday after the thunder of a charge from Saskatchewan that Ottawa is putting the economic boots to the West.

Premier Ross Thatcher, of Saskatchewan ignored the blueprint of the federal-provincial constitutional conference to make the charge, supported by Alberta and British Columbia.

While government leaders discuss Quebec's aspirations and the financial troubles of the Maritimes, he said, Western Canada faces an economic crisis that could affect all parts of Canada.

He included blasts at railway freight rates for Saskatchewan potash, the Prairie grain surplus, barriers to sale of western oil east of the Ottawa River and Ottawa's recent white paper on taxation.

On this last subject, he was formally joined by Premiers Harry Strom of Alberta and W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia in saying over-all effects of the paper would be completely unacceptable in the West.

Mr. Thatcher had said earlier that constitutional reform, the subject of the conference, wasn't his No. 1 priority.

"When will there be a conference to discuss with equal seriousness the problems of Western Canada?" he asked. "I'm not an alarmist and I'm certainly not a separatist but . . . the problems of this area cannot be ignored."

Later, he and Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer joined in supporting the federal government's campaign for equal powers with the provinces to make income support payments directly to individuals.

Mr. Strom and Mr. Bennett also agreed, but expressed reservations as to how much power Ottawa should have.

The three western premiers said proposed tax changes in the white paper would hit hard the resource industries on the Prairies, though some aspects of the paper were acceptable.

Mr. Thatcher promised a "vigorous protest" against the white paper.

Mr. Schreyer, at his first constitutional conference, did not join any of the western attacks on Ottawa. He was not invited to the luncheon session that produced the blast at the white paper.

The Manitoba premier said he favors a strong central government not only because Manitoba needs more of Ottawa's money but because it would contribute to Canadian unity.

The 4-H Homemaking Club Achievement Day for North and Centre Hastings County was held on Saturday, December 6 at Centre Hastings Secondary School when 89 girls from 11 clubs completed the project "Dressing Up Vegetables". Each girl had on display her record book, recipe file and three different vegetable garnishes.

The morning program opened with the 4-H Pledge and Miss Mary MacEachern, Hastings County Home Economist, presented the following with their leaders badges: 4-clubs: Cooper - Remington Kittens, leader, Mrs. Fred Bailey and assistant, Miss Christine Yzerseef; Maynooth 'I' "The Potato Mashers", Mrs. George McAlpine and Mrs. Arthur Pettipas; Harts - Riggs, Mrs. Joseph W. Foley and Mrs. Allen Ketchabaw; Ivanhoe Tubby Tomatoes, Mrs. Gerald Kerby and Mrs. Ted Pollock; Vegetable Wranglers, Mrs. E. Brunton and Mrs. Owens; Crookston, Mrs. Delbert Francis and Mrs. Donald Blackburn; Chapman Chums, Mrs. Thos. Kelly and Mrs. Lorne Gunning; Eldorado Sour Krouts, Mrs. Harley Blackburn and Mrs. Douglas Lee; Maynooth 2, Mrs. John E. Green and Mrs. Vern Cannon; Bannockburn Vegetarians, Mrs. Cyril Shaw and Harold Kuenmber Koolies, Mrs. Alfred Adam and Mrs. R. C. Kirn.

The girls were divided into various groups to take part in the morning activities which consisted of answering a quiz, identifying 14 kinds of vegetables, judging a set of menus and giving reasons for their placing. When each girl had had time to complete these activities they correct answers were given.

After lunch the many visitors were welcomed and then each club presented an exhibit, skit or demonstration as follows: Demonstration: "A Salad Plate", Harold Kuenmber Koolies; members, Betty Sine and Mary Lou Kirn; Exhibit: "Five Ways With One Vegetable", Bannockburn Vegetarians, Commentator: Fern Lemmon; Skit: "A Vegetable Market Basket", Maynooth 2 Galloping Gourmets, All Members; Exhibit: "Vegetables All Year Round", Eldorado Sour Krouts, Commentator: Nancy Blackburn; Demonstration: "Do you Know These Vegetables", Chapman Chums, Members: Joan Johnston, Mary van-derWey, Leona Cournoyea; Exhibit: "A Vegetable Table Centre", Crookston, Commentator: Joan Aylesworth; Demonstration: "A Vegetable Relish Tray", Ryistone Vegetable Wranglers, Members: Lennora Stapley, Marlene Shortt; Exhibit: "Color For Vitamins", Ivanhoe Tubby Tomatoes, Commentator: Cathy O'Leary; Skit: "Dressing Up Vegetables", Harts - Riggs Homemakers, All members; Exhibit: "Five Ways With One Vegetable", Maynooth Potato Mashers, Commentator: Kayla Robinson; Demonstration: "Potatoes Every Day", Cooper - Remington Kittens, and members, Bonnie Watson, Jane and Joan Bailey.

At the end of the club exhibits, visiting home economists, Mrs. Mary Lou Hutton and Mrs. Janet Jeffrey gave several helpful comments on how these presentations could be improved for another time.

The various awards were then presented. Certificates of Achievement were given to 31 girls completing a 2nd project.

Mrs. Francis Tobin, Hastings North District Women's Institute president presented the county and provincial honor pins and certificates to girls completing 6 and 12 projects.

County honors to: Eleanor Reid, Bannockburn; Bonnie Baker, Harts-Riggs; Ann Sexsmith, Harts-Riggs and provincial honors to: Theresa Johnston, Chapman; Denise Kelly, Chapman; Nancy Lawrenson, Chapman and Lois Hagerman, Eldorado.

Miss MacEachern made a special presentation of a 5 year leaders' certificate to Mrs. Harley Blackburn of the Eldorado Club.

The program was closed with an invitation to take part in the spring project, "Focus on Fitness."

CLUB ACTIVITIES

PARENTS WITHOUT PARTNERS

The Bell-Trent Chapter 424 of Parents without Partners met in the Belleville Recreation Centre last Thursday evening at which time several prospective members were welcomed.

The guest speakers included a panel of three from Life Line. They were put on the "hot seat" for a question and answer period after they had explained the history and purpose of their organization.

Everyone felt that it was a most informative as well as enjoyable night. A number of new items of business came up for discussion and included the details of a children's Christmas party. It was also noted that on Wednesday December 10 in the evening a discussion will be held at Selma McComb's, 10 Gordon Street, Belleville. The topic at this time will be how this organization (Parents without Partners) helps the single parent.

All enjoyed a social half hour when coffee and cookies were served.

What They Mean

The terms "minimum care finish" or "wash and wear" on the label of a garment sold in Canada mean that a finish usually of synthetic resins is applied to the fabric to give it a wearable appearance when laundered or when set cleaned by standard methods. Little ironing or finishing if required.

Yule Bazaar Held at School

The presence of Santa Claus highlighted the Holy Rosary Christmas Festival and Bazaar held recently at George Vanier School. Present to greet the large number of children and other guests were CWL president Mrs. Jean Mulvihill, Mrs. Donna Heron and Mrs. Carol Guest, the bazaar convenors.

In charge of admissions were Mrs. J. Watters and Mrs. A. Hoekmeier. Mrs. L. Smith was in charge of the decorations including wreaths hanging from the walls, hanging ornaments and baskets of artificial poinsettias and ferns.

In charge of the candy booth was Mrs. Dolly Bischoff. home-baking Mrs. Irene Smith; novelties Mrs. Faye Bradshaw; aprons Mrs. Bedard; fish pond Mrs. Y. Gallant; touch and take Mrs. Dorothy Pane; snack bar Mrs. London; this, that and the other, Mrs. Rita Munroe; tickets, Mrs. Theresa Hogan; bingo F. Mulvihill; cartoons G. Bibby.

Tickets for the quilt were sold by Cecilia Harvey and Donna Guglielmi. Mrs. J. Watters was in charge of the door prizes and students of grades 5 and 6 of Holy Rosary School looked after the odds and ends booth.

Winners of the door prizes were Mrs. Joan Trevorton, Mrs. Gehan, Mrs. Helen O'Connor, Mrs. Couture, Mrs. Sykes, Mme Bierman and Mrs. Keller. Ruz winner was Miss M. McQuaid and winner of the quilt was Mrs. J. Harvey.

All in all the bazaar could be considered a huge success as indicated by the number of happy faces present to greet Santa.

Sisters of St. Ann Relinquish Hospital Reins

VICTORIA (CP) — The Order of the Sisters of St. Ann has relinquished the reins of a hospital which it began in 1876.

St. Joseph's Hospital was officially handed over in November to the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society.

Since its inception 93 years ago the hospital has grown almost out of recognition in serving the communities of southern Vancouver Island. Today it has earned a top name in North America for its talented medical staff and work in special fields such as geriatrics and treatment of burns.

But the work of the Sisters goes back much arfther—to 1858 when four of them arrived at Victoria with Bishop Modeste Demers aboard the sailing vessel Seabird.

Immediately the Sisters began tending the sick in a city where there were only 200 houses and most of the population lived in tents.

The log "convent" measured 30 by 18 feet and served as a school and health centre as well as living quarters by night—when rough mattresses were laid on the bare dirt floor.

Each evening after school was over, the Sisters would visit the homes of the sick. By coincidence, the first home they visited was on the exact site where the nucleus of St. Joseph's Hospital was to be built 18 years later.

In 1858 two more Sisters arrived from Quebec to help with the increasing work load. Prominent was Rev. Mother Providence, who at 22 was made superior of the Western missions. She was to direct it for 45 years.

The cost of constructing the first building of St. Joseph's Hospital, a two-storey brick structure, was $13,500—a sharp contrast to today's costs.

One thing has never changed though—the warmth and personalized care that the Sisters provided for their patients.

Dr. Alex Wood, interim board chairman of the society which will govern St. Joseph's, hopes that the warmth will never disappear.

"The Sisters have provided an excellent foundation on which to build a modern medical centre that could be an example to North America.

"We hope to combine the best of the old and the new. The best, to my mind, is the effect the Sisters had on their patients. Patients never felt they were going into a hospital—it was more like visiting someone else's home."

Three-part Venture Aids in Church Work

A pre-Christmas Shopping Spree climaxed a three-part effort on the part of the concregation of Christ Church.

Friday evening, with the Church Hall bedecked with lighted trees and Christmas wreaths, patrons were able to shop for unusual, pretty and useful items for everyone on their Christmas lists. Toys, foodstuffs, pet dishes, Christmas wreaths and door decorations and sewing and knitting of all kinds for all ages were available. To top it off, a mouthwatering assortment of home-made pies and coffee were served.

Earlier, in November, an opportunity sale and baking bonanza and a huge rummage sale made up the other two events of this parish effort and the proceeds of the whole venture were presented as a donation from the congregation at the morning service on Sunday.

Shirley (Temple) Black Stands UN Test

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Few delegates have been such close scrutiny from colleagues and public alike, but Shirley Temple Black seems to have stood the test at the United Nations.

The famed dimpled smile and an eager shower of interest in the issues before the UN Social Committee where she sits have won over many delegates who were less than enthusiastic two months ago at the prospect of having a one-time child star in their ranks.

"She is like a fresh breeze that has gently blown into our midst," Saudi Arabian Ambassador Jamil Baroodi told a reporter. "After I heard her speak, I realized that Shirley Temple had not rested on her laurels as a child movie star. She has emerged as a sincere activist and an exponent of youth and its aspirations."

The problems of youth have long interested Mrs. Black, the mother of three children. Her first speech in the social committee dealt with youth and national development.

"We didn't expect to hear such fresh ideas from someone we had looked upon as more or less a dilettante in this field," said one diplomat.

Many delegates have been critical of the U.S. policy of staffing its General Assembly delegation with at least one celebrity who often has little or no real interest in United Nations matters.

Such criticism was directed at Mrs. Black when the session began, but she won many of her colleagues over.

"She is most charming, very nice to everybody," commented Rita Cadieux, delegate from Canada "and she certainly is interested in all the topics we are discussing."

"Does she write her own speeches?" asked a woman delegate. "We never see her taking notes during the debates. It's a bit puzzling."

Actually, Mrs. Black follows the policy of most delegates. Some texts are written for her at the U.S. mission, but much of the material is her own.

What has endeared her most to delegates, perhaps, is Mrs. Black's talent for telling stories on herself. She intrigued them with an account of a visit she made to President Franklin D. Roosevelt's home in Hyde Park when she was eight years old.

Mrs. Roosevelt was bending over a barbecue pit on the lawn to turn the luncheon steaks. Little Shirley pulled a sling shot out of her pocket and let fly a pebble at the bending figure.

The startled Mrs. Roosevelt screamed and threw up her hands. This brought a bevy of secret service men on the run, convinced that a serious attempt had been made against the president's wife.

Mayor-elect Has Unusual Qualifications

PRESTON, Ont. (CP) — This town's mayor-elect, Claudette Millar, has some unusual qualifications.

"I'm not a politician," she said in a recent interview.

"I'm certainly not a feminist. I have no church affiliations and don't belong to any clubs. And another thing I am not is the world's greatest cook."

In fact, she is a little surprised that she will be sitting in the mayor's chair in January.

"Ten minutes before nominations closed, no one had come forward to oppose incumbent Mayor Harry Halberstadt," she said. "a friend suggested I run and when my husband had no objection I agreed."

Mrs. Millar, who sees herself as half-a-way between Charlotte Whitton, former mayor of Ottawa, and Bernadette Devlin, the Irish member of Parliament, received 1,901 votes. Mr. Halberstadt, a former railroad engineer, had 1,210.

She spent $600 on the campaign and lost 10 pounds. She did not know the mayoralty pays $3,500 annually.

A graduate sociologist and world traveller, Mrs. Millar works full time with her husband Clare at their Kitchener travel agency.

Her single campaign promise was "to ask a lot of questions."

The one local political question she had studied extensively is the proposed $200,000,000 Peel Village New Town which would increase the town's population to about 40,000 from its present 15,000.

Fascinating Contest for Calorie Counters

By DORIS CLARK

As the ladies entered our hall we had a table set up with a variety of foods in different amounts on it.

There was no information available as to what the amounts were, or what was in it. There was a piece of steak, a green pepper salad, a cereal bowl with cereal, milk and sugar, canned pears, a bowl of flour, and so on.

The idea was for each member to take an educated guess as to the amount of calories on the table. They also had to use their own judgment as to the amount of the foods on the table (one cup, etc.).

In a book, each member wrote her name and beside it her guess. At the end of the evening the one who came the closest received the first door prize.

In our case, we had a total of 2734 calories on the table. There were four door prizes given out. Our guide for counting the calories on the table was our own Calorie Counters Book — News Lea'd, Canadian Calorie Counters

Dear Doris: I have for some time now failed to see why a section of any newspaper should be raised with a column like yours.

A good deal of the time you are answering someone's letter, and anyone reading this does not have a clue what you are talking about, without first reading the problem letter.

Secondly, why not make your column interesting, by publishing a recipe or poem you receive from a reader free. This would make your column worth reading. You receive many recipes and poems from your readers free. Why not share them, and leave the almighty dime out of it? — Just Pat

Dear Pat: I appreciate your frank comments. Perhaps there are others wondering about the same thing.

It might surprise you just how many people write in with a problem and then ask me not to publish it — just the answer. All too often a reader is so anxious to remain anonymous that not even a name comes for me to reply to. A "Confidential to" item is my one way of reaching such troubled souls.

When I started the column, I did offer some leaflets free of charge. Requests poured in and my accountant impressed on me just how much this extra printing and handling and mailing was costing. It didn't occur to me that anyone would mind paying a dime for something they wanted.

I write wisely, many private replies to sticky, individual problems without a charge of any kind; something which few professional people will undertake to do.

* * *

Dear Doris: Last summer my husband changed jobs. He's much happier in his new position (which I believe is important) but the switch meant quite a loss in pay. Thus we are having quite a time trying to cope financially.

Recently we heard of a counselling service for families in financial distress. — S.O.S.

Dear S.O.S.: I have great admiration for a couple who will put job satisfaction above high pay. When we really put to work our individual God-given talents, every moment of our work day can be happy self-realization.

But sailing things down to a new level of income isn't easy. There are counsellors right across Canada who can help you to figure out a workable budget. Mostly they are to be found in family services. The one near you is the Family and Children's Service at Hastings County, 311 Front Street, Belleville.

* * *

Is it a point of etiquette that is troubling you? Doris can tell you how it's done in Canada.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

RIVER VALLEY W. I.

Mrs. J. R. Donohoe was hostess recently for the December meeting of River Valley Women's Institute. The home was decorated with a lighted tree and carried out the Christmas theme. Twenty eight women were present.

The president, Mrs. Roy Tucker presided. Various reports were given and the convenors gave helpful ideas on their department of work. Mrs. Percy MacMullen read a letter of thanks from the Friendship Link secretary in England. The individual Christmas gifts were received on Nov. 17.

Plans were made for the various cheer parcels to be given to shut-ins. A large array of gift parcels was brought by the members for the Mental Health distribution centre in Belleville.

Honorariums will be paid to the 4H Club leaders and senior training course leaders.

The fall issue of Home and County was distributed by the secretary, Mrs. Gerald Brooks. The treasurer, Mrs. J. L. Donohoe reported the proceeds of four card parties in November and expenditures made to date.

Reports were given by Mrs. Glenn Bush, Mrs. Ernest Carr, Mrs. Roy Irven and Mrs. Roy Bush. The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Morrow.

The pennies for Friendship were gathered. Mrs. George Grills convened the program and Mrs. Harry Morrow contributed Christmas piano music. Mrs. Ernest Carr read a couple of poems on the theme of Christmas.

The subject discussed was "Hurry" written by Mrs. Robert H. Hoard and read by the public relations officer. The closing thought was "May we at this Christmas season try not to be in such a hurry that we cannot enjoy the holiday season with our friends and families."

Several carols were sung with Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh as accompanist. Mrs. Harry Morrow and Mrs. Albert Wilhelm conducted the gift exchange.

The hostess and lunch committee served Christmas refreshments and at the close Mrs. Glenn Bush thanked all who had contributed to the success of the afternoon.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "I have to think of the Christmas bills. It's all I can do to keep up the other bills paid. Wish we could just skip Christmas."

Mother: "The children will be so disappointed if we cut down much. Christmas has always been so special to them."

Christmas still can be a special event without going overboard on gifts. In fact, your young may find a new joy in making presents and in planning more economical fun.

The recipe I have for you today calls for 1 lb. dried limas and serves eight generously. If you have a small family you can cut the recipe down to half or make the whole batch and store the left-over amount in a plastic carton for a future meal.

SAVORY LIMA BEANS
(Serves 8)

1 lb. dried lima beans
4 cups cold water
½ tsp. salt
3 tbsps. margarine or butter
½ lb. (3 cups) washed and sliced mushrooms
2 tbsps. chopped onion (or bottled flakes)
½ green pepper chopped
2 tbsps. flour
2 tsps. paprika
1 tsp. salt (second amount)
(1 cup reserved bean liquid — see below)
1 cup dairy sour cream
2 tbsps. chopped parsley (or bottled flakes)

Rinse beans in cold water then soak in the four cups cold water overnight in the pot in which they are to be cooked. Add ½ tsp. salt and simmer covered 2 hrs. until tender. Drain. Measure liquid and reserve 1 cup.

In large saucepan or very large frypan melt butter or margarine and in it gently saute until limp but not brown the mushrooms, onion and green pepper — about 3 - 4 min. Then stir in flour, paprika and second amount of salt until blended, then add reserved 1 cup bean liquid and sour cream, stirring until slightly thickened. Add drained cooked beans and parsley and heat stirring gently three or four times. Serve in preheated vegetable dish.

This dish takes the place, on a buffet table, of such things as scalloped potatoes or macaroni and cheese and was relished by my crowd.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Sausages; Spiced Applesauce; Mashed Baked Squash; Creamed White Onions; Sliced Cucumber and Green Pepper; Hot Gingerbread with Ice Cream; Coffee.

Marital Problems Also in Bangkok

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your esteemed counsel appears in the Bangkok press and I pray for a swift reply. Forgive please my English, Madame. It is not my best language.

Americans do not realize their luck in having no worse marriage problem than the eternal triangle. Life in other parts of the world is not so simple. I write in behalf of my uncle. At age 18, his parents ordered him to marry a lovely girl of their choice. She has been a most dutiful and loving wife but produced, unfortunately, four daughters and no man child. After six years, the father of my uncle expressed the wish that his son take another wife to insure a male descendant. The parents selected a second kind and lovely girl, somewhat younger than the first wife.

In four years Wife Number Two has produced three fine sons. My uncle has pleased his father immensely, but there is terrible fighting in the house between the two wives. They hate each other. As if this is not trouble enough, the commotion between the four daughters and the three sons keeps the entire household in a frightful uproar.

There is not sufficient money for two homes and I fear there will, one day, be a crime committed if something isn't done. If you can, please find in your wisdom a solution to this problem. You shall be blessed by many husbands in Asia. — CHANG LO-TAO.

DEAR CHANG: Often, in order to solve a problem, one must be willing to take on another problem. Here is my recommendation: You say your uncle cannot afford two homes. I say he must find a way to maintain his two families in separate dwellings. The dividends, in terms of peace of mind and freedom from anxiety, will be well worth the extra effort required to maintain two homes.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few weeks ago my beloved father passed away. I'm still in a state of shock over the behavior of our relatives. Immediately after the funeral, and for one week following, aunts, uncles and cousins descended on Mom's home like locusts, eating everything in sight. They always arrived at mealtime right and ten strong expecting to be fed — not snacks, but dinners and suppers. Mom had a modest supply of liquor on hand. They drank up every drop, including the fine wine she had put away for special occasions. Her telephones were tied up by my uncles who were conducting business from the kitchen and the bedroom.

Worst of all was what they did to her vegetable garden. Almost everyone took some went away with armloads of the vegetables Mom had planned to can. There isn't an ear of corn left.

If these people have no respect for the dead, what about a little respect for the survivors? What do you call people who behave like this? — DAZED.

DEAR DAZED: A few names come to mind at once — clods, boors, slobs, insensitive hulks, graceless louts, no-class yokels. Why do people behave that way? Because no one taught them to behave any other way, and unfortunately they didn't learn themselves.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several months ago I was out of work, sour on the world, and drinking heavily. I was sitting in a motel room with another boozer and we decided to get even with the people who had done us in. We wrote several letters to former employers, neighbors and relatives. Of course, the more we drank, the nastier the letters became. The stuff was mostly lies and vicious ones at that. Unfortunately, we mailed the letters that very night.

Word has gotten back that the letters (which were unsigned) have caused a great deal of trouble. Now that I'm on the wagon I deeply regret the unhappiness I've caused. What should I do, if anything, to set things right? My wife says I should keep quiet or I'll get myself into a real jackpot. I find that I think about these people more and more. Help me, please. — CONSCIENCE STRICKEN.

DEAR CON: I suggest that you write to the people and confess that the letters were written during a drunken spree, that they were filled with lies and you are truly sorry. If you haven't the courage to sign your name, send the letters anonymously. If you can somehow find the courage to sign, I urge you to do so. It will help you regain some self-respect.

Fair Trial for Calley Impossible Says Lawyer

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The civilian lawyer for Lieut. William L. Calley Jr. says he feels it will be impossible for his client to receive a fair military trial because "everybody has gotten into the act on this case.

"They want to get on television and they want to talk," said George W. Latimer of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Earlier Monday, Latimer and Calley's military lawyer, Maj. Kennedy A. Raby, filed a motion here to dismiss all charges against Calley, 26, on grounds that he cannot get a fair trial because of prejudicial publicity which has created "a vast amount of public passion" against him.

Latimer referred to widespread comments and published accounts on the army's case against Calley, charged with slaying 109 Vietnamese civilians at My Lai on March 16, 1968.

"I'm only saying that he (Calley) couldn't have a fair trial in military court," Latimer said. "I wouldn't rule out any other possibility because 100 many other things are still under discussion."

The lawyer, who for 10 years was one of three civilians comprising the U.S. Court of Military Appeals, was interviewed by telephone after President Nixon's television news conference Monday night.

In response to questions about the president's remarks on the subject of My Lai, Latimer replied:

"I wouldn't care to comment on what the president said unless I do it in court. I don't know what he had in mind."

During the news conference, Nixon was asked specifically:

"In your opinion, was what happened at My Lai a massacre, an alleged massacre, or what was it?

The president said: "What appears was certainly a massacre, under no circumstances was it justified."

The dismissal motion by Latimer and Raby cited earlier statements about the case by Nixon and Army Secretary Stanley Resor and said those comments tended toward exercising "command influence" on a court-martial jury.

The president as commander-in-chief of the U.S. Armed forces, stands directly in the military court-martial chain, the motion said, and if the death penalty were handed down in Calley's case, "it would require the personal approval of the president before the death sentence could be executed."

Arguments on the defence motion were set for Jan. 20 by Lt.-Col. Reid W. Kennedy, the military judge for Calley's general court martial.

Calley has not entered a plea, but army sources said the lieutenant could be arraigned following the arguments at the Jan. 20 hearing.

In other developments:

—The army announced in Washington it has completed legal preliminaries and is expected to announce by mid-week a decision on whether to court martial a second soldier in the alleged My Lai massacre. S. David Mitchell now stationed at Fort Hood, Tex., has been accused of assault with intent to commit murder.

—In Saigon, the South Vietnamese Senate's defence committee said the alleged My Lai massacre "did happen" but that "much more information" is needed before a final report can be made.

Greek Plane Crashes

ATHENS (Reuters) — Aircraft experts today sifted evidence in an attempt to find out why a Greek Olympic Airways DC-6B crashed into a mountainside near Athens in torrential rain Monday night, killing all 90 persons aboard.

Five Indicted in Tate Slaying

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A grand jury which deliberated only 39 minutes has indicted three young women and two men from a desert commune on murder and conspiracy charges in the bizarre slaying of actress Sharon Tate and four other persons.

The Los Angeles County grand jury Monday also indicted the same five and another young woman member of the band in the murder of a wealthy grocer and his wife the day after the Aug. 9 Tate killings.

Afterwards the jury foreman indicated the key testimony, as expected, came from a defendant who freely admitted her role in the seven slayings—and is herself accused of an eighth.

Charged with the murder of the blonde actress, three friends and a youth were the commune leader, Charles M. Manson, 35; the leading witness, Susan Denise Atkins, 21; Charles D. Watson, 24; Patricia Krenwinkel, 21; and Linda Kasabian, 20.

The same five plus another girl, Leslie Sankston, 19, were indicted in the murders of Leon LaBianca and his wife Rosemary.

The indictment charged that Miss Atkins, Miss Krenwinkel and Mrs. Kasabian went to the Bel Air estate of Miss Tate, her husband, film director Roman Polanski, who was out of town.

Miss Tate, hair stylist Jay Sebring, Polish playboy Voityek Frokowski, coffee heiress Abigail Folger and young Steven Parent were slain.

How and by which of the accused the indictment did not specify, but it said Mrs. Kasabian remained outside the house while the killings went on.

Manson was charged with the Tate slayings even though by Miss Atkins's account—accepted in the indictment—he was not present. The district attorney contended the cult leader, said to have hated the wealthy, conspired in the crimes and could be charged with them.

Miss Atkins told her lawyers and presumably the grand jury, that Manson had hypnotic-like powers over his largely female clan.

Superior Court Judge William R. Keene set arraignment for Wednesday morning for the three defendants in custody here—Miss Atkins, Mrs. Kasabian and Miss Sankston.

Watson was in McKinney, Tex., and Miss Krenwinkel in Mobile, Ala., where they were arrested on murder warrants issued previously. Manson was being held in Independence, Calif., charged with possessing stolen cars.

St. Leonard Resident's Home Is Again Bombed

MONTREAL (CP) — The home of Mario Barone, a leader of suburban St. Leonard's Italian community, was rocked by a bomb blast Monday night for the third time in five years.

The explosion at the rear of the $50,000 home occurred shortly after Mr. Barone, his wife and six children had retired for the night. No one was injured.

Three windows were smashed and several bricks torn from the wall.

Police Chief Sylvio Langlois of St. Leonard said the blast was only slightly more powerful than that which shook the home last Nov. 20. That early-morning explosion had the force of about one stick of dynamite.

Mr. Barone is deputy mayor of the suburb and a supporter of opposition against the French-only education policy of the local Roman Catholic school boards.

In the first attack on his home Sept. 1, 1964, 10 sticks of dynamite were used.

Mr. Barone said after the November bombing he felt the incident "has something to do" with a Quebec Court of Appeal ruling that the school board had no right to eliminate English-language classes.

The French-only policy went into effect September, 1968, when about 200 Grade 1 students were forced out of the suburb's schools.

English-language Grade 2 classes went out last fall and the displaced children were relocated in Protestant schools outside St. Leonard.

Of the suburb's 33,000 population, nearly half are of Italian origin and most have elected to educate their children in English rather than French.

There have been about 50 bombings in Montreal this year, the last at McGill University Nov. 30 when a bomb planted near an unused greenhouse shattered windows in five campus buildings.

A powerful blast earlier in the month caused about $100,000 damage to the T. N. X. Bryan building at west-end Loyola College. No one was injured although 1000 students were taking evening classes at the time.

Pollution Case Is Remanded

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Domtar Ltd., Canada's second-largest pulp and paper producer, was remanded until Jan. 22 in Port Arthur court Monday on charges of polluting Lake Superior.

The company is charged under the Ontario Water Resources Act, 1960, with polluting a specified portion of Nipigon Bay in Lake Superior "with material discharged from a kraft mill at Red Rock, about 70 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

Diazinon Not Used Before Ducks Died

TORONTO (CP) — The records of the Metropolitan Toronto parks commission became the key issue Monday at an Ontario government inquiry into links between the pesticide Diazinon and the death of several ducks on Toronto Island last summer.

Parks Commissioner Thomas Thompson told the inquiry that he had not authorized use of Diazinon on the island in Toronto harbor before July 18, a full 10 days after the ducks died.

Under questioning from James Kerr, lawyer for Pollution Probe, a University of Toronto anti-pollution group which first raised the issue, Mr. Thompson said an examination of his department records would disclose any use to which Diazinon had been put in the last two years.

Otto Richter, superintendent of the forestry division of the department, said about 200 gallons of the pesticide had been used on the island July 18. He said the department had prepared 400 gallons but stopped spraying after newspapers and television discovered the pesticide was used.

Henry Cavirwright, government counsel, said the records confirm 200 gallons had been used, but, he added, they did not show what had been done with the remainder.

All were testifying at the opening of a week-long inquiry called after Pollution Probe produced evidence at an unofficial public inquiry last summer linking Diazinon with the deaths of eight or 10 ducks July 8. Pollution Probe said they found the ducks had enough Diazinon in them to cause death.

Asked why he had permitted the use of the pesticide after the earlier inquiry had linked it with the dead ducks, Mr. Thompson said he did not recognize the authority of the inquiry or the evidence presented by Pollution Probe.

He said he had never been warned by the manufacturers that the pesticide might be harmful to ducks and that his department did not have the pesticide analysed before putting it to use.

REAL ESTATE

DO YOU NEED A LAWYER IN A REAL ESTATE DEAL?

Ed McKinney — McKinney Realty Ltd.

Indeed you do.

And if you wanted a classic case of false economy, it is a buyer or seller trying to complete a deal without one.

Often a man who goes in for amateur carpentry will spend hours in hardware stores comparing tools and prices before selecting one for his workshop.

Or a woman buying dry goods will similarly spend a whole day making sure she is getting the biggest bargain available.

And yet some of these same people will try to save the cost of a lawyer.

It's foolish to be running in a lawyer for little things. And sometimes consulting a lawyer too early in the proceedings will merely cause delay and perhaps you from coming to terms in what could have been a straightforward and profitable deal.

But when the time comes for closing the deal, when the vendor and buyer have agreed on terms and have only to get them on paper, you are foolish to act without a lawyer.

Both seller and buyer may agree on a certain point, for instance, but unknown to either of them, the legal language of the contract may say something entirely different.

If you don't have a family lawyer, your realtor or a friend may suggest one.

Dear Santa:

My sister and I would like very much to visit Christmas Wonderland as we don't get to go many places. We have five more sisters and brothers and soon will have another sister or brother. We know theres other children like us that haven't much and worse and if we were to get to see Christmas Wonderland I'd like to ask the fairy Princess for one big wish — "to see every little girl or boy in the world has a very Merry Christmas this year" and to ask Santa if he would see that all little girls and boys could have just one little gift that would bring a little joy in there world and there hearts. My sister is 10 and I am the oldest 12 years old. We'd like to go but if not I'd like someone to have a chance to see that wouldn't be able to go otherwise. Merry Christmas Santa.

Yours truly

Dear Santa Claus

I am nine years old I am writing for myself and my three year old brother who is not able to write yet. I and my small brother would like to go to Christmas Wonderland to tell the fairy princess my wish and talk with Lucy and Snoopy and of with Charlie Brown. After Christmas you should take a trip to someplace hot like Florida and go swimming and relax, if I, win a trip to Christmas Wonderland I will bring you some suntan lotion. By the way my name is Beverly they call me Bev for short, my small brothers name is Douglas Doug for short. I can't think of anything else to write so good-bye.

Dear Santa Claus

I would like to come and visit you in Christmas Wonderland. So I could tell you all the thihgs I'd like for Christmas. I will be 3 yrs. old in March and have a baby sister 4 months old. Do you feed your reindeers apples Santa? In the summer when we visit Algonquin Park the deer will eat apples right from your hand but I suppose you know what they like Santa, if I can't come to visit you Santa I'll understand because I know you won't forget me and my little sister Rachelle when you deliver your toys. Don't forget Santa I'll leave an apple for all reindeers and a big one for Rudolph.

Dear Santa

My mummy is writing this letter for myself and my two brothers as we are too small to write yet but we're sitting right here to make sure mummy tells you everything we want for Xmas.

We've been pretty good boys all year but I guess you know that already because mummy says you're always watching us.

We would like to get some tonka toys for Xmas and a train set, gun and holster set, building blocks, slinkys and any other surprises you would like to give us.

Well I guess we had better not ask for anything else because mummy told us you have so many other boys and girls to deliver presents to.

Mummy said you might even send us a letter back, oh please do Santa, we love you. Thank-you.

Cecil Fritz and 'the girls', Maude and Queen

Horse-drawn Sanitation Department Gets A Lot More Miles to Gallon

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
(Staff Reporter)

WELLINGTON — Wellington village garbage collector Cecil Fritz has been late for work just twice in 20 years.

A flat tire occasioned his tardiness one morning — and on another occasion someone stole his horse. The horse thief was a Hallowe'en prankster whose practical joke slowed up garbage collection in the village by half a day.

Mr. Fritz has been collecting garbage in Wellington with a horse-drawn cart for two decades. He is not opposed to the machine age, but he has figures to prove Wellington "gets more miles to the gallon" utilizing his brand of horsepower.

He recalled that the village began collecting garbage with a truck, but the cost gradually rose. Mr. Fritz tendered for the job and because of the reasonable price, he and his team were put under contract by the village.

He also snowplows the village side-walks during the winter, using a special four foot plow he designed. For this work, his team must be "sharp shod" with shoes spoked to grip on icy surfaces. Mr. Fritz does his own blacksmithing, noting the scarcity of farriers today.

Maude and Queen, the team of black mares used by Mr. Fritz, are not just part-time working girls. Each Thursday morning their owner harnesses them for the side streets garbage route. The following day, the mares are hitched for Main Street collection — a six hour haul.

Snow plowing figures more and more into their schedule as winter progresses. This job, because of the snowmobile, is difficult for the team like winter. Mr. Fritz explained that snowmobilers travel over the walks, packing the snow until it becomes very hard. For Maude and Queen it can some times be a heavy task to remove the snow that has been "cemented down."

When the snow plowing is completed, the team sometimes is put to work on street cleaning projects. The other day Mr. Fritz used the mares to draw away large limbs sawed from a felled tree.

How do the horses react to traffic in Wellington?

Maude, who is 17, is described by Mr. Fritz as "very dependable." She knows the garbage route by heart and stops dead if he just whispers "whoa."

The village workman remarked that he ties up the team while he steps inside the restaurant for his coffee. The "girls" stand patiently until he is ready to continue work.

For the men of Wellington, the horse-drawn garbage cart is a decided advantage. The husband who neglects to put out the trash has an opportunity to redeem himself on collection day. When a sleepy man brandishing plastic bags sprints to overtake a garbage truck, he usually loses the race to horsepower.

In Wellington the story has a happier ending. The average man patently has speed against Maude and Queen has a fighting chance of catching up with Mr. Fritz before he finishes his route.

The horse-drawn cart is more than a practical system for trash collection. Mr. Fritz observed that during the summer tourists stop to talk and snap a picture of him with his team. Visitors to Prince Edward County admire Wellington's horse sense in preserving not a pinch of yesterday — during the age of the automobile and space travel.

Antique Cars His 'Bag'

Wanted: an 8-door Garage

By BARRY GRILLS
(Staff Reporter)

AMELIASBURG — In 1909 it was a very good year — for law" seats.

vintage cars with "mother-in-

Elmer Young, of RR 1, knows all about that, for he is the proud owner of a 1909 Model T Ford — and seven other classics.

Mr. Young, who has resided all of his 51 years in the Belleville area, has taken up restoring vintage cars a as hobby — something to ease the everyday workload of farming.

He has purchased the Ford: a 1916 Chev; a 1917 Ford: a 1923 Ford; a 1925 Chev; a 1928 Whippet; a 1928 Chev; and a 1951 Packard.

The 1928 Whippet was the first vehicle he purchased, the first car to lead him into his hobby. Then he bought others shortly thereafter and "got too many cars all at once."

"You try to get something better than what you've got," he said.

Mr. Young located the Whippet approximately 100 miles north of here and later found a second vintage car in the same area. However, travelling for parts is not always so simple. He frequently goes to Quebec to search out parts he needs.

The cars are at present scattered about his farm in various sheds and garages. He does have his own work shop, however, and the tools that are needed.

"I would like a big cement and metal building for them all," he said.

Once he has the car, the work begins. He must dismantle it completely, then rebuild. He has to prime it, paint it and sandblast it. There is usually a lot of work on the engine, as well.

"I'm not a full time operator, so it usually takes about two years for me to do a car."

But, Mr. Young's interest is strictly a hobby. He is not interested in selling his cars.

"I'm not commercial at all. It's sort of half mine. I do it because I like it."

He feels that restoration of cars would not be as enjoyable were he to tackle it as a commercial venture and put deadlines on his work.

But things have really changed in the 10 to 12 years Mr. Young has been restoring cars.

The Whippet cost him $10 to buy in the first place. Now old cars are sold for $700 to $1,000 as people become aware of their value.

"And we have to put money into the cars to restore them," he said.

However the 1909 Ford, when it is completed, will be worth $6,000 to $7,000. Parts can be expensive, but Mr. Young's time and effort are not calculated into that price.

Mr. Young keeps exploring for cars. The 1909, for example, was found near home, in Picton.

Tax Increase Business Blow, Hees Charges

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

A blow to free enterprise and to small businesses in particular was Prince Edward-Hastings MP George Hees' reaction to the government's proposed withdrawal of the 21 per cent tax on the first $35,000 of profit and its increase in steps over a maximum period of five years to 50 per cent.

The ability to keep a fairly large proportion of what he makes, Mr. Hees told a joint Kiwanis - Rotary meeting in Belleville yesterday, was what encouraged a great many men to go into business for themselves. This was what had made the economy strong and the free enterprise system work.

Small businesses had to start in a small way and were in business to grow. To do this capital is needed, but for those which had not had time to establish a reputation this could be a difficult task and interest rates were high.

Citing an example from the past, Mr. Hees said his grandfather had come from Oswego, N.Y. to go into business in Toronto and Timothy Eaton, founder of the T. Eaton Company, had come to him and asked for $500 worth of credit so he could make purchases from the Hees firm.

"Small firms still need capital to expand . . . when a man can keep his profits he can plow them back and use them to expand," said Mr. Hees.

Urging that the 21 per cent tax be "maintained — and not done away with as proposed in Finance Minister Benson's White Paper on Taxation, Mr. Hees praised the fact that the government was affording the public an opportunity of making their views on the subject known.

"I think this is a very constructive attitude on the part of the Government. Always before, such measures were presented in a fait accompli, take-it-or-leave-it fashion. Putting them forward, in a suggested way through the White Paper, the Canadian people—and particularly the business community — can truly discuss these matters."

The Prince Edward Hastings member urged anyone with ideas he wished to express on the tax proposals in write either to Prime Minister Trudeau or Finance Minister Benson as requested, and their views would be taken into consideration.

He said it was a unique opportunity to ensure Canadians get the best possible taxation system.

On the White Paper's proposals on income tax, Mr. Hees described as an "error . . . an obvious mistake," the fact there was a considerably bigger increase in the tax to be paid by those whose income was in the $10,000 to $15,000 category than in the $20,000 to $40,000 a year area.

"I think we all agree with the principle that the more you have, the more you pay. Increases should be on a straight, progressive level, so people will feel they are being taxed fairly."

On capital gains, Mr. Hees said he felt this proposal was perfectly fair provided it was properly handled and represents a genuine increase."

"It is most important that it is a genuine increase and not a capital gain plus inflation."

During a five-year-period, if inflation continues at four to five per cent a year, Mr. Hees said the aggregate inflationary increase would be between 20 and 25 per cent.

"To have capital gains tax on that inflation would be unfair," said Mr. Hees, adding: "In calculating capital gain it should be whatever is the increase in value over five years, less the amount of inflation — then tax it. Otherwise you will be taxed twice or three times as much."

The former member of the Diefenbaker cabinet — he was Minister of Transport and later Minister of Trade — Mr. Hees said if a capital gains tax were introduced then estate tax should be abolished.

"If when a man dies he is taxed estate tax and capital gains tax that will be virtually confiscation and there will be nothing for his heirs to take over."

Strike Threat

PICTON (Staff) — Employees of the Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. here have voted to strike after rejecting the latest wage offer by the company.

Members of local 287 United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers Union announced yesterday that they had voted to strike after rejecting a company offer regarding a new contract.

The proposed contract concerned wages, fringe benefits and contract changes.

Chuvalo Not Kidding Himself: Either Beat Quarry or Quit

NEW YORK (CP) — "One of us will retire after the fight, that's for sure," says Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo of Toronto, who meets Jerry Quarry in Madison Square Garden Friday night. And Quarry agrees with him.

"I'm not kidding myself," said Chuvalo in an interview. "If I lose this one where am I going? The day will never come when I'll go knocking around fighting for $5,000 purses. I have too much respect for myself and for the sport to become just another opponent."

Chuvalo, 32, admitted that he had been chasing after former world heavyweight champion Sonny Liston for months when he got a call from Garden matchmaker Teddy Brenner with an offer of Quarry. Chuvalo figured a good win over Liston would vault him right back to the top of the heavyweight boxing scene.

But he accepted Brenner's offer and it was a good thing. Liston was flattened by Leotis Martin in a televised bout last Saturday and now is definitely out of the picture.

"I had a long talk with my wife and my manager a few months ago," confided the popular Canadian. "We decided that I would try just once more to win the prize, the heavyweight championship of the world. I went into training for Quarry with more enthusiasm and determination than ever before. If I lose, it will be my last fight. If I win then I'll go after (Joe) Frazier."

The World Boxing Association ranks Frazier the No. 1 challenger to champion Jimmy Ellis, Oscar Bonavena is rated second, Martin third, Quarry fourth and Liston fifth.

Chuvalo was stopped for the only time in his 13 years as a pro. by Frazier in the fourth round at the Garden two years ago.

Quarry also suffered the only knockout of his career when he came against Frazier in the same ring last Jan. 23. He was forced to retire because of facial cuts in the seventh round and he also is anxious for another crack.

Soviets No Surprise

Runner-up Nats Show Some Promise

MOSCOW (CP) — The battle for the 1970 world hockey championship in Canada is only a little more than three months away but there already are signs that Canada's revamped Nationals are a lot stronger than they were last March in Stockholm.

As expected, Russia won the International invitation tournament here Monday but the surprise was Canada's second-place finish.

The same countries who will compete in Montreal and Winnipeg next March appeared on Moscow ice in the six-country round-robin tournament that wound up Monday with Russia easily defeating Sweden 6-2.

The Russians, who have won very world and Olympic title the last seven years, finished the invitational tournament with four victories and a tie for nine points.

Canada tied the Russians 2-2, something Canadian teams haven't been able to do often in the last several years. That was the only blur on the Soviet record in the tournament.

Canada's match with the Russians was the toughest game of the tournament. Coach Jackie McLeod said.

McLeod said before the Canadian team left for home that he still hadn't picked the team that will play in the world championship. He said there are 20 to 25 players who will have to be tested before the team will be announced.

Although many of the top international players who will compete in Canada took part in the Moscow tournament, their teams still are far from the condition they will have to be in to play in the double round-robin tournament in Canada which calls for 10 games over a two-week span.

How We Stood

| | W | L | T | F | A | Pts |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Soviet Union | 4 | 0 | 1 | 25 | 10 | 9 |
| Canada | 3 | 1 | 1 | 22 | 13 | 7 |
| Czech. | 3 | 2 | 0 | 28 | 17 | 6 |
| Sweden | 1 | 3 | 0 | 11 | 24 | 4 |
| Finland, | 1 | 4 | 0 | 19 | 34 | 2 |
| East Germany | 1 | 4 | 0 | 17 | 31 | 2 |

Canada took the runnerup position with three victories, and tie and one loss for seven points. Twice-beaten Czechoslovakia finished third with six points and Sweden, beaten three times, was fourth with four points.

Canada's only loss here was to Czechoslovakia 4-0. The Russians easily defeated Czechoslovakia 8-2 and Sweden lost to the Czechs 4-3.

Russia Still Big 'If'

RIVERS, Man. (CP) — The big "If" still is part of Russia's participation in the 1970 world hockey tournament.

Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said at his home here Monday that the Soviet Union informed the CAHA it will take part in the tournament providing requested changes are made in the Winnipeg portion of the schedule March 22 to 29. The first half of the championship is to be staged in Montreal March 12 to 20.

Dawson said a telegram was sent back to the Russians Monday informing them their request was not acceptable and that the CAHA is standing firm on its games schedule.

Last month the Russian delegation to the International Ice Hockey Federation's directorate meeting in Montreal left the conference after voicing its objections to the entire tournament schedule and threatening to boycott the championship.

Monday was the deadline for official word from the six competing teams—Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland, East Germany and Canada—on participation in the championship.

Hand for Holidays

George Chuvalo, left, heavyweight champion of Canada, arranges for a toy Santa to come between himself and his forthcoming opponent, Jerry Quarry, at luncheon in New York Monday. Chuvalo, who has scored 47 knockouts in 55 winning fights, will meet Quarry, a Californian who has kayoed 20 opponents, in the feature bout on the all-heavyweight card at Madison Square Garden Friday.

Hoping For Third Shot

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Quarry, the Bellflower, Calif., heavyweight who already has had two shots at the title, still hopes to get a third.

"I've got the money but I want that title. From the way they talk now, after Leotis Martin flattened Sonny Liston, I might get another chance if I can take care of George Chuvalo Friday night and then Martin."

Quarry, who has shown a counter-punching style in some of his fights but turned slugger against Joe Frazier in a title bout, said he could fight both ways.

"I'm not going to lock horns with the bull," he said., speaking of Chuvalo, the stocky Toronto heavyweight who will be his foe Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champion who has never been counted out, showed up with long sideburns and long hair, prompting a question as to whether he planned to change his style of boxing too.

Beard Golf's Top Bread-winner

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Beard was the leading money winner on the Professional Golfers Association tour in 1969 with $175,223, officials announced Monday night.

It was the third straight year that Beard had earned more than $100,000, but the first time he had won the dollar race, said Joseph C. Dey Jr., commissioner of the PGA's tournament players division.

Hill had a chance to overtake Beard in the year's final journey, the Danny Thomas Diplomat Classic in Miami. Both Hill and Beard finished 16 strokes off Arnold Palmer's 270 winning score and both earned $207.

The top ten money winners, including number of tournaments completed, victories and times finished in the top five:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Beard | 31 2 10 | $175,223 |
| Hill | 27 1 10 | $156,432 |
| Nicklaus | 23 3 6 | $140,167 |
| Player | 16 1 10 | $123,897 |
| Crampton | 23 1 6 | $118,555 |
| Littler | 28 2 7 | $112,737 |
| Trevino | 31 1 8 | $112,417 |
| Floyd | 24 3 5 | $109,506 |
| Palmer | 26 2 5 | $105,128 |
| Casper | 22 2 7 | $104,689 |

Pilote Stays Out

Hockey Not His Bag

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Hull gave up the Herefords, Glenn Hall finished painting his barn; and Tim Horton tore himself away from the doughnut stands — but Pierre Pilote still enjoys making suitcases.

Record Well in Sight

MONTREAL (CP) — When centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins racked up his record 126 points last season on a total that included 77 assists and 49 goals, it appeared almost insurmountable.

However, with the current National Hockey League season at the one-third mark, a projection of another Boston player's points, doesn't leave him far short of Esposito.

If he can maintain his red-hot pace for the other two-thirds of the season, Orr could wind up with 114 points and an exceptional streak could bring him even closer to Esposito's all-time mark.

Hull, Hall and Horton, along with George Armstrong and Elmer Vasko, are National Hockey League players who returned to the ice after quitting the league or at least threatening to do so.

The veteran NHL rearguard, who celebrates his 38th birthday next week, says he could still play in the major league but has no intention of giving up his luggage manufacturing business.

"I know I can still play in the NHL and guys have told me I'm crazy for quitting," he said in an interview, "But I'd be stealing money because the desire is no longer there and I have principles."

Pilote says Emile Francis, Rangers general manager and coach, hassle bothered him about reporting to Buffalo. The Rangers drafted the 14-season veteran for the Bisons, their American League farm club, and paid the $15,000 draft price.

Pilote says Francis could have saved himself the $15,000 draft fee because he had decided that if drafted he would quit hockey.

He admitted he wasn't surprised when the Leafs left him unprotected in last summer's draft. After making the all-star team eight times and winning the James Norris trophy three times as the league's top defenceman during his 13 seasons with Chicago, Pilote had an unimpressive year with Toronto.

"You eventually reach a point in your life when you've got to think about the future. I had become deeply involved in the luggage business and I likely would have kept on playing if I hadn't been drafted."

Spring Will Tell Tale for Skating McCutcheons

They Got an Early Start

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Peggy and Jane McCutcheon always had an early start.

They were on ice skates at three, endured frosty 5 a.m. practice sessions at the Memorial Arena, and were members of the world-renown "Holiday On Ice" skating revue by the time each was 15.

Now, nearly 2,000 performances later, what looms large on the McCutcheon horizon is an early finish.

"The decision will have to be made next spring," says 21-year-old Jane; "that's when Peggy gets definite word from her doctor."

"We were skating in Salem West Virginia, the first night Peggy fell," Jane recalls.

But the severe sprain, pulled tendons or ligaments (We're not really sure what it is") weren't enough to keep the duet off the ice.

"She practically limped through the weekend shows, with the help of pills and cortisone," Jane recounts. Then, a couple of nights later she skated over a piece of dirt backstage and fell again.

"She was crying. I asked her if she wanted me to try the number alone, but Peg said no. We went out and she must have fallen about four times in 15 or 20 seconds. Even some people in the audience were crying for her. We skated backstage and I came out and finished the act by myself."

Then came a cast, and a trip back to Belleville for Peggy, 20 next month. She rejoined the troupe around Boxing Day last year, but another fall saw both sisters return to their Albert St. home.

"It would be hard to leave performing after we've been in it so long," admits Jane, who is in her skates three nights a week in area communities teaching power skating to young hockey players.

But she enjoys modelling and advertising work at McIntosh Brothers, and Peggy topped her class in the first term of a two-year pre-elementary teaching course at Kingston's St. Lawrence College.

Will There Be an Early Finish?

Mo-Hawks Draw Aces

Seasons' Differences Mean Nothing Tonight

What a difference a year makes!

Ask Belleville Mo - Hawk coach Davey Jones, basking in the relative glory of an 8-7-2 OHA Senior A record, when a year ago his club was laboring under the burden of a 5-win, 14-loss statistical handicap.

That little bit of hindsight means practically nothing tonight, however, when the Mo-Hawks tangle with familiarly hostile Kingston Aces in an 8:30 Memorial Arena game.

The Aces are definitely not pleased that the home ice bex enjoyed by the eastern Ontario Senior A neighbors for over two seasons was broken in their rink when they dropped a 3-1 decision to the Mo-Hawks last month.

And, currently trailing the Mo-Hawks by two points in the eight-team league's sixth spot, the Aces will be doing their McLeod est to repay the favor in Belleville tonight.

Now 8-8, the Aces will be sporting the newly-acquired services of Doug Senior, who gets his first chance to show the Mo-Hawks why he signed with Kingston instead of the locals, with whom he had negotiated after leaving the American Hockey League's Cleveland Barons.

DAVEY JONES

The 28 year-old Kingston native, brother to Kingston Junior Frontenac coach Bob Senior, has been a 20 goal scorer in every league in which he has played, his most productive pro season being a 32 goal winter with Omaha in 1963-64.

Another familiar face to Belleville spectators tonight will be that of blueline veteran Bill Barresa, with 14 seasons of professional hockey under his suspenders before joining the Aces four seasons ago.

Meanwhile there will also be some familiar faces missing — from the Mo Hawk lineup.

Forwards Billy Armour and John "Shaker" Baker are still on the sick list, although Jones expected Weiner" Brown to rejoin the club's defensive corps.

The absence of all three was not enough to prevent the locals from picking up a precious 4-3 overtime win in Galt Saturday night, but the revenge-bent Aces did not, as they say, read the Mo Hawk press clippings.

Annual Meeting Wednesday

Course Alternatives On Quinte Club Agenda

For members of the Bay of Quinte Country Club, the golfing season didn't end with the onslaught of winter.

In fact, it doesn't officially end for them until tomorrow night with the annual club meeting at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

This year's agenda could be the most controversial in some time, considering recent developments, club president Jack Belanger noted.

"Some members will undoubtedly want to know something about what is planned at the club to offset the Department of Highways' demands on our property," noted Mr. Belanger, referring to the DOH requisitioning of strips of the Quinte Club's first and seventeenth fairways to permit the widening of Highway 2 into four lanes.

At Wednesday night's meeting, getting under way at 7.30, the general membership will hear the DOH's initial offer for the Highway 2 frontage, and the alternatives the directors are considering to compensate for the property lost.

"I can't say too much specifically," president Belanger noted. "But our general approach will be one that aims towards enabling club golfers to play a nine - hole round and finish up back at the clubhouse . . . or, at least, at the highway."

He took the opportunity to comment on the breaking of ground near Marysville for the "Belleville Golf and Country Club" by Burlington landscape architect Earl Johnson.

"Actually, we welcome Mr. Johnson and his new venture. This area needs good new golf facilities. Our club's directors have found it difficult to please all our members and also allow green fee players and non - member tournaments as a public service.

"The two should compliment one another."

'Where Have All the Bodies Gone' McLellan's Plaintive Tune

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Johnny McLellan started the current National Hockey League season with eight games on his defensive roster and the Toronto Maple Leafs coach was wondering what he would do with all the bodies.

Today McLellan has only three sound defencemen he can take to Montreal next for Canadiens Wednesday and several of his forwards are hurting as well.

The three healthy defencemen are Tim Horton, Jim Dorey and Jim McKenny, who has played most of the season at right wing.

Rearguards Rick Ley and Mike Pelyk have been sidelined for several games while Pat Quinn and Brian Glennie were taken out with injuries in weekend action.

Left winger Paul Henderson may be back in the lineup Wednesday after resting a groin injury but centre Dave Keon is a doubtful starter with a broken left thumb.

Left-winger Brit Selby and utility centre Ron Ward may play Wednesday. Selby has an eye injury and Ward a knee injury.

Leafs general manager Jim Gregory said he would phone his farm club coaches at Tulsa in the Central League and Phoenix in the Western League to find out who would be available to fill the shattered NHL lineup.

The Leafs' Wednesday night foes also are missing some key players.

Left winger John Ferguson will be sitting out the last game of a six-game suspension Wednesday with defenceman Jacques Laperriere who was ordered out of action for three games by league president Clarence Campbell. Each return to Chicago Black Hawks.

Meanwhile, Boston Bruins announced that defenceman Bobby Orr will play Wednesday in a crucial game against New York despite left ankle and hip injuries suffered in Sunday's home game against Minnesota. Orr is the league's leading scorer with 38 points.

The Bruins are tied with Montreal in the East Division standings, four points behind the leading Rangers. A win Wednesday and again in the return match Thursday could put the Bruins in a tie with New York.

The Bruins also hoped rightwinger Eddie Westfall and defenceman Gary Doak would be recovered from groin injuries to be ready for Wednesday's action.

Dr. Carter Rowe, who operated on Ron Murphy Saturday to remove pins in his shoulder, said the Bruins left winger might be available to play in three or four weeks.

Los Angeles Kings have recalled goalie Wayne Rutledge from their Springfield farm club to provide relief help for Gerry Desjardins who has played every game since the start of the season.

Rutledge was sent to the American League club to play himself into shape after recovering from a hip operation. He was the Kings' starting goalie for the 1967-68 season.

Detroit Red Wings assigned centre Rick McCann to their Fort Worth farm team in the CHL to make room for Al Karlander who has played the last two games with the NHL club.

Skiing - - the Sport That Starts You at the Top

Even when you're a two-year-old, like Andrea Hewison, skiing is the one sport where you start at the top. It may be at the top of an appropriately-sized hill, of course, and here the two-season veteran of the slopes checks out her apparel before heading down a three-foot incline at Batawa Ski Club, where father Earl Hewison is supply chairman.

They Raised Funds In the Family Way

When ten Belleville doctors' wives challenged the city's teachers' wives to join in the competition in the YMCA's weekend swimathon, they had no idea that their counterparts would include a woman with a three-week-old baby and another four months pregnant.

The maternal swimmers did their fair share, completing the maximum 50-length (1,000 yards) and helping the friendly rivals make a group contribution in the vicinity of $1,000 for the Y's World Service program.

They all enjoyed swimming for such a worthy cause," said Kay Summers.

I think most of the girls were surprised they swam the 50 lengths," added Mrs. Verne Mulligan, spokesman for the medical spouses. "Mrs. Sylvia Cronk should be congratulated for being a last-minute substitute. She swam without any practice which is quite hard."

The two groups represented 19 of the 99 participants in Saturday and Sunday's swimathon, which netted triple the $1,600 pledge goal set as the local "Y" commitment to the World Service program.

Aluminum Stars took over sole possession of first place in the Quinte Hockey League last night with a 2-0 win over Stinson Construction.

In the other game, Central Taxi moved into a tie for second spot with a 3-1 victory over Belvedere Hotel.

Aluminum Star scoring was brok in the family, as Hugh Pointer scored the first goal, assisted by Al Rutzin. Ron Pointer rounded out the scoring unassisted.

There were 10 minutes in penalties with Stinson's drawing six minutes.

In the second game, Terry Casselman scored from Larry Soule and Andy Prudden. Ron Morgan scored Central's second goal assisted by Tom Pierce and Brian McCormack. Larry Soule got the Taximen's third goal with the assist going to Tom McDonald.

Picton Chamber Won't Demand Letter of Intent from Piasecki

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Members of the board of directors for the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce yesterday agreed to take no further action concerning a motion requesting a statement of intent from Piasecki, Canada, Ltd., regarding the future of the former Catpo Picton.

The motion, forwarded by former Chamber of Commerce president Jay Herbert at a dinner meeting last month was prompted by his concern over the apparent inactivity at the Picton headquarters of Piasecki Aircraft.

Before presenting the motion Mr. Hepburn remarked, that he felt this Chamber of Commerce should get up and ask whether or not these people are going to operate. I think we agree as taxpayers that we should know what is going on."

The chamber carried the motion requesting a statement of intent, with the understanding that it would be obtained through the local government. A copy of the chamber's letter to the federal government was to be scrutinized at the next board of directors meeting.

It was announced the following day that Piasecki Aircraft had signed a purchase agreement for Camp Picton with the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation.

Guest at yesterday's board of directors meeting was Mr. Walter Symmons, resident representative for Piasecki Aircraft here. Introduced by Mr. Les Allen, Mr. Symmons assured the chamber members that a purchase agreement has been signed by Piasecki Aircraft and awaits approval from the lieutenant-governor-in-council. Once the agreement has been approved it must again be signed by Mr. Frank Piasecki accompanied by two company directors.

Mr. Symmons told members of the board of directors that since Piasecki Aircraft began negotiations with the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation for the purchase of the former Camp Picton, changes have occurred. He referred to a decision to purchase an additional 48 acres of land and seven houses being sought by the married members of the former military base. Piasecki Aircraft also has optioned 16 other houses in the camp in recent months. Additional surveying was necessitated, occasioning delay.

Explaining the dormancy at Piasecki's Picton headquarters, Mr. Symmons informed listeners, "The aircraft industry is a very complicated one." He outlined several time-consuming aspects of the business that prevent instant activity in a new location.

Piasecki is presently one of several competitors bidding for a contract to build light helicopters for the department of national defence. A proposal has been forwarded by Piasecki to build and furnish the PH 1100 light helicopter. If the contract is awarded to Piasecki Aircraft, the company will obtain the initial forgings and castings used in its construction from approved sources in the United States.

Mr. Symmons explained that the production of helicopters using American castings and forgings would be phased out gradually and replaced by Canadian parts.

"We are aiming for 100 per cent Canadian work on these helicopters," he stressed, "and this will give us an advantage on the British Commonwealth market." He added that if helicopters are of 50 per cent Canadian manufacture they can be sold duty free in the Commonwealth.

Examining the other side of the coin, Mr. Symmons admitted that if Piasecki fails to win the contract for the PH 1100 light helicopters, work will be slow here for some time. Development of the Pathfinder helicopter will begin, but its design is incomplete. It might take 18 months or longer to build two prototypes and the test machine, tested to destruction by the department of transport. A certificate of air worthiness for the Pathfinder must be secured from the department of transport as well. The combined process of building the prototypes and obtaining the necessary certificates from the department of Transport and could take up to three years.

Mr. Symmons revealed that he did not anticipate any real activity at the fledgling branch of the Philadelphia - based aircraft company until [illegible].

At the conclusion of his remarks, members of the board of directors questioned him concerning various aspects of Picton's newest industry. Asked if Piasecki Aircraft, Picton, would be building an assembly plant, Mr. Symmons replied that it would be much more.

"We plan to have everything necessary for the building of aircraft with the possible exception of expensive numerically controlled machine tools." He added that rental of such machines is an economic practicality in the industry.

Mr. Symmons expressed his hope that the Chamber could see the enormous advantage that the helicopter venture will represent to Picton.

"We plan to buy here, to hire here and to offer a training program. Outsiders that we hire will need housing accommodation and they will spend money in Picton," he emphasized.

Mr. Hepburn closed the question period, asking if Mr. Symmons was prepared any problems or hitches in future operations of Piasecki here. He was assured that no problems seemed evident.

Mr. Hepburn remarked that Piasecki's signature of the purchase agreement for the former Camp Picton had clarified the aircraft company's intentions and he moved that no further action be taken on his original motion.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Losses outnumbered gains by more than two to one as the Toronto stock market declined fractionally in light mid-morning trading today.

The market has fallen for the last six sessions.

On index, industrials were down .05 to 112.62 and golds .57 to 152.54, a low for the year. Western oils gained .26 to 113.27.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 502,000 shares compared with 442,000 at the same time Monday.

Fifteen of the 17 industrial components were lower, led by real estate and communications issues. Banks and oil refiners advanced slightly.

Among real estate issues, Feel-Ekder fell 4 to 21 and Block Bros. ¼ to 7¼.

In communications, Southam dropped 1¼ to 63½ and Standard Broadcasting ¼ to 12.

Build Automotive was listed today and traded at 6½ on 550 shares. House of Seven, also listed today, traded at 5½ on 100 shares.

Oshawa A gained ¼ to 26 on 46-week earnings of 65 cents a share compared with 56 cents in the similar 1968 period.

Northgate slipped ¼ to 13¾. The company reported a third-quarter loss of $12,000 compared with a profit of $1,359,000 in the corresponding 1968 period.

Falconbridge dropped 1¼ to 166¾, Patino 1 to 46¾, Electrohome ¼ to 37¾, Mattagami ¼ to 24¾ an Consumers' Gas ¼ to 15.

On Indoor Monday, industrials dropped 2.22 to 182.35, western oils 3.39 to 185.61, golds 2.8 to 153.11 and base metals 1.2 to 113.27.

Volume was the lightest since Dec. 19 with 1,812,000 shares traded compared with 1,967,000 Friday.

Losses outnumbered gains 379 to 121 with 244 issues unchanged.

Fifteen of the 17 industrial components were lower, with oil refiners and industrial mines showing the weakest groups. Construction and material air trust and loan issues were fractionally higher.

Among oil refiners, Gulf was down ¼ to 17 and Imperial 201 ¾ to 16½. The group was strong Friday, reflecting rising hopes that the oil industry in the United States cabinet would give favorable consideration to an open market for Canadian oil.

In industrial mind, Falconbridge dropped 3 to 8 and Inco ½ to 44½. Trade Master Peplin imposed export controls on nickel and copper and "estimated needs of Canadian will be met in full."

Canada Cement rose 1½ to 31. The company increased its quarterly dividend to 40 cents from 30 cents.

Walker-Goderham picked up ¼ to 45¼ on annual earnings of $2.78 a share compared with $2.57 last year.

SKD Manufacturing gained ¼ to 8¾ all Continental Can did not trade but closed at 80¼ bid, 80¾ asked.

Continental Can has offer to buy at least 95 per cent of SKD's outstanding shares.

Manager Key To Cash Fame

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The success story of folk singer Johnny Cash has had a lot to do with a man who operates as Cash's personal manager out of — of all cities — London, Ont.

Not by does he manage Cash's hour television show last summer rated highly in the United States and second in Canada but other stars like Peter Paul and Mary and Carter Family June Carter is Johnny Cash's wife.

Tenley Hunter, Carl Perkins, Statler Brothers Quartet, Doug Kersley, Debbie Lori Kaye, The Hylth Pk Pals and Al Chere are also under his guidance.

Holiff said his first association with Cash was when he booked the folk singer for a brief function when Johnny was under early management. He said he seemed to reach an immediate understanding of each other.

Shortly after, Cash was approached by Field and Stream to do a movie-length feature in Newfoundland and Johnny and Holiff to set it up for him. Holiff did, and arranged a 10-day concert tour too, during which Cash asked Holiff if he would take him on as a client and his personal manager.

Cash was already a star. Holiff moved to Hollywood where the action was and made it his headquarters for five years.

When Holiff married his wife Barbara in 1964 he moved his operation back to London. "My wife is fiercely pro-Canadian and I like that too," Holiff said.

ANAF News

On Thursday the Duke of Edinburgh Unit holds its nominations for the 1969 executive and is the time for all members with the welfare of the club at heart to turn out and make sure that the best comrades possible are chosen to run. A social evening will be held after nominations are completed and you can discuss the plans for the year ahead. There will be a short general meeting to start the evening.

There will be chances for extra prizes and bonuses at the end of Thursday evening socials so come along to an enjoyable evening.

The New Year's Ball tickets are now being sold and they are going fast so, if you plan to go, run don't walk to the club and get your years before they are all gone.

Ode. Joe Samale, a long time member of the benevolent fund committee, regrets that, owing to poor health he is forced to resign. Comrade Elmer Scott has been appointed an interim member.

The club takes its hat off and congratulates Don Foster for his great efforts towards keeping the traditional Santa Claus parade going. The Duke of Edinburgh extends a big thank you and is giving a as much assistance as is possible under the circumstances.

The chairman of the sick committee reports the following comrades in the Belleville General Hospital: J. McNaught, Scotty Wilson, J. Fisher and R. Mallory will be the sick visitors for the month.

Bro. Mondeville is still in Kingston Hospital while B. Feather, J. Cumberly and Padre S. Gentle are all resting at home. All are being visited and looked after.

Don't Like Meeting Time

The Belleville and District Labor Council has protested time set for a meeting of city groups on street renewal.

The meeting, to include city council, representatives of ratepayers' associations and the citizens committee on urban renewal, is scheduled for 2.30 p.m. Wednesday in the Ben Bleecker auditorium.

The labor council, which has 15 members on the citizens' committee, last night decided to send a letter to city hall protesting the time.

The meeting, noted BDLC vice-president Robert Cook va called "for the middle of the afternoon — a time when the majority of people cannot get off work."

Future meetings should be held at night, he said.

Says Many Newspaper Publishers Unaware of Change

OTTAWA (CP) — A special Senate study of the news business already shows signs of scoring a major impact on journalism and broadcasting in Canada, says Borden Spears, former newspaper man serving as the study's executive consultant.

Preliminary spadework has shown that many newspaper publishers were unaware of imminent technical change, such as cabling printed news into homes via TV, and what it will mean to them, Mr. Spears said in an interview Monday.

The public hearings starting today, plus private research already carried out for the special Senate committee on mass media, thus could produce findings as important for the news business as for the public at large, he suggested.

"We are learning things about the publishing business from preliminary research that have never been known before," said Mr. Spears, former managing editor of Maclean's magazine and the Toronto Star.

He mentioned specifically an "exhaustive study" in three volumes, carried out by private consultants, on financial operations of the news business as a business.

Another survey examines attitudes of people across Canada to the press and broadcasting. Still another tabulates the way newspaper space is apportioned to various classes of information, based on a study of 30 Canadian dailies over a period of a month.

In all, 20 such studies have been compiled for the guidance of the 15 members of the committee before they start questioning witnesses representing 150 organizations and individuals.

Mr. Spears said he is sure publishers and others would love to see some of the committee studies — especially the financial research—because of new information they contain.

However, the research is being kept private on the ground that it might be considered formal findings of the committee. Some may be published along with the final committee report, perhaps next fall.

The final report could be "a fairly massive document," Mr. Spears said, because the committee body is charged as the most comprehensive ever undertaken in Canada.

Mr. Spears said the newspapers themselves should gain knowledge from "a thorough and serious examination of the state of its press in Canada."

"I don't think many publishers know what the newspaper community is going to mean to them," said Mr. Spears, saying that the speed community will be a means of disseminating printed, spoken and pictorial information by a system of cables with 80 to 100 channels each.

"When technological change is mentioned, many of them think in terms of an improvement in linotype machines," he added.

For the public hearings, teams of two senators each brief themselves in detail in advance about a certain witness and they will lead questioning of that witness.

The 18 Liberal senators and five Conservatives are backed up by Mr. Spears and also by: A research specialist with one full-time and one part-time assistant, an administrative director, clerical staff, Montreal lawyer Yves Fortier and $150,000 worth of private research by outside consultants.

Councillor Proposes Crossover Information Campaign

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald will consult with local police concerning the town's three new pedestrian crossovers, following a request by councillor Ted Parker.

Councillor Parker asked at Monday night's meeting at Trenton Town Council if any thought had been given to an information campaign in the town's public schools, telling the school children of their responsibilities when using the new crossovers.

The councillor then suggested that, in lines of heavy traffic, it would be a helpful gesture if policemen were on patrol at the crossovers until the public learned how to use them properly.

All three crossovers — two on Dundas Street and one on Front Street — have been in use only a few days. They are denoted by a lighted overhead sign, in the middle of the street, and large "X" markings 100 feet in advance on both sides of the street.

Council also agreed last night to meet its portion of the expense involved with the Quinte District Community Program Committee's continued operation towards establishing a pilot community project.

This educational project called Pilot Plan is being organized in conjunction with the Hastings County Board of Education and the Hastings and Prince Edward County Separate school board.

It was learned by council Monday morning that a lot fronting on Sidney Street near the new Liquor Store is under the stipulated 5,000 square feet required for a building lot, although it was previously on a subdivider's plan.

Council will appeal to the committee of adjustment for an exception in nine requirements for permission to build closer to the boundaries of the lot than zoning laws allow.

If a suitable agreement can be completed, the 3,500 square foot lot will be added to the list of lots available for sale next year.

A directive from council will be sent to the Trenton Public Utilities Commission asking the PUC to prepare costs for both underground and overhead electrical services and include them in their estimates of four streets projects.

Council will give preference to underground electrical services on two Dundas Street projects and projects on Mar mora and Front streets if it is found to be economically feasible by the PUC estimates.

Parts of these streets will be torn up for sewer and water main installations and council deemed that an excellent opportunity to install improved electrical facilities would be provided before new portions of these streets were repaved at be conclusion of the other projects.

After a short discussion on the value of town-owned property at 97 Division Street, clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry suggested that council reserve its decision on the town's appraisal rendered his revised estimate Tuesday or Wednesday office hours.

The final item dealt with at Monday's brief council meeting — which lasted only 25 minutes — was a request from the Ontario Humane Society for approval of extended animal control services.

The animal control service agreement expires Dec. 31, 1969, but council couldn't legally pass a by-law designating funds for the year 1970.

Instead council gave first and second readings to the by-law to show their intent and referred the matter to the new council. The Humane Society will be informed of council's action.

A final decision has not yet been rendered, but it appears that the present council will hold its last meeting Monday, Dec. 29, before giving way to the recently elected 1970 council.

Canadian Club Wins Appeal for Free Rent

The Canadian Club of Belleville has been termed a "non-profit, educational organization" entitled to rent-free accommodation in city schools for seven meetings a year.

The club was formerly deemed a "non-sponsored recreational group" and paid $2.50 an hour for use of Sir Winston Churchill School for meetings.

Mrs. Ralph Ellis, president of the club, told Hastings County Board of Education last night the club could not survive if it had to continue paying $62.50 annually for accommodation.

The board had advised the club to seek affiliation with the Quinte Arts Council, the organization accepted by the board as a sponsoring body for adult education. The Canadian Club would then have been entitled to free use of the schools.

However, Mrs. Ellis said the Canadian Club has little in common with the Arts Council and should not be requested to join the council as a matter of expediency.

"I don't think an organization should be forced to join the Arts Council if it feels it is of no benefit to them," said John O'Flynn. "There is very little of the type of adult education such as the Canadian Club's."

Although some trustees felt the move might set a precedent resulting in "a multitude of similar requests in the future," the board voted in favor of giving the Canadian Club free accommodation.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 52 and have been married for the first time for about a month. I have not had a period in six years. You can understand why I don't want to have a child at this age. It seems that sex is creating fear in me and getting me nervously upset. Do you think it is necessary for me to take the "pill"? — Mrs. R.

Comment: Only for peace of mind and with your doctor's consent. Personally, I do not believe you need to take it; as chances of becoming pregnant at age 52, six years after periods have stopped, are practically nil.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My mother stopped smoking about two years ago. She had smoked two packs a day from the time she was 18. (About 30 years.)

A few months ago she entered the hospital for surgery. They took a routine chest X-ray. Although her chest film looked like a nonsmoker's, when she told the doctor of her history, he said she had certainly stopped in time.

As a bonus she has continued to put aside the price of a carton of cigarettes a week. To date she has saved over $400.

I understand people won't listen when doctors warn of cancer of the lungs and emphysema. Perhaps they will pay attention when you tell them they can save enough by not smoking to pay their yearly property taxes. — Mrs. M.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My little granddaughter who is 9 years old is very near sighted. Her mother keeps their home so dark during the daylight hours they have electric lights on all the time. Can this contribute to my little angel's poor eyesight? — Mrs. H.

Comment: I doubt it.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I want to know if syphilis can be detected after the primary stage. I had sexual contact with a person about five years before my marriage. Since then I have had blood tests for my marriage license and during my three pregnancies. All test were negative. But I continue to worry. What do you advise? — Mrs. X.

Comment: Have your doctor refer you to a hematologist (blood specialist) for examination. Chances are he will say you are all right. If he does, take his word for it, and stop worrying unnecessarily.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have just reached the age of 19. Before I consult a physician I would like to have some information. Is it true, or just an old wives' tale, that if you wash your hair on the first days of your menstrual period you have a chance of getting leukemia? — Miss X.

Comment: Whether the story originated with old wives or their elderly husbands is unimportant. It's a fairy story. It's untrue.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is there any medicine a woman can take or apply to her scalp that will encourage hair to grow again?

I used to have lovely hair, but now I'm almost bald. I'm ashamed and embarrassed. I am diabetic and 77 years old but would like to hold my head up a little longer. Thank you! — Mrs. R.

Comment: Your query underlines the truth that most human beings want to look nice, whatever their age. It shows good spirit and continuing youthfulness rather than surrender to the calendar.

What to do? I doubt that medicines will help. Have you thought of being fitted for a wig? This modern convenience has made thousands of women — both young and old — deliriously happy. I recommend it.

Few Objective on Politics

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the reasons I dislike most political writing — and I do very little of it myself — is that it forces one to pretend to be objective. But frankly anyone can be truly objective about politics.

Our political orientation is determined by a dozen different factors over which we have little conscious control — our background and environment, our education, our income-level, and our temperament. Then we rationalize these factors in our "political philosophy."

I am more interested in what men are like, rather than what they profess, or what party they belong to. If Nixon strikes me as a plastic man (as he does), and Humphrey as a rubber man (as he does), I am not going to support either man, regardless of what he says.

But if I were engaged in writing about politics, or arguing the matter, I would have to marshal objective facts about programs and policies, and deal in vague abstractions like "liberty" and "peace." My argument would follow from my prejudices, and be tailored to fit.

Most people are stuck with their preconceptions, and vote for a man they may not like, simply because he promises to carry out what seems to serve their self-interest. But a plastic man, or a rubber man, cannot do much of anything that is worthwhile.

These preconceptions are what perpetually betray us in choosing the "lesser evil" — and are what keep the political machines confidently picking screwed-up and third-rate men — for the party bosses know that we are so much the victims of our rationalizing that we would rather elect a baboon who seemed to agree with us than an angel who did not.

I happen to think the way a man looks and moves, and expresses himself in speech and gesture and general comportment is a good deal more important than the political statements he exudes, which have been written by somebody else to make the best impression on the largest segment of the electorate.

But this ad hoc approach to candidates is condemned by all the political doctrinaires, who delude themselves that a devious or flatulent man will make a satisfactory President because he utters campaign platitudes that flatter their prejudices.

The man we need to lead us is not necessarily the one who tells us what we like to hear, but what we must be made to hear; who makes us uncomfortable with ourselves, and forces us to re-examine our smug and easy preconceptions. But that is the last man any party would nominate, and the strongest argument of the political dropouts.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 10

Your birthday today: You are bound to be involved with other people this coming year. Your best approach is to seek co-operation and mutual acceptance. Never will be better when your role is to mediate, but resist the temptation to be merely a referee.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Strangers should not be casually included in your activities. In laws are not as sympathetic and helpful as you would like.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your money, along with family funds, has wings today. Loans are hard to get. Take a conservative course.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your mood is one of belated but abrupt reaction to long standing minor annoyances. Disagreements with business partners or loved ones are all too easy to fall into.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your day is thrown off balance by the erratic actions of someone where you work. Patience will mend the flaw so that a great deal can still be done.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Surprising distractions occur all day. Wild schemes, all of them risky, come to your attention.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Walk a path narrow enough to avoid hasty changes. Relatives upset matters but will co-operate on tactful approaches.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 22): Travel conditions are difficult, perhaps hazardous. More thought is needed, as there is too much drift toward taking people and their assistance for granted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 — Dec. 21): There are no active problems today beyond sudden differences of opinion. Line up your accounts, budgets, add something to your savings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The temptation is to react hastily to erratic behavior. Earlier plans still hold their validity and should be pursued vigorously.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Start early with as little fuss and ceremony as can be managed. News may be disheartening. Wait for the entire story.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Take advantage of today's easy comfort and short cuts as though you were on a vacation.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that the improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H-lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Stanfield Fails to Get Big City Liberals to Back Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — Not a Liberal elected from the Commons seat Monday as the "Yeas" were counted in the vote on an opposition motion of non-confidence in the government's housing and urban affairs policies.

Earlier in the day Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield had made an open bid for Liberal back-benchers to support the motion which called for creation of a standing committee to deal with the issues.

When the vote came, however, both the Conservative motion and an NDP amendment to set up an urban affairs ministry had been put down 104 to 88.

"If I'd voted for (the motion) and others had followed my lead, it would have plunged the country into a general election," Philip Givens (L—York West) told reporters after the votes.

The former mayor of Toronto, with several other Liberal MPs from Toronto, has called on Prime Minister Trudeau in the past to create an urban affairs committee to serve as a forum in which to discuss city problems.

As the members' names were called during the voting, both he and Walter Deacon (L—Toronto-High Park) sat silently in their seats and then met a volley of taunts from the opposition benches as they stood up to be counted with the rest of the government party.

Voting with the Conservatives on the main motion were 18 NDP members and seven Creditistes. The alignment was the same in the vote on the amendment proposed by John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview).

Notably absent from the House during the votes was former transport minister Paul Hellyer who had attended the debate earlier in the day. Mr. Hellyer resigned from the cabinet last spring, stating as one of his reasons government inaction on the recommendations contained in his report on housing problems in Canada.

The theme was picked up by Mr. Stanfield as he presented his motion. "What is at issue here," he said, "is not so much a concept of federalism as a concept of active government as against passive government.

"The federal government has the power. It is already active in the cities, causing problems if not solving them."

The main purpose of the motion, he said, was to provide a forum at the federal level of government for the expression of opinions on urban issues. He noted that the municipalities are necessarily bystanders at the current federal-provincial conference.

The Tory leader agreed that a federal role in the cities involves substantial constitutional issues. But, he said, "the government and the Parliament of Canada can do much more to help out the cities, to help with urban problems, without changing a comma in the existing constitution of Canada."

Rebates Withheld By OHC

TORONTO (CP) — The opposition asked why when Trade Minister Stanley Randall told the legislature Monday that Ontario Housing Corp. will withhold this year's shelter tax rebates from any tenants who are behind in their rent as of Nov. 30.

Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) said he could not see why OHC should be allowed to withhold rebates when every other landlord in the province is obliged to obtain back rent through normal channels.

"You'd handle it your way; we're handling it ours," Mr. Randall replied.

The rebates are paid to all Ontario homeowners and to landlords who are supposed to hand the money on to tenants in an attempt to lighten housing costs.

Mr. Randall told Mr. Lewis that OHC tenants are already being subsidized by the taxpayers and should not be subsidized twice if they are in arrears on rent.

In other business:

—The house approved in principle legislation that will ensure that a child cannot be returned to his natural mother once he has become a Crown ward and has been singled out for adoption. Opposition members argued that the bill violates the rights of natural mothers.

—Labor Minister Dalton Bales said the government is considering requiring companies to notify his department before laying off large numbers of workers. He told a questioner he had not been notified before Canadian General Electric laid off 200 workers at its Toronto plant in November.

—Leonard Reilly (PC—Toronto-Eglinton) said federal white paper proposals on corporate income taxes would more than double taxes on small businesses. He said he wondered "if the intent of the federal government is to destroy small business in this country altogether."

—Jack Stokes (NDP — Thunder Bay) asked the government to make a strong protest about United States "spying" activities in Northern Ontario waters. He complained earlier this year that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is doing surveys of these waters to determine the potential supply for U.S. use.

Medicare Deterrent Not Sought

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Tom Wells says the Ontario government did not intend to impose a deterrent fee when it limited medical care insurance coverage to 90 per cent of the doctors' fee schedule.

"If it is becoming a deterrent fee, that is something we'll have to take a serious look at," Mr. Wells said in an interview. The assumption had been that doctors would not bill their patients for the excess amount.

The minister was commenting on a broadcast interview Saturday night in which Premier Robarts said he had been told by medical experts that the 90-per-cent limitation serves as a deterrent against unnecessary use of medical services.

'Plane on Rail' Will Go 250

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 250-mile-an-hour rapid transit vehicle with a revolutionary magnetic power plant—designed so it eventually will ride on a cushion of air instead of wheels—begins trial runs next month.

The 38-foot-long surface carrier, created for 80 passengers but now filled with electronic test gear, was unveiled Tuesday by the U.S. transportation department.

Spokesmen said full-scale operation of such vehicles would come sometime in the 1970s.

The prototype test vehicle, which resembles an airplane fuselage straddling a high, blade-like centre rail, was on display at a hangar at Los Angeles International Airport.

Next month it will be moved to a quarter-mile-long track in nearby Torrance for low-speed tests by the Garrett Corp., which built the vehicle for the federal transportation agency under a $3,200,000 contract. Date and place of later high-speed tests have not been determined.

The prototype has conventional railway wheels and runs on standard gauge track, down the middle of which has been installed a thin, 21-inch-high centre rail.

The wheels have no driving power. Forward motion is provided by a large electric motor inside the vehicle. The motor acts something like a magnet, pulling itself—and the vehicle—forward along the centre rail to which it is powerfully attracted but which it can never touch.

Engineers said the wheels eventually will be removed and the vehicle will be equipped to hover just above the ground, supported on downward-blasting columns of air as it slides frictionlessly forward along the guiding centre rail.

In the prototype, the motor gets current from a turbine generator but engineers said later models will draw power from lines overhead or alongside the track.

New York Rioters Arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — Bands of anti-war demonstrators marked President Nixon's visit to New York City Tuesday night by surging through midtown streets breaking store windows and clashing with police.

Police arrested more than 60 men and women after small bands broke away from a crowd of 5,000 protesters to battle with police. One policeman was hit with a lead pipe and a high-ranking officer was struck in the face by a stone. Five other policemen and five civilians were injured.

The mass of anti-war demonstrators gathered near the Waldorf about 6 p.m. One small group flew a Viet Cong flag, and others raised a red flag on a pole in front of a midtown bank.

The violence began when Police Inspector David Fallek ordered patrolmen wielding clubs to form a wedge and "go in and secure that flagpole and get that flag down!"

'Don't forget the office Christmas bash!'

Closed Talks Held As Agenda Finished

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers completed their agenda just 45 minutes after today's session of the federal provincial constitutional conference opened, and they went into a closed meeting to work out details of further talks.

The three-day conference winds up after the political leaders come back into plenary session with their closing statements.

The final item on the agenda involved federal proposals to assist provinces in bilingualism programs—a subject that drew little dissent. State Secretary Gerard Pelletier said that the $50,009,000 being made available by the federal government can start to go to provinces by Jan. 1.

The closed session was to talk about future agendas, the specifics of subjects referred to continuing committees, and dates for future sessions.

Rolling Stones Gather Lawsuits

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — Angry residents say they plan lawsuits for $500,000 for damages they claim to have suffered from the weekend Altamont rock music concert, where four youths died.

In addition, Alameda County Supervisors voted Tuesday to start proceedings to revoke the permit of Dick Carter, operator of the Altamont Speedway, who invited the Rolling Stones and other musicians to perform there.

More than 300,000 flocked to the 90-acre speedway Saturday.

The hordes left the pastures around the speedway littered with broken glass, empty wine bottles, paper, discarded clothes and ashes from bonfires.

Trudeau Assailed By Masse

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was criticized today as a man whose attitudes give the impression he was elected by English Canada "to put Quebec in its place."

He said the discussion of constitutional control over social security showed that Quebec's constitutional position "is fundamentally different from most if not all the other governments of Canada."

He said Mr. Trudeau's position could be summed up with the words "uniformity and centralization" while Quebec's position could be stated with the words "diversity and decentralization or autonomy."

Rich Cities Best Way To Aid Poor

OTTAWA (CP) — A working paper prepared for the federal-provincial constitutional conference says Ontario wants to build strong municipalities with extended powers and the revenue to exercise them.

For Other Stories See Pages 26, 27 and 28

The provincial plan for its municipalities is used as an example of what Ontario wants from the federal government.

The paper says there must be "adequate funds" to sustain high-growth, wealth-generating cities because it is from these urban concentrations, if they are kept healthy and allowed to innovate, that less fortunate parts of the country will benefit."

Judge Refuses To Exhume Body

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — A Pennsylvania judge refused today to order the body of Mary Jo Kopechne exhumed for an autopsy.

It was a victory for the parents of the 28-year-old secretary who died last summer in Senator Edward M. Kennedy's car.

Common Pleas Judge Bernard C. Brominski, after seven weeks of consideration, denied the petition of Massachusetts district attorney who plans an inquest.

Brominski said the facts presented by District Attorney Edmund Dinis of New Bedford, Mass., "are insufficient to support a finding of the cause of death" other than drowning.

In his 14-page opinion, the judge said that after two days of testimony it was difficult for him to conclude that Miss Kopechne's grave should be disturbed.

Mother's A Citizen

Mrs. Hendrika Binnema is surrounded by youngsters outside Hastings County court house after she received her Canadian citizenship yesterday. Two of them are her own—Wilma 10 (left) and Gerald, seven, marking the event with kisses — the rest all students at Parkdale public school.

Wilma Binnema Was Excused

Girl's Classmates See Mother Become Citizen

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Recently, Hendrika Binnema wanted her 10-year-old daughter watching when she received her Canadian citizenship.

So, she suggested it might be nice if Wilma were excused school for the afternoon.

Parkdale public school teacher Robert Burnett agreed. Nicer still, felt, would be the presence of all Wilma's classmates in grade five.

So yesterday, more than 30 youngsters joined Wilma in Hastings County court house as Mrs. Binnema officially became Canadian. 10 years out from her native Holland.

The youngsters watched Mrs. Binnema join 36 other new Canadians as they received a collective Christmas gift from the state — Canadian citizenship.

They saw the final process of citizenship extension — an occasion of solemn ceremonial as Judge J. C. Anderson administered the oath of allegiance to each of the new Canadians.

The youngsters heard the judge remind a crowded court room that the new citizens "had come to cast their lot with us in this country."

They heard from representatives of various levels of government — Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings, representing provincial affairs; county warden Donald Rodgers; Ald. Robin Jeffrey and alderman-elect Mrs. Jean Smith for local government.

There were representatives of industry (Arthur Duncan, of Belsia Shoe) the law (B. R. Collins, Hastings Bar Association president.)

Community organizations were represented by the St. Julien and Argyll chapters of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

Clergy present were Rt. Rev. J. F. Sullivan, Rev. L. S. Sutherland and Rabbi Walter Seligmann.

The youngsters also rubbed shoulders with members of Hastings County Council, who adjourned deliberations further down the corridor to crowd the courtroom for the ceremonies.

Nationalities included: Dutch (18); German (5); Greek (2); American (1); Polish (3). There was one new citizen from each of Pakistan, Hungary, Austria and Czechoslovakia.

County Okays Recommendation

Hastings Manor Opened to Trenton Patients First Time

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

For the first time in the history of the county, residents of the town of Trenton are to be accepted at Hastings Manor.

Because of mutual involvement in other fields and as a public relation gesture, Hastings County councillors went along with a Home for the Aged Committee recommendation to accept applications from Trenton and additional residents from Belleville at the two manors.

Over the years Belleville has shared in the capital costs at the Hastings Manor and is entitled to the use of a total of 71 beds.

The recommendation was that applications for above the 71 bed entitlement be received from Belleville, and also applications from Trenton.

The reason for the move is that there are now approximately 40 empty beds both at Hastings Manor and at Hastings Centennial Manor at Bancroft.

Committee chairman, Reeve Earl Hawley of Bancroft said that because of the bed vacancies, his committee had reviewed its policy with respect to admitting residents other than from county municipalities.

However, sufficient beds would be reserved to insure county residents ready occupancy.

Increased bed occupancy would help to lower the per diem rate as the two manors it was stated.

Heap of Co-operation Aids Exchange

By LINDA GELDART

For the Christmas Exchange co-operation has been one of the keys to success.

Co-operation between various city groups, and the Exchange has always existed, ever since the idea of the Christmas Exchange was first put into practical use three years ago.

This working liaison consists of a co-operative effort not only on the part of women's groups, Girl Guides and Scouts, but embraces organizations such as the Firefighters' Association, the Kiwanis Club, and the Salvation Army.

The contribution and assistance that each of these groups lends to the Exchange, which acts as a confidential clearing house matching needy families with appropriate donors, increases the scope of what the Exchange is trying to accomplish.

One of the best examples of co-operation is the time and assistance readily given by the Salvation Army.

Each year, the Army assists a number of needy families during the Christmas season, in addition to those registered with the Exchange.

Last Christmas, the Salvation Army helped 77 families, as well as 14 families registered with the Exchange who were not sponsored.

The Army uses money from their Christmas Kettles for relief to needy families during the festive season as well as the rest of the winter.

According to Army Captain Ed. Gurney, the majority of the money collected from the kettles, is used for assistance throughout the Christmas season — in the form of food hampers and food vouchers.

"Last year the Salvation Army spent $1,400 of its Kettle money assisting families. In addition to that we had to ask the Exchange for $200 more to fill a few gaps," related Captain Gurney.

"We are quite confident that we won't have to ask the Exchange for money this year — we even should be able to take more families if the Exchange can't handle them," he added.

Captain Gurney sees the "co-operation link" between the Exchange and the Salvation Army pooling resources to insure that everyone in need receives the required assistance.

"If the Exchange finds that financially it cannot assist a number of families, then, as we are able to assist them, we will," said Captain Gurney.

"I look upon the Christmas Exchange as a necessity. It is my hope that in the future the Salvation Army will take on even more active part in what the Exchange is doing.

"There is a real need to channel the energies of every agency at Christmas to avoid duplication, and make sure that each family requiring assistance receives it," he said.

Several groups in the city, as well as individuals are donating money to the Exchange to help them meet their goal of $4,400.

Donations for the Christmas Exchange may be sent to Box 815, Belleville, or at 224 John St., Belleville, the United Community Services offices.

Santa's Village Opens Friday Night

Santa's Village, three weeks in the making, opens officially tomorrow night in Belleville. Located at the LaSalle Ambulance on Dundas Street East, the village is the result of an idea by Stuart Meeks which originated when it was first reported that there would not be a Santa Claus Parade this year.

"I thought that something should be done for the youngsters," said Mr. Meeks, "and figured this would be a good way to do it." Mr. Meeks gained support for his idea from the Kinsmen Club, many downtown businesses, Towers Store and some individuals.

"Santa will make his official visit at seven o'clock and will be on hand until 10 o'clock tomorrow. During the rest of the days before Christmas he will visit the village between seven and nine each night with the exception of Sundays said Mr. Meeks.

"We have had some requests from schools for special visits by classes and if we are contacted in advance we will make sure that Santa Claus is on hand for these daytime visits," Mr. Meeks said.

Her appearance will officially wind up the activities of the group, it will become defunct after the new year as the PC women take up full membership in the local Progressive Conservative Association.

The meeting, in the form of a potluck supper, will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Kiwanis Centre.

Help on the Way

Captain Ed Guerney of the Salvation Army contends with the usual amount of paperwork as he pours over the needs of new families requiring assistance this Christmas. The Army is working in conjunction with the Christmas Exchange.

Ex-national Tory Party Secretary Guest Speaker

Flora MacDonald, a former national secretary of the Conservative party, will address the final meeting of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association tonight.

Now with the political studies department of Queen's University, Miss MacDonald yesterday presented personal recommendations to the Commons Privileges and Elections Committee.

She argued for shorter federal election campaigns, lowering the voting age to 18 from 21 and strict limits on election use of the broadcasting media.

She told the committee, which is discussing changes in the Canada Elections Act, that any reform should begin at a legal entities in the act.

Once defined — possibly on the basis of the number of candidates fielded or the percentage of the national vote captured in the preceding election — public and private broadcasting networks should be made to provide free-time programs within limits.

Miss MacDonald called for complete disclosure of all campaign expenses after each election and annually. Political donations to parties or candidates should be tax deductible up to $100.

Present 60-day election campaigns were too long and a different system of enumeration could cut this by half. Her concern was not just for the money savings involved but for the wear and tear on those caught in pin campaigns.

Belleville and District Obituaries and Funerals

FRANCIS J. SHANNON (Rochester, New York)

Frank Shannon was born in Plainfield, Ontario, the son of the late Robert and Sarah Shannon. As a young man he emigrated to Rochester where he was in the insurance business for several years. Following this, he opened a hotel and restaurant equipment store known as the Shannon Supply Company, from which he retired only a few years ago. He also operated a wholesale meat supply store at the same time. He was a well known and highly respected citizen of Rochester and active in many organizations.

He is survived by his wife, the former Eunice Schneider, one daughter, Mrs. Frances Harris of New York, three grandchildren and one great grandchild.

He was predeceased by two brothers, William and Wilfred Shannon.

The funeral was held from the Miller Funeral Home in Rochester to Our Lady of Good Counsel Church where solemn High Mass was concelebrated by two cousins, Monsignor Bernard Walsh and Father Raymond Shannon of Kingston.

The bearers were R. Shannon, O. Schillinger, K. Nugent, J. McDonald and W. Creary of Rochester and T. Walsh of Belleville.

THOMAS WILLIAM DAND

He was born in Grey County, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Dand and spent most of his life in Sidney township as a farmer.

Mr. Dand is resting at the Pinkston and Lancaster Funeral Home. Service will be held in the chapel on Thursday, Dec. 11 at 11:00 a.m.

Interment will be in Belleville cemetery with Rev. Alexander McDowell officiating.

MRS. MURRAY HEATH

TRENTON — The funeral for Mrs. Eileen Heath, R. R. 2, Campbellford, who died suddenly as the result of an accident on Saturday in her 41st year, was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, Campbellford on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. Gordon Whitmore conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites at Zion cemetery.

The bearers were Don Thomson, Carlie Petherick, Gordon Meiklejohn, Douglas Reid, Glenn Horton and James Mumby.

Mrs. Heath was born in Seymour township a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Petherick and lived a lifetime in Rawdon and Seymour township.

She was a member of Zion United Church and a member of the UCW of the congregation.

Surviving are her parents, her husband, Murray Heath, three sons, Lyle, Gerald and John all at home and one brother, Carl Petherick of R. R. 5, Campbellford.

CECIL BELNAP

TRENTON — The funeral for Cecil (Cy) Belnap, 193 Marmora Street, Trenton, who died suddenly in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Friday was held from the Weaver Funeral Home on Monday afternoon. He was in his 65th year.

Rev. J. A. Payton conducted the service in the chapel and the committal rites at Mount Evergreen cemetery.

The bearers, all legionnaires, were K. K. Kenny, Lloyd Bird, Robert Barnes, Robert White, Lorry Hampson and William Smith.

Mr. Belnap was born at Rednersville, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Belnap and had resided in the past 24 years in Trenton. He spent a lifetime in the area.

During the Second World War he served with the Hasty Pees and was a former member of Branch No. 110 of the Royal Canadian Legion, whose members had a memorial service on Sunday evening in the Funeral Home.

Surviving are his wife, the former Izella Cook, five daughters, Mrs. Barry (Rosemary) Lum, Toronto, Mrs. Norman (Joan) LaBelle, Trenton, Mrs. G. A. (Sheila) Henley, Montreal, Mrs. John (Gay) Scharren, Toronto, Mrs. K. C. (Wanda) Fode, Moose Jaw, Sask., and one son, Walter Belnap, Ottawa.

Also surviving is one brother, Rosa Belnap, Rochester, N.Y., 17 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

COOL CLOTHES

Refrigerated vests are being developed in Japan to help welders and shipbuilders bear the long hot Japanese summer. They will have pockets for dry ice, which evaporates to produce a cooling effect.

MRS. JOSEPH WEIR

TRENTON — The funeral for Mrs. Annie Weir, Consecon, who died at the residence of her son-in-law on Sunday in her 87th year was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, on Tuesday afternoon. She had been in failing health for the past seven months.

Rev. G. Futterham conducted the service in the chapel and entombment was in Wellington cemetery vault for burial in the spring.

Mrs. Weir was born in Amelisburg township, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Adams and had been a life resident of Prince Edward County.

She was a member of Consecon United church and a member of the UCW. She was also a member of Salem UCW and Women's Institute of Consecon.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Lawrence (Thelma) Hicks, Talmage, two sons, Arthur Weir, Consecon, Lorne Weir, Kingston, five grandchildren and one great grand child.

Also surviving are two brothers, Aaron Adams, Colborne, Harold of Wellington, and one sister, Mrs. Ethel Moon, Miami, Florida. Predeceased are her husband, Joseph Weir, six brothers, Curman, Robert, Hiram, Wesley, Lancelot and Cleveland Adams and three sisters, Stella, Elfie and Emma.

REV. HAROLD BELL TWEED

— Funeral services were held recently for Rev. Harold James Bell, M.A., B.D., who died in the Toronto General Hospital after a lengthy illness.

A former pastor of Zion United Church of Canada, Mr. Bell held several executive positions on the Kingston Presbytery of the United Church of Canada.

A native of Beaverton, he was educated in Peterborough, Belleville and Toronto.

During his career, he served several pastoral charges in Sperling, Kinmount, Hastings, Blackstock and Kingston.

Mr. Bell is survived by his wife, the former Margaret Olive Beck; and by two children, Rev. J. Milton Bell, of East Orange, New Jersey, and Dr. Ruth Tathan, of Waterloo. Three grandchildren also survive.

Interment was in Calaraqui Cemetery.

Hearing Jan. 9

COBOURG (Staff)— Russel Weldon, 41, of Trenton will appear in provincial court here Jan. 9, 1970, for preliminary hearing on a non-capital murder charge.

Weldon is charged in connection with the death of George Cook, 38, of RR 2, Carrying Place. Mr. Cook's body was found in his house on Twelve O'Clock Point road by a Provincial Police constable, Oct. 21.

Police have a sledge hammer which they believe could be the murder weapon, Inspector J. C. McKendry of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the OPP said.

The Jan. 9 hearing will be before a provincial judge who will determine if there is sufficient evidence to put the accused on trial.

Wolves Concern Councillors More Than Marijuana Problem

Which constitutes the greater danger — wolves or marijuana?

If action by Hastings County Council is to be taken as a criterion, wolves get the nod hands down.

Following minutes discussion at yesterday's session of the council body no action was taken on an outside resolution requesting that the sale of marijuana not be legalized.

But later, council discussed wolves and their threat to the deer population for nearly half an hour, finally deciding to name a special committee to fully investigate the problem and report back to council on what action it thought would best control the numbers of wolves.

The relative length of the two discussions brought a comment from Warden Donald Rodgers who said he hoped people wouldn't feel council was drawing a parallel between the two problems.

"We have no knowledge of marijuana as a predator of our children, but we seem to have a knowledge of predators of deer," he said.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen out off discussion of the marijuana resolution, claiming that there was not enough information at hand for council to pass judgment. The resolution was filed.

Wollaston Reeve Albert Vader touched off the lengthy discussion on wolves with a resolution asking for the wolf bounty to be increased as a means of controlling them.

He said hunters had returned from camps this fall, reporting that they had seen more wolves than deer. Residents reported a cow being killed by wolves and actually had seen calves being chased, he said.

County Council - - School Board Discussions

Hastings County Clerk Treasurer Carl E. Bateman, Raymond Rowe, county board of education vice-chairman, Warden Donald Rodgers and education director Eric Rúnacres discuss mutual problems following last night's joint meeting of county council and school board members.

Better Method of Municipal Payments Sought for School Board Needs

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A joint committee of representatives from Hastings County Council and the Hastings Board of Education will be appointed to discuss a more satisfactory method of payments by municipalities of annual school board requisitions.

The decision resulted last night from a joint meeting of the two groups held in an attempt to establish a better liaison and base of understanding.

The special committee will hopefully come up with a resolution regarding timing of payments for presentation to the Ontario Department of Education.

The timing of school tax payments to the county board was one of many areas of discussion at the dinner meeting at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

Other questions posed for the school board ranged from whether county council could be of assistance by interceding with the provincial government on behalf of the school board, to what type of recreational programs and activities the board would support in a continuing educational program.

The questions were included on a prepared agenda, but in addition, off-the-cuff queries on board operation, school location, and financing, were asked.

County councillors made it plain that rapidly increasing school taxes were of prime concern for rural residents.

Rawdon Township Reeve Burton Morton and Deputy-Reeve Ray Shortt said school taxes in their township have gone up 12 mills this year without benefits to show for the added expense.

"What worries me is that we still have only 35 per cent of the municipal taxes paid," said Mr. Morton.

"I'm thinking that we are going to have a lot of farm properties back on our hands" he told school board members.

Co-chairmen for the meeting county Warden Donald Rodgers and board vice-chairman Raymond Rowe of Frankford, who said that in its first year the board's operation was understandably of an experimental quality.

At the same time, he said that in 11 months of operation the Hastings' board had built one of the finest boards of education in the province. Mr. Rowe stressed the need for involvement of everyone in the county in the educational process.

Tweed Reve Barbara Allen said it was okay for board members to talk in lofty terms and in generalities, but claimed one important area of discussion was missing.

She said the board had a responsibility to the municipalities in that the municipalities collected the money they spend, and, felt such municipality should be provided with school board minutes.

She asked how the board could justify the proposed construction of a new high school in Sidney Township in view of the falling birthrate, the proposed construction of a new school in Ameliasburg Township and also possibility that the Tweed - Hungerford High School may not be closed.

In reply, Mr. Rowe assured councillors the board was responsible financially to municipalities, but said its chief interest was in education.

Mr. Rowe said the Sidney location was meant to serve a growing population in the south end of the county. He said the board decided in favor of a new school rather than additions to schools in Belleville and Trenton.

Eric Runacres, director of education for Hastings County, said schools with enrolments between 1,200 and 1,600 students provided all the educational opportunities required.

He said the Sidney school was part of a 10 year plan calling for two new schools and additions to others. However, the Ameliasburg school would now make the second school unnecessary.

In defence of rising school costs, Mr. Runacres defended the board in its ability to keep the 1969 increase to 11 per cent — one percent below the guideline set by the department of education.

Inherited financial commitments from 1968 had accounted for three-quarters of increased cost for the Hastings board this year.

These commitments were increased school enrolments, teachers' salary increases, the inclusion on the county payroll of people formerly paid by the province and also the added costs of the school for retarded children.

With the remaining one-quarter of increased costs, the board had established beginners' service (kindergarten) throughout the county, French in one grade in all schools, had eliminated all one-room schools in the county, provided for specialty staff, improved the teacher-student ratio, instituted driver training in all high schools, hired second vice principals in composite schools and commenced upgrading of school supplies.

He admitted there may have been a reduction in supplies for a few schools, but overall more money had been provided for supplies than last year.

Mrs. Allen said she was not denying excellence, but said she would like to hear again the costs of administration, which she assumed accounted one of the biggest expenditure increases.

Repealing her earlier request regarding minutes of board meetings being provided for the municipalities Mrs. Allen described Mr. O'Flynn as a genius at not answering questions.

She said school board minutes had been provided the municipalities by the Tweed board and said the same courtesy by the Hastings board "would be a tremendous public relations step."

But Don Williams of Stirling, one of two Sidney representatives on the school board, said minutes alone would be of little use in reeves without background information leading up to decisions.

And Belleville member Mrs. Miriam Graham obsevered that at board meetings were open. Also home and school associations had representatives attend meetings.

To the statement by Mr. Runacres that kindergarten service had been provided this year by the board, a voice from the audience queried, "Who asked for that?"

Mr. Rowe replied that this was a requirement of the department of education and that parents also had asked for the service.

"Not in my municipality," was the reply.

Mr. Williams replied to Mrs. Allen's question about administrative salaries that salaries being paid by the Hastings board was the going rate for similar positions across the province.

And in a word of praise for Mr. Runacres, the Sidney board were the going rate for "was better off paying Mr. Runacres $29,000 than it would be paying a second rate man $25,000."

Rawdon board member James Sexsy said he didn't care whether Mrs. Allen was sup-

I with board minutes or not.

...she learns from the minutes that I vote half a million dollars for a new school she can like it or lump it."

Year of Challenge Ahead: Rodgers

The year 1969 has been a year of accomplishments for Hastings County, but next years' council will be charged with the responsibility of carrying some of the developments to completion.

These were the comments of Warden Donald Rodgers as he opened the December session of county council Wednesday morning. This is the last session of council over which Warden Rodgers will preside.

Among the developments of this year cited by Warden Rodgers were the provincial takeover of the assessment function as of Jan. 1, 1970; talks regarding a county planning area; the setting up of a Quinte Air Service committee; the ACRO convention hosted by the county in October; completion of roads needs study and investigation toward the provision of a new county museum.

Possible developments still to be completed included the new museum, publication of a county industrial brochure, and talks regarding municipal reform.

During the fall Warden Rodgers said he had met with agricultural representative W. D. Tipper and county cheese factory operators regarding the problem of whey disposal. As result a steering committee had been set up and the warden expressed hope for solutions.

Driver Unhurt

TWEED (Special) — Dale Earl Benson, 28, of Crookston, escaped injury Tuesday noon when the half-ton truck he was driving went out of control on the Cordova Road north of Marmora resulting in $700 damage.

Direct Dialing Snagged

Expansion of direct dialing services in the Belleville-Stirling and Bancroft-Coe Hill areas will be delayed one to two years as result of Board of Transport Commissioners turning down the Bell Telephone request for increased rates.

This was made known to Hastings County councillors yesterday in a letter from Belleville Bell manager George Thompson.

Mr. Thompson said that direct dialing had been planned for the Belleville, Stirling, Frankford and Wooler areas, and also in North Hastings, but this program would now have to be curtailed for lack of financing.

More than a million dollars had been cut out of Bell's program for the county area and would have to await other means of financing.

Picton Greets Santa Claus

PICTON (Staff) — Santa Claus is coming to town next Monday night on a reindeer flight specially chartered by members of the Picton Kiwanis and Kinsmen clubs.

Old St. Nick will be guest of honor at a Christmas party for 90 of Prince Edward County's underprivileged children sponsored by the service clubs in the Royal Hotel. The youngsters will be treated to a Christmas supper followed by Santa's arrival. For each child in attendance there will be gifts of toys and clothing to fill their stockings.

Quebec's Bertrand

Like his predecessor, Daniel Johnson, Premier Bertrand of Quebec is 'nothing if not a patient and determined man.

Unreasonable too — in the eyes of Western premiers like Mr. Thatcher of Saskatchewan who regard bread-and-butter issues like wheat sales more important than the so-called rights of Quebec and the constitution.

Not for the first time, says Mr. Thatcher, have the premiers found themselves embroiled in Quebec's interminable scrapping with Ottawa over the demarcation line between provincial and federal rights.

Without doubt Quebec is the prickliest thorn in the federal flesh and its latest display of intransigence may serve to isolate it still further from the rest of Canada. This is in relation to direct federal payments to anyone in areas of provincial responsibility; Quebec is now claiming this right, in addition to responsibility for all welfare and income supplement programs. Moreover, it says Ottawa should turn over the tax revenues to finance them.

What now? Is Quebec being pushed more and more into a corner from which there is no escape other than to secede? That is the ultimate step and there is no doubt it would be disastrous for both federation and for Quebec itself.

For the moment though there is no indication of any such drastic step. Rather, Mr. Bertrand continues to engage in policies that are the puzzlement and despair of his colleagues from the other provinces, not to mention the Canadian public.

Typically, he has said he will continue to speak out in support of his beliefs. In any event, he adds with that thrust of his jaw which somehow is eloquent of the Quebec of today, "the people of Quebec will decide."

What about the rest of Canada? Well, we are not sure if that matter has seriously crossed the premier's mind.

Mr. Hees' Address

Prince Edward-Hastings MP George Hees had both praise and advice for the people of Belleville when he addressed a joint Kiwanis-Rotary meeting earlier this week.

The former Trade Minister said he had always admired the "get-up-and-go of this city." Belleville Week for instance was very well done, well organized and had a lot of zip to it.

Then came the advice; it had to do with writing to one's MP and in particular to Prime Minister — Trudeau and presumably Minister Benson on the proposals in the White Paper on Taxation. This was the subject of Mr. Hees' address and he assured his audience that the Government wants to know the views of the public on the proposals.

So many people, he said, think their letters are ignored in Ottawa but this is not the case. The number received is fewer than may be thought and those that are received are tabulated and studied.

"If you don't write," Mr. Hees cautioned, "it will be taken as an automatic vote of confidence in the proposals. Your silence will be taken as approval. . ."

In short it was a lesson in participatory democracy and when a Rotarian asked a couple of pertinent questions to which Mr. Hees confessed he did not have precise answers his advice, as earlier, was to write to Ottawa.

More people should try it.

President Speaks Up

President Nixon's public appearance during which he answered questions on the alleged massacre of civilians in Vietnam should go far toward re-establishing confidence in that area of United States commitment.

Opposition to the war will not diminish but since the U.S. intends to see the conflict through — to whatever conclusion — it is right that the American public and world opinion at large should be assuaged with regard to the conduct of the troops.

What the enemy does of course is another matter. Neither the Viet Cong rebels who have been in this war from its beginnings nearly a decade ago, nor the regular North Vietnamese forces who joined in the conflict since, are known for their respect of human life.

President Nixon has admitted a massacre took place and points out that the word "alleged" is used because individuals are involved and are innocent until proved otherwise. If found guilty they will be punished. Meanwhile he has done well to mention the many acts of compassion and the material aid extended by U.S. forces to the Vietnamese, including the building of churches and schools. Invariably such generosity goes unpublicized amid the horrors of war itself.

Labor Ranks Swell . . . Higher Pay

Twelve Per Cent Overall Increase in Earnings

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Wages, salaries, and supplementary labor income paid in industry during the first nine months of this year were 12 per cent higher than a year ago.

They totalled $23,250,700,000 on the basis of the most recent seasonally-adjusted figures available from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Press.

This 12-per-cent increase represents the combination of a number of factors, but principally the increased size of the labor force and higher rates of pay.

Year-end forecasts indicate that some softness is developing in the economy and may well continue during the first half of 1970. This probably will show up in the statistics as a reduction in hours worked and in overtime payments, as well as some increase in unemployment.

There is, however, a factor built into the 1970 picture which is a carryover from 1969 experience.

A finance department source says the averages of the major labor negotiations settled in 1969 containing wage adjustments to be made in 1970 will call for increases of seven per cent.

Those 1969 agreements also call for increases of another seven per cent in 1971, while the average increase for 1969 itself was eight per cent.

The labor department reported recently that wage settlements negotiated in the third quarter of this year—that is, during July, August and September—called for increases of 7.9 per cent in average annual base-rate wages.

This was an increase from the average of settlements reached in the second quarter of the year—7.7 per cent.

These labor department figures cover negotiations in which labor unions representing 500 employees or more were involved.

They do not include settlements in the construction industry, where there were some dramatic wage increases for carpenters and plumbers. Those settlements, however, are considered so unusual that they should not be permitted to distort national industrial trends.

With that exclusion, the average wage settlement in the third quarter showed considerable slowing down of the upward thrust of wage pressures recorded in the third quarter of 1969. The average then was 8.5 per cent.

Included in the $23,250,700,000 paid in industrial wages and salaries during the first nine months of this year is $1,-225,200,000 paid in supplementary labor income—such as unemployment insurance. This figure is also up, by about 14 per cent, from the amount of supplementary labor income paid in the first nine months of 1969.

This is another important factor affecting the trend of total labor income during 1970. Unemployment insurance benefits are based on the rate of contribution to the unemployment insurance fund, which in turn is based on the rate of benefits received by those who contribute to and become qualified for benefits.

If, as now seems certain, unemployment does rise in the next three months, increases in increase in unemployment insurance benefits will cushion any reduction caused by unemployment in total labor income.

Letters to Editor

Union Protests Transfer Of Railroad Staff to Quebec

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I would be pleased if your paper would allow me to state our concern on the transfer of work to Regional Accounting at Montreal.

On Friday, November 28, at a meeting held in Montreal, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway and Transport workers were informed by the Canadian National Railways that work normally performed by 18 employees at Belleville would be transferred to Montreal on March 1, 1970. The yearly wages for this group of 18 employees amount to $111,225.76, with additional wages from 6 working wives and 2 working husbands. There are 18 dependents in public school, 15 in high school and one in university, which would be some loss to this community. The breakdown of the transfer would be as follows: one position of Complometer Operator would be transferred to another floor at Belleville, four positions abolished and 13 senior positions transferred to Montreal.

Transfer of work is not new on the Rideau area — over the past four to five years 1 assisted in negotiating the transfer of work from Bowmanville, Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Picton, Marmora, Bancroft and Napanee to Belleville, with some cause for concern to the employees for this organizational change.

What we are protesting here is an abnormal change in that many 43 years employed by the railway, no employees have been transferred to another province under the condition these employees must live with along with their wives and children, namely, social, schooling, etc. The 13 employees involved are being forced to go from a schedule office at Belleville to a non-schedule office in Montreal which means that they will lose their seniority and have no security at Montreal. These employees have no knowledge of the French language, now a necessity in the Province of Quebec, and in the office they will be working in, the use of French has increased over the past three years from 19 per cent to 65 per cent.

The railway has also informed me that shortly after March 1st 10 additional positions, known as rate billing positions, will be transferred to the same office. Also, there are 13 positions transferred from Quebec City, and 33 positions from Montreal Terminal to the Revenue Accounting Office, which means that Management would make a work study of full staff and when redundancies made at Montreal, the employees from Belleville would be cut off, as they are not qualified with no knowledge of French.

The following requirements are essential when applying for bulletin positions at Montreal: "Proficiency in English and French languages, ability to draft and dictate own letters." None of these employees has these requirements, and under normal conditions Management would disqualify them, but will tolerate them until the change is made and then they will be on their own when further displacements are required. With no seniority rights, they would be unemployed in a foreign city and a foreign province. These employees are all married and have families which makes their concern for the stopping of this move a main factor.

If this were Russia, Siberia, or any other Iron Curtain country, you could expect to read about slave labor transferred from one country to another, and this will be the situation if this transfer is not stopped.

I am appealing to the Mayor, Council, Chamber of Commerce, the Minister of Labour and Members of Parliament to stop this move of the railway, which is forcing people to move under the conditions outlined.

H. W. POINTER,
Local Chairman, CBRT and GW.

Germany's Telephone Life Line

(German Features)

KASSEL — West Germany's mental assistance per telephone service is commemorating its 12th year this year, with the number of offices having meaningful work increased from 3 to 39 throughout the country. Twenty-three are Protestant, the remainder Catholic.

The "phone-a-life" service was organized in 1957 by Rev. Erich Stange, of Kassel. Stange says he was distressed about the growing number of people committing suicide.

In the German service, available to people around the clock, theologians, psychologists, psychotherapists, lawyers, parapsychiatrists and other doctors, social welfare workers and even specially trained and suitable housewives man the phones.

Calls of two hours and over are not uncommon and many of the calls come from the mentally vexed — men whose wives have left them, women whose husbands have run away and others who are finding it difficult to deal with an increasingly de-personalized world. Many callers cannot be classified in the suicidal category.

The calls are not necessarily the end of the soul massage: often arrangements are made for parties on both ends of the line to come together. But, of course, there is no demand for identification — people using the service can remain anonymous or say their names as they choose.

Christmas Parade

Don Foster Expresses His Thanks to All Who Helped

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the various people of our friendly city who in any way assisted us and our committee in putting on the Santa parade.

Special thanks to Mayor Scott and his council; the police chief and force; the fire chief and his department; the Santa Committee; Burt Reddill; Angus Mac-Les Shore; Mrs. Ruth Brauer, and the various committees; Mr. and Mrs. George Grant and committee on costume help; Mrs. Joan Rolls and her workers who served refreshments; Bob Carey and his candy helpers; deputy fire chief Bob Emerson in charge of tractors and wagons; Garry Marriott, float chairman; the Recreation Director and staff; the Public Works department; the parking authority; The Intelligencer; Radio Station CJBQ; The Belleville Kinsmen; Doug Aselstine and the Mallorieans' Union; all the majorettes and dancers; Frank Foley who donated his building to keep the people warm and for makeup; Unlu the makeup committee and the people of our surrounding communities who helped.

We think the effort was a big factor in cementing our ties together again as the friendly city. It was a pleasure to work with you. We had pictures taken of the complete parade and hope in the near future we will all get together to see the parade when we can talk to you personally.

DON and RITA FOSTER

Country Life Is Tops

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

In a recent issue you expressed the advantages that city children have over the country children.

In my opinion the country children have more of an advantage because the city children don't have the pleasure of working on a farm or going out into a field to play or even go sleigh riding.

How can you expect city children to have fun playing ball unless they go to some park where it is likely packed full of children who have nothing to do. They also don't have as good health as country children because the city is too packed or over populated.

In the country the schools all have their own skating rink, which most of the city schools don't have. The city children have to go to the arena, which also is usually packed.

I would like to change from the country to the city if I had to.

EARL DEGEER

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An amendment to the Supreme Court of Canada act received royal assent 20 years ago today—in 1949—giving final authority in judicial matters to the Supreme Court of Canada and ending appeals to the Privy Council in London except for those begun before the amendment became law. The Supreme Court hears appeals in certain cases from provincial courts and from the Exchequer Court. It also gives advisory opinions to the federal government.

1836—Alfred Nobel, Swedish chemist and philanthropist, died.

Second World War -

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1944 — Canadian units of the British 8th Army smashed the enemy's La mo n a River defences; American troops entered Hagaenau, the most important German supply centre in northern Alsace; Russians took Alsogod within seven miles of Budapest; American troops took Ormoc on the west coast of Leyte Island.

Year-end Present

Tenant Rebate Increase Almost $10

This year Belleville public school supporters will get a rebate of $61.48 and separate school supporters will get $64.91.

This is an increase over last year's rate of $52.54 for public school supporters and $55.83 for separate school supporters.

However, residential property owners will not receive cheques from the city covering the amount. Taxes were reduced by the amount of the property tax reduction this year. Only tenants will see the rebate in the form of actual cash.

The residential property tax reduction is a system established by the province last year as a means of easing the burden of municipal and school taxes. In effect, the province pays part of the property taxes on each eligible house and apartment.

The provisions have been changed this year in connection with minimum assessments — usually applying to summer cottages.

In some cases last year, the rebate was bigger than the tax bill on such properties. This year the rebate is limited to no more than one - half the tax bill on such low assessments.

New Sound Singers

Church Sing-out Youth Oriented

The New Sound Singers, a five member contemporary music group of young people will be appearing locally Dec. 13 and 14 under the sponsorship of Belleville Youth For Christ at the Wesleyan Methodist Church Saturday evening, December 13 at 7.45 p.m. and again Sunday morning at the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Their 1969-1970 itinerary will include an extensive tour across Canada and the U.S.A.

This talented group of young people under the direction of Keith Anderson, 20, accompanies itself with instruments including piano, guitars, tambourine and string bass. Their wide repertoire includes many of their own unique arrangements. With a goal of presenting the message of Jesus Christ to modern-young people through the idiom of contemporary and folk music, their songs and personal testimonies deal with the questions, challenges and issues facing their generation.

The New Sound Singers came into being through the combined effort and interest of each of the Singers, in Edmonton, Alberta in late 1967. The group felt strongly that a "new sound" was needed to get spiritual concepts across to teenagers. Though their university pursuits limited their singing engagements to weekends, this recently-formed singing group performed regularly to youth clubs, professional council groups, churches, folk houses, university campus and various places where young people congregate.

Keith Anderson, team leader, says, All of the New Sound Singers are very serious about being a spiritual and intellectual stimulant to the young people of the country. We believe that our generation is asking important questions and looking for valid answers. We hope to share with them the positive difference Christ has made in our lives.

Other team members include Brenda Booker, Louise Hibbard, Glen and Val Bergstrom. The New Sound Singers are sponsored by Canadian Youth For Christ, a national youth organization with headquarters in Toronto.

Christian Coffee House

The Record is a Christian coffee house and teenage drop-in centre, sponsored by the greater Belleville district Youth for Christ organization.

The name has nothing to do with discs or the top 10. As Marvin Mountney, district director of Youth for Christ and guiding hand behind the drop-in centre explains, the name comes from a verse in the Bible: "And this is the record, that God- hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in His Son."

"We're not just creating a place where kids can hang out," he says, "but a record of what God has done for us as Christians."

Maurice Rollins donated space for The Record in the basement of his Victoria Ave. office. For the last three weeks, young people, participants in the Youth for Christ movement, have renovated the premises.

The district office of Youth for Christ will be located at the rear of the premises, and adult supervision will be on hand at all times.

Initially the centre will be open every school day at noon, after school and until 9 p.m. There are no membership charges and free coffee will be available.

"Anybody can come in," says the director. "We're not particularly interested in hippies — we think they're a minority group. But they are welcome to drop in."

Obituary

Kingston Tenants' Body Asks Right to Bargain Collectively

TORONTO (CP) — Tenants should have the right to bargain collectively with landlords to protect them against further economic exploitation, says a brief to the Ontario government from the Association for Tenants Action of Kingston.

The two-page brief, signed by association president Rosemary Warskett, was to be presented today to the standing committee on legal and municipal bills during its public hearing into the government's proposed Landlord-tenant act.

The brief stresses that collective landlord-tenant bargaining is essential if tenants are to be given the equality of power with landlords which is needed to protect them against exploitation.

It says that in the city of Kingston a housing shortage has already led to "spectacular rent increases, which have no relation to costs."

This is the Quebec North Shore Paper Co. pulp and paper mill at Baie Comeau, the basis of a 30-year period of expansion in the north shore region that has made it one of the most prosperous in Quebec. The mill itself is in the midst of expansion — a $54,000,000 project that will provide for the installation of a fourth newsprint machine. (CP Photo)

Drinkers Get Half Fare Paid

To discourage the drinkers from driving, he's offering to pay half their taxi fares home from any place they do some celebrating.

Mr. Wood, head of a company manufacturing sanitation products, has sent letters across the country telling employees he will pay half the fare up to a $10 limit.

The letter reminds employees that the police may order anyone to take a breath test and a positive test could mean a $1,000 fine or six months jail sentence. Instead of driving, he suggests "spend $20 on taxis and it will only cost you $10."

Airline Rates Cut

Travelers Will Pay Less, Stay Longer

CARACAS (AP) — Air travellers between Europe and North America will pay less and can stay longer as the result of an airline rate conference that ended near this Venezuelan capital Tuesday night.

Members of the International Air Transport Association agreed to a schedule of new fares in several categories. Conference sources said the agreement is effective for 13 months and takes effect March 1.

The sources said the agreement includes these changes:

—The 14- to-21-day economy excursion period was extended a week to 23 days at basically the same rates.

—A new fare scheduled was established for tourists who spend 29 to 45 days abroad. A New York-to-London round trip ticket will cost $250 off season, $255 in the basic season and $290 in the peak season.

—To meet increasing competition from charter flights, a new fare schedule was approved for groups of 30 persons. Sample fare for individuals in these groups, New York-to-London, is $170 off season, $192 basic season and $210 peak season.

The air fare war on north Atlantic routes began in September when Alitalia set a New York-to-Rome rate of $299 for travellers staying more than 21 days abroad in the off season.

An IATA spokesman said that in the new schedule this ticket would cost $300 off season for persons staying 29 to 45 days.

Senators Oppose Gas Shipments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two U.S. senators asked the White House and the defence department today to bar the army from shipping large amounts of poison gas weapons through the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

Senators Warren G. Magnuson (Dem. Wash.) and Mark O. Hatfield (Rep. Ore.) protested the army plan, which could involve shipments totalling more than 700 railway cars full of the gas from Bangor, Wash., to the army ordinance depot at Umatilla, Ore.

Magnuson said today he has written Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird asking that the army shipments be barred, "at least until more adequate safety precautions are taken."

Hamilton Teachers Accept Contract

HAMILTON (CP) — The city's 1,100 high school teachers voted narrowly Tuesday to accept a new contract proposal from the Hamilton board of education, averting a post-Christmas shutdown in 20 schools.

Ward McAdam, president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation, said the teachers were 52.5 per cent in favor of the board's latest offer.

Mr. McAdam said mass resignations would have shut 13 high schools and seven vocational schools after Jan. 1, affecting 19,726 students.

Main issues before Tuesday's vote was the length of time it would take to reach maximum salary in teaching categories.

The board offer starts a general arts graduate with a year's training at $8,800 and takes him to $11,200 after 11 years.

Honors graduates start at $7,100 and reach $11,700 after 12 years. Honors graduates with limited specialization start at $8,000 and reach $13,400 after 13 years and post-graduates move from $8,500 to $14,300 after 14 years.

The settlement still leaves the teachers federation active in a dispute in Grey County, where 253 of 309 teachers have handed in resignations in a salary dispute.

Montreal Firm Asks Strike Probe

MONTREAL (CP) — Daly and Morin Ltd., a strike-bound drapery-making firm in suburban Lachine, Tuesday asked the Quebec government to place the employees' union in trusteeship and launch a full investigation into the current strike.

In telegram to Labor Minister Maurice Bellemare and Justice Minister Remi Paul, the company said the union was manipulating its members and concealing the truth from them.

The firm's employees, members of the National Federation of Clothing Workers which is affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, have been on strike since Aug. 13.

The company said the union was using threats of violence to prevent employees from returning to work.

"It is about time employees ceased being made victims of the machinations of certain unions and the government took positive steps to protect the workers," the telegrams said.

Reporter Testifies

Girl Gave Bottle to Hendrix

TORONTO (CP) — A wire service reporter testified Tuesday that a teen-age girl gave American rock singer Jimi Hendrix a bottle May 1 in Los Angeles and said "this will make you feel better."

Hendrix, 27, is being tried by a general sessions jury on charges of possessing heroin and hashish May 3 at Toronto International Airport. The previous night, Hendrix performed in Detroit and May 1 in Los Angeles.

Sharon Lawrence, reporter for United Press International, testified she tried to interview Hendrix at a Los Angeles hotel, but people were always coming in and out, telephones were ringing and there was a lot of confusion.

There were several young girls in the hallway, Hendrix said he didn't feel well. Someone suggested a Bromo."

It was at this point that the girl, who appeared about 17, handed Hendrix the bottle, Miss Lawrence said. He threw it into a flight bag after thanking the girl, then asked everyone to leave.

Miss Lawrence, answering questions from Crown counsel John Maione, said she was not in Toronto as a reporter. Asked if she was "likely to benefit personally from attending the beat beg," Miss Lawrence replied: "I hope it would not be mentioned."

Earlier Tuesday, Hendrix testified that he has received drugs as presents, including packages of marijuana, hashish in the form of cookies and cakes, and LSD. Sometimes such gifts are mailed, he said.

Hendrix, free on $10,000 bail, said he has sniffed cocaine twice, used LSD five times and smoked hashish and marijuana, but has never used heroin. He said he feels he now has outgrown use of narcotics.

The trial continues.

Port Arthur Man Dies in Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The body of a 43-year-old Port Arthur man was found in the rear alley of a downtown hotel Tuesday. Police said he apparently had fallen from his second-floor window.

Detectives said the window was the self-closing type and that it evidently held the man's shoe as he dropped off the sill. Rafiis had been a guest at the hotel since Sunday, they said.

Choral Society Will Present Yule Program

The Belleville Choral Society, organized through the inspiration and efforts of Miss Phyllis May of Belleville, has now completed its first decade. During that time the choir has performed Handel's Messiah and Mendelssohn's Elijah. It has appeared in recital both in Belleville and on television and has participated annually in Arts Festival.

The Choral Society, under the direction of Murray Irwin, has joined with Trinity Church, Madoc, and Eastminster Church, Belleville, in presenting its traditional program of Christmas music, Sunday evening, December 14 they will be heard at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville.

Since the emphasis this year is on Canadian music, the Choral Society has included work by three contemporary composers. "The Three Kings" by Healey Willan is particularly characteristic of that writer. "New Prince, New Pomp" is an anthem by Dr. Graham George of Queen's University. "Credied Mid the Cows" is an arrangement of an old French carol, by the choir accompanied and well - known musician, S. Alec Gordon.

Club Activities

NEIGHBORS AID

The Neighbors Aid held their annual November business meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Gene Stratton with over 25 people present.

The president, Mrs. Jim Dowdle, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Harry Thomson read the minutes and correspondence in absence of the secretary, Mrs. A. Mitchell. The treasurer gave the year's financial report after several business matters were attended to. Mrs. Robert Atkins was asked to conduct the election of officers for the coming year. All officers were declared vacant and Mrs. Don Mitchell read the slate of officers. The following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Robert Atkins; first vice - president, Mrs. Gerald Stratton; second vice - president, Mrs. Sally Floyd; secretary, Mrs. Sam Peoples; treasurer, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell and pianist Mrs. Don Leeming.

A potluck Christmas dinner was arranged. Mrs. Ralph Greatrix was to look after the Christmas decorations and Mrs. Harry Thomson the Christmas program. Flower committee was Mrs. Harry Grills, Mrs. Archie Greatrix and Mrs. Bruce Ford.

Get well cards were passed for the members to sign for Mrs. Tony Brewer who is confined to the hospital. Mrs. Jim Dowdle, past president was presented with a gift for her proficiency during her two year term as president.

Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Gene Stratton.

Christmas Is Giving

Yes, that's what Christmas is all about—giving. Mrs. S. W. Campbell has taken the spirit to heart as she prepares to give a gift that could be sent to many one of thousands of patients in homes for special care or in the Ontario Hospital in Kingston. The gathering of gifts has been an annual project of the Mental Health Association for the past several years. The box to collect gifts is located in Leslie's Shoe Store on Front Street.

Gifts for Patients Is Project Of Mental Health Association

For the lonely and forgotten, it means so much to know that someone cares—especially at Christmas.

That is why the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association is asking for gifts for those confined to homes for special care in the Quinte area, and in the Ontario Hospital at Kingston.

In past years, the appeal has met with enthusiastic response, particularly from the many women's organizations in the area.

Gifts for both men and women are requested — any small items which would make Christmas morning a little brighter.

The Association asks that the gifts be unwrapped, and include no sharp points or glass bottles.

Gifts will be wrapped at a "bee" by volunteers who visit these patients regularly at which time the right gift for the right patient will be selected.

If one prefers to send a donation, this would also be appreciated. A cheque or money order may be sent to Mrs. J. Fletcher, Chairman of the Christmas Gift Program, 31 Pine Street, Belleville.

Anyone wishing to do so may leave boxes at the home of Mrs. Fletcher and indicate the name and address of the organization's secretary so the gifts may be acknowledged before Dec. 12.

There is also a box for gift donations in Leslie's Shoe Store on Front St.

Last year, during the Christmas season, 587 gifts were distributed to 19 Homes for Special Care and 100 gifts to the Ontario Hospital at Kingston.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN VICTORIA SCHOOL

The December general meeting of Queen Victoria Home and School Association was held recently in the school auditorium.

Parents did not visit the classrooms due to recent private interviews in November.

Mrs. Barbara Skrill, president, welcomed everyone for coming out on such a stormy night and Mrs. A. Moorman gave the treasurer's report.

A silver collection was taken up for a needy family for a Christmas basket. Mr. Don Lockyer, principal gave a brief talk on the activities of the school.

The meeting was then turned over to Mr. Murray Workman, vice-principal who showed films and outlined the course and related material to Human Growth and Development which will be taught in the schools in 1970. A discussion period followed.

Mrs. Anna Doornbos, social convener served cookies and coffee under the direction of Mrs. Armstarong's and Miss Drummond's classes.

Neighbors' Aid Holds Euchre

Mrs. Gerald Stratton with several assistants convened the Neighbors Aid euchre held recently with 10 tables in play. Winners were women's, Mrs. Clifford Clapp and Mrs. M. A. Scott, low, Mrs. Edith Higgins; men, Mrs. Clara Hankins and Walter Way; low, Clarence Hall. The lucky draw was won by Brian Whalen.

Afterwards lunch was served.

PERSONALS

Miss Pat Reid of Ontario Hydro was entertained by the staff at a dinner party at Sun Luck Gardens prior to her departure to head office of Ontario Hydro in Toronto.

The Experts Say

Buy Wisely If Using Credit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spending a good meal, says E. M. (Gene) Lindberg, a consumer credit executive.

"You have to exercise care in the amount of ingredients you use and in how you use them in order to get the most for your efforts."

Mr. Lindberg, vice-president of consumer finance for Laurentide Financial Corp. Ltd. of Vancouver, says the first step is to decide if credit buying is the answer.

"First, if you have the cash and you don't require it for another purpose such as savings or other purchases—pay cash. You'll save on credit costs, which are charged by all lenders.

"Most of us, of course, don't have the cash so we look to credit sources. In order to determine the amount of the credit you should use, you have to prepare a realistic budget."

In other words, figure out what you earn a month and how much you have to spend. Then add 10 or 15 per cent to the latter figure for emergencies and savings. What's left over could be used for credit buying.

"This sort of budgeting is essential. It is precisely what our people do when someone seeks a cash loan."

Now, says Mr. Lindberg, suppose you want to buy a color television set.

"In a case of this type you should have a down payment of at least 18 per cent and sufficient monthly funds available from your income to repay the balance in 24 to 36 months.

"If your available income is insufficient to handle it in that length of time, better think about a less expensive set."

How about a car?

"You should have 20 to 25 per cent equity in the vehicle you are buying before financing the balance. If your equity is less than that, you should probably reconsider the purchase or buy a less expensive car."

And how should you go about getting credit? Mr. Lindberg gives this advice:

Make your purchase from reputable companies; don't sign anything before you read it and understand it; don't agree to payments you might not be able to make; make sure you know exactly how much you are paying.

And he says that if you do run into problems with payments, you should go straight to the company with which you are dealing and explain the situation.

As for credit cards: "Don't be carried away by the fact that you can just say 'Charge It.' Remember, it all has to be paid for in the end." And again, know what you're being charged.

B and P Club Yule Party

St. Nicholas and his Christmas spirit were evident at the December meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club.

After a very short business meeting new members were installed into the club and welcomed. They were as follows: Mildred Benson, Wilma Carr, Marie Crofton, Mary Le Surf, Marcella David and Gertrude Tuckaberry.

A draw on a hand sewn quilt made through the courtesy of Shirley Wooster's mother, was won by Colombe Both. The quilt with the club's emblem in the centre and signatures of the members embroidered around the centre panel was most attractive.

The evening continued with brain teaser games, singing of carols and the exchange of gifts. A touch and take table provided more merriment as members expressed amazement at the assortment of items.

The evening concluded with best wishes of the season extended to all by Presidents Dorothy Ellis.

Pudding Recipe Can Be Doubled

By MARY MOORE

If you are having a crowd of 20 some of whom are children you should double the amounts for this Christmas Plum Pudding for it serves from eight to 10 people.

CANADIAN PLUM PUDDING

(Serves 5 to 10)

2 cups breadcrumbs (not packed).
½ cup (¼-lb) finely chopped suet
⅞ cup, unsifted flour (1 cup less 2 tbsps.)
½ tsp. baking soda
¾ tsp. salt
¾ tsp. cinnamon
¾ tsp. nutmeg
2 tbsps. molasses
1 tsp. freshly grated lemon rind
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup orange juice (or brandy)
2 cups seedless raisins
⅔ cup currants
½ cup sliced red or green glace cherries (packed)
½ cup blanched almonds, coarsely chopped

3-3 cup (4 oz.) cut mixed peel

Into a large mixing bowl measure the above ingredients in order given, giving the mixture a good stir every time you add something. (I burned the bread to make crumbs and the almonds to chop them, in the blender.) Turn into buttered bowl. I used a bowl 6¼" in diameter by 4¾" deep. Cover top with generous double sheet of foil and tie on with heavy cord. Lower into large kettle containing 1½ - 2" boiling water, bring to boil again, put on lid, lower heat and simmer 4 hrs., carefully replenishing water in pot as needed.

NOTE: 1) If bowl is not metal pudding may be made in advance, cooled and stored in refrigerator. 1) If pudding bowl is made of metal, loosen sides while warm and tip out onto kitchen plate and cover with double or triple plastic bags and store in refrigerator. One to one and one-half hrs. before serving time return to bowl and reheat pudding standing bowl in boiling water, covered, just as you did when you cooked it. Turn out on large fancy serving plate and serve with Hard Sauce or Lemon Nutmeg Sauce, both of which recipes I will give here tomorrow.

Delicious Plum Pudding

You can flame your plum pudding too but first you have to make it. Today Mary Moore gives you the recipe and directions for storing if you want to make it in advance.

Adult Rehabilitation Centre Holds Open House and Bazaar

NAPANEE — The open house and bazaar at the Adult Rehabilitation Centre Industries held recently met with success. The doors opened at seven. Only three small items were left unsold, and Bill Pollard has taken orders which will keep his trainees busy every minute before Christmas. He was told that they could have sold twice as much, as late-comers found there was nothing left for them.

At least 175 people crowded into what once was a one-roomed schoolhouse. Frits Julliussen, president of the Lennox and Addington Association for the Mentally Retarded, collected 142 names on the guest book but stated that sometimes only one of a party got close enough to the book to leave his signature.

Mr. Pollard used his 19 years of experience as manager of a self-serve store to expedite sales. Articles were displayed on tables and on the walls, the prices clearly marked, and buyers collected what they wanted and brought the articles to a check-out table, where the association treasurer acted as cashier and two helpers did the packaging.

Sales will be nearly all profit, as most of the materials were donated, such things as plastic bags from the cleaners, small plastic cups, greeting cards, cones, large plastic vinegar bottles, gourds, florist ribbon, and caps from spray bottles. From these the trainees fashioned a variety of centre-pieces, some containing candles, mobiles, ornaments of various kinds, waste paper baskets and wreaths.

Members of the Association and friends of the retarded, had contributed items for the cooked food table which was kept replenished by late-comers.

Coffee and doughnuts, with fruit drinks for the children, were served to all who attended.

Four trainees sat at tables throughout the evening demonstrating their work, the steps taken to construct the various sale items.

To fill his orders Mr. Pollard will need more plastic bags, more large vinegar or javex bottles, and more large tops from spray bottles, such as those used for hair spray and furniture polish.

Talks on Education Given at H and S Meet

Mr. Clarke introduced Eric Runacres, Director of Education for Hastings County Board of Education who explained the administrative side of education in the county. With the use of slides, the membership was shown the many changes taking place in the schools. The students are allowed much more freedom in the present learning process. A closer liaison among principal, teacher and community is being encouraged with a continuous climate conducive to change.

Mr. Runacres also explained how, with no report card system, a student has the freedom of steady aggressive learning, while special education classes can be included for slower learning subjects.

Both speakers invited an open discussion following their talk and many questions were asked from the members as well as from members of the King George Home and School Association who were invited to this meeting.

The principal Mr. Wright expressed thanks to both speakers in explaining both the chairman's and directors roles in the new educational system.

Government Jobs Open To Women

OTTAWA (CP) — Four years ago the federal department of industry, trade and commerce opened the positions of trade commissioner to women. Patricia Marsden and Lucille Lee, the first women to train for the positions, joined the department last summer.

Both from Vancouver, they are graduates of the University of British Columbia. They will complete the training course next summer and expect to receive foreign postings.

"We will be promoting Canadian exports abroad, looking for foreign markets for Canadian goods and sending this information back to Canada," said Miss Lee. "We will also advise foreign manufacturers how they can enter the Canadian market."

French is part of the training they receive although English is the language of business, said Miss Marsden. She speaks only English but Miss Lee, a Chinese-Canadian, speaks English, French and "a tiny little bit of German."

Both agree that as women they stand a better chance of advancement in government service than they would in industry, but admit that there are few women in high positions. They believe this will change as more women go into government jobs.

The girls both enjoy having people around them and feel this will be an asset in their jobs.

"You have to like people, like spending time with them and working with them," says Miss Marsden.

Wanted: Missing Lines of A Poem

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: In a recent column you printed a thank-you from a reader for producing a copy of "Unbridden Ways". For many years I have hoped to find a poem which I recall only in part.

The title "Unbridden Ways" makes me wonder if this could be the same poem. It went in part:

I took a day to search for God,
But found Him not.
But as I trod in woods unturned,
Just where one lily flamed,
I saw His footprint in the sod.

Thank you for many helpful thoughts in your columns.
Hopeful

Dear Hopeful: No, "Unbridden Ways" is different. But yours is beautiful and I hope someone will send us the rest of it.

* * *

Dear Doris: My husband and I have two lovely children, but we have never had satisfying relations. We have discussed this problem some.

He feels that sex is an excess indulged in by less intelligent or dirty people. His father has similar views. — Unfulfilled

Dear Unfulfilled: These sex hang-ups come from our Puritan ancestors, and that's for sure.

It may be that today's youthful self-indulgence in sex for the physical thrill itself has also tended to cheapen physical relationships in the minds of many. Yet in many happy marriages affection and sex have meant and still mean tremendous satisfaction and happiness for both parties.

Perhaps some of the reading indicated on the list I am sending of recommended books to both of you. Studied intelligently, this physical expression can become thoroughly fulfilling.

Dear Doris: How does one answer nosy neighbors? It seems no one in this elderly citizens' apartment building is supposed to live their own life. They want to know: "Did you have children? If not, why not? Why didn't you adopt?" "How did you manage to get in here?" "Is your income high and such?" And on they go.

I try to be pleasant and pass things off with a laugh, but one feels as if they are in a hornet's nest at times. — No Privacy

Dear No Privacy: You have lived a full life. Many of your neighbors have not been so lucky and now that their families no longer need them, they have little to occupy their minds besides gossip.

You need your privacy, but don't get a reputation for being stand-offish. Enlert a few them when you can about the interesting things you have done in the past. To the more personal questions (income, why no children) you can certainly reply, "I'm sorry, but I don't care to discuss that."

Offer friendship, refuse to gossip and you will stand out as someone different and special.

* * *

Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jane is so un... and Son is so neat. No wonder they have so much trouble sharing a room. They're always fussing at each other."

Father: "They'll just have to learn to get along together until we can find a bigger house."

Limited space and storage facilities can add up to conflict when sisters share a room, especially if they have different dispositions and habits. Helping them divide the space makes it easier for them to respect each other's rights.

Mother: "This room very large for two gi share, but let's put the b against opposite walls use this screen as a roo divider so it will seem s you each have a room your own. We'll get a che for each side, so you'll hav plenty of storage space."

Yule Decor Highlights IODE Chapter Meeting

Amid the glow of Christmas candles and decorations, the members of the St. Julien Chapter, IODE gathered at the Kiwanis Centre for their annual Christmas dinner meeting. Following the traditional "turkey-and all the trimmings", a brief business session was held. Mrs. R. C. Ellis, Acting Regent, announced the Citizenship Court to be held on Tuesday, Dec. 9 at 2 p.m. in the Court House, to be followed by a reception—for in the Officers' Mess at the Armories, sponsored jointly by the Argyll and St. Julien Chapters, IODE. Also, on Dec. 18 a blood donors' clinic will be held at Northern Electric at which members of the Chapter will be serving refreshments.

A donation was made to the Kiwanis Club for the use of the Centre for the meetings held there during the year. A collection was received from each member to be forwarded to the Mental Health Association towards Christmas gifts for patients in hospitals. A sum of $10. was voted to be given to the Christmas Exchange committee which assists needy families at this season of the year. It was reported that a special Christmas box was being packed for the Eskimo children at the Fort Norman Station, Hall Beach, N.W.T.

While chairs and tables were being arranged for games, members replenished their supply of Christmas cards and gifts being sold by one of the groups, and looked over the many useful articles of sewing and knitting t was reported that a special had been brought in for bale which is to be sent week to headquarters in tion for distribution. Several most amusing games in which everyone participated commenced the social hour. Court whist, and other games for those not playing cards, completed the 1969 Christmas meeting.

Ann Landers

Hubby Has Phobia About Nudist Camp

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've started a dozen letters to you and torn them all up. This one is going in the mail no matter how stupid it sounds when I re-read it.

ANN LANDERS

Every time my husband has a few drinks he starts nagging me about going to a nudist camp with him. He insists it is normal and healthy and highly recreational. I say a person can be just as healthy with his clothes on.

Last summer my husband spent one full day at a nudist camp. He did not tell me in advance where he was going. I don't mind that he went. I've told him he can go again if he likes, but without me. I do not enjoy the idea of running naked in front of strangers and I have no interest in looking at men and women romping together in the buff.

Am I stuffy? Am I nuts? I love my husband and I want to keep him happy. Should I force myself to go, just to please him? please advise. — T.G.

* * *

DEAR T.G.: No. You have told your husband he can go with your blessings and I believe your generosity should end there. By the same token, he should respect your feelings and not ask you to sacrifice your integrity by doing something which would violate your moral or ethical principles.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thanks for telling "Counting On You" to seek help for emotional problems by going to the nearest Mental Health Clinic. I have another suggestion which may be of value to your readers. It is an organization called "Recovery, Inc." Many doctors endorse this group and send patients there when they discontinue therapy.

I tried twice before, so you know I was one of the sickest of the sick. "Recovery, Inc." has made me see the beauty and the wonder of living. Now I treasure every day. It's hard for me to believe I wanted to end my life. Please, Ann, tell your readers about Recovery. — GRATEFUL IN NEW ORLEANS.

DEAR GRATEFUL: Several readers have written to ask me to mention Recovery, Inc. I have suggested this splendid organization in the column in the past, and I am happy to do so again. There are, at present, 780 chapters in the United States and a few in Canada. Those of you who are interested can write to the national headquarters for information. The address is 116 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. If there is a chapter in your city it will be listed in the phone directory.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a teen-ager who is considering trying marijuana. I am not asking whether you think it is a good idea or not. A friend told me if I get caught I can be convicted of a felony. What does this mean? I can't believe the punishment is as bad as he said. — BUD.

DEAR BUD: A person convicted of a felony can never be a lawyer, a mailman, a policeman or go to officer's candidate school. He cannot vote, he cannot own a gun. He would not be admitted to most medical schools, even if he had a brilliant scholastic record. Under the federal 1957 Narcotic Drug Act the penalty for being caught smoking marijuana is from 2 to 10 years in prison and a fine up to $5,000. This is for the first offence. The second offence calls for a mandatory sentence of five years and up. And that's just the federal law. Some state penalties are even higher — like 20 years for a first offence.

In my opinion, the laws are too severe and should be changed, but until they are, they are the laws and you'd better believe it.

Liberal MPs Voice Demand for Tighter Controls of Credit

OTTAWA (CP) — A Creditiste call for complete revision of the government's financial policies sparked demands from Liberal MPs in the Commons Tuesday for tighter controls on credit.

Gilbert Rondeau (Creditiste—Shefford) introduced a motion that Parliament give serious consideration to Social Credit monetary proposals.

The Creditiste motion, on which under rules there was no vote, came on the fifth and final special day for debate on opposition motions for the period ending Dec. 18.

It called for distribution of money through a complex system of low-cost credit advances and grants to insure a universal minimum living standard.

John Reid (L—Kenora-Rainy River) said that unless chartered banks and other private lending institutions revise their loan policies, government will have to institute tight controls on credit.

The Commons also passed the government's supplementary spending estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31 totalling $88,446,536. They brought government spending for the year to $11,524,008,029.

Mr. Reid said banks now are making large profits from consumer loans but refusing funds to businesses for expansion and to firms involved in housing construction—"the areas where it's most needed."

E. B. Osler (L—Winnipeg South Centre) called for strict government controls to prevent the banks from "making so damn much money."

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said the government had been able to finance a war through the central bank—the Bank of Canada—in 1939.

It should be able to eliminate poverty using the same system, he said.

He said his Creditistes had continuously attacked the paradox between bank earnings and public problems in a period of inflation.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) rejected the Creditiste motion, saying the grand or "dividend" system the party proposes would be unacceptable in Canada where the government already eats up 37 per cent of the gross national product.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said that while Creditiste proposals to alleviate poverty are often described as silly, "they're not half as silly as the methods now being used which still leave one quarter of the population in poverty."

Bernard Dumont (Creditiste—Frontenac) said inflation now is worse than the depression of the 1930s. But while the poor were suffering from it, chartered banks were announcing profits of 29 per cent.

Steve Otto (L—York East) said the national dividend proposed by the Creditistes already existing in other forms.

Ross Whicher (L—Bruce) said the Creditiste proposal involves the false assumption that printing more money increases the purchasing power of the poor.

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) said there is no difference between borrowing abroad —as the government sometimes does—and "creating money" by grants or credit advances as his party proposes.

Legislature Health Committee Okays Research Animals Bill

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature's health committee Tuesday night approved the controversial research animals bill, after inserting clauses to eliminate unnecessary pain to animals but rejecting a clause that would have prevented them being used for military research.

Approval of the bill took four hours during which Liberal and New Democratic Party members fought in vain to introduce amendments sought by the Ontario Humane Society during public hearings held in the last three weeks by the standing committee on health.

The bill is expected to receive third and final reading from the legislature later this week.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart refused Tuesday night to consider any proposals to exclude the humane society from the provisions of the bill, which will force pound operators to give animals for research if they are not sold or claimed by their owners.

Margaret Renwick (NDP—Scarborough Centre) proposed that a clause be added saying animals taken from pounds for research purposes should be used only for peaceful purposes and not for chemical or biological warfare experiments.

She said that Congressional records for 1968 list 20 research grants made by military departments of the United States to Canadian universities, including a $1,000,000 grant to the University of Toronto.

But her argument that Ontario should not be supplying animals for military research was turned down by a vote of 18 to 3.

Earlier, Mr. Stewart introduced clauses to curb unnecessary pain to research animals and prevent pound operators from making a profit out of the sale of such animals. The amendments could help end the public outcry that has surrounded the bill since its introduction earlier this year.

Every research establishment will also be obliged to set up an animal care committee, including a veterinarian, to oversee research projects and ensure proper procedures.

Where offences are committed, or seem likely to be committed, against the pain provisions, the committees will have the power to stop experiments.

The amendments also say that researchers should pay the municipality—not the pound operator—for animals procured for research purposes.

The committee defeated an amendment from Mrs. Renwick that would have given humane society inspectors the right to inspect research facilities, after Mr. Stewart argued that government inspectors should have that job.

Mr. Stewart indicated the government hopes eventually to encourage establishment of breeding farms to raise research animals, but until that time the animals impounded by humane societies were needed for vital research.

Dope to Catch Ducks May Have Killed Them

TORONTO (CP) — The deaths of several ducks on Toronto Island last summer may have been the result of an authorized medical experiment, the Island's superintendent said Tuesday.

Robert Van Der Hoop made this suggestion before an Ontario government inquiry into possible links between the use of the pesticide Diazinon and the deaths of eight or 10 ducks last July 8.

Mr. Van Der Hoop said last May 22 several ducks died on the Island after William Garrick, a Guelph wildfowl specialist, had used the substance alpha-chloralose as dope in an attempt to catch "some ducks for an authorized medical experiment.

The superintendent said he later found many birds partially or fully paralyzed, some floating on water with their heads under the surface.

He said he then ordered Mr. Garrick off the Island and his staff tried to rescue as many ducks as possible. By next morning nine had died.

Asked whether these ducks were the ones that raised the issue that Diazinon spraying might cause harm to wildfowl, Mr. Van Der Hoop said: "I felt these might be the same ducks."

He said, however, he found no dead wildfowl after the Metropolitan Toronto parks commission had sprayed about 200 gallons of Diazinon July 18.

A horticulturist, Mr. Van Der Hoop said he never noticed abnormal death rates among birds after pesticide spraying campaigns on the Island.

He was testifying on the second day of a one-week inquiry formed by the provincial pesticide advisory board.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

Queen To Stop In Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Queen Elizabeth will make two brief stops in Canada March 2 and two more May 3 and 4 on her way to and from visits to Australia and New Zealand, Government House announced Tuesday.

The royal aircraft will land at Ottawa's Uplands Airport at 1:30 p.m. EST March 2 for a 45-minute refuelling stop and then go to Vancouver where the Queen will spend the night.

On the return journey, May 3, the plane will make a one-hour refuelling stop at Vancouver and another at Gander, Nfld., early in the morning May 4.

The Queen will be accompanied by Princess Anne on the outward flight and will be joined by Prince Philip in Vancouver.

No official engagements are planned by the Royal Family during the stops.

Jamieson Hopes To Avert Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Donald Jamieson said there is "a great deal of optimism on both sides" that a national air strike can be averted following the weekend breakdown of talks with 1,000 air traffic controllers.

He told reporters outside the Commons his department is reviewing emergency procedures to insure at least essential air services are maintained if the strike during the Christmas period goes ahead.

He said there is a possibility armed forces air controllers can be transferred to civilian duties.

Alberta Farmers' Union Shuns National Body

EDMONTON (CP) — The Farmers' Union of Alberta Tuesday endorsed the principle of a single voice for all Alberta farmers and voted against joining the National Farmers' Union.

Delegates to the FUA's annual convention agreed to amalgamate with the Alberta Federation of Agriculture by a 947-to-172 vote shortly after rejecting a merger with the NFU by a vote of 948 to 206.

Paul Babey, president of the FUA, said he was pleased with the results because he favors a direct membership organization.

"The FUA has never gone along with the NFU proposals from the very first . . . they (FUA) have always wanted to see an organization in which the co-operatives and the commodity groups be included." The NFU has never agreed to this.

AFA President Nelson Main said in an interview:

"We are very pleased. In fact we've been working toward this for a number of years so farmers would be able to work under one organization and it seems we will be able to attain this end now."

But Roy Atkinson, president of the NFU, had a different view of the rejection of the NFU.

"It hurts the farmers of this nation and that's the important thing to me."

He also said the vote was not a surprise and that "special delegates were brought in on the last day to oppose the vote."

Asked who had brought in the delegates, he said:

"The executive of the FUA. And I don't think they'd deny it."

However, Mr. Babey did deny the accusation, saying, "There was no way the FUA executive could have brought in delegates. They are selected by the locals, the locals support them and send them. . . .

"What really happened was that the people became very conscious of the problems and that the future of the FUA and the farm organizations was at stake."

Alberta, with about 30,000 members in the FUA, and Quebec have not joined while Newfoundland does not have a farm association.

Pentagon Pays For Research By Canadians

VICTORIA (CP) — Dr. Hugh Keenleyside Tuesday completed a list of 78 Canadian universities he says are involved with Pentagon research funds.

In an interview, Dr. Keenleyside said estimates of the dollar value of research at the various campuses were only "guesses."

His list included the following new disclosures:

Queen's University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon; University of Alberta, Edmonton; McMaster University, Hamilton; Laval University, Quebec City; University of Windsor and Waterloo university.

Dr. Keenleyside disclosed Saturday night that UBC is carrying on three research projects for the United States armed forces. In an interview Monday he identified four more universities—the University of Toronto, McGill University of Montreal, the University of Manitoba and York University in Toronto.

The University of B.C. is the lone B.C. campus implicated in the research, he added.

Aid to Shipbuilders Waste Says Union

MONTREAL (CP) — Federal aid to Canadian shipbuilders, in its present form, is money poured down the drain, the Confederation of National Trade Unions said Tuesday.

In a brief to the federal committee looking into the state of Canada's shipbuilding industry, the labor organization said the problem is not a lack of money.

Since 1961 the federal government had provided about $234-$34,000 in direct and indirect aid, but in the form of short-term handouts similar to welfare payments, to keep the shipyards going on a hand-to-mouth basis.

What the industry needs, the CNTU said, is to be brought up to date and made competitive. Federal aid should be channelled in such a way as to encourage this.

Smaller shipyards should be absorbed by larger ones or convert to some other type of production.

The CNTU recommended the establishment of a federal commission, responsible to the industry department, to promote the modernization of the industry.

Dahomey Government Overthrown by Army

LOME, Togo (Reuters) — A military coup d'etat today toppled the Dahomey government of Emile Dertin Zinsou, well-informed sources said here.

Telephone communications with Cotonou were cut this morning, and no other details were immediately available.

Zinsou was appointed president by a military government in June, 1968, and a month later announced Dahomey's first civilian government for 3½ years.

The military government which appointed Zinsou had taken over from President Christophe Soglo after a year of deepening economic difficulties. The military rulers decided Zinsou should run the country for at least five years.

Dahomey, stretching back from the coast like a thin finger into central Africa, is bordered on the east by Nigeria and on the west by Togo.

The country became independent from France in August, 1960, covers an area of 47,022 square miles and has a population of 2,400,000.

New Hamburg Police Chief Is Suspended

NEW HAMBURG, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police have been called in to patrol this town of 2,600 following suspension Tuesday of the police chief and a constable and the firing of a probationary constable.

Mayor Curtis Smith said Tuesday that Chief George Thomas was suspended with pay after he failed to attend a police committee meeting Monday night to discuss his request for a wage increase.

Wry Comment

OTTAWA (CP) — Barnett Danson (L—York North), known as Barney, rose Tuesday in the Commons to correct an error in the previous day's Hansard record of debate.

"I am referred to on page 1,715 as Barley Danson and I find that goes against the grain," the Toronto MP said.

Survey Urges Relaxed Mutual Funds Restrictions

TORONTO (CP) — Six civil servants who spent 30 months studying Canada's mutual fund industry released their findings Tuesday and said they thought the industry would gain strength through less—not more—restriction.

After presenting the 240,000-word report, he said the main purpose of its recommendations is to lift restrictions on the industry as quickly as true competition in it can develop.

"We would like to see strong competition," Mr. Grundy said. "But full, true and plain disclosure, with the emphasis on plain, is a fundamental requirement."

His committee proposed some new regulations for mutual funds—a minimum capitalization, "surprise audits," reduced service charges and prohibition of insider trading.

But, in general it urged that price-fixing and other informal agreements which now bind the industry be banned, and such things as management fees be allowed to find their own level through the free play of the marketplace.

The committee believes mutual fund shareholders should know much more about funds than they do now. Far more information should be available about relative qualities of various funds, it said. Funds should issue semi-annual reports and simplified prospecti that shareholders can read and understand.

Mutual funds are companies which buy and manage portfolios of securities. Instead of buying shares of individual stocks investors buy shares in the mutual funds, which rise and fall according to the total performance of the holdings in the portfolio.

No specific incident led to the committee's formation. But a prime reason is believed to be general recognition that any industry which has grown as much as mutual funds—their assets increased five-fold since 1962 to about $3,400,000,000 last year—needs more regulation than at present.

The committee recommended that eventually mutual funds should be regulated by a national agency—probably a national securities commission. Meanwhile it hopes for uniform regulation of the funds across Canada through provincial commissions.

The committee also said the industry should police itself, although probably through a wider arm than the Canadian Mutual Funds Association, now the only organized spokesman for the industry, which has about one-third of the 126 funds in Canada as members.

The committee made no recommendation on one of the chief criticisms of the funds in recent years—that they invest so heavily in foreign securities that they have become responsible for a significant outflow of Canadian capital.

But it did recommend better investor protection by prohibiting sale of foreign-based mutual shares in Canada unless the fund's assets are held in custody here.

At present about 18 foreign-based funds sell shares in Canada. They do about 10 per cent of the industry's business.

The committee also proposed:

—Minimum assets of $100,000 for any fund selling shares to the public.

—Reduction of "front-end loading" charges by funds selling shares on instalments to a maximum of 8½ per cent instead of the present 50 per cent. for the first 12 payments.

—Licensing salesmen to sell both insurance policies and mutual funds, something the insurance industry has been urging.

—Allowance of full refunds to investors who change their minds about buying mutual shares within a month, but heavier penalties for speculators who buy large blocks of shares and sell them within six months.

Mr. Grundy said he hopes a federal-provincial conference will be called to study the report. Ontario has already set up a study committee.

Other members of the federal-provincial committee were: Louis Gravel director of the Quebec government legal branch; W. S. Irwin of the British Columbia securities commission; Mare Lalonde, secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau; K. P. Lawton, legal advisor to the New Brunswick government; and G. H. Rosé, chairman of the Alberta securities commission.

Mutuals Highlights

TORONTO (CP) — Highlights of the report released Tuesday by the Canadian Committee on Mutual Funds and Investment Contracts:

Stiffer regulation of mutual funds licensing, possibly through a national agency, sealed-down sales charges, and more disclosure to prospective purchasers.

Simplified prospectuses and semi-annual reports to fund shareholders.

Competition in the industry to be fostered through greater flexibility in sales charges and management fees.

Management fees to be calculated as a fixed percentage of a fund's average total net assets, rather than as bonuses based on the fund's performance.

Licensing of salesmen to sell both mutual funds and life insurance.

Foreign-based mutual funds allowed to sell in Canada only if their assets are held in custody here, unless there is reciprocal arrangement to sell Canadian mutual funds in the foreign country.

Limit a fund's holding in any one company to 10 per cent of a conventional fund's total assets.

Mutual funds not to invest in shares of other mutual funds, unless organized for this purpose.

Miners' Union Chief Scores Smashing Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — President W. A. (Tony) Boyle of the United Mine Workers, invoking the spirit of the late John L. Lewis, claimed a smashing re-election victory today over Joseph A. Yablonski in the union's greatest internal battle in nearly 30 years.

"The greatest man that ever defended labor in this country, John L. Lewis, my mentor, selected me; he didn't select and train my opponent in the responsibility of running this union," Boyle said in crediting his victory to the loyalty of coal miners to the memory of Lewis.

But Yablonski, a 27-year member of the 200,000-member union's executive board, refused to concede despite Boyle's reports that he polled some 73,000 votes to 40,000 for his opponent.

He said from his home in Clarksville, Pa.:

"They can go to hell. I'm conceding to nobody. I'm conceding nothing."

"I'm not believing everything they are giving out," Yablonski said of the voting returns from locals in Canada and the U.S. compiled and reported from Mine Workers' Washington headquarters.

"Our big job now is to heal the wounds and to bridge the gap that has been created," said the 63-year-old Boyle in a statement claiming victory for a second five-year term in the $50,000-a-year union presidency.

"I'm glad to hear he's going to be interested in healing something," said Yablonski, who had levelled charges of financial irregularities, nepotism, physical attacks, election campaign violations and numerous other complaints against Boyle in the bitter seven-month campaign.

Boyle is only the third president of the union since Lewis started a 40-year reign in 1920 when coal was king and some 500,000 miners worked or went on strike at his nod.

Lewis retired in 1960 and picked UMW Vice-President Thomas Kennedy to succeed him. When Kennedy died in 1963, Lewis promoted Boyle, his personal assistant, into the top job. But it was always acknowledged Lewis was the power behind the throne until he died last June at 89.

The union has dwindled to about 412,000 working miners and some 80,000 retired miners since Lewis's heyday.

"We're being beat in the pension locals," Yablonski had said earlier when the union's reported vote count piled up against him.

Yablonski attributed this to Boyle's action of raising pensions by $35 a month to $150 for soft coal miners. Anthracite pensions are $30 a month.

Only about 5,000 working union members are employed in anthracite coal fields where the union said Yablonski made his strongest showing.

Rising Indian Death Rate May Be Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — A document showing rising death rates among Indians 25 to 29 years of age was referred Tuesday to the Commons standing committee on Indian affairs and northern development.

The committee will be able to call witnesses and make recommendations after studying the document, which was described as "stunning" when brought before the Commons last week by Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena).

Health Minister John Munro said then that the rising death rate among Indians in their late 20s appeared to be the result of suicide and violence rather than disease.

The document said an Indian woman of 27 one-fifth the chance of reaching the life span of a white woman at that age.

The death rate among Indian women 25 to 29 was put at 381 per 100,000 compared with 61 in the population as a whole.

RCMP Won't Oversee Indian Election: Chretien

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said Tuesday he has instructed his departmental officials to take no part in elections Saturday at the Six Nations reserve in Brantford.

He was replying in the Commons to Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) who said Indians from the reserve said they fear they would be harassed in the elections by RCMP.

Mr. Chretien said Indians are free to vote as they wish and he could see no reason for the RCMP to be present on voting day unless some trouble was expected.

Policeman Charged In Double Shooting

DRESDEN, Ont. (CP) — Constable Duke McCutcheon of the Dresden police force was charged Tuesday with attempted murder in connection with the shooting of his wife and another man.

Jeannine McCutcheon, 25 and the mother of two, is unconscious in a Chatham hospital with a bullet wound in the head and Arthur Rich, 25, of Dresden is in critical condition with two bullet wounds in the abdomen. Hospital officials said their conditions were slightly improved Tuesday night.

Const. McCutcheon, 25, who has been on the police force nearly six months, was arrested a short time after the shooting in an apartment near the scene. He is to appear in court at Chatham Thursday.

Dresden is about 18 miles north of Chatham.

Food Stores Strike Threatened

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government labor official has called a meeting for today between parties at odds in a contract dispute threatening 85 Atlantic and Pacific food stores with a strike by next Monday.

Victor E. Scott, assistant director of Ontario's conciliation services, will meet representatives of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Union and the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company.

The 27 stores under threat are all outside Toronto and are said by the union to employ about 900 AMCBU members.

A union spokesman said Tuesday they will walk off their jobs Monday if the A and P fails to reach an agreement favorable to employees in Windsor, Hamilton, London, St. Catharines, Port Colborne, Dunnville, Dundas and Welland.

Oh, Christmas Tree ★★★

Quinte Bush Yields Christmas Tree

Evergreens 'Boughing' Into Limelight

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

This week the final touch of Christmas splendor will be bundled homeward by many a Quinte family.

Going on sale throughout the district are thousands of Christmas trees, ready for transformation into glittering centrepieces of modern domestic festivity.

Getting it that way can be a fairly sophisticated process of interior decoration.

Since the Christmas tree first took a bow on the yuletide scene, that decor has blossomed in sparkle and splendor. But the process extends way beyond the nation's livingrooms, down through many a Christmas past.

Christmas trees don't grow — they're the end product of careful selection and painstaking "cultivation".

In fact, the modern Christmas tree can take up to eight years of attentive labor before it's considered a marketable specimen, says Ray Burris.

But he'd been growing the trees for the past 14 years on 100-acre sites in Elzivir Township bush.

Popular specimen is the Scotch, which first of all must be nursery-nurtured seedlings.

The market style of the trees is actually set in mid-summer. In July, workers move into the plantation to carefully prune trees into the traditional bushy shape demanded by urban dwellers.

"They seem to be able to visualize how a tree will look in a room better than most men," says Mr. Burris.

The pruning continues for years, until finally the tree is matured to just the right size — and shape — for market.

Recently cut, the trees must even be carefully prepared for despatch to markets in Belleville, Marmora and Stirling.

To ensure they remain in ship-shape during shipment, the trees are run through a narrowing funnel. This slicks down a tree's bushiness to facilitate tying without damage.

This year, Mr. Burris ships some 2,000 selected trees to market.

Volume of demand makes it appear a big business for plantation owners. But returns are slight compared to the time and cost factors involved in producing trees favored by Christmas consumers.

"It's got to be a hobby," says Mr. Burris. "If you consider it a business it's not worthwhile."

The fact it's not so simple to produce a Christmas tree also explains why fewer people now seek their own in the Quinte bush, he believes.

"In fact," adds Mr. Burris, "we sell almost as many trees to farmers who own their own land."

Aside from that attraction, it's still cheaper to buy a Christmas tree, says Mr. Burris.

Close to Agreement

Decisions Being Made: Robarts

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Robarts of Ontario said Tuesday leaders of the federal and provincial governments are "closer to agreement in some areas than you may think" after the second day of the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

"No one should expect instant decisions on items on the agenda," he told a news conference.

"We are closer to agreement in some areas than you may think, and don't be too concerned about the number of items referred back to committees of officials.

"They would have had to be referred back somewhere for completion no matter what decisions we made here."

Mr. Robarts rejected a suggestion that no decisions had been made in two days.

"We made it clear that there will not be federal paramountcy in pension-plan powers, and that the paramount position of the provinces will not be reversed.

"Was that not a decision?

"Direct federal payments to people, that's pretty dead too, and isn't that a decision?

"When the conference rejects someone's proposals, that' is a decision."

Mr. Robarts, explaining his opposition to extensions of federal constitutional powers, said they had been used to enter provincial fields of jurisdiction when Ottawa couldn't get in any other way.

"Medicare is an example. We didn't need medicare. It wasn't a necessity in Ontario. It was tailored for any province except Ontario."

"Most of them involved an extension of powers, and we didn't come here to give anything away."

Mr. Robarts said he shared the misgivings of other premiers about Ottawa's retention of the right to enter any field of taxation including real property tax.

"It's in the present constitution, but maybe it shouldn't be," he said.

The federal power has never been used, but it could be.

Mr. Robarts said the continuing conference will have to return soon to the search for a method of amending the constitution.

"All that has been done and will be done will count for nothing if we can't agree on an amending formula."

Ontario always has wanted initial discussion on how to make changes, rather than on what changes to make.

But Mr. Robarts said he has not raised the matter because all provinces must agree to an amending formula.

"That's a veto, and I don't want to discuss it until I know whether the veto is likely to be exercised. If it was, everything would count for nothing."

The premier was asked whether the desire for political credit was not the reason for all governments seeking power in spending fields.

"The eternal struggle for political recognition is one of the curses of this country," he said.

Meeting Tone Has Improved Say Officials

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial constitutional conference heads toward its wind-up today, its progress being measured by the degree of agreement reached before the various topics are shunted off for further study.

So far—and this has applied to all four constitutional conferences held—there has been no total agreement on any article that would go into a new constitution for Canada.

But Prime Minister Trudeau said after Tuesday's session that this does not necessarily indicate lack of progress.

"It's normal for delegates to want to reserve positions until they have an over-all view of the new constitution," he told reporters.

There was prolonged debate on all topics raised Tuesday, and all of them were left for further study, either by a committee of officials, or until the next full-scale constitutional conference, expected next June.

But federal officials who briefed reporters at the end of Tuesday's session said the "tone" of the meetings has improved since the first session was held in February, 1968. They declined to comment on their own earlier estimates that the constitutional reform could be completed in 10 years.

One of the areas in which the political leaders failed to reach a consensus Tuesday involved the problem of how to determine when a national consensus exists. The necessity for such a consensus forms part of the federal proposal to initiate shared-cost programs in fields of provincial jurisdiction.

Mr. Trudeau has proposed that Ottawa could initiate such programs with the legislative agreement of three of the four regions in Canada—the Atlantic Provinces, Quebec, Ontario and the West.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia argued Tuesday that his province should constitute the fifth region.

While several premiers, including Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec, said they did not object to a formula being established, several other premiers did argue against it.

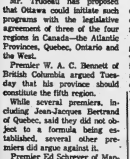
Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba said the necessary agreement could be obtained through consultation. And Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick said a formula would be too cumbersome and inflexible.

Mr. Trudeau said that since this subject has already been in the hands of a committee there was no point in referring it back. It would come up before the political leaders at their next meeting.

But the other subjects went to the committee of officials. One of these subjects involved retirement pensions, and the proposed change in the constitution that would give the federal government "paramountcy" in the field.

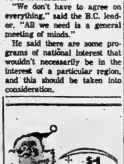
What this really meant, said Justice Minister John Turner, is that the federal government would have "paramountcy" in establishing some fundamental legislation to ensure that pension plans are portable and Canadians would not suffer by moving to other provinces.

But several premiers argued that it was not clear just where the "paramountcy" would apply.



Premier Robarts said that it is "one more step toward centralization." While one central power in the field would obviously make things neater, "it is not federalism."

With similar arguments from Premiers Bertrand and Bennett, the matter was referred to a committee for clarification of the word "paramountcy."



Both Mr. Robarts and Mr. Bennett called several times Tuesday for more emphasis on regional co-operation and less on centralization.

"We don't have to agree on everything," said the B.C. leader, "All we need is a general meeting of minds."

He said there are some programs of national interest that wouldn't necessarily be in the interest of a particular region, and this should be taken into consideration.

Conference Greeting

Tag Team Match

West Splits Over Autonomy

OTTAWA (CP) — In the provincial autonomy corner, the premiers of British Columbia and Alberta. In the strong central government corner, the premiers of Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

This was the makeup of the Western tag teams at the federal-provincial constitutional conference Tuesday. Premier W. A. C. Bennett of B.C. did virtually all the wrestling for his team.

Mr. Bennett, complaining about centralism, joined Quebec and Ontario in rejecting Ottawa's proposal that its laws take precedence over provincial laws in the field of public pension programs.

"I'm worried about the direction in which we are going," he said, the direction to centralism. Ottawa should leave many aspects of government up to the provinces and the regions.

Mr. Bennett spoke strongly several times against Ottawa's proposals to refund—directly to the citizen—money collected in non-participating provinces for cost-sharing programs.

Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan leaped into that debate to say no new shared-cost programs should be started until tax-pressed Canadians catch up with current tax rates.

Mr. Bennett said compensation should go to the government of the province long as it offers, through its own plan, the services Ottawa had proposed.

Mr. Thatcher wanted government to get the money but with no conditions attached. Premier Harry Strom of Alberta supported Mr. Bennett. Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba leaned that way as well.

Mr. Schreyer said problems of "opting out" would be alleviated if Ottawa offered a choice of programs so provinces could follow their own priorities. The other Westerners did not agree.

Mr. Bennett punctuated his comments with demands that Ottawa make more money available to B.C.

Federal tariff policies hurt the competitive position of B.C. industry and B.C. should get some revenue from them. In fact, said Mr. Bennett, the provinces should get half the revenue.

Prime Minister Trudeau said the premiers had already agreed this field of taxation would be reserved for the federal government. Mr. Bennett persisted. Mr. Trudeau said the revenue is distributed.

"Not to British Columbia," complained Mr. Bennett. "British Columbia receives no equalization at all." It should because of its growth problems.

Mr. Schreyer said his new NDP administration is drawing up positions on taxation.

Mr. Strom made most of his position statements outside the conference.

For example, he said he is with Mr. Bennett on the issue of "paramountcy" of federal law in pensions. Mr. Schreyer and Mr. Thatcher, both former CCF or NDP members of Parliament, supported Ottawa.

Premier Bennett tangled with Mr. Trudeau over Ottawa's proposal that the new constitution spell out Ottawa's access to all tax fields. That would include, for example, real property taxes.

Mr. Bennett at first publicly interpreted this as a federal bid for a new taxation power. Mr. Trudeau said Ottawa has always had this power. Then it should be taken away, said Mr. Bennett.

He told Ottawa to keep its hands off property taxes; they were for municipalities. Mr. Trudeau said his government agrees. Mr. Bennett suggested future governments might not.

Provinces Balk On Pension Plan 'Paramountcy'

OTTAWA (CP) — Does silence give consent?

It appears to be an emerging federal position on the lack of any objection enunciated Tuesday in Ottawa's bid for concurrent constitutional powers with the provinces to enact income insurance plans such as sickness insurance.

The proposal was outlined to the federal-provincial constitutional conference Tuesday in conjunction with an associated federal bid for over-riding legislative authority in retirement insurance.

The retirement insurance proposal involved a doctrine of "paramountcy." It got short shrift from Premiers Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec, John Robarts of Ontario and W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia.

The companion proposal about income insurance never rated a mention before Prime Minister Trudeau moved the conference on to the next item of business.

The conference's continuing committee of officials was instructed to take another look at the retirement insurance question to see whether a way could be found around the provincial objections to the proposal that federal law be paramount in this field.

As explained to the conference by Justice Minister John Turner, the constitutional stipulation was needed to resolve possible conflict. Canadians could not be expected to obey two conflicting laws connected with pensions. One had to prevail.

Questioned by Mr. Bertrand, Mr. Turner admitted this was a reversal of an existing constitutional provision that no federal pensions act could over-ride a provincial law.

After the disagreement by the three most populous provinces, the matter was referred back to the officials.

Balked on the pensions point, federal cabinet ministers and officials nevertheless were claiming "substantial agreement" on the income insurance proposal.

Basically, their position was stated by federal officials at a briefing for reporters.

"I heard no disagreement in respect of the proposal," one official said.

However,he conceded "there was no real discussion" of Ottawa's claim to enact income insurance.

The income insurance proposal and the paramountcy claim were the only real changes in concept constitutional powers put forward by the federal government for this meeting.

Before the meeting, informants said Ottawa hoped for agreement in principle at least on the income insurance one. Then a program to provide salary insurance during illness could be included in the long-range federal paper on future social policy scheduled to be presented to Parliament next year.

City Support Is Outlined By Ontario

OTTAWA (CP) — Municipal representatives observing the federal-provincial constitutional conference have asked that delegates discuss the possibility of a three-way conference on big city problems.

The joint committee of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities and the provincial federations of local municipalities want a "three-way conference in which the municipalities speak with an independent voice."

"Our aim is to prepare a position paper setting out the views on constitutional and financial questions of municipalities from coast to coast," Mayor Allan O'Brien of Halifax, federation president, told a news conference Tuesday night.

The paper should be ready for national consideration in draft form by February.

"We believe the federal spending power can be used, with provincial consent, to help solve urban problems," Mayor O'Brien said.

Mayor R. Speck of Mississauga, a member of the Ontario delegation, said that "if it is necessary to have the word 'municipal' included in the constitution to prevent future federal plans of assistance from being shot down, we want it included."

"We want decisions on the cities made as a three-way deal, rather than a two-way arrangement with us sitting on the fringe."

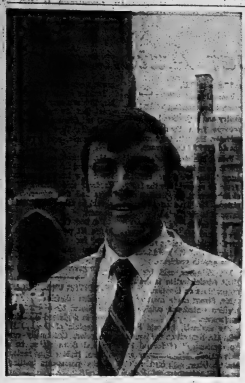
A working paper-prepared for the conference says Ontario wants to build strong municipalities with extended powers and the revenue to exercise them.

In Ontario, this meant creating strong regional governments, returning to them many of the powers taken over by the province and providing them with adequate sources of revenue.

"Let us not forget the appalling problems of American cities — problems exacerbated largely because of the revenue imbalance in the American federal states. Their example is an object lesson which we would do well to ponder, so that we do not find ourselves in the same tragic situation."

The paper says there must be adequate funds "to sustain high-growth, wealth-generating cities because it is from these urban concentrations, if they are kept healthy and allowed to innovate, that less fortunate parts of the country will benefit."



Ontario was reviewing the services it now provides and those handled more efficiently by local governments may be returned to them, the paper said.

Student Leader

Student activism on Canadian campuses has taken a broad swing to moderation this fall, reflecting wider acceptance of traditional methods of achieving change. Ken Sunquist, president of the student council at the Regina campus of the University of Saskatchewan, says many students deliberately are not getting involved in campus affairs because their most pressing needs are financial. "Many of the kids from the wheat farms are in bad shape. They have no money and are living on prayer. They spend their time looking for a part-time job." (CP Photo)

Quebec Not So Isolated

OTTAWA (CP) — A funny thing happened to Quebec on its way to the isolation ward.

At the constitutional conference Tuesday, Ontario and British Columbia joined Quebec to shoot down Ottawa's proposal that federal legislation should over-ride provincial law in cases of conflict over public retirement insurance plans.

Soon after, B.C. and Nova Scotia teamed up with Quebec to object to the federal suggestion that financial compensation to provinces staying out of shared-cost programs be made to individuals instead of provincial governments.

And Premier John Robarts of Ontario told reporters that there appeared to be some misunderstanding concerning the stands taken by individual provinces Monday on another federal proposal.

Quebec was not nearly as alone as it might have been made to appear, he said.

It was widely reported that Quebec stood alone against Ottawa's claim that the federal authority should have the constitutional right—as it does now in practice—to make payments to individuals in areas of provincial constitutional jurisdiction.

Any Quebec isolation—real or imagined—from the English-language provinces seemed to be evaporating possibly because, as many provinces say, economic problems have superseded constitutional ones in the minds of Canadians generally.

THE BILLION DOLLAR WINDFALL by Morton P. Shulman, MD

In the Billion Dollar Windfall Dr. Shulman unravels the turbulent history of Texas Gulf Sulphur's fabulous discovery in Northern Ontario, in what was once a square mile of marshland, now familiarly known as K245-55. It is the story of how this discovery came to be, of the men and women who became involved in it, and of subsequent events which propelled Texas Gulf Sulphur and the North American financial world into unprecedented notoriety.

INVITATION TO PORTUGAL by Mary Jean Kemper

Invitation to Portugal reflects the personal delights and enthusiasms of the author, a confirmed traveller concerned with people, places and things. Mrs. Kemper takes the reader through famous monasteries, abbeys, royal palaces and provincial towns. This book hires one into byways, visiting forgotten churches, cloisters, convents and museums—gives precise facts on bullfights and generally makes one want to go to Portugal.

WHAT SHALL WE DO TOMORROW by Mary Hayley Bell

This is the story of Mary Hayley Bell, actress, poet, author, wife and mother of Juliet, Hayley and Jonathan Mills. A love story, it sparkles with love for her glorious failure of a father; her bolsterous family, and most especially her husband and children. "What shall we do Tomorrow" is a candid, unpretentious book, bubbling with joie de vivre and delight in sunsets, flowers, and her several homes.

STILLMEADOW ALBUM by Gladys Taber

For years we have been reading about Stillmeadow, Gladys Taber's old farmhouse nestled in Connecticut countryside. We feel as though we have sat by the roaring fire on a bitter night and been snug in the kitchen whilst Mrs. Taber cooked something delectable to eat. Stillmeadow Album takes us upstairs—and down, inside and out at Stillmeadow, in all seasons. Here are the kitchen, living and dining rooms and the author's writing room. Here are the lovely old fireplaces, the antique floors and braided rugs and the author's collection of milk glass. But best of all are the animals (the cocker — looking lovable, Holly the Irish, blissful on the hearth, Amber the Abyssinian as kitten and cat) and the people (friends, children, grandchildren, and the author herself.)

THE TIDES OF FORTUNE by Harold Macmillan

The third instalment of Mr. Macmillan's reminiscences takes his story from the end of the Second World War and the formation of the Caretaker Government to December 1955, when to his own subsequent regret, he became Chancellor of the Exchequer in Anthony Eden's administration. His character sketches are some of the best things in the book.

The late 40's and early 50's should have seen Britain recovering from the effects of the Second World War; this was not the case, and what happened instead is described in detail in these pages.

A CHILD'S CHRISTMAS IN WALES by Dylan Thomas

This humorous, sad, magical, vivid, irresistible account of Dylan Thomas' own childhood and of a Christmas day in a small Welsh town has become a modern classic. The language is enchanting and the poetry shines with an unearthly radiance.

WANTED: SEXPERTS

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Maryland Movie Censor Board says it needs 12 to 30 "qualified professional people to testify for the board in court cases involving explicit sexuality in motion pictures." Mrs. Louis E. Shecter, board chairman, said the board has a few experts, but is handicapped when they are busy or on vacation. "We need able psychologists, psychiatrists, sociologists, painters, sculptors, film-makers and college professors who are capable of viewing a pornographic picture and intelligently testifying in court whether the film has socially redeeming features," Mrs. Shecter said.

Violence Feared

RCMP Airlifted Into Strike Area

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Thirty RCMP officers were flown here late Tuesday night as a "precaution" in case a wildcat strike by 4,000 construction workers gets out of hand.

The strike started here a week ago when the Cape Breton Building Trades Council said a company had refused to give voluntary recognition to certain building trade unions. Later the strike spread to other construction sites on Cape Breton Island.

A spokesman for the RCMP said the men, from the Halifax detachment, landed at Sydney in two armed forces DC-3 aircraft. They were taken by bus to accommodations in the city.

The spokesman said it was a precautionary move in case trouble starts and the Sydney police request help. He said moving RCMP officers into a strike area was "not common" in Nova Scotia.

In Nova Scotia the RCMP are responsible for law enforcement outside major cities and towns.

A six-hour meeting in Halifax Tuesday of representatives of unions involved in the strike, labor department officials and G. and D. Construction Co. failed to solve the dispute.

Phil Donovan, president of the Building Trades Council, said the company would not negotiate with trade unions and the council could not "allow a non-union outfit in the area."

Craig Dobbin, president of Omega Investments Co., parent firm of G. and D. Construction, said the unions were "adamant in their demands" and wanted the company to fire 50 Newfoundlanders working on a housing project.

He said the company had to respect the rights of employees and they had "indicated" they did not want to be organized.

Mr. Dobbin said in the interests of economy the company used certain mechanical methods of finishing homes which were "not palatable to the unions." He said the company's pay rates and fringe benefits were equal to, or better than, existing rates in the area.

There were no incidents Tuesday when about 30 members of the Sydney police force showed up at the convention site. About three policemen were to patrol the site overnight.

On Monday, axe-wielding strikers chased company officials from the site and fire destroyed part of a small building they were using.

John M. MacNeil, recording secretary of the trades council, urged workers to stay off the job and to refrain from violence. He said "the situation has deteriorated."

Labor Minister T. J. McKeough left Tuesday night to return to Cape Breton from Ottawa where he had been attending the federal-provincial constitutional conference. He said he was "extremely" disappointed with the results of Tuesday's meeting in Halifax.

The meeting was chaired by Charles Crowell, chief executive officer of the provincial labor relations board. He said no settlement had been reached and no further meetings were planned.

Mr. Crowell urged the men to return to work and said he felt the situation could be solved if this was done.

The labor relations board issued cease-and-desist orders against eight unions Monday, but to date they have been ignored. The orders, filed with the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, are enforceable as a court order. Mr. Crowell said "possible action" might take place in the near future.

Quebecers Discover P. E. I.

Tourists from French Canada have discovered Prince Edward Island in the last few years and one hotel estimates 40 per cent of its summertime clientele is from Quebec. One of the Island's tourists attractions is the Garden of the Gulf Museum in the east-coast town of Montague. Antiques on display include these old spinning wheels. (CP Photo)

Magic Bag Full of 1969 Newest Educational Tool

TORONTO (CP) — Many Ontario schools are going to receive 16 pounds of "fragments of 1969, all stuffed in a clear plastic bag.

The Perception Bag is a collection of the sights, sounds and smells of today's world. It is an attempt to acquaint children with life.

"What I am looking for is something that will shock people out of their usual framework of thinking," said David Stansfield.

The Bag is the creation of Anthony Baron and Mr. Stansfield, two researchers from the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

It is their follow-up to the "Box" which they designed last year. The Box contained reminiscences of the 1920s.

"We are trying to provide the artistic contents, the sensorial contents, focusing on the five senses rather than just intellectual content," said Linda Zwicker, media officer with the Ontario Council for the Arts, which is providing $5,000 of the $15,000 budget.

The Bag contains such things as the smells of an Irish slum, an outhouse, a martini and a sick drunk. There are sounds of computers talking, Jupiter talking and insects talking. In all it will contain 1,000 items.

The sounds are on recorded tape, while the smells are obtained by enclosing chemically treated strips of material in plastic pouches.

With every idea, a batch of children are brought in to play with the object. If the child is interested the idea goes into the Bag, otherwise it is tossed out.

One thousand bags, all identical, will be distributed free of charge to teachers who ask for them.

Presto! Poems in a Can

MONTREAL (CP) — The latest book on the Montreal scene would look more at home on a supermarket shelf than in a library.

Some sharp work with a can opener reveals 100 cardboard discs closely resembling beer mats and bearing poems or parts of them and drawings. A re-usable plastic lid keeps the contents fresh.

Even at gourmet prices—$3.95 a can—the book is selling like hotcakes. A first edition of 1,000 numbered copies is practically gone from city bookstores already. And there is a presence where 500 sales of a poetry book usually merits a literary prize.

Poet and packager of L'Anti-Can is Roger Soublière, 27-year-old literature student at the French-language University of Montreal.

"I'm against people depriving themselves of essential things" —like poetry—"for superfluous things"—like cars, he said Tuesday. He views his can as a protest against the assembly line.

Leafs Deal Carleton

The trade was completed this morning, Gregory said. The Leafs are here for a National Hockey League game against Montreal Canadiens tonight.

Gregory said Carleton, 23, was traded "because he wasn't moving the way we thought he should."

Carleton played the first six games this season with Toronto before being returned to Phoenix of the Western League.

FEATURE TIMES

Mother Who Won Legal Battle Deplores Adoption Law Change

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The mother whose successful legal battle for her child prompted a proposed change in Ontario's adoption law called on the government Tuesday to change its position.

Sylvia Mugford, 21, said in an interview that the passage of the amendment to the Child Welfare Act—it got approval in principle Monday—could end the remaining rights of unwed mothers who agree to their children becoming wards of the Crown.

She was interviewed after the legislature gave second reading to an amendment that will ensure a child cannot be returned to his natural mother once he has become a Crown ward and has been singled out for adoption.

The legislation was branded "hasty" by opposition members during debate Monday night. It was drawn following a Nov. 17 decision by the Supreme Court of Canada that returned 18-month-old David to Sylvia Mugford from parents who wished to adopt him, but had not had time to do so.

Mrs Mugford, a London secretary, gave birth Oct. 5, 1967. Her son became a Crown ward shortly afterward, but six months later she decided she wanted the baby returned.

By that time he had been a month with prospective parents. The Children's Aid Society told Miss Mugford he could not be returned, touching off a courtroom battle that ended Nov. 17 this year when the Supreme Court of Canada supported a lower court judge who found that she "has a feasible plan and reasonable prospects."

Tuesday Miss Mugford said she supports an amendment which James Renwick, New Democratic member for Riverdale, is expected to propose to the government's legislation.

Mr. Renwick's proposal is that the CAS would have to notify the natural parent of plans to place the child for adoption and to indicate the period in which an appeal could be launched for the child's return. He said he may propose a 30-day limit.

Miss Mugford said it would be "a very good idea—I don't want to see prospective adoptive parents discouraged, and if everybody was told their rights before the adoption cases like mine couldn't happen."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've seen the results of the havoc German measles can create in a baby born of a mother who has had this infection during her early weeks of pregnancy.

I guess most people know the dangers to the child, such as heart disease, deafness, mental retardation, etc.

As I plan to be married within the next few months, naturally I am anxious to know what I can do to prevent such a complication. Is there now a tried-and-true vaccine against German measles? — Miss H.

Comment: Be thankful you are aware of the potential dangers of such an apparently benign infection as rubella (German measles). It's better to be a little bit apprehensive than unsuspecting of danger. Here are some facts you ought to know.

A new vaccine is available. It is in live, attenuated form, and first licensed in the United States in June, 1969. This is made from a special strain that is grown on duck embryo cell-culture. Two other vaccines are under study, and one estimate is that by the spring of 1970, several million doses of vaccine will be ready for use.

Adults should not be vaccinated. Pregnant females, especially, should not be vaccinated, because the effect of the virus may last for two to six weeks, passing the barrier of causing harm to the fetus.

In Great Britain young females are vaccinated. But if this procedure is to be followed in this country, the vaccine should only be given to those who are not already immune. Also special precautions should be taken that the women do not become pregnant for at least three months after vaccination.

Care should be used in administering the vaccine to those known to be sensitive to duck or chicken eggs or feathers, or to neomycin. The vaccine is recommended for children between the ages of 1 and 10, because of the small number at this age who are already immune, and because of the lack of adverse reactions. These youngsters are most likely to spread the virus if not protected.

So you see, Miss H., at last the threat of German measles is being met head - on. For example, in Dade County, Florida, the Department of Public Health is considering a massive vaccination program among school children in the future.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: For about four years I have been drinking cola drinks the way an alcoholic drinks liquor. I have been very nervous and shaky. I wonder if the colas might have anything to do with it, Mrs. K.

Cola drinks contain caffein. How do you react to coffee? Does that make you nervous? Perhaps too much caffein is over-stimulating you. Does it affect your pulse rate?

Incidentally some people get shaky and nervous because of hypoglycemia. And we know that too much caffein may indirectly cause low blood sugar.

Why not try a simple experiment — if you have the will power? Cut out your cola drinks for three days. If you notice a distinct difference for the better, then you have your answer.

• • •

For Mrs. B.: I have had many questions from typists — but yours is the first asking whether it's possible that vomiting with carbon paper may cause sterility. I believe you'll have to investigate further than that. It would be more logical for you and your husband to have examinations by your doctor — rather than suspect innocent office material.

U.S. Schools Inefficient

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We ought to squeeze about two years of water out of the U.S. public school system, which is now the most costly and inefficient "business" in American society.

Students entering high school repeat work they should have learned in grammar school, and didn't. Students entering college repeat work they should have learned in high school, and didn't.

This puts everybody a couple of years behind, because the pace of the class is the pace of the slowest. And it makes the bright kids bored and resentful and ready to raise hell by the time they reach college and begin to realize it's just another academic WPA project.

Instead of the draft, we ought to have a year or so of "national service" for every college boy and girl, where they could be doing some necessary work in the real world — as orderlies in hospitals or mental institutions, as helpers in prisons and orphanages, as apprentices in Head Start and anti-poverty programs.

This would give them some of the "relevancy" they are clamoring for. It would also focus their energies on some constructive social purposes (which they are really looking for), instead of permitting them to dissipate their misplaced idealism in wrecking college halls.

Except for the few serious graduate students, college goes on too long, and to little purpose except getting a white-collar "union card" in the way of a degree. As Hutchins recommended decades ago, college-level work really begins in the junior year of high school and continue for four years, including the sophomore year of college.

Then the average student could be put into his chosen ("lo cover his intellectual nakedness," as Hutchins once put it), while the specialists entered their fields of study unimpeded by the mere degree-chasers. This would be a tremendous financial and population burden lifted from the colleges and universities.

Children get older far faster than ever before. They are biologically and socially mature several years ahead of any generations; but they go to school longer than ever before, and rightly become impatient with the sexual, occupational, and social restrictions in their lives. There is too much of a "cultural lag" between what they are able to do and what they should be permitted to do.

We have decided to let them do.

Their "revolutionary" fervor should be diverted to creative and productive channels. They are ready about most college courses being a "drag" and they don't know what to do about it except attack the dean's office. But we are to blame for prolonging their childhood when we should be speedily preparing them for manhood and humanhood.

QUESTION: We are planning a three month trip to California. What papers do we require?

ANSWER: A Canadian citizen does not require a passport or visa to enter the United States as a visitor for a period up to six months. However, one should be prepared to prove citizenship to immigration officials at the border points upon request.

Support the Ontario Motor League slogan for this holiday season — "First a Friend . . . Then A Host". Friends invite hosts for parties during the holidays, don't push drinks or insist that hosts drive home. Have a good selection of non-alcoholic beverages. Plan at least one party for drinks to wear off. Instead of more drinks late in the party — emphasize food and coffee. Have a swinging party, but send your guests home safely. Be remembered first as a friend.

Do you know that less than one - half of all Ontarians travelling away from home stay in commercial establishments? Private competitors are — sister Trudy — Aunt Mary — Cousin Bill who furnish a spare bed in the room, or Uncle John is away and you can use his room. Now — this less than one-half is divided among motels, hotels, resorts, cottages, cabins, and camping in trailers, tents and the hotel and motel 21.9; resorts 2.4; cottages and cabins 16.5; camping 7.4, for a total of 48.2. In their generosity and homey hospitality, sister Trudy, Aunt Mary, and Cousin Bill take 51.8 percent.

Did you know nine out of 10 travel in USA or Canada; 83 percent travel by car.

Nearly 60 percent use travel centres for information to plan their vacation and the decision of where to go is made together by husband and wife.

For December 11

Your birthday today: Material considerations are often put aside in the coming year, sometimes with the help of friends, sometimes by a willingness to put your resources into less serious ventures.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You have inventiveness which carries you along in top form today. Romantic interests run into very odd circumstances but, they survive.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Improvement is featured today. People and news from distant places are interesting, helpful and perhaps inspiring.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Your circumstances improve. Refinancing is indicated if your resources are scattered too thinly or temporarily depleted.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Teamwork is the key to this busy day. Your work has some unexpected quirks which are more interesting than the routines.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Employment matters go well. Make business agreements, and close deals. A quick flip of circumstances gives you something pleasant to remember.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Make a determined effort to get able schools. You have a good chance to clarify vague relationships on all sides.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Novel conditions make possible contacts normally far beyond your reach. Even short journeys produce interesting results. Be disciplined to get your share of the work done.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Where you are an agent for others, today is a very favorable time to negotiate deals, and collect your fees. Set up teams, organize research projects. The evening deserves a change — have fun!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): New contacts grow suddenly into important relations. Luck comes your way in proportion to your inner merits. Share it freely with your associates.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): A day of steady effort should be rounded off with lively discussion of your plans and further ambitions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The affairs of others claim your attention. Do what is expected promptly, without complaint. New friends bring along many more introductions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You are apt to change your mind and feelings about somebody you have known for a considerable time.

Mo-Hawks Deck Aces 4-1

They Even Took Ferguson's Stick!

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Even taking Al Ferguson's stick away wasn't enough to stop the stocky Belleville Mo-Hawk right - winger last night.

Referee Bob Kolari fingered "Fergy" in the first period for using his patented banana - blade stick, well in excess of the one - inch curve currently permitted by the rule book.

The only apparent difference in his replacement blade was a differently - colored tape job and Ferguson used it to sink a 60 - footer to help salt away last night's convincing 4-1 OHA Senior A win over Kingston Aces.

Trenton's hefty contribution to the Mo - Hawk lineup levelled volleys of all distances and velocities at Kingston's beleaguered Tom Mercer before he found the third - period mark from just inside the Kingston blueline to give the Mo-Hawks a 3-1 insurance lead.

Mercer anticipated a high shot, like those Ferguson had whistled around his ears in the first period, but was caught by a low screamer that flicked off his stick into the net. The goal was Ferguson's 15th in 28 games, one more than he tallied in his 28 games with the club last year.

Playing - coach Davey Jones, himself a two - way force to be reckoned with last night, was kicked with Ferguson's performance.

"Game in and game out, Al would be a good pick as the best player on the club. He's really skating this year."

Jones showed his faith in Ferguson's ability by playing him on the power-play point, and even on a penalty-killing shift later in the game.

Last night's win boosted the Mo-Hawks' record to 9-7-2, and moved them into a fourth-place tie with Oakville with a game in hand.

In addition to marking the third win in as many starts against traditionally - tough Kingston, last night's result

AL FERGUSON
Hard to Stop

also marked somewhat of a comeback for the George Godson - Ferguson - Lorne O'Donnell line, in a scoring slump for the past several games. O'Donnell joined linemate Ferguson on the scoresheet with a third-period power play goal to boost his season's output to 20 points, 10 of them goals.

A goalmouth scramble first-period tally awarded to Davey Jones and Ray Johnston's second-period rebound payoff accounted for the other Mo-Hawk scoring.

Jones' goal with less than two minutes remaining in the opening period broke the scoring ice and came with Fred O'Donnell and Ray Johnston sitting out major penalties for fisticuffs.

"Weiner" Brown put on a rare display of fury in a corner with the Aces' Doug Senior earlier in the period to set the style for 20 minutes of "keep-your-heads-up" hockey.

The outcome could have been different if Rexe hadn't made a couple of key second - period saves when the Aces were outshooting the hometowners 15-6.

One of the best was off Charlie Convery when he score a critical 1-1, and Davey Jones sitting out a holding minor midway through the second period.

Convery was alone to Rexe's right about six feet out, but couldn't find any daylight in "Suitcase's" armor.

Four minutes later, with Bob Skillen serving an interference minor, a perfect lead pass by "Weiner" Brown set up the pretiest goal of the night.

Brown led the puck to the Aces' blueline in a spot between a Kingston forward and defenceman. Davey Jones burst between them alone on Mercer, but couldn't control the bouncing puck and dribbled a weak one off the Kingston goalie's toe.

Next action for the Mo - Hawks comes in a Friday night home encounter with Woodstock, whose only win in 17 games to date came at Belleville's expense. The locals beat the Alerts 5-3 in their only Belleville visit, but had to overcome a three-goal deficit in the third period to do it.

Tuesday night, the Mo-Hawks travel to Kingston

It's Just Me, Gang!

The odds don't seem to be in Belleville Mo-Hawk forward George Godson's favor as he awaits a rebound during last night's 4-1 OHA Senior A Mo-Hawk win over Kingston Aces. Here, no less than five Aces keep tabs on Godson, including goalie Tom Mercer, defenceman Jim Gebhardt (4), Doug Senior (18), and Bob Collins.

Pair in 5-Pin Running

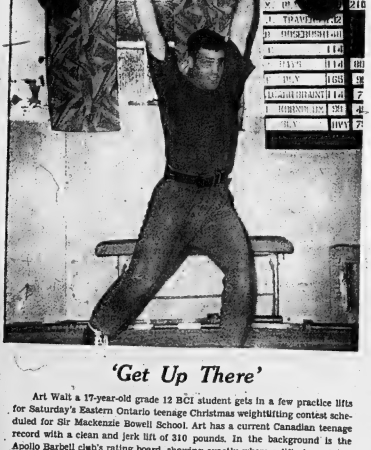
After ten completed games in the Bay of Quinte qualifying rounds for entry into the Carlings' Canadian five-pin bowling championships, Belleville has one man and one woman in the top three.

Madeline James of Belleville, with a ten game total of 2328, is right on the heels of the women's leader Terry Thompson from Trenton with a 2343 total.

In the men's division Bob Casselman of Belleville is in third place with a 2490 total just 100 pins behind leader Ron Nicholais of Kingston with 2590. Bill Griffith from Kingston is second with 2512.

The first men's roll-off was held in Kingston with ten more coming this Sunday in Belleville's Bowl-o-Drome and the last ten games in Trenton Dec. 21.



At the end of the qualifying rounds the top ten men and top nine women will represent the Bay of Quinte area in the Carling championships scheduled for March 26 and 27 in Peterborough.

Dixon Big Brave

Dan Dixon scored his 15th and 16th goals in seven games to help the Bata Braves skate to a 9-7 victory over Newcastle in a Eastern Ontario Intermediate "C" hockey game Tuesday night.

Other Bata scorers were Bob Borthse with the hat trick, Howard Foshay (2), Chuck Howard, and Vic Conte adding singles.

'Get Up There'

Art Walt a 17-year-old grade 12 BCI student gets in a few practice lifts for Saturday's Eastern Ontario teenage Christmas weightlifting contest scheduled for Sir Mackenzie Bowell School. Art has a current Canadian teenage record with a clean and jerk lift of 310 pounds. In the background is the Apollo Barbell club's rating board, showing exactly where a lifter's performance places him within the club in relation to his body weight.

Teenage Lifters Compete

Canadian Champ Walt Heavy Meet Favorite

Weightlifting teams from all over Ontario will gather in Belleville Saturday for the annual Eastern Ontario Teenage Christmas weightlifting contest.

Canadian teenage weightlifting record holder Art Walt, a 17-year-old grade 12 student will join eight other Apollo Barbell Club members in the contest, to be staged Saturday afternoon and evening at Sir Mackenzie Bowell School.

Walt was the first Canadian 18-year-old to clean and jerk 300 pounds and has a three-lift best total of 750 pounds. He also holds the Canadian teenage clean-and-jerk record of 310 pounds.

Robert Kornblum another 13-year-old in the 78 pound class will go into this week-end's meet with a three-lift best of 160 pounds.

Fred Bly, 15-year-old, has lifted 350 pounds and is it the 132 pound class.

Another 106-pound class lifter, 15-year-old Ron Hayes sports a 325-pound personal best, as does 17-year-old Chris Goyer.

At 18, Brian Rosebush is the oldest qualifying Apollo Club teenage lifter, and can do 460 in three lifts-pound class lift.

The Apollo Barbell club captured the Ontario teenage championships in Woodstock on Nov. 1.

The events are scheduled to start with the afternoon session commencing at 7 p.m.

Supplying opposition for the local club will be 25 more boys journeying in from all points of Ontario.

Opening Setback No Sweat to Aces

After dropping their season's opener the Crawford Aces, last year's Bay of Quinte Men's Basketball league champions have won their last three games in a row.

Early in the first quarter Aces' star Mark Sheridan, hampered with injuries for the last couple of seasons, tried to make a quick stop and threw his knee out. It is expected he will sit out the remainder of the 1962 season with hopes of having him return after the new year.

Senior Saints Cash in on Fouls

Foul shots were the name of the game in Quinte Secondary School's Bay of Quinte High School Basketball senior game against Trenton Tuesday.

Quinte won the game 54-46. "We scored 22 of our points on foul shots," said Quinte senior coach Barry Turpin. "We managed 11 points in fouls in the last quarter alone."

Trenton, however edged Quinte 47-39 in the midget contest. Bruce Nickel hooped 14 points for Quinte with Terry Collins getting 10. Galloway had 21 points for Trenton.

Rash of Injuries May Give Mickey Another Crack at NHL

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Larry Mickey is still awaiting his chance to prove he can play as a regular in the National Hockey League.

The 26-year-old native of Lacombe, Alta., now a member of Montreal Voyageurs of the American League, has been unable to stick with any club since breaking into the NHL with Chicago Black Hawks in the 1964-65 season.

That season he played one game—one period to be more exact—when Chicago used him against Toronto Maple Leafs. He had been called up from St. Louis of the Central Professional League to replace Eric Nesterenko. After the game he was sent back to the minors.

He was drafted in 1965 by New York Rangers and for the next three seasons he was up and down shuffling between New York in the NHL and Minnesota, Omaha and Buffalo in the CPHL and AHL.

Last season he ended with Toronto where he spent much of his time on the bench. Montreal Canadiens drafted him last June and promptly dispatched him to their new AHL Voyageurs, who also operate in the Forum.

Mickey saw action last week-end with the Canadiens, shorthanded because of injuries to Claude Provost and Henri Richard and the absence from the lineup of John Ferguson and Jacques Laperriere, both under suspension.

Both Provost and Richard are expected to play tonight when the Canadiens meet the Leafs in one of five scheduled games, but Mickey doubts he will be in the Montreal lineup.

"I don't know if I'll be playing with Canadiens against the Leafs or not," Mickey said Tuesday. "The reason they called me up wasn't only because of the injuries, I think, but because they aren't happy with the way things are going."

He was apparently referring to criticism by Canadiens' coach Claude Ruel for lack of checking by the Montreal forwards in recent games.

"This is a big week for the Canadiens," Mickey said. "Games against Toronto, Chicago and Detroit. There's six points, all against Eastern Division teams."

Mickey has 10 goals and 17 assists in 21 games with the Voyageurs and the Leafs could use Mickey tonight if they still owned him.

Toronto players are injured in almost every position except goal—including Dave Keon, broken thumb, Paul Henderson, groin, defencemen Pat Quinn, torn shoulder muscle, Brian Glennie, torn knee, Rickey Ley, knee, Mike Pelyk, collar bone, and Ron Ward, twisted knee.

The Montreal club is weakened too, but it is not in as bad shape as the Leafs, and the Canadiens have strong replacements in their farm teams. Ferguson and Laperriere are completing their respective six- and three-game suspensions while captain Jean Beliveau has a twisted ankle and will not play.

In other games tonight, Boston Bruins meet the first-place Rangers at New York, Chicago plays the North Stars at Minnesota, Pittsburgh Penguins are at Los Angeles against the Kings and St. Louis Blues meet the Seals in Oakland.

Durelle Dethroned

Judges Split Paduano Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada has a new welterweight boxing champion and Montreal's sizeable Italian community has raised him to hero status.

He is Donato Paduano, 21, who won the title Tuesday night with a majority decision over Joey Durelle, 33, from Sorel, Que. Durelle has held the title since 1963.

Two judges—Montrealers Tommy Dalton and Tony Baillargeon—each gave the 12-rounder to Paduano by narrow margins. Baillargeon had 58-55 in his favor, while Dalton had it 57-56 on his card.

The third judge, Tony Beaudry, called it a 55-56 draw.

The announcement of Paduano's victory was the signal for a good portion of the 12,147 screaming fans at Montreal Forum to descend to ringside. They had paid close to $100,000 at the gate, with Paduano guaranteed 15 per cent of the take and Durelle a $10,000 guarantee or 11 per cent.

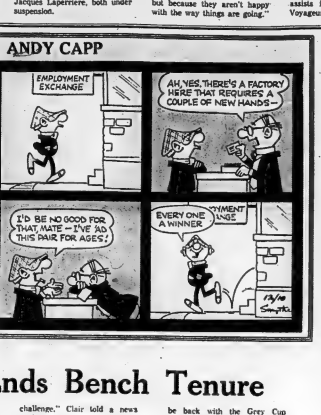
Sporting an almost closed right eye, the young veteran of 30 amateur and only 16 pro fights, finally held court. His win was his 16th consecutive, since entering pro ranks.



"Durelle gave me the toughest fight of all," Paduano said. "I was nervous at first, but after the fourth or fifth I knew I could win."

Paduano was off to his usual slow start as he allowed Durelle to take the aggressor's role in the early going. The new champion appeared content to fight from there using his rapid hands and young legs to keep him out of trouble.

"Durelle didn't shake me up at all," Paduano said. "I stayed fresh because I didn't let him get to me."

Paduano now has contracts signed for two bouts—three days apart.

Fans Steal Spotlight By Littering Junior Rinks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fans took away the action from the players in the two games played Tuesday night in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

At St. Catharines and London fans littered the ice with debris and caused frequent delays in the games in which three of the league's top teams were competing.

However, despite the deportment of the home-town fans, Montreal Junior Canadiens rallied to defeat St. Catharines Black Hawks 8-5 and Toronto Marlboros downed London Knights 4-1.

Fans in the crowd of 3,701 at St. Catharines, largest of the season, continuously littered the ice with eggs, programs and paper cups and as a result the game took three hours and 10 minutes to compete.

But the Canadiens withstood the barrage of debris to overtake the Hawks who had got away to a 2-0 lead in the first 67 seconds on goals by Brian McKenzie and Dennis Gianni, and moved ahead 3-2 in the first 10 minutes of the second period.

| Hamilton | 4 | 14 | 4 | 87 | 116 | 12 |

The Canadiens scored two power-play goals in the last two minutes of the second period to narrow the gap and took control in the third, scoring four consecutive goals.

Gilbert Perrault and Robert Guindon scored twice for the Canadiens while Paulin Bordeleau, Norm Gratton, Richard Lemieux and Pierre Brind'Amour each scored once.

Pierre Guite, with two, and Al McDonough also scored for St. Catharines.

The win moved the Canadiens two points behind first-place Peterborough Petes while St. Catharines remained in fourth place.

At London, debris caused the game to be delayed six times and extra police were called to guard the corridor outside referee Tom Brown's dressing room after both the second and third periods.

Takes GM Job

Clair Ends Bench Tenure

OTTAWA (CP) — After 14 years as head coach of Ottawa Rough Riders and five with Toronto Argonauts, Frank Clair began a new football career Tuesday when he signed a four-year contract as the Ottawa general manager.

If it's half as successful as his coaching was, Ridrs have a bargain.

Clair won two Grey Cups with Argos and three with Ottawa. In 14 years as head coach here, he never missed an Eastern Conference playoff.

"But the new job is a great challenge," Clair told a news conference.

Rider owner David Loeb also announced the hiring of Jack Gotta, Clair's assistant for the last two years, as the new Ottawa head coach. He signed a three-year contract.

The shuffle was made necessary when general manager Red O'Quinn of the Riders quit to take the same job with Montreal Alouettes.

Clair said he intends to go to work right away to find a new post, talking to Ottawa players who have indicated they won't be back with the Grey Cup champions next season.

"I haven't been in a position to do that until now," Clair said.

He indicated he had little hope of enticing end Margene Adkins back. Adkins has played out his option and says he wants to play for a United States team.

Vic Washington, an outstanding offensive halfback, still has his option year to play out but he says he wants to go to U.S. ball next year.

Houle Optimistic

Nats Look for Help From Boston, Bronx

TORONTO (CP) — A. J. Buck Houle of Toronto, general manager of Canada's national hockey team, said Tuesday his team might receive player help from National Hockey League teams other than Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens.

Houle, just returned from a 15-day tour of Czechoslovakia and Russia, said in an interview Canada has a strong chance to win the 1970 world hockey tournament, scheduled for March in Montreal and Winnipeg.

He also had some comments in reply to J. F. (Bunny) Ahearn of London, England, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation.

Ahearn, on a recent visit to Canada, said "it would be silly" for Canada to attempt to pad its roster with professionals.

"First of all," Houle said, "Mr. Ahearn sets his own rules whenever he pleases. But Mr. (Charles) Hay, president of Hockey Canada, has already stated that we would abide by the rules recorded at Crans, Switzerland, this summer."

"The rules state that we can't use more than nine professionals. Players are either professionals or amateurs. There's nothing about reinstated professionals.

"We don't tell the Russians who they can play. If they say their players are amateurs, we have to go along with it."

Houle was pleased with the play of his team during last week's tour. Russia won the tournament with four victories and a 2-2 tie with Canada, the second-place finisher with three victories a tie and a loss.

He thinks "two or three good shooters and a right-handed shooting defenceman" could be added to strengthen the team for the tournament next March.

"We possibly might get help from somewhere else, like Boston or New York," Houle said. "They have a wealth of talent." NHL officials from Montreal and Toronto have already promised players from their minor league organizations for the 1970 tournament. Defenceman Barry McKenzie, now a professional and a former National, joined the Canadian team for the tour North Stars.

Commenting on the Czech-Russian tour, Houle praised the play of Billy Harris, a former star forward in the NHL with Toronto, Detroit Red Wings, Oakland Seals and Pittsburgh Penguins.

"Billy Heindl was another who played extremely well," Houle said. "Corby Adams isn't that good a skater, but he always comes to play." Adams, from Barrie Flyers, won the Ontario Hockey Association Senior scoring title last season with 79 points.

Houle said any further player additions to his team should have a chance to adjust to the international style when the Russians and Czechs tour Canada later this month.

"It's a little different game than the pros are accustomed to," he said, "it isn't fair to tell a pro to go out and beat the Russians without any previous experience.

Soviets Still Threatening Tourney Boycott

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Russians are threatening to back out of the 1970 world hockey championships.

Their complaint is over the scheduling of the March tournament to be played in Montreal and Winnipeg.

The Soviets sent in their official entry before the Monday deadline, but it was conditional on some alterations in the schedule. President Earl Dawson of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association wired back that a conditional entry is unacceptable and the schedule will stand.

Hockey officials here are optimistic that the Soviet team will accept the schedule and turn up for the championships. They are accustomed to last-minute haggling by the Soviets, who last year threatened to call off an exhibition tour of Canada because of dissatisfaction with the calibre of Canadian opposition.

Gordon Jukes, CAHA executive director, said penalties are provided by the International Ice Hockey Federation if the Russian team defaults on the championships.

Should the Soviets fail to turn up, they would be relegated to the B pool and the United States, top-ranking B team would move up to the A series.

Into Lions' Den

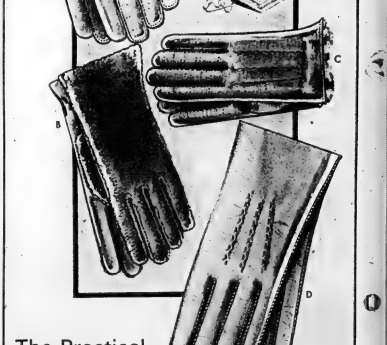
VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference Tuesday announced the signing of Billy Guy Anderson, 27, former all-America quarterback.

Anderson, six feet three inches and weighing 210, spent four seasons with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League after setting seven U.S. college records in 1963 when he played with Tulsa University.



No details were released on Anderson's contract which he signed Tuesday while on a one-day visit to Vancouver.

Harris Feels Soviets Match for 5 NHL Teams

TORONTO (CP) — Billy Harris, former National Hockey League player has charted a few key weaknesses and many surprising strengths in Russian hockey players.

Just back from Moscow where he scored three goals for the Canadian national team during its second-place finish in an international invitational tournament, Harris says at least four or five NHL teams would have trouble winning in Moscow on a prolonged road trip.

Harris was particularly surprised at the fervor of Soviet checking since the world amateur hockey rules were amended last summer to permit unlimited hitting.

Previously, body-checking was allowed only by a team in its defensive zone.

"Physically, some of the games were played as tough as any NHL game I played in," said Harris, who played 708 NHL games with Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings, Oakland Seals and Pittsburgh Penguins before retiring from professional ranks.

He was surprised with the lack of Russian power around the opposition's goal, however.

"I thought they would play it tough in front of the net, but they didn't," Harris said. "our defence was conspicuous the way they cleared the area in front of our net."

Harris also noticed a weakness in Russian goaltending.

"I think they've got problems in the goal," he said. "they replaced Viktor Konovalenkov with two younger goalies, but neither was very impressive. They alternated the goalies in the game against us and Czechoslovakia."

On one hand, Harris feels that some NHL teams would have trouble winning in Russia but says he doesn't think the Russians "would win many games in NHL rinks if they came over a long trip."

"It was unfortunate that we (the Canadian Nationals) had to play Czechoslovakia first," Harris said.

The Canadians lost the game 4-0.

"If we had played them later during the tournament, we would have beaten them. Our team improved from game to game and, in fact, we could have won against Russia. They iced their strongest team but even so we outchecked and out-hit them."

The Canadian team that competed in Russia had one other former professional—Brian Conacher. At least seven others are expected to be added to the roster for the world tournament at Winnipeg and Montreal next March.

But Harris also feels the Russian

JACKIE McLEOD

slant and Czechs are both getting stronger.

"I saw the junior team of Czechoslovakia scrimmage and they really looked good to me," he said. "The Russians must be even better because they beat Czechoslovakia in the European championship for junior teams. After watching some of the younger Russians play in Moscow against the weaker teams, I can understand why."

Then, speaking of Canada's chances in the world tournament, Harris said:

"My feeling is that we've got an excellent chance to win. We've got dedicated players who will give it all for the tournament. There are many factors, of course, in such a tournament, but everything being equal, we have as good a chance to win it as has Russia or Czechoslovakia."

* * *

WINNIPEG (CP) — Coach Jack McLeod of Canada's national hockey team says Czechoslovakia can't be overlooked in the world championships in March despite its indifferent record in the Moscow international tournament.

"The Czechs have more depth this year than any team of theirs that I've ever seen," he said. "They're going to be tough."

The Czechs had a 3-2 win-loss record in the Moscow tournament which ended Monday, including a victory over Canada. Canada, with a 2-2 tie against the Soviet Union, finished second to the Russians.

McLeod was enthused over the Canadians' performance. While the Nationals still need some help before March, he said he doesn't expect too many changes.

Eskies Pick Christmas Gift

EDMONTON (CP) — Jack Baker, president of Edmonton Eskimos, said Tuesday the Western Football Conference club hopes to name a successor to head coach Neill Armstrong before Christmas.

Baker told the annual general meeting of shareholders that a selection committee is considering about 10 candidates, including the team's three assistant coaches. Armstrong resigned Nov. 13 after six years with the Eskimos.

Ray Jauch, 31, of Mendota, Ill., coach of the defensive backs and linebackers; John Payne, 36, of Wenoka, Okla., in charge of the offensive line, and Dave Skrien, 40, of Brooten, were Armstrong's assistants.

Other known candidates are former Eskimo great Johnny Bright, who has applied for the job and Jackie Parker, another former Edmonton star who coached British Columbia Lions in their last six regular-season games and guided them to the playoffs.

Parker's future in B.C. has not been made clear.

Kay Dalton, who was dismissed Monday as coach of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, is believed to be another candidate.

Baker said the selection committee will make a recommendation to the board of directors "within a week or 10 days."

The Eskimos lost $48,680 during the year ending Dec. 31, 1968. J. G. Greenough, club treasurer, reported.

Campbell Thinks Twice On Dome

BUFFALO (AP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Tuesday he will reconsider the league's stipulation that the new Buffalo NHL entry must play in Memorial Auditorium instead of the proposed domed stadium.

Campbell's announcement was made after he met with Erie County officials and representatives of the Buffalo hockey group.

When the NHL announced recently that Buffalo, along with Vancouver, had been awarded expansion franchises, Campbell said Buffalo would be required to play in the auditorium. One of the stipulations was that the 9,800-seat arena be expanded to accommodate 15,000 persons.

Campbell said at a news conference the NHL expansion committee will take another look at the design for hockey seating in the $50,000,000 stadium to be built by the county in suburban Lancaster.

Expansion of the auditorium, owned by the city of Buffalo, is expected to cost $4,500,000.

WALKING HAPPY

RANCHO BERNARDO, Calif. (AP) — Retired naval Capt. Robert O'Toole, 52, averages 20 miles a day on the daily strolls that are his hobby. Mrs. O'Toole, who walks along part way, says: "We never get bored. We're always yakking about something. I plan parties, or tell my husband the latest gossip, or we discuss current events. In short, we have fun."
But Mrs. O'Toole says of steam, O'Toole says "I keep my mind busy calculating clock charts in my head."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Losses outnumbered gains by more than two to one as the Toronto stock market dropped moderately in light mid-morning trading today.

Prices were mixed Thursday, interrupting a six-day slump.

On index, industrials were off .42 to 181.94, golds 1.07 to 149.20, a low for the year, base metals .54 to 112.20 and western oils .36 to 183.44.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 376,000 shares compared with 502,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Twelve of the 17 industrial components were lower, led by Steinbergs, Banks, chemicals, general manufacturers, merchandisers and utilities advanced fractionally.

In food processors, Federal Grains ¼ to 5, Canada Malting ¼ to 23¾ and Atlantic Sugar ¼ to 6¾.

Northern and Central slipped ¼ to 14¼ after touching a low for the year of 14. The company's nine-month earnings were 46 cents a share compared with 59 cents in the similar 1968 period.

Ronalds-Federated was down ½ to 18 after the company reported third-quarter earnings of 25 cents a share compared with 33 cents in the corresponding 1968 period.

Falconbridge dropped 2¼ to 62, Hollinger 1¼ to 30½, CPR ¼ to 66½ and Molson A ¼ to 21¼.

Tuesday, losses outnumbered gains 356 to 165 with 269 issues unchanged.

On index, industrials gained .91 to 182.36, Western oils lost 1.81 to 183.80, a low for the year, and base metals .33 to 112.54.

Golds dropped 2.84 to 150.27. Gold issues seemed to react to weakening bullion prices in Europe. The London free market price of gold was $35 an ounce, down from $36.

Ten of the 17 industrial components were lower, seven higher.

Real estate issues were down by the broker index with Peel-Elder off 4 to 21 and 21 and Block Bros. ¼ to 7¼.

Group movement upward was fractional.

Bank of Nova Scotia gained ¾ to 22¼ after the bank raised its quarterly dividend to 19 cents from 18 cents.

Mutual Life dropped ½ to 13¾ after reporting a third-quarter profit of $1,200,000 in the similar 1968 period.

BIG EAGLE

With a seven-foot wingspan, the African black eagle ranks among the largest of all eagles. The bird can dispatch an antelope or baboon by sweeping in behind the unsuspecting victim and knocking it from a ledge.

He'll have a cheery 'Thank you'

When your canterbery comes to collect, please make sure you're ready. With the right change, if possible, and impressed it with a broad smile and a "Thank you". You see, because he is in business for himself, your newspaperboy depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. Repeat calls mean extra work with no extra profit. So—give the boy a break. And thanks!

'Disaster' to Intrude in Newspaper Business

OTTAWA (CP) — A Senate inquiry into the news business opened Tuesday with a blunt warning from the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association that any government intrusion in the business would be "a disaster."

Ralph Costello, CDNPA president and publisher of the Saint John, N.B., Telegraph-Journal and Times-Globe, urged caution upon the 15 members of the special Senate committee on mass media, headed by Senator Keith Davey, former Liberal party organizer.

"Your responsibility—if I may be so bold as to tell you what your job is before you start telling me how to do mine—will be to encourage improvement in the press without damaging or destroying that which you presumably hope to improve," said Mr. Costello.

"You do not have a simple task. No matter what your motives, no matter how high your ideals, any step which might result in government intervention, any government intrusion that affects the role of a free press can only lead to disaster—disaster for the press and disaster for the country."

Under questioning that lasted more than two hours, Mr. Costello said he would personally oppose any overseeing press council initiated by government or with government participation.

He said members of CDNPA, which represents all but 47 of more than 100 Canadian daily newspapers, are divided on the question of establishing a press council as a self-disciplinary group.

CDNPA, an organization primarily interested in promoting sales and in research promoting newspapers to justify their advertising rates, opposes requiring newspapers of justify their advertising rates to a board.

Senator Douglas Everett (L—Manitoba) had asked whether it would be a curtailment of press freedom to have newspapers treated as a utility and required to justify rates to a board that would have no jurisdiction over editorial content.

The senator referred particularly to situations where a newspaper is in a monopoly position in a community.

Mr. Costello said the government would be able to exert pressure through such a rate-justification board. He said a newspaper would be unable to survive if it tried to take advantage of a monopoly position.

Senator Everett also asked whether it would be a reduction of press freedom if the law were to classify exclusion of some advertising agencies from a CDNPA approved list as a conspiracy.

Mr. Costello said nobody should be permitted to conspire but CDNPA believes no conspiracy exists in its operations.

The list of approved agents included those considered financially sound and competent. Approved agents receive a commission from newspapers of 15 per cent of the value of national advertising placed.

Mr. Costello said in answer to other questions that he was not conscious of advertising influence on the editorial content of newspapers.

In a professional way, the press in Canada had "developed tremendously" in the last 15 years, he said. Leading metropolitan papers were doing the in-depth reporting that magazines used to do. Publishers were more dedicated.

DNPA does not advise member CDNPA doesnot advise member papers to move in particular directions on national issues. That is not the function of the organization.

Would the CDNPA criticize the publisher of a newspaper which advocated separatism?

"We could not and would not," Mr. Costello replied.

Questioned about the right of access in newspapers to the "other side" of issues, Mr. Costello said newspapers encourage the right of rebuttal through letters to the editor and through the searching out of both sides of issues by the newspaper itself.

Dealing with anti-establishment underground newspapers —there are at least eight in Canada—Mr. Costello said they have the right to publish in free society.

They are a reflection of the uprising of youth who have a right to express their views. But their terms and language have no place in the regular press of Canada.

Senator Davey said it would be misleading to suggest that the underground press consists only of obscenities and news about drugs.

There were many "meaningful" articles. He asked whether the traditional press is paying enough attention to these ideas.

Mr. Costello said if the underground press is a needed service, its possibilities as a commercial operation become greater. Perhaps the more responsible underground press would come above ground in the future.

Senator Davey raised the question about the drop of two percentage points in voter turnout in the recent Toronto municipal elections despite what he called an excellent advance reporting job by the three Toronto dailies. Was there anything newspapers could do to improve the turnouts?

Mr. Costello replied with a smile that perhaps the answer is for those who choose candidates to select better ones.

Money Not Main Publishers' Concern Editors Assert

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of newspapers managing editors denied claims Tuesday that publishers are placing more emphasis on the money-earning side of newspapers than on editorial content.

Representatives of the Canadian Managing Editors Conference told the special Senate committee on the news media that they believe journalistic quality is improving and Canadian readers are well served in comparison with other countries.

Senator J. Harper Prowse (L-Alberta) drew a contrast between what he described as "the well-oiled machine" of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, which functions to bring in money through newspaper advertising, and the loosely-organized association of managing editors, the men with the main responsibility for the information that appears in newspapers.

The managing editors had testified that they have no continuing organization beyond an annual conference, no full-time staff and their budget is about $1,500 a year.

Senator Prowse said he is struck by the contrast with the substantial financial resources of CDNPA, which appeared earlier Tuesday.

Ivor Williams, conference president and managing editor of the London Free Press, said the editorial aims mentioned by Senator Prowse are more a matter for individual newspapers than for the conference.

Robert D. Owen, conference past president and editor on the Kingston Whig - Standard, said interest in news content is as strong among newspapers as interest in getting advertising revenue.

The fact that the managing editors' conference does not spend as much money as CDNPA is meaningless, he said, because they play different roles. He was sure the publishers would rescue the conference financially if the managing editors required more funds.

Newspapers today are much more seriously concerned with presenting better information than they were a few years ago, he said. Readers demanded more news and better quality, probably partly because of the advent of television.

In his own newspaper, Mr. Owen said, journalists are no longer hired unless they are graduates of journalism schools or universities.

With TV now sometimes on the scene of a news event, newspaper reporting of the same news is more careful, serious and sophisticated, he said. The reporter made sure of his facts and tried to tell what went on behind the scenes.

Committee lawyer Yves Fortier asked whether Mr. Owen meant newspaper reporting was less exact before television. Mr Owen said that could be read into his remarks.

TV in effect had become a second witness of the news and stimulated the newspaper reporting before the advent of TV had been sloppy.

Mr. Fortier asked C. M. Fellman, managing editor of the North Bay Nugget, whether he agreed with a published comment by Toronto lawyer Desmond Morton, suggesting that newspapers in a small community always represent the business interests there regardless of whether the newspaper is part of a group or individually owned.

Mr. Fellman, whose newspaper is part of the Southam Newspapers group, said he could not see how any newspaper could have more editorial independence than his.

Questioned about criticism that newspapers generally give staff inadequate time to develop news in a sophisticated way, Mr. Williams said that is not true in his experience.

William MacPherson, managing editor of the Ottawa Citizen, said he suspects managing editors would unanimously support the idea of giving reporters full scope to develop stories. But individual editors might be unable to carry it out because of limited resources. They would aim at achieving that goal, however.

Still Firing Staff Organizing Union: Witness

OTTAWA (CP)—Employers are still firing staff for organizing American Newspaper Guild unions, Bob Rupert, the guild's international representative in Canada, said Tuesday.

Testifying before the special Senate committee on mass media, Mr. Rupert said an employee was fired in Canada last week.

He gave no details, saying it is not the practice to discuss organizing efforts in public while they are in progress.

He said the guild has not been taken to the labor department as it has not been proved in that [illegible] we feel it is for labor activities."

The guild represents 3,400 editorial and non-editorial employees on newspapers, broadcasting outlets and a wire service in Canada. Headquarters is in Washington.

If the guild can prove before government tribunals that dismissals are for labor activity, the employees are reinstated, he said.

Glen Ogilvie, the guild's Canadian vice-president, told the hearing the union is "vitally concerned" about granting journalists the legal right to keep secret the names of their sources for stories.

Senator Harper Prowse (L—Alberta), who once worked as a reporter, suggested this right would put into the hands of an unscrupulous reporter, "an unbelievable potential for mischief."

Questioning the need for making it a legal right, he said reporters still have the right to keep their source secret although a court may order them to jail for a few days or hours as punishment.

Mr. Rupert said the safeguard against the unscrupulous reporter is that the reporter's superiors have to judge the validity of the story before it is printed.

The witness said that journalists are just as much in pursuit of justice as the lawyer who has the legal right to keep secret information from a client.

Mr. Ogilvie, a Toronto Star copy editor, also said the guild wants guarantees for journalists to run for office and take other part in political life. Now, it was frowned on.

He also expressed regret at the parliamentary rule that does not permit television cameras or tape-recorders in the parliamentary room where the committee is sitting. Like other parliamentary committees, it is being covered from the inside by reporters with notebooks.

Know Your Apples

Ontario McIntosh
Happy "Macs" are round and rosy; crisp and juicy; refreshingly tart in flavour. It's the all-Canadian snack apple.

Ontario Cortland
Similar to McIntosh but larger, fairer, redder. Stays white longer when sliced; excellent for salads and cooking. Also a quick cooking and baking apple.

Ontario Northern Spy
Variegated green and red, all-purpose apple. Especially good for pies and other baked desserts. A crunchy, munching apple, too.

Ontario Red Delicious
Favourite eating apple from the Northeast. Bright; distinctively shaped. Sweet and juicy, crisp and flavourful. Delicious!

Bite into a crisp, juicy Ontario apple today. The new crops are in — fresh from the orchard! There are many varieties, each with its own characteristic flavour, shape and texture. All of them are delicious and nutritious.

A few tips: Choose firm, unblemished apples and refrigerate them. Warm temperatures cause apples to lose their flavour and crispness.

For quick peeling, dip apples in and out of boiling water.

To keep peeled apples white, place slices in cold water and add a pinch of salt for each whole apple sliced.

If your apple pie leaks in oven, sprinkle salt on juice while hot and it will remove more easily.

Renewal Study Gets New Life

Plan for 1990 Is Advocated

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
(Staff Reporter)

Completion of Belleville's urban renewal study to the conceptual stage now seems assured, following the appearance of planning consultant Allen Brass before city council yesterday.

Although no formal vote was taken, comments throughout the afternoon by members of the 1970 council seemed to reflect a willingness to carry the study through to the stage recommended by provincial and federal authorities.

However, coupled with this was the inference the city will probably get a shopping plaza.

Mr. Brass, supervisor of the urban renewal study for the planning consultants Procter and Redfern, said there is a potential for a shopping plaza in Belleville. The only issue at stake is its size. If the development goes at the north end of the city, his firm is prepared to modify its plans for downtown renewal.

The result would be "a less dramatic change, less retail floor space downtown."

"I feel I have been personally blamed for the loss of the proposed north end shopping plaza," Mr. Brass said.

Because of his concern over "the hostility that pervades the city over our part," the consultant appeared before a special meeting of city council and new aldermen elected Dec. 1.

At an Ontario Municipal Board hearing into rezoning for the shopping centre Cambridge Leasehold proposes to build on North Front St., Mr. Brass testified he reconsidered the building "premature" in the light of the urban renewal study of downtown then under way.

His testimony was cited in the OMB decision denying the rezoning.

A citizens' petition was instrumental in having a second hearing called for Feb. 2. But Cambridge Leasehold said it would refuse to defend its proposals at the hearing unless the urban renewal study was cancelled. The city terminated its contract with Procter and Redfern in September. On Nov. 17, the Downtown Businessmen's Association called for re-instatement of the urban renewal study and offered to donate $5,000 towards the cost.

Yesterday, Mr. Brass told council he is "concerned I'll be scuppered by opposing counsel into sabotaging this (the shopping centre) again".

"The people of Belleville have been shortchanged in the commercial service provided them," he said. "They've waited long enough — this should be remedied.

"Under present circumstances, you'd be ill-advised to turn down that development and ill-advised to try to get it downtown."

There is a potential for a shopping plaza in Belleville, he said. The question is whether it should be situated downtown "as a catalyst to redevelopment of the area" or at the north end of the city.

That decision has already been made, he was assured by Ald. E. A. Orr and Mayor J. Russell Scott.

U.S. Is Near Breakthrough In War Against Racketeers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration says it is near a breakthrough in its campaign against organized racketeers who, one official says, are taking an estimated $60,000,000,000 a year from the U.S. economy.

Its first major dent into the syndicates is expected next week in a round of indictments by federal grand juries in four northeastern U.S. cities.

Assistant Attorney-General Will R. Wilson, chief of the justice department's criminal division, said in an interview the most "definite results in the form of indictments" are still to come—probably next spring.

Taking note of the pending organized crime cases, Attorney-General John N. Mitchell said Wednesday indictments expected in one city within 10 days will "break up the largest gambling syndicate in history."

He did not specify the place, but he said federal investigators have found "a large group" of internal revenue service employees in one state "to be controlled by the Mafia." Other officials said he referred to New Jersey.

A Newark grand jury investigation, which began as an Essex County operation, was taken over by federal authorities Wednesday a few hours before Mitchell addressed the Investment Bankers Association of America in the Florida resort city.

On Tuesday, Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio of Newark had pleaded the protection of the Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, a guarantee against self-incrimination, in refusing to answer 24 questions.

Appearing Wednesday before Judge Robert Shaw of U.S. District Court for a ruling on whether he had a constitutional right to refuse answers, Addonizio said he knew Anthony (Tony Boy) Boiardo, a reputed Cosa Nostra figure.

Judge Shaw reserved decision on whether the mayor could still refuse to answer the other questions, but said: "I'm inclined, particularly where a major public official is involved, to order disclosure of affairs involving public office."

The mayor's lawyer said Addonizio would answer if necessary to avoid contempt of court proceedings.

Thugs Get $170,000 In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Five hooded bandits, armed with sub-machine guns, held up a credit union in a Quebec government building and escaped with $170,000, Inspector Jean Hamilton of Quebec municipal police said.

The holdup occurred near the legislature at the only credit union—for the area used by government employees.

Several shots were fired by the holdup men, but not one was injured.

The cabinet held a two-hour meeting to discuss Rogers's speech before Foreign Minister Abba Eban left Tel Aviv for Washington for talks Friday with Rogers.

After the meeting, the ministers issued a statement rejecting efforts by the big powers to find a solution and taking issue with the U.S. peace proposals that Rogers outlined in a speech Tuesday. They were presented to the Soviet Union on Oct. 28, and already have been rejected by United Arab Republic spokesmen.

Nobody Budges On Constitution

OTTAWA (CP) — The key issue of the summit constitutional talks remains undivided.

Not an inch of progress toward a solution seems to have been made since Premier John Roberts' lead-off conference in Toronto in 1967.

That issue is Quebec's demand, and the rejection of that demand by Ottawa and the other provinces, for more—many more—constitutional powers.

Federal officials argue that giving in to Quebec's demands would destroy Canada. Quebec officials say the province must have additional powers to develop her culture and well-being or risk a steady swing to separatism.

For Other Stories On Constitutional Conference See Pages 14, 15 and 16

Beyond this basic unresolved issue, the three-day federal-provincial constitutional meeting that ended here Wednesday could not reach agreement on any single clause to put into a new constitution.

So where do we go from here?

The immediate object seems to be to take some of the glare off—though not bury—the constitutional talks by initiating summit federal-provincial meetings, beginning in February, on current problems, such as inflation and joblessness.

But it is evident that there is not the same drive now as there was in 1967 and early 1968 toward a new constitution.

Rightly or wrongly, the premiers of the English-language provinces are not frightened now, as they were then, of separatism.

It might take a big vote for Rene Levesque's Parti Quebecois to frighten them again.

Plaza Would Hamper Urban Renewal -- Planner

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The proposed north end shopping plaza won't kill Front St., but it could set back downtown urban renewal.

This statement from Malcolm Martini, economic planner for planning consultants Procter and Redfern, summed up the content of a meeting of four planning consultants and members of council, planning board and the mayor's advisory committee on urban renewal.

An audience of about 50 people at the three-hour session at Bea Bleecker Auditorium yesterday afternoon heard Allen Brass, John Sidsell, Bruce Miller and Malcolm Martini, authors of the first interim urban renewal report, defend its contents.

Major interest centred on the economic section of the report, prepared by Mr. Martini. As the result of new information obtained since the report was prepared, the economic survey will be amended, he said.

Major change, to be outlined in a supplement expected at city hall by Christmas, lies in the inclusion of retail floor space estimated for future needs.

"There is, or soon will be, a demand for a department store in the city," Mr Martini stated.

He said 330,000 square feet of retail store space will be required by 1976, and double the present amount by 1990.

"It is not a question of whether the downtown will suffer if the proposed shopping centre is built at the north end," he said. "It is a question of whether urban renewal will succeed in that case."

If the shopping centre is built, very little private money will be available for an urban renewal scheme before 1976, he said, warning that the calibre of shopping centre that might be provided is vital.

"With all respect for the fine service Towers has provided the city, the next shopping plaza should not be of the same type," the planner added. "It should be one offering high quality merchandise and a variety of choices."

Mr. Martini also issued a warning concerning municipal financing.

"Belleville should be very careful about incurring further debt," he said. "Its present debts are equal to 25 per cent of its total equalized assessment. The average for other cities the same size in Ontario is 11 per cent."

Mr. Martini's report was challenged by City Manager J. R. Reynolds.

"Your submission is not applicable," he asserted, "because this is not the way the Ontario Municipal Board deals with municipalities in setting up the debt structure. By your calculations, we are long since past the time of incurring more debts."

Allen Brass entered the discussion to say the report's major conclusion was "you must be careful about incurring debt that doesn't produce revenue."

"I agree; we've got to be careful," said Mr. Reynolds. Mr. Martini cautioned against over-optimism in projecting Belleville's future growth.

"You may not have the people here to pay for the services you contract for," he warned. "There is no room for industry in excess area in the Quinte district yet. Belleville and Trenton are still commuter; Peterborough and Kingston still tap the area. It's still up for grabs.

"But over the long term, Belleville will become a major city in Ontario," he predicted.

Mayor J. Russell Scott, who presided over the meeting, led off the objections to the urban renewal report's proposed projections for the next 20 years.

The report termed Belleville a "moderate growth area."

"Were you aware we have lost 100 more voters this year?" he asked. "Did you know the industry has created 2,000 more jobs? Did you know about Harvey's, the Red Barn, Ten Horton's? I think your figures are all off."

Mr. Martini said he was aware of new factories under construction and claimed the mayor was confusing service jobs with industrial jobs.

"If you can show me that my data is out on manufacturing figures, I'll amend my survey," he promised.

"Let us take figures supplied by the city building inspector today," interjected alderman-elect Donald Soutter. "As of this morning, we are only 225 units away from the total of housing units you project for the end of 1971. The weakness of your report lies in the area of economic potential. The report hasn't captured what is happening in Belleville."

Mr. Soutter said the amended survey given verbally yesterday was "more realistic than that in the interim report."

"That was a very negative report under economic potential," he said.

"It was not written as publicity for Belleville," said Mr. Martini. "It is a dispassionate appraisal of its potential."

Mr. Brass said the economic potential figures took into account "cyclical fluctuations in growth."

"Belleville is thriving now," he said. "But this may not be sustained. In the past, the city has never maintained thrifty growth over a period of years. Over the long run the average growth will be what we have projected."

He added that there is a possibility that a high projection may be fulfilled during the next 20 years — to give at least of 15 per cent more than the consultants visualized.

"If we have erred, it is on the conservative side," he commented. "If you are overoptimistic, you will have committed vast amounts of public funds unjustifiably."

Rapped for Rapping Merchants

Belleville's urban renewal study committee have been rapped for, their criticism of downtown businessmen.

In their report to council they claimed "spontaneously offered replies" from shoppers "stated they detected apathy on the part of downtown merchants".

"Did you expect enthusiasm from downtown merchants after you disparaging remarks?" asked Zdenek Kvarda, planning board member.

Consultant Allen Brass replied that the purpose of yesterday's meeting was to "verify or disprove" our findings in the face-to-counters-with citizens".

"We hope to have discussion with downtown merchants to learn their attitudes," he said.

"Then the apathy remark is not a fair statement," asked Mr. Kvarda.

"It's a fact", retorted Mr. Brass.

"How can you blame merchants for not improving their premises, when most don't own their store?" Mr. Kvarda continued.

"The merchants are still responsible for the level of merchandising," Mr. Brass said. "Because most of the landowners are absentees it may be difficult to involve them in renewal."

Irving Shulman commented that the consultants must have detected similar criticism from "chronic complainers" in studies of other cities.

Mr. Brass replied that apathy on the part of merchants has not been implied in shopper surveys in other cities to the extent it was implied in Belleville.

Alderman - elect Ben Corke said he didn't want people to run away from the impression with the impression an overwhelming sum per of those surveyed declared apathy. He noted that 30 per cent said they considered china and glassware outlets in the city excellent or good."

"You say in your report that the merchants are operating on low rentals," he said. "Perhaps that's because they are operating very efficiently and working very hard."

"Maybe, if renewal is implemented, it will cost against higher rents, many couldn't survive," counter-ed Mr. Brass.

"The public sector should move and lead," charged D. V. Donnelly.

"If it does, so will the merchants. Our hands are tied; we're waiting. The lead must come from city hall."

'Frosty' Reception Greets Urban Renewal Report

The small attendance at yesterday's urban renewal meeting at Bea Bleecker Auditorium came as a surprise to those in charge.

Only about 50 people turned out to hear four planners from the firm of Procter and Redfern outline the results of the first interim report on renewal of the downtown area and Foster Ward.

Invited to attend were the 14 members of old and new city councils, the planning board, city hall officials and the over 50 members of the mayor's advisory committee on urban renewal. Altogether an attendance of more than 100 was expected.

Because of poor acoustics in the building and the noise generated by the overhead heaters, the heat had to be turned off. Members of the audience huddled in overcoats throughout the three-hour meeting. At mid-point, in the discussion, City Clerk Adam Stocker called a recess to turn on the heaters in an attempt to raise the temperature.

Why are the acoustics so bad and this place so cold?" asked Ald. Gerald Joyce near the conclusion of the meeting.

"To keep you sharp," retorted Mayor J. Russell Scott. He added that the meeting could have been held in city council chambers had organizers known the attendance would be so low.

William Wills called for another meeting with the planners, "in a place where we can be cosier".

By the end of the meeting the audience had dwindled to a handful — three aldermen, a cluster of interested citizens, the press, a few city hall officials, Bea Bleecker Auditorium caretaker and the vice-president of Cambridge Leaseholds, a representative of the planning firm of W. W. Urban, the four planners and four Procter and Redfern planning consultants.

"Many councils, after seeing the social and financial implications, have shelved their renewal schemes," he said. "Somebody always has to be disbanded or disappointed."

Mayor J. Russell Scott queried the planner about the fate of small businessmen under an urban renewal scheme.

"I have heard small and medium-sized merchandising operations are put out of business by the mayne said.

Mr. Brass said the small merchant is often aided in relocating his business.

"But many of them are functionally obsolete and can't begin with and are doing a marginal business," he added. "In St. John, New Brunswick, most of the small business men were glad of the opportunity urban renewal gave them to retire."

Visibly pleased by the tenor of the meeting were the executives of Cambridge Leaseholds.

An Ontario Municipal Board rezoning into rezoning of North Front St. property to permit, but not compel, a shopping centre is scheduled for Feb. 3.

"Anything they did and said today didn't hurt our case," said Ronald Ellewood, Cambridge secretary - treasurer, after the meeting.

The two executives, and the representative of W. Urban, the planners hired by the city and paid by Cambridge Leaseholds to conduct an economic survey for the rehearing, said they attended the meeting to record the figures supplied by Procter and Redfern's economic planner.

Urban Renewal Plans Often Scrapped: Brass

Few urban renewal plans are carried to the point of implementation, planner Allen Brass said yesterday.

The problem is, we still don't know what cost sharing arrangement will be available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and the province," he said.

But he added, another reason is the unpopularity of urban renewal proposals.

Renewal Study Gets New Life

In outlining his part in the OMB hearing, Mr. Brass said he was "not appraised of the shopping centre proposal until I was subpoenaed to appear on the behalf of the people who were opposing it."

"Our study, then under way was relevant to the decision," he said.

Mr. Brass noted that: "It is the advice of the minister of municipal affairs in the event the work should be continued the work should be continued to the conceptual plan stage."

"The conceptual plan says what we should like the down town to look like for the next from now. It would detail how much would be accomplished by private initiative, and how much by public initiative, and would provide a staging program."

"We were within a short reach of preparing a concept-ual plan when the contract was terminated," Mr. Brass assured council. "Many municipalities have only the concept plan prepared, as a component of their official plan. Most municipalities have stopped at the concept-ual plan stage because they don't know what financial helps will be available from senior levels of government. They are marking time."

Next step after the concept-ual plan is preparation of the "detailed first phase plan" in conjunction with council. In it, the planners, on the advice of city council, would set out the renewal choices offered, and the order of priorities. After the first phase plan is approved, the municipality can apply to senior governments for aid in implementing the plan. In Belleville's case, the cost of the first phase plan would be $18,000 of which the city would pay 25 per cent.

Should the city decide to re-instate the contract with Procter and Redfern, Mr. Brass promised closer co-operation and contact with city council and its officials.

"In the past, there was some misconception over our role, due to lack of contact," he said.

"We would not attempt to impose our personal views or moves on the city. We have an obligation to accept the city's advice."

Several aldermen spoke in favor of restoring the agreement with Procter and Redfern for completion of the conceptual plan.

However, Ald. Orr expressed misgivings about going further than the next step.

"I feel too many uncertainties exist, with regard to the intentions of senior governments, to proceed in the first phase," he said.

County Getting Roads Returned

The Ontario Department of Highways is planning to have two provincial roadways in Hastings turned back to the county roads system for maintenance.

The two sections of provincial roadway it wants reverted to the county are secondary Highway 302 between Marmora and Madoc and Highway 33 from Trenton to Stirling.

Notification of the provincial government's intention regarding the first highway was received by county council yesterday in a letter from Highways Minister George Gomme, that the department wants to revert Highway 33 to the county has been known since last spring.

County road committee chairman Reeve Carman Gibson said his committee would oppose reverting of Highway 302 to the county. He said he couldn't understand the department's thinking regarding the Marysville - Napanee highway, as it had a department road maintenance depot on this roadway.

The highway minister's letter said that before Highway 302 was turned back, a grade separation over the CN double tracks would be constructed immediately west of Napanee.

The highway department also has plans for construction of a new bridge over the Trent River and Canal at Frankford to replace the present steel truss structure and swing bridge over the canal.

Separate Planning Boards Idea Gains County Council Support

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Hastings County Council is now in favor of separate planning boards for Belleville-Trenton and the county, with a combined over-all committee to ensure co-ordination of the work of the three bodies.

This was the essence of a motion passed yesterday by the county body as it concluded its two-day December session.

The motion accepted one of three recommendations from Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough in answer to an application by the county in June for a county-wide planning body.

The other alternatives proposed by Mr. McKeough would have allowed for the continuation of the present Belleville and Suburban Planning Board with the inclusion of all Thurlow; revival of the Trenton Planning Board to include Frankford and part of Sidney and a new planning area for the balance of the county.

The second alternative proposed by Mr. McKeough was for a joint planning area for Belleville, Trenton and all of Hastings.

Mr. McKeough said his first proposal seemed impractical because of the heavy financial burden it would impose on Frankford, Sidney and Thurlow.

He suggested the county choose between the second proposal and the third, which called for replacement of present boards with separate boards for Belleville, Trenton and the county.

Marmora Village Reeve Bill Shannon, as chairman of the county planning and industrial committee, said his committee favored the third proposal and recommended approval by the council body.

But from the length of following discussions it appeared the county planning issue might again bog down in words as it had over the past few years.

Mr. Shannon emphasized that choice by council of Mr. McKeough's third proposal would only be a basis from which the county could proceed in its effort to find a planning plateau.

Both Thurlow and Sidney wanted assurance they would not be called upon to pay twice for planning. Currently, they are paying $11,000 annually toward the support of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

But Mr. Shannon reminded them had to be a starting point somewhere. Details could be worked out later, he said.

Bancroft Reeve J. H. Brown emphasized that planning for the county was a "must" other wise it could find itself in the same position as municipalities in Peterborough County, where the department of municipal affairs was obliged to come in and set up sub-division control to cope with a large real estate development.

"Municipalities can set up subdivision control themselves but they don't do it," he said.

OPP Switch

TWEED (Special) — In charge of the Madoc Provincial Police detachment office since early this year, Sgt. L. L. Temple has been transferred to Downsview.

He will be succeeded by Cpl. R. Dowe, currently at North Bay, who will be promoted to the rank of sergeant when he takes up his new duties early in January.

In the meantime, the detachment office will be in charge of Cpl. M. W. Schultz and Cpl. R. Shaw.

Proposed Grand Jury Abolition Vetoed

Hastings County Council this week turned down two recommendations from the county board of selectors which asked that grand juries be eliminated and that the use of civil juries be reduced.

Both recommendations were tabled from the September session of council to allow councillors to "do some home work."

The recommendation noted that juries in civil cases have almost disappeared from all provinces in Canada except Ontario and were, on many occasions, used for tactical purposes only. Settlements take place after juries have been called resulting in unnecessary expense.

The proposal was for the minister of justice of Ontario to be petitioned to change the rules so that parties desiring a civil jury would be entitled to it only after making application to the appropriate court.

The, if it could be shown that a jury was warranted, the judiciary be authorised to order a trial by jury.

The second recommendation from the jury selection committee argued that grand juries be eliminated because they are an extra wheel and an unnecessary expense.

But council members wouldnot go along with either recommendation, taking the view that it would be an erosion of long standing rights.

Warden Donald Rodgers said, however, that many persons were called for civil jury duty only to see cases settled out of court at the last minute.

"They feel their time is being wasted," he said.

Obituaries and Funerals

JOHN ARTHUR BOSLEY (Deiore)

TWEED — Mr. John Arthur Bosley passed away at his Deiore home, on Sunday, December 7, suddenly, at the age of 51 years. He resided at 2 O'Brien Street, in Deiore.

The deceased was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Bosley, and was born in Hungerford Township. He is survived by his wife, whose maiden name was Aileen Prevost, but she was twice married and her first husband Noah Deiore is predeceased.

He also is mourned by the following children: Miss Carol Ann Bosley of Ottawa; Mrs. Gerald (Hazel) O'Brien, Peterborough; Leonard Bosley of Oshawa and Mrs. Harry (Dorothy) Gaebel, of Marysville.

He is also survived by one brother, Alvin Bosley, of Berwick, Ontario.

Mr. Bosley was a member of Sacred Heart of Jesus Christ, Marmora, and was also a member of the Holy Name Society of that church. He was a war veteran of World War Two. He is also survived by nineteen grandchildren.

Mr. Bosley rested at the Cassidy Funeral Home, Tweed, until Wednesday, thence to St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church, Tweed for Requiem Mass which was celebrated by Dean C. E. Baker, of St. Carthagh's. Present in the Sanctuary were: Rev. F. J. O'Neil, of Madoc and Rev. T. G. Scanlon, of Marmora.

Entombment was in St. Carthagh's vault at Tweed. The bearers were: Larry Murphy, Wilfred Deiore, Michael Healey, Stan Goulah, Joseph Kehoe and Levi Lajoie.

MRS. WILLIAM CURRY

In failing health for some time, Mrs. Agnes Curry, 181 Foster Avenue, Belleville, died in Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday in her 83rd year.

Mrs. Curry was born in Marmora township a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard and had resided in Belleville for 50 years.

She was a member of Bridge Street United church and a life member of the UCW. She was also a member of the Albert College Ladies' Guild.

Surviving is one daughter Mrs. Fred (Lastetia) Stirland and two grandchildren, Starr Curry of Edmonton, Kent Curry of Peterborough. She was the last of her family. Her husband, William Curry and a son, Sam Curry of Tweed, died some years ago.

Mrs. Curry is resting at the Thompson Funeral Chapel. Service will be held in the chapel on Friday, Dec. 12 at 1.30 p.m.

Interment will be in Belleville cemetery with Dr. H. M. Davis officiating.

CHARLES NELSON HOOVER

MARMORA — Funeral service for Charles Nelson Hoover of 2196 Flower Street, Ottawa, formerly of Norwood Road, Marmora, who died at Perley Hospital, Ottawa, on Saturday, was held at Cassidy Funeral Home, Marmora on Tuesday. Rev. A. Ramsay of Kingston officiated.

In his 82nd year, Mr. Hoover had been ill for two days. Born in Madoc and educated in Madoc Township, his parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Coste Hoover. He was a member of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Ottawa.

Except for employment for a few years at New Liskeard, Ontario, he lived most of his life in this area. In the early '30's he worked for the Village of Marmora. He and his wife, the former Ada May Wall, left Marmora four years ago to live with their daughter, Gwen, in the West, moving with her to Ottawa six months later.

Predeceased by his wife three years ago, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Merle Gordon (Gwen) of Ottawa and one son, Leslie, of Toronto, eight grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Bearers were George Prescott, Bob Bronson, Harry Keating, Clarence Rogers, Percy Gray and Gerald Warren.

Entombment was in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

MRS. FRANK EVANS

In failing health for some time, Mrs. Arley Evans, 47 Alexander Street, Belleville, died in Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday in her 80th year. Mrs. Evans was born in Belleville, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ormond and had resided in Belleville all of her life.

She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Surviving are one son, Langley Evans of Windsor, one sister, Mrs. Allen Simpson of Picton and five grandchildren. Her husband, Frank Evans died some years ago.

Mrs. Evans is resting at the Thompson Funeral Chapel. Service will be held in the chapel on Friday, Dec. 12 at 2.30 o'clock.

Interment will be in Belleville cemetery with Rev. A. Laurie Sutherland officiating.

Fifth Horseman

The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse are War, Conquest, Famine and Disaster. Today a fifth stalks the land; as depicted in a cartoon of the moment it is the foulest one of all, stopping in their tracks even the dreaded quartette of legend. It is pollution.

What is Belleville doing about this problem? In the recent municipal election, as far as we can discover, only defeated candidate Gerald Cunningham made any direct reference to it when he called for pollution control measures in the Moira River.

It was a good point and one which council should keep in mind as it proceeds with installation of sewers and water services; and with waterfront development.

The latter is something for the future, but council should not lose sight of it amid the press of other matters. The waterfront is right on our doorstep, yet for too long it has been neglected. Instead of the rambling, dusty hodge-podge, seen by few; that it is now, this could be an area of beauty, of parkland and trees, and recreation facilities.

In the cleaning up process there would be the side benefit of a lessening of air and water pollution in that area — less dust, less litter, less spoilage generally.

Germans Tackle Pollution

Speaking of pollution, reference was made here recently to Britain's Clean Air Bill and its effectiveness in reducing the heavy concentration of industrial smog so much a feature of the London scene at this time of year.

In Germany similar strides are being made. The city of Dusseldorf in the Ruhr Valley recently was the venue for a Congress of Clean Air attended by nearly 2,000 delegates from overseas. They learned that since the introduction of anti-pollution systems the 340,000 metric tons of dust and two million metric tons of sulphur dioxide which settled annually in the Rhine-Ruhr area have been reduced to 250,000 metric tons, and in the case of the sulphur dioxide, by 40 per cent, respectively.

It is still a formidable concentration of atmospheric pollution but at least good progress is being made. Another significant development, of interest to planners everywhere, has been establishment of parks separating residential sections from industrial complexes and the use of fuels containing less sulphur or none at all.

Health Services

The Ontario government's steps to improve medical and dental services in small communities are commendable.

Among the communities listed as having inadequate health services are many in the northern part of the province, while in our own area Wellington is listed as requiring medical facilities and Madoc and Marmora dental.

Under the province's Health Resources Development Plan, physicians and dentists are guaranteed annual income in excess of $20,000 to work in designated areas for one year.

Less encouraging to the dental profession at least is the situation regarding treatment of Indian students. According to a Fort William high school principal, Paul McRae, between 25 and 30 students at his school have been unable to get treatment "because the dentists are fed up with the problem of dealing with the Indian Affairs Department."

The problem? Dentists are required to send an appraisal of the Indians' dental needs to Ottawa, then wait three months for approval. By this time a patient generally needs more treatment — and thus more appraisals by the dentist.

Dental decay is damaging to health generally and both Ottawa and the provinces should re-examine their legislation in this regard to make it possible for Indians to get treatment when needed.

Give A Cheer

Reaction to last Saturday's Christmas parade has been one of universal approval. However, a letter on this page today raises one point which citizens should take to heart — that is, the tendency of most of us to take the whole thing for granted.

Of course the checkered history of this year's parade was as close a case as any that nothing can be taken for granted, that energy, imagination and hard work are necessary to put the show on the road.

Consider the people taking part. For all the work of Don Foster and his helpers, the majorettes and other participants made the parade itself. So citizens, spectators, next time don't just stand there — but make yourselves heard, give the boys and girls the encouragement they so richly deserve.

Disappointing in Opposition...But

Some Think Stanfield Would Shine as Prime Minister

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield continues to be a disappointment to his party as a performer in the House of Commons.

It seemed for a time last year that he was beginning to emerge from his shell and to tackle the Liberal government with vim and vigor. But now, in the main, his attacks on the forces of Prime Minister Trudeau have all the impact of a feather duster.

Observers in Ottawa have been waiting since Mr. Stanfield's entry into the Commons to see him emerge as a leading speaker and an adroit questioner of government actions. They continue to wait.

The fear of Tories who strongly supported Mr. Stanfield's candidacy for the party leadership is that perhaps he will never get off the political launching pad.

Day after day in the Commons they quiver as they hear his hesitant, rambling style of questioning the cabinet and the prime minister. By the time Mr. Stanfield utters the question in his low-low-key fashion, any semblance of dramatic effect is mostly dissipated.

It appears too that the apt enquiries of the day do not come to Mr. Stanfield as they should. Either the best questions go to another Conservative member or — more likely — to the New Democrats.

Mr. Stanfield does not lack persistence in his questioning of the prime minister but his supplementary queries do not have the sharpness and the politically desirable quantities of incisiveness and venom.

Some parliamentary onlookers consider that Mr. Stanfield may be just too nice a guy for the rough-and-tumble of Parliament Hill. They see his style as plodding along and hoping for the breaks. But Mr. Stanfield did not get any breaks in the 1968 election and no great political bonanzas have come his way since then.

The suggestion by some Conservative party officials is that Mr. Stanfield is in no hurry to make any sensations in the Commons. They say he initially had to rebuild party unity. Now, he is engaged in restoring the party image and encouraging grass-roots organization.

He travels a good deal across the country, speaking to Tory gatherings. He must have been encouraged by a good turnout at a $50-per-plate dinner in Montreal.

But the general view in Ottawa is that Mr. Stanfield is not making much of an impact on the Canadian people. The feeling is that he fails to capitalize on discontent in various regions of the nation, notably the West.

However, the devoted Stanfield followers point out that the next election probably will not come until 1972 and that their leader has that date firmly in mind.

They say he builds slowly but solidly. They hope that by 1972 he will look like a desirable alternative to Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

One odd thing about Mr. Stanfield, is that while many parliamentary journalists think he is a bust as opposition leader, they believe he might make a fine prime minister.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 11, 1949.

When an old washstand was broken up in England recently James Hall of Stratford, Manchester, uncovered a copy of The Daily Intelligencer published in Belleville June 2nd, 1888. The paper which had been concealed for a half a century was in a fair state of preservation and arrived in the Editor's mail recently.

Cliff C. Holmes, BA, Albert College, was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club. With president Fred Deacon away in New York City, the meeting was held under the chairmanship of Rotarian Arthur Bateman.

The first regimental ceremonial parade to be held here since the end of the war will take place in the Armories on Wednesday night with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment on review.

Belleville's sons who enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment on the 4th from the City of Belleville upon their arrival in England with CASF. Today £25 sterling was dispatched to the commanding officer of the Regiment and it will be delivered to the headquarters of the Regiment upon the arrival of the Unit in England.

The War Work Committee of the Belleville branch of the Red Cross is pleased to announce that the Women's Canadian Club of this city has very kindly acceded to the request to take charge of War Knitting — giving out yarn, receiving work, inspection and packing under the supervision of the war Work Committee.

Parade Watchers Should Match the Enthusiasm Of Those Taking Part

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

On Dec. 6 it was my privilege to walk the route of our Santa Claus Parade with a group of young troopers, as more than 20 girls and three boys, who a few days earlier had survived what could have been a fatal accident, did their utmost to entertain the citizens of this city.

They were greeted with blank looks and frozen stares by the majority. Where is our city spirit when these youngsters and their teacher, who has lived in Belleville most of her life, pass by with no recognition? Most of these young people were bruised and sore, marching with cracked ribs and other injuries, and were greeted, not only blankly, but even by the announcer's ignorance of their identity. Have we become so blase that nothing is of interest any more?

During the 24-hour period prior to and after this parade, this same group entertained at Santa Claus Parades in Madoc and Napanee. Napanee has always enjoyed a good parade and this year was no exception. Appreciation for everyone and their efforts was given enthusiastically. The ultimate accord was given by the town of Madoc. Belleville would do well to learn "How To" from our smaller neighbors.

The only thing these young people and all those who participate in any parade want from the public is a friendly smile, a cheer and a clap of the hands for their efforts. In the past eight years I have accompanied "my kids" to parades throughout Ontario — even in Montreal, one bystander had a "Yea Belleville!" for them.

Can we at home offer them less?

MERLE BRENNAN

The Christmas Parade

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like, through your paper to congratulate Don Foster, and his helpers, for the excellent Santa Claus parade on Saturday morning. They could have used two or three more good bands otherwise it was one of the best I have seen.

I would like to see Mr. Foster acclaimed as Citizen of the Year for this effort.

Good work, Don.

James II of England threw the Great Seal of England into the Thames 281 years ago today—in 1688 —and fled for France but was captured at Sheerness and imprisoned in London. The crown had been offered to William of Orange and William had landed with 14,000 men four weeks before. James escaped successfully Dec. 23 and Parliament declared the throne vacant and offered the crown to William and his wife Mary, James' older sister.

Philistines Aussie-Style

Montreal Star

Are the Philistines alive and well and living in Sydney, Australia?

Members of that city's vice squad descended upon a bookstore the other day, seized a poster depicting Michelangelo's famous statue of David, charged the manager with trafficking in obscenity, and arrested two customers into the bargain. The customers had had the effrontery to protest art criticism by police officers.

It recalls the fig-leaf furore about Farview shopping centre four years ago when certain brigades of decency forced poor David to take sanctuary in Loyola's Vanier Library. He hasn't dared reappear.

Saskatchewan's Car Insurance Plan Still Going Strong

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan government's automobile insurance plan, the only government-owned and operated one in Canada, has never lost money since its inception in 1946.

When the plan was passed by the Saskatchewan legislature April 4, 1946, Premier T. C. Douglas of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, the predecessor of the New Democratic Party, explained to the taxpayers what they were getting.

For a $5 premium—$3 on the car registration and $1 on the licence—private drivers received pain, suffering and out-of-pocket expense benefits, disability benefits and payment for death or dismemberment. Commercial users paid more for the same coverage.

A wage earner could get $30 a week while disabled up to a maximum of $2,000 and dismemberment benefits ranged from $250 for loss of a thumb to $2,000 for loss of both hands or feet.

If a motorist was killed, his family could receive up to $5,000, depending on the number of his dependents.

Critics of the plan said it would never work and the province would be pouring money away on a benefit well handled by private industry. They also opposed the plan because it was compulsory for all drivers.

In the first year, there were more than 3,000 traffic accidents and the province paid $297,895 in claims. However, the government insurance office received $645,791 in premiums.

The province came out of the first year with more than $300,000 in surplus funds and has been in the black ever since, largely because of a provision Mr. Douglas explained this way:

"The one thing I want to impress upon you is that the government does not stand to make a single dollar out of this scheme. . . .

"If the cost is less, then the money you have contributed will be kept in the fund and will be used to give you more extensive coverage and higher benefits."

Since 1946, there has been a marked rise in the number of accidents and a corresponding rise in the claims paid.

However, the insurance plan is still operating at a profit.

In 1968 there was $23,857,851 paid in premiums and the insurance office paid $23,116,724 in claims, expenses and taxes—leaving a surplus of $157,866.

Government insurance office officials said recently there is about $5,000,000 in surplus funds accumulated since the plan began in 1946.

There have been some changes in the plan since the first $5 premium.

Drivers pay $85 a year for a $35,000 package with $200 deductible for collision and comprehensive claims. Most buy extra insurance from private companies or government insurance offices but the total rates compare favorably with most regions in North America.

Because it is the only plan of its kind in Canada, the Saskatchewan plan has been the target of criticism from private insurance companies.

John E. Lowes of Peterborough, Ont., president of the Ontario Insurance Agents' Federation, was the latest critic when he called the Saskatchewan plan "the cruelest hoax ever perpetrated on a province."

He charges that even with government support and tax exemptions as a Crown corporation, it was running deeper in the hole every year.

Dave Boldt, who has held the highways portfolio in the cabinet of Ross Thatcher since the Liberal government took over from the CCF in 1964, said Mr. Lowes' remarks were insulting and misleading.

He said the government has never supported the insurance fund from the provincial treasury and the insurance office pays its own taxes and grants.

Mr. Boldt said he was convinced the present plan was the best method of dealing with car insurance.

"As a matter of fact the insurance industry was invited to submit a better plan to the government. The offer found no takers."

Special Council Committee To Appeal Assessment

A special delegation from Hastings County Council will go to Queen's Park to investigate the possibility of county municipalities appealing assessment factors which would result in drastic increases in their educational levies.

Included in the delegation will be county clerk-treasurer-administrator Carl E. Bateman and reeves Thomas Burnside, Burton Morton, and William Shannon.

Discussion on new assessment factors for determining educational levies took considerable time during the two-day county council session here.

Several municipalities, including Stirling and Madoc villages, Madoc Township along with Rawdon and Wallaston, said their assessment factors had been markedly reduced as a result of spot assessments done by the provincial area office in Peterborough.

In the case of Madoc Township, the reduced assessment factor would almost double the municipality's educational levy, it was stated.

Sales of certain lands bordering lakes was said responsible for the Wollaston problem, while in Madoc township the sale of agricultural land at inflated prices for non-agricultural purposes was believed the culprit.

The sale prices in real estate deals are taken into consideration when spot assessing is done to arrive at new factors for educational grants.

But reeves of Stirling and Madoc couldn't see the reason for their new assessment factors and there was a suggestion that factors used in other years may have been out of line.

Theoretically assessment factors for educational grant purposes will become unnecessary when the province's new program of full value assessments is completed.

A representative from the Department of Municipal Affairs will attend the January session of council to explain in detail how assessment factors are reached.

Council Signs CUPE Pact

Hastings County Council has ratified a new two year agreement with the Canadian Union of Public Employees (Hastings Manor) providing for pay increases and higher county contributions toward medical insurance in 1971.

The agreement also provides for nine days statutory holidays instead of eight, and three weeks vacation after five years rather than the current six years.

The county will pay two thirds of the cost of health and life insurance plans in 1971 instead of the present 50 per cent.

The rate of mileage being paid to county employees for operation of their cars has also been adjusted.

Instead of a flat rate of 10 cents per mile a graduated scale will be adopted to provide 15 cents per mile for the first 5,000 miles, eight cents for the second 5,000 miles and seven cents for everything over 10,000 miles.

PC Meeting Marks New Begining

By LINDA GELDART
(Staff Reporter)

Progressive Conservative women gathered for their final meeting last night before they become part of a newer, much more effective political organization.

It was the last Christmas party and potluck dinner for the association, which was recently voted out of existence in favor of taking up full membership with the merged young PCs and the men's group.

The new association is composed of equal numbers from each group, the women retaining a women's council in the new organization.

President of the new women's council and of the old association, Mrs. Joyce Rendell, urged members to give the newly-formed executive their full support. She called the past two years "active" ones.

President of the revamped Progressive Conservative Association, Jay Jeffrey complimented the women on their many worthwhile projects "outside the political arena".

He called the combined association a "happy blend of youth, experience and experienced party members," reminding members that any association was "only as strong as it's members."

During the meeting, Mrs. Bessie Shore officially presented 150 dolls contributed by the PC members, assisted by women of the Legion and AMAF Auxiliaries to Bob Andrus, secretary of the firefighters' association, for their toy project, to be channelled through the Christmas Exchange.

Guest speaker for the evening was Miss Flora MacDonald, a former national secretary of the Conservative party, who is presently with the political studies department of Queen's University.

Miss MacDonald this week presented personal recommendations to the Commons Privileges and Elections Committee, asking for shorter federal election campaigns, lowering the voting age to 18 and strict limits on election use of the broadcasting media.

In an interview after the meeting, Miss MacDonald enlarged on the recommendations of her report in which she calls for the complete disclosure of all campaign expenses after each election, and for political donations to parties or candidates to be tax deductible to $100.

She spoke strongly about the need for the political party as a fundamental unit in society to be able to adapt along with a fast - changing society.

"The critical role of the party is to act as a critic, offering a challenge. Problems in the community must be brought to the surface, and once found, a solution must be provided."

"The party must prove to the society that it can do something worthwhile about the problems, it must be able to contribute", she asserted.

Miss MacDonald voiced concern that "parties are failing to meet the needs of the society they claim to serve."

"Should we not be reminding ourselves that because of their special position in the democratic system, a more significant contribution is required of political parties than other groups?"

She cited the danger to political parties posed by protest movements, pressure groups, student activists — the danger that these groups will establish themselves as agents of social change giving the parties little room to manoeuvre.

Miss MacDonald concluded by saying that a new dimension of party involvement would "serve to attract and recruit potential candidates and leadership material which otherwise might go unrecognized."

Miss MacDonald will soon be leaving for a five-week tour of India and Iran where she will conduct a number of political interviews.

County Council Concerned Over Chemical-Kill Total

Chemicals being used for spraying to control roadside brush and in combatting disease among pines are killing more than is intended.

This was learned by Hastings County councillors Wednesday in discussions following the report of county weed inspector Earl Mackey.

Mr. Mackey was not too pleased with the results of the county's first attempt at roadside spraying, citing a late start and insufficient use of chemicals as the reason.

He felt a more efficient brush kill could be achieved in future years, but at the same time warned that the use of chemical brush killer could become a bigger problem than the weeds and brush. He said it may eventually be necessary to do weed cutting.

He emphasized that particular care must be taken to guard against chemical getting into running streams and polluting the water.

mr. Mackey was unable to answer a question from Deseronto reeve Donald Armitage as to whether roadside spraying killed partridge or other small game, but Reeve Jess Carr of Monteagle assured that chemical sprays could have a much wider effect than realized.

He cited the instance of spraying done in North Hastings to control the spread of a fungus condition among pines.

The fungus will not spread directly among pines but uses the wild gooseberry plant as a host before being carried on to other pine trees.

The control method is to use chemical spray to kill the gooseberry. But some of the sprays are so lethal that they leach through the ground, killing 14 - inch pines up to 60 feet away.

In one area two small blocks of timber were destroyed this way and lands and forests officials were still uncertain how long it would be before the ground would again grow trees.

Not all chemical sprays will kill birdlife directly but when ingested affect the reproductive cycle resulting in infertile eggs which cannot hatch.

'Moon' Raves

"Super" and "fantastic" is the way Belleville Theatre Guild artistic director Roy Higgins describes the guild's youthestre production of Dark of Moon and audience response to it.

The play is being held over this week with performances tonight, Friday and Saturday.

"There are only a few tickets left for Friday and Saturday," Mr. Higgins said. "But for Thursday there are quite a few left.

"I hate to see the show close," he added, "but it definitely will be closing Saturday night."

He commented that the show was still getting rave reviews from the audience.

Strangers are driving down from Toronto to see the show. They've heard about it up there.

"I'm proud of the youth and what they've done for the youth of the community. They've made people realize that youth can do something and do it together."

Press Freedom Term Misused, Says Publisher

OTTAWA (CP) — Newspaper publisher Mark Farrell said Wednesday that the old slogan "freedom of the press" is often misused to support arguments for special treatment of news organizations.

Mr. Farrell, publisher of The Star of Windsor, Ont., told a special Senate committee inquiring into the news business that press freedom consists of the same basic rights as individual citizens have and no more.

The term has been misused, misapplied and confused, he said, and it should be retired. He preferred the expression "free flow of information."

"I don't think freedom of the press has anything to do with taxation or business," he said.

Obtaining advertising revenue, or anything that interferes with it, has nothing at all to do with freedom of the press in the sense of maintaining a free flow of information, Mr. Farrell said.

Specifically, he said he disagrees with an opinion expressed Tuesday by Ralph Costello, president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, who suggested regulation of advertising rates would threaten press freedom because the regulating body would be able to exert pressure on editorial content.

Senator Douglas Everett (L—Manitoba) had asked Mr. Costello about the idea of treating newspapers, especially those with monopoly positions in a community, as public utilities. They would then be required to justify their advertising rates before a board.

Mr. Farrell, asked the same question, said such a move would have nothing to do with press freedom, although personally he would hate regulation of rates.

He told Senator Everett he believes in charging for advertising what the traffic will bear.

Limitations are imposed primarily by competition for advertising from radio and television in Windsor, a one-newspaper city, but generally rates of newspapers in other communities are a more important consideration.

Mr. Farrell agreed his newspaper would have more latitude in setting rates than would newspapers in cities where there is competition from other dailies.

Mr. Farrell said he also disagreed with some fellow newspaper men who oppose establishment of a press council, perhaps on the British pattern, to police the press.

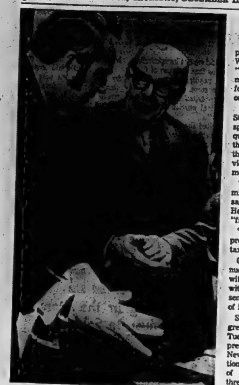
His newspaper plans to help organize one in Windsor before the end of next year. He said that in Canada, where newspapers are essentially local and there are no nationally-circulated dailies as in Europe, councils should start at the community level. Provincial and national councils could be added.

Mr. Farrell said newspaper men should make up half the membership of the councils, members of the general public the other half and the chairman should not be a newspaper man.

He told the 15-member committee, without naming the groups, that he believes two of the major newspaper groups in Canada oppose a press council and the third is in favor. The three groups are Thomson Newspapers, the Southam group and FP Publications.

Mr. Farrell said concentration of ownership of news organizations is socially undesirable because in a free society there should be the greatest fragmentation possible of the sources of opinion and dissent.

However, he said in answer to another question, he believes public ownership of newspapers would be unhealthy because they would then be subject to political pressure.



Mr. Farrell said he would like to see more foreign news coverage by The Canadian Press, the national news-gathering co-operative, especially in Washington.

Mr. Farrell said he thought it would be economically feasible for CP to step up permanent staffing abroad. The Star, which pays $90,000 a year now to CP, would gladly pay an additional $5,000 for increased foreign coverage.

On that basis, the additional income from all CP member newspapers would work out to about $200,000 a year for extra foreign staffing.

Senator Charles McElman (New Brunswick) in an evident reference to the conglomerate New Brunswick holdings of financier K. C. Irving, read out a long list of business interests including newspapers. He asked whether publishers and reporters of those newspapers would be able to report fairly about their employer's other enterprises.

"It is hard enough for a newspaper man to do a good job and all those things you cite would make it harder," Mr. Farrell replied.

Newsman, Senator

J. R. H. Sutherland (standing right), president of The Canadian Press, talks with Senator Keith Davey during an appearance at the Senate committee studying the mass media in Canada Wednesday at Ottawa. Mr. Sutherland is publisher of the New Glasgow, N.S. News. (CP Photo).

Canadian Press Policies Queried

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Press accepts into membership any applicant who has serious intent and the necessary finances, J. R. H. Sutherland, president of the national news agency, told the Senate committee on mass media Wednesday.

Under questioning by Senator Harper Prowse (Lt—Alberta), Mr. Sutherland said the news-gathering and news-distributing co-operative for 103 daily newspapers wants to avoid fly-by-night applicants who would upset the market and depart.

John Dauphinee, CP's recently-appointed general manager, said the company bylaws say simply that membership is open to any applicant able to show he can maintain a self-sustaining business.

WINS AWARDS

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto-based film company has won top awards for the six educational films it submitted to the 17th annual Columbus Film Festival, held in Columbus, Ohio. The six films submitted by Moreland-Latchford Productions Ltd., were from their series Family Living and Sex Education. Each film received the award of merit, while two, Life from Life and Glands and Hormones received the festival's highest honors.

Claims Joey's Regime Suppresses Facts

OTTAWA (CP) — The Newfoundland Liberal government attempts to suppress information to which the public is entitled, vice-president Stephen R. Herder of the St. John's Telegram said Wednesday.

He told the special Senate committee on mass media that attempts at suppression included information on tax relief available for incoming industry.

Mr. Herder was amplifying on his newspaper's brief to the inquiry. It said the Newfoundland government "snipes" at the right of an independent voice for the press.

The witness said the newspaper's rapport with the Smallwood administration is not altogether happy. In the provincial legislature, Mr. Herder said, he has been called both a knave and a jackass by the government side.

Under questioning by Yves Fortier, committee counsel, Mr. Herder said if the government sniping is in a field on which the newspaper is commenting, the newspaper will continue to comment until it runs out of comment.

Michael Harrington, the paper's editor, said the government frequently writes a letter. The paper printed the letters to the paper objecting to a story or point of view expressed by it.

The last such letter came a week or 10 days ago, he said.

Another witness, Hubert Herder, the newspaper president, said he objects to the use of the word "sniping" to describe the government action.

"He hit them," he said. "They hit us. Fair ball."

The Herder family owns the Telegram. Hubert and Stephen are cousins. Hubert's wife and the wife of his uncle, J. M. Herder, jointly own another Newfoundland daily paper, the Corner Brook Western Star.

MR. AND MRS. BRUCE GORDON

Gordon – Wannamaker

Christ Church, Belleville was the scene of the recent wedding of Lois Ann Wannamaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton E. Wannamaker of Belleville and Bruce Douglas Gordon, Belleville, son of Captain and Mrs. W. Douglas Gordon of Winnipeg, Manitoba. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. A. Lauder while organist was John Withers who accompanied the Christ Church junior choir.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white nylon sheer dress featuring a full embroidered panel down the front, lily point sleeves, portrait neckline and a bouffant skirt with taffeta cummerbund and a floor length sash. A tiered shoulder length veil fell from a circular headdress of small lace petals, seed pearls and crystals. She carried a white Bible covered with red sweetheart roses and ribbon streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Karen Beggers wearing a gown featuring an avocado velvet bodice and a lime nylon chiffon skirt with a portrait neckline and puff sleeves. It had an empire waistline and the cuffs were trimmed with Swiss daisy appliques. The headdress was of lime colored daisies and net and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow and white daisies.

Bridesmaids were Miss Linda Wannamaker, Miss Marie Wilson and Miss Connie Ellis. They were dressed similarly to the maid of honor with dresses featuring rose tops and pink skirts and carried cascade bouquets of white and pink daisies.

Flower girl was Miss Angela Wannamaker wearing a floor length gown of rose velvet with a white satin sash. The headdress was a rose velvet bow. She carried a basket of pink and white daisies.

Best man was Roger Mawdsley and ushers were Robert Gordon, brother of the bridegroom, Larry Wannamaker, uncle of the bride and Ted Embury. Ring bearer was Master Kevin Wannamaker.

For the reception held at Christ Church Parish Hall the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a deep mauve crepe sheath dress with matching chanel coat of chrysanthemum lace featuring gold trim at the neck and cuffs. She wore beige accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a green A-line imported wool knit dress featuring a wide collar of gold beading and seed pearls, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For the wedding trip to Northern Ontario the bride wore an off-white long sleeve knit dress with colored embroidery at the waist and sleeves, a brown coat, matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Both Ugly And Beautiful

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of Canada's best-known plastic surgeons says you can be ugly and beautiful.

Dr. H. Boyle Campbell of Toronto said in an interview here that beauty can be in the arch of the eyebrow or a cupid's-bow mouth.

"You can be ugly and beautiful," he said. "It's in the eye of the beholder."

Many facial disproportions can be righted by the proper use of cosmetics, new hairdos and bangs.

"Even males are wearing bangs today," said Dr. Campbell, founder of the Institute of Traumatic Plastic and Restorative Surgery in Toronto.

Many things can be corrected with the paint brush," he said, although more and more men are joining women in seeking corrective facial surgery for esthetic reasons.

"It's often the wife pushing the husband to get a nose job," he said.

White Cane Club Enjoys Yule Party

The December recreation meeting of the White Cane Club took place at the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday evening. President Pat Baverstock welcomed the many members and their escorts, and Mrs. Maude Rollins presided at the piano for the opening songs.

Wilma Morris announced the names of members who had a December birthday. Mrs. Lillian Bridge and Mrs. Elizabeth Davis were the winners of the birthday prizes. Inspiring Christmas messages were read from Mrs. Mary G. Patterson, National President of the CCB and from Jack Bews, Kingston, president of the Ontario division.

Mrs. Rollins read several humorous poems and recorded music was enjoyed through the courtesy of Bob Gill.

The scrambled "Christmas words" game was won by Clarence Morris and the "nut game" proved to be most popular. Soft drinks were very welcome thirst quenchers.

The exchange of gifts between the members was a highlight of the evening and boxes of chocolates provided by the former Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary were distributed.

An interested friend of the Club donated three prizes which were drawn.

Special Christmas refreshments were provided and served by wives of Kiwanians. Wilma Morris thanked the women and the president extended seasons greetings to everyone. The Lions Club was commended for faithful service over the years.

Ann Landers

Candy Shop Worker Is Compulsive Eater

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife works in a fine candy shop whose confections are nationally known. When Lena went to work there last year, she was told the store had a policy — employees can eat all the candy they want in the shop, but they cannot take even one piece home. Lena has gained 30 pounds on this job and she wasn't skinny to begin with. Now she is out of sight. I think I know what is causing her plightness. Lena feels she is underpaid and is trying to get even with her boss by eating up the profits. Also, whenever she gets mad about something, she eats a few pounds of chocolates to make herself feel better.

ANN LANDERS

I once had a fat aunt whom I couldn't stand. My wife is getting to look more like that aunt every day. It is ruining our marriage. What's your advice? — BARNEY.

DEAR BARN: Lena should get a job in a fertilizer plant, a glue factory, or a hardware store — any place where she won't be tempted to eat up the profits. She could also use some counseling, since it is obvious she is a compulsive eater.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 27 years old, attractive, have a wonderful husband, and to look at me you'd think I was the happiest woman in the world. But I'm miserable. Please listen to my story. If you think I am crazy, say so.

I married at 18 to get away from the home and hands of a filthy stepfather. I had seven babies in less than 11 years and they are all healthy and beautiful. My husband is the world's best. He comes straight home from work, helps with the children, doesn't drink or gamble and he never looks at other women. He is a good provider, very considerate and never lets a day go by without telling me he adores me.

My children keep me busy, but I still have time to dream. And what do I dream about? A real romance. I have never been in love and I resent being cheated out of life's most beautiful and exciting experience. At times I feel so guilty about not being in love with my husband that I become physically sick. Would I feel better if I confessed that I don't love him? I am — DEPRESSED IN MICHIGAN.

DEAR D.: I'm not sure you don't love him. Your adolescent fantasies have given you a false concept of love. You need to grow up, reshape your values and become aware of the good life you now have. Bet some counseling. If you unload your guilt on a paid listener, you will no longer feel the need to "confess" to your husband, which would be a big mistake.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: To be perfectly honest, I doubted the value of your column till I read your advice on tranquilizers. I realized then how much good you do. I now know that your column can save lives.

I was given tranquilizers by my physician to get me through a marital disaster. Instead of going for periodic check-ups, I simply kept requesting refills on the telephone, which he granted. I didn't realize I was becoming hypersensitive, over-emotional, argumentative, and unrealistic in my approach to every-day problems. Nor did I realize I was dangerously close to cracking up. A dear friend, during a bitter argument shouted, "For God's sake, those pills are making you a sick girl! See a doctor."

I did and it saved me. Please, Ann, tell your readers that a doctor can't watch every patient for personality changes. The patient and his family should be alert to behavorial changes and report them at the earliest moment. — BACK TO REALITY.

DEAR REAL: Glad you're back. Thanks for the testimony.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Choice of Sauces for Plum Pudding

By MARY MOORE

If I am foolish enough to ask my crowd if they would like hard sauce or hot pouring sauce on their Christmas Plum Pudding the answer I get is "Hard Sauce and Soft Sauce."

So having asked I have to make both and you may want to too. However you have a choice for today I am giving you the recipes for both and they are easy to make.

HARD SAUCE

¾ cups (6 tbsps.) butter (no substitute)
1½ cups unsifted icing sugar
¼ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. sherry or brandy or rum (or orange or apple juice)
½ tsp. almond extract
Nutmeg

Measure butter, icing sugar and salt into beater bowl and beat until very light. Beat in the 2 tbsps. of liquid of your choice and the almond extract until blended. Spoon onto small fancy serving dish and peak up top surface with fork tips. Sprinkle sparingly with nutmeg. Refrigerate until hard. (NOTE: If desired this hard sauce may be made two or three days in advance and slipped into a plastic bag and stored in refrigerator until Christmas dinner dessert time.)

LEMON-NUTMEG SAUCE (Sea)

NOTE: This, too, may be made in advance and may be reheated at meal time.

1 tbsp. corn starch
½ cup light brown sugar
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. nutmeg
¼ cup lemon juice
1 cup boiling water
2 tbsps. butter

Mix well together dry in a small saucepan the corn starch brown sugar, salt and nutmeg. When thoroughly blended stir in the lemon juice and boiling water and cook, stirring until thick. Remove from heat and stir in butter. (If to be stored let cool and pour into glass jar with cover and refrigerate until needed. Then reheat and serve in saucebout.)

Please clip these pudding sauce recipes and file them where you can find them easily at Christmas time.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

SUNDAY
(Guests)

Swiss - Barbecued Blade Steaks (see Friday); Mashed Potatoes; Broccoli; Tomato and Olive Salad with French Dressing; Dressing; Orange Tapioca Cream; Tea.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mrs. Jones: "I'm so glad to see you. I didn't know Mary Anne. She's put on so much weight."

If your child has a tendency to overweight, don't make the mistake of trying to humiliate her into dieting by discussing her weight in public. It may make her want to eat even more to comfort her damaged ego.

Mother: "Mary Anne and I are going shopping for a new guitar. She plays with a group of singers and also with the school band."

Mrs. Jones: "That sounds like fun. What kind of guitar are you going to buy, Mary Anne?"

Abortions Common

LONDON (AP) — A Hungarian scientist told a conference here that abortion is the world's most common method of birth control and about 30,000,000 are performed each year. Prof. Andras Klinger said the proportion of abortions to live births is about the same whether countries have strict or liberal abortion laws.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

SPRINGBROOK - BONARLAW WI

Thirty members and visitors attended the Women's Institute meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. James Spry.

The president presided opening with the ode and Mary Stewart, collect in unison. Mrs. W. Barlow gave reports of money donated to various organizations and $132.25 was sent in to the blind fund from this district. The card party brought $19. Parties will be held the first and third Tuesdays of each month during the winter.

It was decided to purchase a large coffee maker for the hall and other necessities. The Christmas meeting will be held on December 17 at the home of Mrs. Gerald Burkitt.

An address on education was given by Mrs. Everett Heath and Mrs. C. Ray pot on an interesting demonstration of liquid embroidery.

The meeting closed with a lunch served by the hostess.

Women Claim To Be Witches

CHIC DESIGN — This brown and white belted woollen coat, designed by Carosa of Italy, has a white linen collar and is worn with matching white hat. (CP Photo).

HALIFAX (CP) — A housewife, a university student and an office worker here recently confessed to being witches, and agreed to be interviewed if their names were withheld.

The first witch, a housewife and mother, said she had been interested in witchcraft for 20 years.

"I'm interested in the practice of both white magic (power for good) and black magic (power for mischievous purposes) but I lean towards the black," she said.

A firm believer in spiritualism, she would like to locate a medium to communicate with a close relative who died about a year ago.

This Halifax witch corresponds regularly with the leader of a group of witches in the United States, and once attended a witchcraft service.

"We stood around in black robes while the leader went through a number of incantations. Then a cat was killed and offered up to the god Pan."

The university student developed an interest in witchcraft only a few years ago, and before coming here, used to meet with a group of girls to study the subject and practise their powers.

She claimed she could sense others' pains and read people's thoughts, but said she couldn't always use these powers.

The office worker, who is also a housewife, has been a witch since childhood.

She believes there is a supernatural power from which can be obtained certain powers, and she practises witchcraft as a religion in her home.

She claims she has predicted accurately the date of winter storms, and believes people with stronger powers than hers can communicate with the dead.

She said she believes in using her powers for good but she can "hex" people if necessary.

"In most cases, my hexes work."

Astral projection—making the spirit come out of the body—she claims to have experienced to a minor degree.

"When my spirit comes out I get the feeling I want to float away—but I don't dare."

Columnist Finds It Helps to Be Objective

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: If I had any advice to offer about your column, it would only be this — suit yourself. It's absolutely impossible to please everyone and when we try to please everyone, we too often end up pleasing no one.

The answer is to please ourselves. Funny part of it is, in this way we often end up pleasing the most readers.— Shirley May

Dear Shirley: Thank you. I suppose my best advice to most people is along the same lines — to be yourself. And, like everybody else, when it comes to applying things to myself, I find it helps to be objective.

* * *

Dear Doris: My nervous habit is pulling my hair out.

The doctor told me the hair would grow back but it does not seem to grow very fast. — Hair Puller

Dear Hair Puller: Just another version of the nail biting, knuckle cracking, finger picking, nose rubbing, related to tension and an assortment of fang-ups. Has a lot to do with what you are doing with your life and the way you live it.

My psychiatric consultant mentions such things as "frustrated ambitions, unmet perfectionistic standards, unexpressed resentments". Can you think of some ways in which you could take disappointments in your stride a little better; expect a little less of yourself and the others around you? Or develop a hobby that would give you something useful to do with those high - strung hands of yours?

Take a look at yourself in the mirror and see whether you like having less hair. With enough personal pride, you might make better use of those pent-up tensions on techniques I could send you about hair care, skin care, and all the rest of how to look nice.

Dear Doris: My problem is my ears. They stick straight out. I understand having your ears pinned back is a minor operation. I am 17 and would like to know the cost of such an operation and the name of a doctor.

Also, my sister has a large humpy nose. She is 19 and would like information as doctors, operations, cost, etc. — Big Ears

Dear Big Ears: A plastic surgeon can successfully pin your ears back. Charge is about $125 per ear, and part of this would be covered by insurance.

Nose operations cost between $400 and $500, but these are covered fully by insurance only if the nose has been damaged as the result of an accident. Your family doctor or general hospital will supply names of plastic surgeons.

You can't solve all your personality problems by fixing up a couple of physical defects. Just the same, appearance helps. Good luck!

Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope.

Benson Will Urge Provinces To Curb Spending, Borrowing

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will redouble its efforts today to discourage the provinces from entering into new borrowing and spending commitments as long as inflation remains the No. 1 economic problem in Canada.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson meets with provincial treasurers for an annual two-day conference on the economic outlook and related matters. Along with inflation, his proposed tax reform is the key topic of discussion.

The conference is closed to the press and public.

It will first be given confidential assessments of current and prospective economic trends by the finance department and the Bank of Canada.

A qualified informant said the government expects growing pressures on it to ease current tight money and fiscal restraint policies, but the government is determined to resist these pressures.

The weakening this week of the New York Stock Exchange is being watched closely. The Dow-Jones industrial index dipped to a three-year low this week, and this is taken as an indication of a need for the United States to start pumping more life into its growth economy.

While Canadian stock markets have shown less softness, the argument is that Canada must also need to slacken the reins on its economy.

A finance department source said the softening of the stock markets is an indication of the effects of tight money and spending restraints beginning to bite into the inflationary psychology of the country.

But Finance Minister Benson said recently he was not yet satisfied that sufficient heat had been taken off the inflationary pot. The lid will have to be kept on.

Canadian Legion States Veterans Short-changed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Legion says disabled war veterans in Canada are short-changed on benefits compared to their comrades in arms in the United States.

In a brief to be presented to the Commons veterans affairs committee today, the Legion says a U.S. veteran who lost a leg gets $107 a month more compensation than a Canadian with a similar disability.

Loss of both feet pays the U.S. veteran $200 a month more than the Canadian and a U.S. paraplegic gets $6,000 a year more than a Canadian veteran.

The brief argues for higher payments to veterans with multiple disabilities.

FLQ Member Acquitted

MONTREAL (CP) — Charles Gagnon, a member of the terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecois, was acquitted Wednesday of a non-capital murder charge arising from the death of a 65-year-old woman in a 1966 terrorist bombing.

The verdict by a Court of Queen's Bench jury, after 2¼ hours of deliberation, ended a trial which had become a cause for Quebec nationalists who protested the three-year detention without bail of Gagnon and Pierre Vallieres.

Gagnon, 31, a former sociology professor at the University of Montreal, still faces trial on conspiracy charges in connection with three FLQ bombings in 1968.

Vallieres, 32, a former news paper man and a member of the FLQ, is currently on trial on a non-capital murder charge arising from the same bombing.

Gagnon's acquittal Wednesday was in connection with the non-capital murder of Therese Morin, killed in a May, 1966, bombing at the H. B. La Grenade Lizer, shoe factory in east-end Montreal.

Testimony revealed that the bomb-maker recruited a 16-year-old student to take the bomb to the shoe factory, where another alleged FLQ terrorist had planted it.

The Crown contended Gagnon was present at a secret FLQ meeting in April, 1965, at which the La Grenade factory was selected by an FLQ "central committee" as a bombing target.

However, two accomplices in the bombing, both serving penitentiary terms, testified Gagnon was not a member of the committee and was absent when the decision was made.

CNR Financing Will Be Scrutinized by Transport Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill enabling the CNR and Air Canada to borrow $365,000,000 won Commons passage Wednesday after the government agreed to send the question of CNR financing to the House transport committee for scrutiny.

The compromise resulted in NDP withdrawal of a move to kill the bill by postponing second reading for six months.

In a swap arranged Tuesday night, the opposition agreed to pass the bill Wednesday if the government would give the transport committee power to carry out a full-scale review of the railway's long-standing debt of nearly $2,000,000,000.

Also referred to the committee was the question of pensions for retired CNR employees. Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) called the pensions inadequate.

Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West) said MPs are concerned about the CNR debt because it may wreck the railway system and saddle Canadians with an unpayable debt.

The debt had caused the CNR to cut employment by 4,000 since 1950, to reduce passenger services, and to pay insufficient attention to maintenance, he said.

"Stations have developed into dilapidated rural slums. There has been an increase in wrecks," Mrs. Rose said.

Mr. Rose and Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) said CNR and CPR telegraph services have been diminished by integration. Mr. Macquarrie said there is a communications blackout on weekends and in the evenings, when these offices are closed.

Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) and Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) emphasized the need for a national transportation policy.

Apollo's Crewmen Back in Sunshine

HOUSTON (AP) — Basking in the sunlight and fresh air, the Apollo 12 astronauts were released Wednesday from a 20-day quarantine and moved about freely for the first time in almost a month.

"You don't know how good that sun feels," Charles Conrad Jr. said as about 300 persons welcomed the astronauts to freedom.

"It's just real fine to be back and out," he said. "I want to stand in the sunshine and thank everybody who had anything to do with Apollo 12."

Progress Made

Robarts Says Centralist Tendencies Stalled

OTTAWA (CP) — For Ontario Premier John Robarts, what others may see as failures of the federal-provincial conference on the constitution count as its successes.

"We are making progress, we are getting things done," he told reporters Wednesday.

"The pace may seem slow but no one should expect us to rewrite the constitution in one or two years. If we are not making firm decisions, we are laying out the areas in which decisions must ultimately be made."

No one can say progress was not made when the provinces succeeded in protecting the existing constitution against "centralist tendencies" of the federal government, Mr. Robarts said after the conference winded up.

Among developments he counted as successes:

—Other provinces had shown that Quebec, contrary to the statements of its leaders, does not "stand alone" against English Canada.

—Rejection of federal proposals on social assistance, taxing and spending powers: "Isn't elimination of unwanted proposals making progress?"

—Strong support from other provinces for Ontario's position that government leaders are not yet ready to make decisions in such fields as the division of powers.

"We are much closer to agreement in many areas than you might suspect," he said, but he did not elaborate.

On a side issue, Mr. Robarts rejected a request from urban representatives attending the conference that a federal-provincial-municipal meeting be held to discuss constitutional blocks to federal assistance to municipalities.

Mr. Robarts said he "sees no virtue" in a three-level conference and he does not believe the constitution prevents federal aid to the cities, directed through the provinces.

It was "perfectly possible" for Ottawa to help the cities without dealing with them directly in an invasion of provincial jurisdiction.

"We have all the machinery ready and available to let them participate, but in a constitutional way and not to the exclusion of the province."

Mr. Robarts agreed that because of separatist sentiment there "may be a timetable within which Quebec must act." But he found it difficult "for the premier of Ontario to express the same urgency."

He has predicted it may take 10 years to complete such reform.

Mr. Robarts said the division of taxing and spending powers is the most controversial area of reform and therefore will result in the lengthiest discussion.

In rejecting assertions that Quebec stood alone at the conference, Mr. Robarts noted Ontario and British Columbia opposition to a federal bid for the right to make payments directly to individuals in fields of provincial jurisdiction and their refusal of a proposal that federal authority should be paramount in the field of income insurance.

He said the combined opposition of the three largest provinces did not indicate an alliance with Quebec but a common desire to stop "erosion" of provincial powers

Western Three Still Claim Priority Wrong

OTTAWA (CP) — Three Western premiers, led by a single-minded Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, talked dollars and cents Monday through Wednesday at the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

Mr. Thatcher said they talked dollars and sense. The conference was an "exercise in futility" and nowhere near as important at present as the "economic crisis" faced by Western Canada.

After 2½ days of Western gripes, covering complaints on subjects from freight rates to the grain glut, Prime Minister Trudeau said a closed conference will be held here Feb. 16 to discuss economic matters.

Premier Ed Schreyer mentioned Manitoba's economic difficulties, seeking aid from Ottawa, but did not make a warm issue of them at his first constitutional conference. "He wasn't here to bitch," said an aide.

Was Mr. Thatcher?

Well, said the Saskatchewan leader, constitutional reform had not been his No. 1 priority.

"That's not the issue. Economic problems are the issue. We should get down to bread-and-butter matters," Mr. Thatcher said.

Ed Gerhart, Alberta's attorney-general, summed it up this way:

"Many of these constitutional issues, we feel, would not be constitutional issues if we got down to the basic problem of tackling inflation and other economic problems.

"I wonder if Quebec would retain some of its constitutional demands if it was in Ontario's position, for example; if Quebec could attract more industry and expand economically."

Premiers W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and Harry Strom of Alberta were allied with Mr. Thatcher on economic matters, though infrequently so on constitutional subjects.

At one stage, the three froze Mr. Schreyer out of a luncheon session that produced a joint declaration of war on tax proposals in a recent federal government white paper.

Mr. Schreyer said he didn't really mind; he didn't agree with all their objections to the paper.

When the conference ended, Mr. Thatcher said he does "not want to go through another televised talkathon on the constitution. The other Westerners said there had been little progress.

In constitutional questions, Mr. Bennett and Mr. Strom stood as champions of provincial autonomy. Mr. Thatcher and Mr. Schreyer called for strong central government.

Mr. Bennett and Mr. Strom called for a guaranteed annual income plan, to replace the current equalization grant system in which Ottawa transfers money to the poorer provinces from the richer ones—Alberta and B.C. among the latter.

The two said the grants had not helped solve the problems of the poor or of regional economic disparities.

The B.C. premier urged Ottawa to set up a royal commission to study the income plan and welfare schemes. He offered staff and money to help. Mr. Trudeau said a commission would mean more delays.

Several times Mr. Bennett complained about "centralism" and said Ottawa should have more confidence in the regions of Canada. Many problems could be solved through "dovetailed" regionalism.

All four Western provinces sought more money from the tax coffers. Premier Bennett made the loudest bids, saying B.C. has special problems because of its rapid growth.

Mr. Bennett said B.C. industry is hurt by federal tariffs so B.C. should get a share of the revenue from them. Indeed, he said, the provinces should get half this revenue.

Tariffs were attacked by Mr. Thatcher, as well, as he accused Ottawa—and the railways —of ignoring Western problems. Ottawa apparently felt they would disappear if ignored long enough.

At one stage, Mr. Bennett all but accused the federal government of trying to tax real property. He demanded that a new constitution specifically bar Ottawa from this field.

These were some of the questions raised, and the answers given by the Western premiers, in and out of the conference hall:

1. Should Ottawa be able to make income support payments, such as guaranteed annual income cheques and aid to the aged, directly to citizens of a province?

B.C.: All right, but Ottawa should not be too powerful. Alberta: Yes, but not in areas of provincial constitutional jurisdiction. Saskatchewan, Manitoba: Yes.

2. If a province stays out of a shared-cost program; how should Ottawa refund money collected in that province for the program, to the government or the citizen?

B.C., Alberta: The government, as long as it provides the services in question. Saskatchewan: The government, with no strings attached. Manitoba: "Probably" the government.

3. What approval should Ottawa shared-cost programs in areas of provincial jurisdiction?

B.C., Saskatchewan: Approval of legislatures in three of five regions—B.C., Prairies, Ontario, Quebec, Atlantic. Alberta: The same as long as the three include half Canada's population. Manitoba: No fixed formula; Ottawa should consult the provinces but could appeal to the electorate.

4. Should federal law take precedence over provincial law in the field of pension programs?

B.C., Alberta: No. Saskatchewan, Manitoba: Yes.

5. Should Ottawa continue to have access to all tax fields?

B.C.: All fields but real property tax. Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba: All fields.

6. Should a new constitution spell out an obligation for the federal government to alleviate regional economic disparities?

B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan; No. Manitoba: Not as a legally enforceable clause but it might be mentioned as a "national objective" in the constitution's preamble.

Atlantic 4 Get Gains

OTTAWA (CP) — Economics, not language or culture, is the prime issue for the Atlantic provinces in a new Canadian constitution. The region's four premiers made that clear at the federal-provincial conference that ended Wednesday.

They counted some gains during the three-day session. Premier Smith of Nova Scotia led a campaign seeking constitutional recognition of below-average economic opportunity, or regional disparity, in some parts of Canada, especially the Atlantic provinces.

The gains, he said, included an agreement set out in the official conference communique. It said "that the objective of reducing disparities across the country should be written into the preamble of a revised constitution as a basic goal of the Canadian people."

Ottawa and eight provinces also agreed that the federal government should have the power to spend money to relieve regional disparities in personal income, economic development and standards of public services.

However, Mr. Smith failed, despite support from Premier Campbell of Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland's Premier Smallwood, to get a provision in the constitution making relief of regional disparity an obligation, although not a legal one, for federal and provincial governments.

The Nova Scotia premier said he was not disappointed by this.

The Atlantic premiers ran into some opposition from prosperous British Columbia and Alberta. Premiers Bennett and Strom advanced the view that a guaranteed annual income would remove disparities between individuals and lessen regional inequalities.

William Rowe, Newfoundland's 27-year-old community development minister, considered this view. He told the conference that even if a guaranteed minimum income were in effect, and economic development in Newfoundland reached Ontario levels, there would still be a large gap in standards of public services such as roads, hospitals and schools.

The two western premiers also attacked regional development on other grounds.

Premier Bennett said: "Trying to freeze everybody in unsound development areas will not be good for this nation."

Premier Strom suggested it might be better to move people out of economically depressed areas both within provinces and within the country.

"I believe that we must always keep in mind that there is a need for bringing people to opportunity rather than opportunity to people," he said.

Election Sharpens Issue

Talks Heighten Quebec Dilemma

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec has been saddled by the West with a big political problem:

How can he sell the idea of constitutional revision to Quebecers when some other governments don't want a thing to do with it?

The leader of Quebec's governing Union Nationale party will likely have to find an answer in 1970, when a Quebec general election is to be held.

One day before the federal-provincial constitutional conference ended here, Mr. Bertrand said one thing accomplished during the talks was that everyone agreed on the need for a new constitution.

But Wednesday, with the three-day meeting over, the premier said some governments in the West favor abandoning the constitutional talks.

Singled out was Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, who told a reporter:

"What are we all doing discussing the constitution? That's not the issue. Economic problems are the issue."

This set of priorities multiplies problems for the Union Nationale, which came to power in 1966 under the late Premier Daniel Johnson.

Its spokesmen claim to follow a middle-of-the-road constitutional policy between the Quebec separatists and Ottawa federalists.

But some pr1ay members, including Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Marcel Masse, wonder whether the Union Nationale has not run into a dead end.

Mr. Masse said in an interview during the conference that the Union Nationale might one day have to choose between "orthodox federalism" and separatism.

The 33-year-old minister leans more toward separtist leader Rene Levesque than toward Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Masse told reporters Mr. Trudeau's "uncompromising attitude" strengthens Mr. Levesque's arguments that dialogue with Ottawa is impossible.

But what of Mr. Bertrand, the 53-yer old lawyer who gained control of the party leadership this year after succeeding Mr. Johnson in 1968?

But Mr. Bertrand's position as the guardian of Daniel Johnson's "political testament" is difficult.

He is committed to a constitutional policy elaborated by Mr. Johnson and would have difficulty changing it, even if he wanted to.

Alternatives to the Union Nationale party in the 1970 elections include the Quebec Liberals and the separatist Parti Quebecois.

It is among the provincial Liberals in these Trudeau times that the tendency to push the constitutional question into the background is most pronounced.

All three candidates for the January convention to pick a successor to retiring Liberal Leader Jean Lesage give the economic issue a priority place.

But the Liberals, officially, are also in favor of a new Canadian constitution involving decentralization of powers.

Thus any unwillingness in English Canada to make constitutional change tends to undermine the position of both the province's major parties.

Mr. Levesque says separatists are in the minority, but argues that his Parti Quebecois could become the official opposition in 1970.

In any case, Mr. Bertrand still has room to manoeuvre, especially in the timing of an election he now says will be held in 1970.

It remains to be seen whether he will call the election before or after the next scheduled constitutional conference in June.

Ontario Plans Own Conference To Discuss Plight of Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario plans its own conference on urban problems in the spring and sees no virtue in a three-level conference ringing in the federal authority, Premier John Robarts said Wednesday.

He told a news conference at the close of the federal-provincial constitutional conference that a meeting with Ontario municipalities will be held, probably in April.

As far a federal-provincial-municipal conference, Mr. Robarts said "there is quite a bit going on now without adding anything to it."

Ontario has not yet considered the request issued Tuesday, of municipal representatives for such a meeting. The call came from municipal authorities who attended the constitutional talks as observers.

"How many conferences can you have?" Mr. Robarts asked.

"We plan a provincial-municipal conference that will discuss many matters of importance to them. I don't see much virtue in a three-level conference at this stage."

The provincial meeting is expected to last about three days and will bring together selected representatives from Ontario's 900 municipalities.

Federal participation in municipal affairs must be through the provinces, Mr. Robarts said. Ottawa could not "deal with the cities in isolation."

"We are able to solve urban problems with federal participation, but there is too much provincial planning and involvement in the cities for Ontario to be excluded."

The province had "all the machinery ready and available for federal participation" in urban problem-solving through provincial channels.

Mr. Robarts said there was no deliberate plan to frustrate the federal government in Ontario's decision not to release provincial working papers before the federal-provincial conference opened here Monday.

Federal sources said Wednesday that the central government, which gave the provinces position papers on proposed constitutional changes before the conference opened, had no advance inkling that Quebec, Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia would join together in critical attacks on some federal positions.

"It is our feeling that if these meetings are to be open to the public, the information should flow out as we develop points," Mr. Robarts said.

Robert Nixon, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, and Donald MacDonald, provincial NDP leader, said in interviews Ontario had been "anti-government" in its approach to federal proposals made to the conference.

Mr. Robarts said:

"If refusal to agree to the surrender of provincial constitutional rights is anti-government, then yes, I was. But I don't see it that way."

The premier said only two or three ministers can be freed to attend a non-constitutional federal provincial meeting to be held Feb. 16 because the legislature will begin a new session the following week.

This special meeting will discuss taxation, economic questions and pollution.

Trudeau Claims Progress Made

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers return to their regular duties today after wrestling with a proposed new Canadian constitution for three days, with little apparent progress.

Among the political leaders opinions were divided on how much had been achieved, although several, including Mr. Trudeau, said the lack of progress was more apparent than real.

Reporting "substantial progress," Mr. Trudeau said that constitutional changes cannot be achieved without a great deal of discussion. And while there didn't appear to be agreement on any major point, "we explored in detail the very fundamental aspects of the division of power."

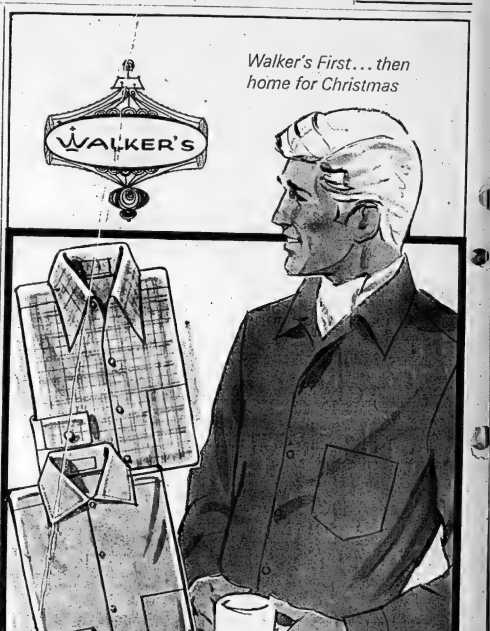
Most premiers differed in their interpretations of what had been accomplished at this, the fourth constitutional conference to be held since February, 1968. From Mr. Trudeau's "substantial progress" remark, the comments ranged all the way to "exercise in futility," by Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan.

In any event, the political leaders decided that their next session, in Ottawa on Feb. 16, would concern itself with more immediate matters, such as taxation, pollution and the economic situation. They are planning to resume the constitutional talks next June.

Both of these sessions will be closed to the press and television.

Federal officials Wednesday talked of the development of "parallel conferences" — one series dealing directly with constitutional matters, and the other, get started for next February, to deal with more immediate problems.

And some federal officials were also saying that a tactical error was committed by the Ottawa government, when it revealed its proposals in advance and the provinces did not. Until the provincial delegates were seated at the table, said one official, the federal representatives did not realize they were to be gang tackled on several of the proposals.



It wasn't always a case of gang-tackling. But there was enough disagreement on every topic to force its referral for further study, either by a committee of officials or by the political leaders themselves.

As a result, there has yet to be agreement on any major constitutional topic.

The conference even failed to reach a consensus on how a national consensus could best be obtained. The federal government has proposed that it be due to introduce shared-cost programs, but only when a national consensus favors such programs.

The leaders began working on such a formula at their last meeting, in June, and a committee of officials have been carrying on the study.

Trenton Hawks Out to Cure Seven-Game Itch

The slumping Trenton Golden Hawks, cellar - dwellers in the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League will try to snap out of the doldrums of a seven - game winless streak Friday night.

The Golden Hawks play host to the Peterborough Don Byrs, presently holding down the third spot in the league one point ahead of Belleville Ellis Juniors.

"We have been practising all week," said Trenton coach Red Gravelle. "We have made a few changes psychology - wise. We just haven't been clicking, our boys aren't playing as a team."

Newcomer Brian Wilson is expected to play his second game in the Trenton net in Friday's 8.30 game.

"Brian had the misfortune of making his junior appearance before a good - hungry Belleville club," added Gravelle, referring to last Friday's 4-0 trouncing in Belleville. "He's a good goaltender, all he needs is a little experience under his belt."

A win tomorrow night would give the Hawks seven points on the season, two less than fifth place Cobourg.

Joggers Make Fairgrounds Scene of Sunday Footwork

Belleville's Fairground will be the setting for a "Christmas Jog" between 2 and 4 p.m. Sunday, with unusual rules determining the winner.

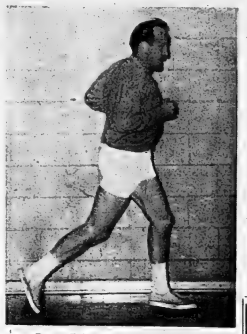
A newly - formed Kinsmen Walking and Jogging Club will be host to the event. As a promotion, members of Toronto's Fitness Club, the Road Runners of Canada, and joggers from Deep River, Ottawa and Napanee will congregate to make this event a success.

Each jogger will submit a list predicting how long it will take him to complete his specialty; from half - mile to three - mile distances. Those coming closest to matching their predicted finishing times will all be winners. "We as a club frown on any kind of direct competition that will cause a person to go beyond his or her physical capability," said Merrill Dales spokesman for the local club.

There are a lot of jogging lovers in Belleville we don't know about," added Dales. "This is our way of finding out just how popular this sport can become in this district."

One participant Sunday may be Reverend Eric Penny, a confirmed believer in the pastime.

"I endorse jogging 100 per cent," said Rev. Penny. "This is the first thing I've heard about this jog club but you can bet I am going to look into it further."



At 30, Rev. Penny was told by doctors not to expect to be able to participate in anything strenuous after the age of 40. "I am 48 years-old this year," he says, "and I feel like a million dollars."

"I started jogging just two years and nine months ago and Wednesday I completed my 1,000th mile. I owe my physical condition to jogging and physical fitness."

Medically - approved walking and jogging programs will be given to Belleville joggers and to prospective club members for activity throughout the winter, spring and summer. "Let's just say it will be a year-round thing," added Merrill Dales.

In Sunday's jog, the visitors and some of the Belleville joggers will run through the city's streets as a promotion campaign.

Club certificates will be awarded members who attain their own personal milestone of fitness. The Hastings Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association and the Ontario Heart Foundation are behind the program and those organizations' names will appear on the certificate.

Girls Bat .500

After losing to Kingston Saturday, the Barriages skated to a 5-1 win over the Napanee Royals in Napanee last night.

Marjorie Reid, Linda Empey, Valerie Brown, Judy Rappell and Susan Morton scored for the locals, with Jeanie Gerrow picking up the Napanee goal.

There were two penalties in the game with each team getting one each. Napanee's Pat Godfrey was given a two-minute penalty for playing with a broken stick while Belleville's Jerri Rushlow got the gate for two minutes on a slashing infraction.

The win brings the Barriages' season record to four wins and two losses.

Rangers Near Cup-winning Standard

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York Rangers are fast approaching a record they set back in the 1939-40 National Hockey League season, the last time they won the Stanley Cup.

Lester Patrick was manager and Frank Boucher was coach of the blue-shirts in that memorable season when they set a team record of 19 straight games unbeaten.

The 1969-70 version of the Rangers Wednesday night moved to within five games of that record when they downed the Boston Bruins 5-2.

In other games, Montreal Canadiens whipped Toronto Maple Leafs 6-3, Minnesota North Stars beat Chicago Black Hawks 8-5, Pittsburgh Penguins defeated Los Angeles Kings 2-0 and St. Louis Blues tied Oakland Seals 3-3.

The Rangers' current unbeaten string started Nov. 7 with an 8-1 victory over Oakland. In the 13 games since, they have picked up nine victories and four ties. Their 1939-40 string included 14 wins and five ties.

The Wednesday victory put the Rangers six points ahead of the third-place Bruins in the East Division standings, but the second-place Canadiens kept within four points of New York with their victory at Montreal.

Jean Ratelle led the Rangers attack with two goals before a home crowd of 17,250. Walt Tkaczuk, Ron Stewart and Rod Gilbert added single goals for New York's 16th victory in 28 games.

Goalie Ed Giacomin stopped 24 Boston shots but Bobby Orr and Johnny Bucyk put the puck behind him. It was Orr's eighth season goal and an assist on Bucyk's marker gave the Boston defenceman 40 points in the scoring race, four points ahead of second-place Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues.

Boston's Gerry Cheevers stopped 26 New York shots.

Bill Goldsworthy tipped in two rebounds off goalie Tony Esposito within an 11 second span to break a 5-5 tie with Chicago early in the third period.

The crowd of 14,762 in Minneapolis saw Claude Larose score his second goal of the night a minute after Goldsworthy's second to wrap up the Minnesota victory.

Bill Collins, Danny Grant, Danny O'Shea and Jean-Paul Parise scored single goals for Minnesota's ninth season victory to push the club to within five points of St. Louis which leads the West Division with 29 points.

The Black Hawks remained in fifth spot in the East despite the two-goal efforts of Eric Nesterenko and Pit Martin.

Lou Angotti also got the puck past goalie Perry Rivard who stopped 42 shots to keep the North Stars in the game. Esposito made 35 saves in the Chicago nets.

Forty-five-year-old Johnny Bower had his season debut spoiled in the Toronto nets with Montreal's Serge Savard getting two goals on him. Yvan Cournoyer, Jacques Lemaire and Bobby Rousseau also beat the veteran goalie.

The Canadiens' Claude Provost scored his 250th career goal into an empty net after Toronto coach Johnny McLellan pulled Bower for an extra attacker in the last minute. Montreal was leading 5-3 when Provost collected his sixth goal of the season.

The 16,640 fans saw Canadiens play without captain Jean Beliveau, left-winger John Ferguson and defenceman Jacques Laperierre.

The Canadiens had Peter Mahovlich up from their American Hockey League farm club to fill in for Ferguson who was sitting out the last of a six-game suspension in the company of Laperriere who suffered through the last of a three-game layoff imposed by league president Clarence Campbell for pushing a referee.

Russians Are Coming

RIVERS, Man. (CP) — The world hockey championship will be defended.

Russia, seven-time winner of the world title, ended weeks of doubt Wednesday night when it informed the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that a Russian team would take part in the 1970 tournament in Canada.

NOW They Consider Helmets

BOSTON (AP) — Jean-Guy Landry, who suffered head injuries when he crashed into the goal post during a semi-pro hockey game Tuesday night, died at Carney Hospital in Boston Wednesday.

The 28-year-old Moncton, N.B., native who has lived in nearby Waltham for the last 10 years, struck his ear and the side of his head in the mishap but was able to walk to the dressing room and to the police cruiser, which took him to a Weymouth hospital.

He lapsed into a coma there, however, and was transferred to Carney Hospital.

Gerry Ridge, owner of the Braintree Hawks team in the New England Hockey League for which Landry played, said he was told the death was due to a blood clot.

Ridge, who also owns the arena in Braintree where the accident occurred, said Landry had just passed the puck when he lost his footing and fell to the ice. He said Landry appeared to be trying to avoid the post as he slid toward it, but was unable to do so.

"Helmets aren't mandatory in this league now," Ridge said, "but I intend to bring it up as soon as possible and I think that there may be some new action."

He also said the league will run benefits for Landry's wife, the former Helen Richard of Waltham, and their two children, Christine, 4, and Carl Richard, four months.

Neither Chuvalo Nor Quarry Learned from Retirement

Take George Chuvalo and Jerry Quarry for example.

Quarry ran up against the same left hook in June this year, was defeated, and headed home to Bellflower, Calif., after the fight with these words: "That's it. I quit."

But Chuvalo and Quarry meet Friday night in a 10-round heavyweight bout at Madison Square Garden.

And both are looking beyond Friday night's battle to another possible, crack at Frazier and his partial claim to the world heavyweight boxing title.

Frazier scored a fourth-round TKO over Chuvalo and a sixth-round TKO over Quarry. It was the only time Chuvalo was stopped.

Chuvalo and Quarry have indicated they may retire if they lose Friday night.

The fight promises to be a bruiser.

Quarry for his part has taken note of Chuvalo's tough head.

"I'm going to do what nobody tries, shoot for his body," he said. "Why should I bust my hands on a rock?"

Another tough Canadian, Bill Drover of Wabush, Nfld., Eastern Canadian heavyweight champion, also fights on Friday night's card. He goes up against Luis Faustino Fires, a town cop from Eubanque de Camara Brazil, in a scheduled eight-round semi-final bout.

Drover earned the fight by a surprising sixth-round knockout over Forest Ward in the Garden Oct. 31 and alone has won a 10-round unanimous decision over Jimmy Christopher of Detroit in Halifax.

Namath Loses MVP Honor By Landslide to Lamonica

NEW YORK (AP) — Daryle Lamonica, whose passing has propelled Oakland Raiders to the brink of another division championship, was named the American Football League's most valuable player Wednesday for the second time in three seasons.

A panel of 30 sports writers and sportscasters, three from each AFL city, gave the 27-year-old quarterback a whopping margin over his premier receiver, Fred Biletnikoff, and New York Jets' quarterback Joe Namath, who won the award a year ago, in The Associated Press' annual poll.

Lamonica, who has fired 33 touchdown passes, 15 more than his closest AFL rival and just three less than the all-time pro record in leading the Raiders to an 11-1-1 record, received 18 votes to three each for runners-up Biletnikoff and Namath.

JOE NAMATH

The sturdy 215-pound veteran of seven AFL seasons also captured the top honors in the Raiders' 1967 Super Bowl season.

Lamonica also headed a list of seven Oakland players named to the 22-man AFL All-Star team in the ballot of 30 sports writers and sportscasters.

He captured the quarterback spot with a 24-1 margin over New York's Namath.

Center Jim Otto, making the squad for the ninth time in 10 pro seasons, guard Gene Upshaw, tackle Harry Schuh and wide receiver Biletnikoff were the other Oakland offensive selections. Cornerback Willie Brown and safety Dave Grayson represent the Raiders on the defensive unit.

Matt Snell of New York and Floyd Little of Denver Broncos were clear-cut choices as running backs. Don Maynard of the Jets beat out San Diego Chargers' Lance Alworth for the other wide receiver spot and Bob Trumpy of Cincinnati Bengals took the tight end position.

Sport Briefs

LEHIGH ACRES, Fla. (AP) — Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., and Jim King were proclaimed co-winners of the Lehigh open golf tournament Wednesday after a thunderstorm and tornado warnings cancelled the final round of play.

Norman and King, teaching pro at Mirror Lakes Country Club in Lehigh Acres, had identical five-under-par 66s.

A playoff for the championship was ruled out because of heavy rain and lightning. Both men picked up $875.

* * *

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Nevele Pride Wednesday became the first trotter in history to win harness racing's Horse-of-the-Year honors for three consecutive years when he was voted the award in a nationwide poll.

The poll, sponsored by the United States Trotting Association in conjunction with the U.S. Harness Writers Association, returned the four-year-old stallion, who has been retired and syndicated for $3,000,000, by a wide margin over Overmill.

Veterans Will Picket 'That Draft-Dodger' Clay

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Unhappy veterans plan to picket to try to stop the Cassius Clay-Joe Frazier heavyweight fight scheduled for February, an American Legion official said Wednesday.

The fight is set for Feb. 16 or 17 in Tampa Stadium.

Tom Miller, a lawyer and Legion director said it is "disgraceful that they're trying to promote a draft dodger like this man (Clay) here."

Clay, who prefers to be called Muhammed Ali, had his world heavyweight boxing title stripped from him by the World Boxing Association after he refused to be drafted into the army.

"There are about 80,000 veterans in 90 organizations in this area," Miller said. "We intend to organize a boycott of the whole thing.

"We're going to picket ticket outlets to discourage people from buying tickets for the fight and we'll do everything we can to defeat the whole idea."

CASSIUS CLAY

Clay's lawyer, Robert Arum of New York City, was in Tampa Wednesday to approve the plans of promoter Ron Gordon for the fight. Arum said he told Clay the fight had been approved.

"Clay and Frazier are guaranteed $300,000 apiece, but stand to earn well over $1,-000,000 each thanks to closed circuit television," Arum said.

Frazier is recognized by seven states as the heavyweight champion, and on more than one occasion has said he wants to "shut Clay's big mouth."

School Bus Flips Over On Icy Road in Sidney

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A lucky 13 youngsters escaped injury today when their school bus flipped on its side on an icy country road south of Belleville.

The mishap, on Sidney Township's seventh concession a mile west of Highway 14 was one of a rash of minor accidents as continual rain made Quinte rural roads treacherous.

The hazard was bared by an overnight fall of almost 1.5 inches of rain, uncovering ice as it washed away recent snows.

School buses were cancelled on a number of routes in Hastings and Prince Edward counties because of the dangerous driving conditions. In nearly all cases, concessions and county side roads were unbroken ribbons of ice.

The Sidney Township incident saw youngsters clamber to safety through the bus emergency door as it toppled across the road.

The bus, operated by Foxboro Bus Lines and driven by Carl Sine, was picking up students along the concession for nearby Marsh Hill public school.

Provincial police say the mishap occurred as Mr. Sine attempted to sow down for an oncoming car. He edged onto the snow-covered shoulder of the narrow road seeking brake traction. The vehicle slid out of control on the shale into the path of the automobile. Both vehicles halted almost alongside. In the car were concession residents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ewing on their way to work.

Meantime, in Ameliasburg Township a Hanthorn school bus bound from Carrying Place to Keene Public School, also ran into difficulties.

The bus slid into a ditch on the ice-covered Vocamp's Hill on the Gore Road.

Local farmers helped set the vehicle back on the road and the children were reported returned to their Carrying Place homes.

The dangerous driving conditions prevented operations of school buses on rural routes serving Sidney's sixth concession, the Smithfield valley near Brighton and on the Consecon-Wellington route. In the Campbellford area buses reported travelling only main roads.

Provincial police meanwhile, reported several accidents caused by the ice in the Belleville-Prince Edward area. However, none was serious.

The rain set in early last night as temperatures suddenly warmed in the Quinte district — moving up from a low of 17 degrees Wednesday morning to 35 degrees by 2 a.m. today.

However, the mercury should begin dropping today, reaching a low of 28 degrees early Friday morning.

With the colder weather front, said the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton, snow could be expected in the area starting early this afternoon.

While the snowfall might be light away from water anywhere from two to four inches could be expected in the Lake Ontario shoreline zone of Prince Edward, he warned.

Christmas Busy Time For Salvation Army

an exceptionally busy time for the Salvation Army, Friday the familiar kettles will be on the street, corners in Napanee, collecting funds to help finance their work for the old, the sick and the needy.

Tuesday and Wednesday of next week the group League of Mercy will visit nursing homes, taking small Christmas gifts to each resident, along with Christmas greetings. Tuesday they will visit the large Quinte Beach Nursing home on the outskirts of Deseronto, and on Wednesday the two smaller nursing homes in Napanee.

But it is the Christmas hampers for the needy of this area which are now causing most concern to Captain and Mrs. Richardson. They have been here only since June, and do not know, personally, who should be the recipients of these hampers. Some time ago they sent letters to 13 different representatives of townships asking for information and assistance in compiling their list, and so far have had replies from only three.

McConnell Shrine President

Harvey McConnell has been named new president of the Belleville Shrine Club, succeeding R. C. Sargent, who now becomes chairman of the board.

Other Shrine directors named this week include H. T. Doidge, secretary - treasurer, with the following committee chairmen: J. E. MacDonald, house and property; Alex Pierson, entertainment; George Muller, activities; E. Middleton, finance and public property; Al Evans, membership; Harold Bankier, crippled children, with Sam Mulholland as "rooster".

A boy in business for himself doesn't worry about summer jobs

Or fall jobs, or winter jobs, for that matter. Because the boy with a newspaper route—a junior independent merchant—has a year 'round income. The few hours he puts in each week not only provide monetary returns but the even more significant dividends of learning how free enterprise operates.

The business of learning the value of money, of keeping books, collecting, buying at wholesale and selling at retail is important. But not even money can buy the other skills acquired from route experience—learning to deal pleasantly with people, for instance, or the value of punctuality.

Your newspaperboy is learning all the time. His route experience helps him acquire the intangible skills so necessary for success both socially and professionally. He makes money at it, too.

Only about one boy in ten gets the opportunity to have a newspaper route. If you think your son or some other youngster might profit by newspaperboy route experience, why not suggest that he come in and talk to us.

Medicare Too Costly, Says MP

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward-Lennox Liberal Association held its annual meeting in Napanee last night. Guest speaker was Murray Gaunt, MP for Huron-Bruce, and the Liberal Party's agricultural critic in the Legislative Assembly.

He addressed the meeting concerning the cost of medicare, indicating that private carriers are too expensive. In his opinion one carrier could reduce administration costs to six per cent. At present the cost for administration is 12 per cent.

Touching on regional government, Mr. Gaunt suggested that it should be introduced in stages.

He felt that it should be determined whether or not the people want it. Its practicality should be considered, along with its operational costs.

During the meeting an election of officers for the coming year was conducted. Outgoing president, George Cunningham, was succeeded by Allan Bailey, Milford.

Professor James Whitely of Bath, was elected first vice-president; second vice-president is Wally Beaver of Ameliasburg; new treasurer is Mrs. Malcolm Dulmage of Cherry Valley and secretary is Mrs. Dan Nelson, Cherry Valley.

Newest Family Service

Hastings County Family and Children's Services will provide evening counselling and guidance to families to prevent circumstances requiring the prosecution of children under 16.

Beginning this week, the office will remain open from 6.30 to 9 p.m. each Tuesday evening.

"Our directors are of the opinion that at this time when so many parents seem to be having problems in their relationship with children, we should make our services as readily available as possible," said Bruce Keer, director of the local agency.

Mr. Keer made it clear, however, that the agency was not operating in the marriage counselling field.

He said the agency bylaw was a child protection agency and it was for this purpose it received its authority.

"If we use monies we receive for purposes other than those set out in the province's child welfare legislation, then we would be misusing public funds.

Difficult though it is to refuse service, we must restrict our efforts to families having children under the age of 16; families experiencing problems which if left unattended might result in the neglect of a child and the necessity of his placement away from home."

"This," he said, "includes the now all too frequent breakdown in communication which results in the alienation of the child from his parents."

Mr. Kerr said there was no doubt there was a local need for a truly family-oriented counselling service. But until citizens are able to demonstrate the need to parliamentarians and are prepared to pay the very substantial cost, there was little likelihood of the services being offered.

Initial interviews at the evening sessions will be focused on identification of the problem. Following this, it will be decided whether assistance can be given, or referral to some other source of help is in order.

TAKE NOTICE that the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville proposes at its regular meeting to be held on the 15th day of December, 1969, to pass a by-law to stop up and close the highway known as Registered Plan Number 4, in the City of Belleville, more particularly described as follows:

FIRSTLY: All that portion of Belleville Road according to Registered Plan Number 4 lying south of The Grand Trunk Railway Company's Right of Way and being composed of Lot 1 on the west side of Lot 2 on the east side of Lot 3 on the west side of Lot 4 on the east side of Lot 5 on the west side of Lot 6 on the east side of Lot

Some Landlords Plan to Sell Due New Act

TORONTO (CP) — Some landlords are considering selling their buildings because of the Ontario government's proposed new landlord-tenant Act, an executive of the Hamilton Apartment Association warned Wednesday.

William Gray spoke on behalf of the apartment owners group to the standing legal and municipal bills committee which is giving detailed consideration to the legislation.

"When it was realized that the bill takes away security deposits, the right to distrain . . . and even the right to recover possession at the end of a tenancy term, while at the same time imposing numerous legal obligations on the landlord, there were no members who could see how they could operate in a straight-forward business," his brief said.

During the committee's first public hearing into the bill, landlords attacked the provisions for abolishing security deposits, warning that rents would rise as a result.

Tenants' groups then argued that rent controls, not now provided in the bill, should be imposed to stop the "gouging" by greedy landlords.

Mrs. Vicki McIntosh, head of the 1,000-member East York Tenants Association, said rent review boards should be set up with the task of looking into present high rents in Ontario and reviewing future rent increases.

She said her association felt that apartment owners could be justified only in increasing rents from 18 to 12 per cent every two years to cover increased expenses caused by inflation.

Mr. Gray criticized the bill for not setting up new court procedures by which either landlords or tenants will be able to get quick judicial resolutions of disputes arising out of complaints under the act.

The bill would mean that a great many more labelord-tenant disputes will be brought before the court, but justice would not be done if such case took months to get through the courts.

"Without facing this practical situation, we may be creating a legislative disaster," he said.

Earlier, members of the legislature and landlords clashed over whether the abolition of security deposits will create a rise in maintenance costs for landlords that will have to be passed on to tenants in higher rents.

Representatives of both the National House Builders Association and the Urban Development Institute argued before the standing committee that abolition of security deposits will be costly to tenants in the long run.

John Switzer of the homebuilders association calculated that landlords' maintenance costs will go up 10 per cent unless security deposits are kept as a deterrent against tenant damage and dirt.

However, James Renwick (NDP—Toronto Riverdale), Vernon Singer (L—Downsview) and Douglas Kennedy (PC—Peel South) all disputed Mr. Switzer's figures and suggested that landlord threats of rent increase if the bill is passed are unjustified.

Laura Davidson Kowalsky told the committee that as a tenant of Cadillac Apartments in Toronto she is "fed up" with living "under a dictatorship of greedy landlords."

She pointed to her landlord Robert Strom, who supported the UDI brief, and said he has harassed her, financially exploited her and duped her with false promises over the last seven years.

Donald Lee, president of the 270-member Oshawa Tenants' Association, praised the bill for putting some restrictions on the privileges of landlords, but termed it unjust for not providing rent controls.

Mr. Lee termed UDI's arguments against the bill "flimflam and hogwash."

The institute was "virtually blackmailing, extorting money and otherwise threatening Ontario's tenant population with even higher rents because of the threatened . . . abolition of damage deposits."

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said neither side should make the "bald assumption" that rents will rise because of the bill until the legislation has been tried and the results analyzed.

"It is not an assumption on the part of the landlords that they're going to raise rents," replied Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth).

Pat Lawlord (NDP—Lakeshore) said he couldn't see anything in the bill, which abolishes security deposits and strengthens the legal position of tenants, that should cause rent rises.

He said landlords still will be able to demand the last month's rent in advance and that the bill provides a legal recourse for landlords to take tenants to court for damages.

William Small of Mississauga, chairman of the homebuilders association, said any new restrictions on landlords will inevitably persuade investors to seek other fields, thus increasing the housing shortage.

"The main loser, under such conditions, inevitably then has to be the tenant since the landlord is forced to pass on to his tenants the added costs arising these days in so many ways."

H. I. Stricker, president of UDI which represents about 40 per cent of Toronto apartment owners, said he is afraid that the bill will be amended to provide for rent controls.

Pesticide Did Not Harm Duck

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial government inquiry into the deaths last summer of several ducks on Toronto Island was told Wednesday that the pesticide Dieldrin was used on a test duck with no ill effects.

The evidence, contained in a report prepared for the Ontario health department, was submitted on the third day of the hearings before Dr. Martin Edwards, physics professor at the Royal Military College in Kingston, Ont.

Prof. Hubert Hughes of the University of Toronto hygiene department said in the report he conducted tests on three ducks Sept. 2 and found them unaffected even though one duck drank the chemical.

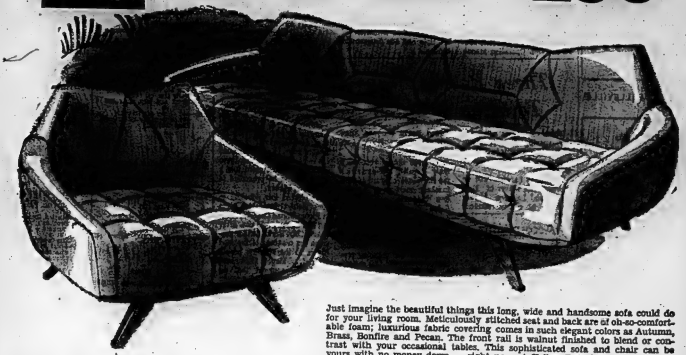
The inquiry was ordered after Pollution Probe and Group Action to stop Pollution, both private citizens' groups, questioned whether the use of Dieldrin had been connected with the deaths of the ducks.

The report by Prof. Hughes, now in New Zealand, says Pollution Probe had misused autopsy information on some ducks and improperly presented the findings to the public.

It said Dr. Donald Chant, of the University of Toronto's zoology department, had been asked for bird specimens after Dieldrin had been sprayed on the island, but his office refused to turn them over.

Dr. Chant, active in Pollution Probe, had given evidence that there was a lethal Dieldrin content found in at least one dead duck.

The report also said there was some doubt whether birds analyzed at the zoology department were actually from Toronto Island.



The hearing continues.

'Operation Manna'

Burke Sparks Action for Biafra

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

"It is the most exciting sound I have ever heard — the sound of these planes in the night . . . A sound that tells the people that somewhere, someone cares . . ."

Former CBC newscaster Stanley Burke, describing heavy flights into Biafra, was guest speaker at a Picton United Church Biafra Week rally.

More than 200 persons turned out to hear him speak during "A Service of Praise, Prayer and Peace for Biafra," sponsored by the Prince Edward County Ministerial Association.

Mr. Burke was introduced by the Biafra relief project chairman of Operation Manna, Rev. Robert Jones of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Mr. Burke's presence here tonight is like a miracle, based on faith. Operation Manna is faith all the way," said Rev. Jones.

Mr. Burke spoke for almost two hours of his "moment of decision" when he felt compelled to assist the starving people of a war torn country.

"I was in the St. Anne Camp of the French Red Cross when a Land Rover, driven by a doctor, brought in a load of these children. One of them was placed in my arms and I remember looking at the child and thinking, it is being killed as a matter of principle and our government condones it."

"If enough people care," stressed the speaker, "this war can be ended and ended quickly."

Following Mr. Burke's remarks a question period was held. Members of the gathering questioned day flights, the use of money donated to Canadrelief, the practicality of requesting United Nations intervention in the Biafran situation and other pertinent issues. Each question was dealt with in depth by Mr. Burke.

A special offering was taken by the Leacks at the close of the question period and received by Rev. Robert Sherwin, head missionary in service. United church organist Andrew Bennie played during an address sung by members of the choir of Bethany Christian Reformed Church.

Mayor H. J. McFarland, who customarily makes Christmas donations to 67 churches in this area, had announced his intention to combine these financial contributions into a lump sum to be presented to Operation Manna.

He offered this donation to Rev. Robert Jones last night in Picton United Church following Mr. Burke's address. After hearing Mr. Burke further describe the meaning of the food flights to the starving people of Biafra, Mayor McFarland publicly announced that he would augment Operation Manna with the additional sum of $2,000.

Rev. Robert Jones reported that last night's collection taken at the Rally in Picton United Church totalled $300.

Three Reeves Seek Term as Warden

Three candidates will be in the running when Hastings County Council gets to electing a new warden at its January meeting.

The three hopefuls will be Reeve John Wilkes of Marmora and Lake; a 10-year veteran at county council; Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen and Trenthiagas Reeve Carmen Gibson.

All three reeves announced their intention of contesting for the office of warden at a luncheon meeting of councillors Wednesday noon.

The December session of county council was concluded late Wednesday afternoon following two days of debates centering mainly around assessment and planning problems. It was the last session as warden for Donald Rogers reeve of Sidney, although he has received acclamation as reeve for another term.

The 1970 county council membership will see only three changes — all resulting from the retirement of this year's reeves.

Donald Armitage of Deseronto is being succeeded by George Lyons. In Madoc Township Reeve Allan Kelcher son has retired from municipal life and will be succeeded by Cecil Woods. In Faraday township Reeve Floyd Rowe is being succeeded by Jack MacKenzie, lands and forests employee at Bancroft.

Accountants Get Message

Mr. L. Kursewicz, vice - president and managing director of Bata Shoe, made a presentation on communications to approximately 60 members of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of industrial accountants at their monthly meeting.

Mr. Frank Valentine of Northern Electric introduced Mr. Kursewicz.

He noted that, in general, "we retain about 60 per cent of a communication. Many messages are misunderstood, therefore, "feed - back" is necessary. To ensure that your verbal message is being received, correctly check it by having the recipient repeat it. The best method of communication is the written message; however, even this requires "follow - up" to ensure the message is understood." Mr. Kursewicz illustrated his talk by group participation and slide projection.

Mr. George Lewis of Erie Technology thanked the speaker.

Mr. Ray Courneyea of Delow Shoals advised the chapter members that Mr. George Lewis would speak at the next meeting on "responsibility accounting".

Break-in Thieves Net $20

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning that approximately $20 in change was taken after a soft drink machine was broken into.

The thieves gained entry at approximately 10 p.m. last night by smashing a window in the building, he said.

Nothing Warlike in Research Universities Doing for U.S.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Several Canadian universities said Wednesday that they are conducting research for the United States but that there is nothing warlike or secret about their projects.

Spokesmen for the universities were replying to a recent statement by Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, chancellor of Notre Dame University in Nelson, B.C., who said 13 Canadian schools were involved in research financed by the Pentagon.

Dr. Keenleyside said the schools involved are: Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.; University of Western Ontario, London, Ont.; University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon; University of Alberta, Edmonton; McMaster University, Hamilton, Ont.; Laval University, Quebec City; University of Windsor, Windsor, Ont.; University of Waterloo, Waterloo, Ont.; University of Toronto; McGill University, Montreal; the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg; York University, Toronto; and the University of British Columbia, Vancouver.

Administrators at the University of British Columbia said five research projects funded by the U.S. armed services are being conducted on the campus.

But they said the projects have no connection with the Vietnam war and the school has forbidden research work that is secret in nature.

Prof. William Armstrong, deputy president of the university, said the five projects sponsored by the military and one by the aeronautics and space group are projects "of pure science with no direct military applications—and none of it is secret."

A University of Saskatchewan spokesman said the only research the university does which could be considered as being financed by the U.S. military is a study of the upper atmosphere.

He said the school gets about $15,000 annually from the U.S. Air Force Research Station at Cambridge, Mass., but the research is non-classified "and available even to our colleagues in the U.S.S.R."

G. A. Holmes, research grants officer at the University of Alberta, said "at the moment we have no knowledge" of any research grants from the Pentagon. He said the U.S. government contributed $21,086 towards research during the year ending March 31, 1969, but there was nothing secret about the research.

Spokesmen for York University and the University of Toronto said much of their U.S.-financed research is for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Leonard Bertin, the University of Toronto's information officer, said the university has done no classified military work for any source since the Second World War.

Dr. C. E. Hermance of the University of Waterloo's mechanical engineering department said the school is receiving between $10,000 and $12,000 annually from the U.S. Air Force "Office of Scientific Research for research into the combustion process in rockets.

"But it is not a case of doing it for the U.S.," he said. "The professor undertaking the project applied to the U.S. agency for a grant, suggesting that the agency may be interested in the findings."

Geoff MacGibbon, head of public relations at the University of Windsor, said Dr. Keenleyside must have been referring to a $32,000 annual grant made by the U.S. Air Force in 1968 and 1969 to a group studying laboratory astrophysics. But he said there is nothing secret or warlike in the work.

Britons Donate Scotch To Russians on Spyship

LONDON (Reuters) — The reconnaissance ship No. 670 was creeping along and played follow-the-leader for several days. Eventually Capt. John Frewchen of the Eagle sent a helicopter to photograph its little follower. The next day, the helicopter went back, hovered over the Soviet spyship and winched down a British officer.

With the traditional aplomb of the British Navy—almost the Nelson touch, in fact—the officer handed over a nice set of photos for the Russian family and presented the Soviet officers with a bottle of scotch.

That wasn't all.

The Russians and the British officer were enjoying the joke—and sipping the scotch as well—when bad weather blew up.

The carrier sent urgent radio signals calling the helicopter back but failed to make contact. But although the helicopter did not get the message, the crew in the Russian ship's radio shack—apparently monitoring every word from the carrier—received the word loud and clear.

The Russian radio operator hopped out on deck, passed on the message and the helicopter flew away, leaving 670 kept close on the trail.

In another incident involving the British aircraft-carrying Soviet destroyer came too close for comfort and the carrier radioed the Russians, suggesting they move to a slightly safer spot.

The unabashed Soviet skipper radioed back his apologies and an explanation—"this is my first trip on this sort of job."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Complete Physical Difficult to Get

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Complete physical? Is there such a thing? I don't want to sound like a chronic complainer, but I wonder if you know how hard it is to get one?

You have said many times in your column that patients should be honest with their doctors and tell them everything so they can diagnose better. This is why I am writing you.

The doctor I chose, when our family doctor gave up practice in our town, does not give you time to tell him everything. He hurries you out so fast you forget what you wanted to tell him.

Recently, I had my yearly "complete physical." He did a Pap test, but not much more. Didn't even ask for a specimen of my urine. Did not do any kind of blood examination. No blood pressure or temperature readings. Just a quick pelvic and rectal. No X-rays, no electrocardiograms or other special tests.

He examined my heart and lungs with a stethoscope, but I didn't even have to take off my clothes so he could really hear what was going on inside. I think I am in pretty good health — but don't really know, as I don't consider I've had a complete physical examination. Is this your idea of a good general checkup? — Mrs. D.

Comment: You know it isn't. And so does the doctor. Time is the doctor's greatest enemy these days; where physical checkups are concerned, he should refer his patient to a doctor who does complete physicals.

People go shopping for cars, refrigerators, TVs and other things. Unfortunately, they do not do sufficient shopping for doctors. Ask your medical society for names of doctors who do complete physicals. Do not depend upon guesswork or on well-meant recommendations of friends.

Dear Doctor: I am only 11 years old and plenty overweight. Please send me some advice. If my age interferes with the diet, could you possibly send me one which is my age diet? I hope I'll get a good diet. Thank you very much, sir. — Miss L.

Comment: (The advice is on the way.) Now I'm curious: I wonder if you ever realized that even an 11-year-old is weight conscious and eager for medical help?

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Please tell me if eating one-half a grapefruit or drinking an eight ounce glass of orange juice with every meal will help one lose weight. I have heard that they cut the fat in the food. — Mrs. D.

Comment: Not true.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Hello, and how are you? I would like to ask a question. If a very old and sick person was to receive blood from a very young person would it work better than a transfusion from a middle-aged one? Would he recover faster? — Mrs. G.

Comment: I doubt that it would make any difference. But it's an interesting speculation.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I wrote to you some weeks ago. I was afraid to tell my doctor I was taking LSD. I am writing to tell you that everything is O.K. I told — and am getting help. Thank you. — B.

U.S. Murder Rate Falls

In this connection, let me praise a recent corporate ad by the Olin Corp., which cites efforts to grips boldly and boldly with this delicate matter.)

What we call "destructiveness" comes from a suppressed love of life; we can see this clearly with children who are given no creative outlet for their energies — and destructiveness is a slum environment is always in inverse ratio to the number of outlets provided for their aggressive tendencies to be drained off pleasurably and harmlessly.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 12

Your birthday today: Your life in the coming year encounters special opportunities, high points, some unusual income of cash, and a great deal of public participation or exposure. Spending in the world come right to your door.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Strangers and old friends with more or less the same approach are helpful. Some of them may inspire you to intense emotional reactions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Mixed matters where you share ownership and leadership with other people.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Progress on all fronts is probable. Keep rolling with the incoming tide of energy; evaluate any important field of interest.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Everybody is more willing to help.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Teamwork produces better results today. New ideas should be coming into use, along with better skills.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your long-considered idea is most likely to be put into use by your associates now. After a day of normal routines, devote the evening to yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Creative activity blossoms into full bloom today. Presentation of whatever you do has a better chance of early success. Romantic interests are encouraged this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Higher values are attached to home furnishings, property, and investment. Anything you do now to improve your material circumstances has immediate favorable impact.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Travels, visits with friends and business contacts should work out well. Today favors new ideas and greater emotional rapport.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Steady effort now tends to pay off in sound improvement of your position.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Personal plans advance today. Someone is consulting to do which will make others much happier. Clear the week's work away as soon as conditions permit.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Keep your own counsel while you go seriously and quietly about the things that most interest you. Listening will bring better results if you pose no complex questions.

St. Ola

ST. OLA — Winners at the euchre party this week were: E. Walker, Jessie Baker, Don Palmeter, Cameron Meloche and Harry Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Martin attended the Conservative convention as delegates in Toronto last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Phillips attended the 50th wedding anniversary celebrations of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Park on Saturday evening at L'Amable.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker visited on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Young at Peterborough.

Canadian Immigration Officers Reject Four of Five in France

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian immigration officers in France last year rejected 79.8 per cent of the 40,029 applications that came before them.

The rejection rate was exceeded only in India, Portugal and Spain among 28 overseas countries where Canada has immigration officers.

However, a spokesman for Immigration Minister Allan MacEachen said Wednesday that a lot of those rejected in France aren't Frenchmen.

"It's a situation peculiar to France," the spokesman said, questioned about the figures released earlier in the Commons.

France imports a number of unskilled laborers from other European countries or Africa and these traditionally have accounted for many applications from France, he said.

Emigrants from France in 1968 numbered 8,124 or 4.4 per cent of the all-countries total for Canada. The number who were French nationals wasn't given.

French arrivals ranked sixth behind English, Americans, Italians, West Germans and Chinese.

However, the 40,029 applications were exceeded only in United Kingdom, where 108,000 migration officers handled 68,990 applications, approving 55.9 per cent.

The figures, produced by Mr. MacEachen for Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni), showed another trend as well: a reduction in applications in Western Europe and an increase elsewhere.

Pope Insists on Infallibility

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope Paul said Wednesday the reunion of all Christians into a single church would have to reckon with the Roman Catholic doctrine that the Pope is the infallible pinnacle and expression of church unity.

The pontiff made his remarks in an address marking the centenary of the first Vatican council, which defined the doctrine of papal infallibility and made it part of Catholic dogma.

He told pilgrims in St. Peter's Basilica that papal infallibility "is not a rock against which modern thought inside and outside the church is colliding, but a beneficent lighthouse which guides it to its unrenounceable conquest, the truth of salvation."

Call to the Tourist

Long, almost deserted, beaches like this one near Santo Domingo are common in the Dominican Republic. In an effort to overcome wide economic disparity, the Dominicans are trying to get going an effective program of tourism and foreign investment. As one official said, "we could easily be another Jamaica if the tourists come." (CP Photo)

Man Held For Murder

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — William Harper Bremner, 35, of London, Ont., was remanded to provincial court next Tuesday when he appeared Wednesday before a justice of the peace on a charge of non-capital murder.

Bremner is charged with the slaying of Gerald Vallo, 42, of Clifton, N.J., the head of a pizza plant in this town just west of Toronto. Vallo was shot to death with a high-powered rifle Tuesday in front of two workers of the plant.

Bremner, a father of four and a former employee at the pizza plant, had given himself up earlier Wednesday at the provincial police station at nearby Oak Ridges. Police Tuesday issued a warrant for his arrest.

Deadly Nerve Gas Leaks From Container in Utah

DUGWAY PROVING GROUND, Utah (AP) — Some deadly nerve gas leaked from a one-tone container to the earthen floor of a storage building and about 200 persons were evacuated from the area Thursday.

The U.S. Army said a team of specialists sprayed the ground with a chemical which rendered the agent, known as GB, harmless.

Army officials at this test centre initially refused to discuss the matter. Later they acknowledged that while relocating a one-tone storage container of GB, a filling plug was accidentally damaged, resulting in a small leak."

Dr. Grant S. Winn, the state's top air quality official with a security clearance to inspect Dugway operations, estimated the leakage at "less than 10 gallons."

Winn said the detoxication apparently had taken an hour.

Army officials insisted there had been no danger in Tooele, the closest city, about 30 miles east of Dugway.

The wind was to the northwest where there was no other human life for 50 miles.

Three-body Planning Proposal Is Opposed

Most at My Lai To Be Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Army sources say they expect charges to be filed against most of the 24 soldiers and former soldiers under investigation in the alleged massacre of South Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.

They estimate the investigation will not be completed for about four months because of the widespread search for evidence. Interrogations resulted in more leads that have to be followed up, they explained.

But on the basis of what has been developed so far, the sources said there probably will be charges filed against a majority of nine soldiers and 15 former soldiers, all onetime members of Company C, 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry Brigade, Americal Division.

Lieut. William L. Calley Jr., a platoon commander in Company C, is awaiting court martial at Fort Benning, Ga., on charges of premeditated murder of at least 109 South Vietnamese men women and children.

Canada May Airdrop Supplies Into Biafra

OTTAWA (CP) — It would be perfectly feasible for Canadian armed forces Hercules transport planes to drop relief supplies into Biafra, defence officials said today.

They made their comment in light of the disclosure that Ivan Head, legislative assistant to Prime Minister Trudeau, is in Lagos for a third time for talks with top Nigerian officials concerning relief measures for breakaway Biafra.

Mr. Head is understood to be seeking agreement of Nigeria for an air drop of food and medical supplies into Biafra. Agreement of Biafra is presumably being sought through other channels.

Urban 'Dog' Won't Wag

By Lenny Williamson
Staff Reporter

"The county tail can't wag the urban dog," Mayor J. Russell Scott told Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night.

He referred to county council's move Wednesday to approve setting up of three planning boards — one for Belleville, one for Trenton and one for the remainder of the county, with a joint planning committee to co-ordinate the efforts of the three.

County council passed the motion by a vote of 28 to 3 after receiving it as one of three recommendations in a letter from minister of municipal affairs Darcy McKeough.

Last night, the planning board directed that a letter be sent to the minister of municipal affairs, objecting strongly to his recommendations and informing him a fourth recommendation regarding planning will be forthcoming soon from Quinte district municipalities.

The board received no formal notification of his recommendations from the minister, but copies of his letter were circulated at the meeting by board members Reeve Jack Bush of Sidney and Reeve Horace Casey of Thurlow.

"We want none of the minister's three proposals," said Mayor Scott. "This area has urban problems distinct from other areas of the county. The county, without any knowledge of urban problems, fire protection, policing, sewers, can't tell the province that the tail should wag the urban dog. I don't see how they can get away with it."

"The county has always divided and ruled," the mayor continued. "Never before have Sidney, Thurlow, Trenton and Belleville been together on an issue. We're the dog."

Greece Quits Council of Europe

PARIS (Reuters) — Greece today voluntarily pulled out of the Council of Europe before a vote could be taken which almost certainly would have seen it expelled.

Ministers of the council were scheduled to vote later today on a motion to expel the country for its internal policies and lack of democracy since its military-backed government took over in a coup in April, 1967.

Expulsion was almost a certainty with observers saying at least 11 of the council's 18 members were in favor.

Had the voting taken place, a minimum of 11 countries were believed to be lined up against Greece.

The 11 countries were Denmark, Norway, Sweden, West Holland, Luxembourg, Iceland, The Republic of Ireland, West Germany, Italy and Belgium, the council sources said.

The draft resolution said Greece had "seriously violated" human rights.

It called for the suspension of Greece "until such a time as satisfactory progress has been made in that country in the normalization of the situation with regard to human rights and fundamental freedoms as well as political liberty and rule of law."

OSLO (Reuters) — The Norwegian foreign ministry is considering action against the Greek embassy in Copenhagen for accusing a Greek woman who has testified against the Athens military-backed government of being a registered prostitute.

A foreign office spokesman said that the ministry was "revolted" by the embassy's action.

The woman involved in the accusations testified before the Human Rights Commission in Strasbourg, France, on conditions in Greece.

Consultants Peer Into Future

Automated Post Office, with 26-cent Stamps, Seen for 1995

OTTAWA (CP) — A highly-automated, commercially-oriented Canada Post Office, operating on its own as a Crown agency, and the era of the 50-cent stamp—that's the picture conjured up by a clutch of consultants.

The conjurers were the firm of Kates, Marwick and Co. of Toronto.

Postmaster-General Eric Kierans tabled their 190-page study in the Commons Thursday and said the government will study it.

The key recommendation: "From these studies emerged the over-powering conclusion that the post office, as a Crown corporation, could better fulfil its role in the future."

It took 15 months, 15 separate studies assembled by the post office and six consulting firms, and about $250,000 to produce the mass of recommendations, charts, graphs and statistics.

The report says the department must become a Crown corporation with plenty of freedom in its operations if it to become a "dynamic, progressive, efficient operation with commercially-oriented executives and employees."

There's no or-else in the report too—it projected annual deficit by 1980 of more than $500,000,000 and deteriorating services unless changes are made. The department went $88,000,000 in the red in the 1968-69 fiscal year.

The challenge facing the post office and its 48,000 employees included ever-increasing mail volumes, "an acute shortage of almost every type of modern mail handling equipment," rising costs and increasing competition from private firms.

The consultants opted for rate increases if deficits were to be avoided.

By 1979-80 a first-class rate of 12 cents would be needed and by 1995 a rate of 25 to 26 cents. The rate now is six cents.

The corporation—the consultants want it in operation within two years—should be able to meet operating costs out of revenues and provide a return on the required operating capital of at least eight per cent before taxes.

"The post office is manpower intensive." Almost 70 per cent of the budget is for salaries.

Postal management should be independent of government personnel policies and have full authority to bargain with the militant postal unions, a function now performed by treasury board.

The corporation would have a board of directors representative of major sectors of the economy. The board would have authority to set rates subject to approval by a rates commission.

Mr. Kierans would retain ministerial responsibility for the corporation and directors, with the exception of the chairman, would be appointed by the cabinet.

The proposed rates commission would ensure rates were reasonable in terms of corporation earnings. When the corporation had to provide services at less than cost, it could apply for government subsidies.

It was estimated that automation would save the post office $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 a year. What's more, it was argued, automation could improve the worker's social status:

"Carefully pursued, the introduction of automation would increase employee identification with the purposes of the service and the over-all psychological impact on the employees could prove to be a very real, tangible advantage."

Great Tourist Hunt - Key Chamber Project

Belleville Chamber of Commerce next year likely will move to prove it is not an organization that gets something for nothing from city hall.

Key issue in such a move will be the Chamber's stepped-up tourist promotion program.

Yesterday, Chamber directors gave approval in principle to such a program being drafted for presentation to city council.

It will be up to city council to approve just how much tourist promotion Belleville receives.

Actually, the Chamber always has been the city's only official tourist agency.

It requested grants for its work from city council — and this is one of the problems the new program will seek to correct.

The traditional method of seeking cash from city hall has helped give the Chamber a false image, says Fred Deacon, director supervising the draft of the new program.

"I think it's been wrong because it leaves the impression the city of Belleville is financing the Chamber -of Commerce," he stressed. "We want to get away from that conception."

Mr. Deacon's final draft will offer various phases of promotion and cost-benefit statistics.

City council will decide the extent of the 1970 program and accordingly pay the Chamber for its services — in effect a fee, not a grant.

In-effect, explains Mr. Deacon, the Chamber will say to council "If you hire us this is what we can do — and this is what it will cost you."

"I think we want to get away from any negative feeling in the community that the Chamber of Commerce wants to be subsidized by city hall," said Mr. Deacon.

"There has been a tremendous misunderstanding as to what the Chamber is and what it's trying to do," he added.

The tourist program which he and a special committee will outline for council, is to "benefit the community in its entirety.

Approval in principle was given by the directors with a sole dissenting vote from Alderman Gerald Joyce.

Ald. Joyce, Belleville Industrial Commission chairman pondered whether tourist promotion should not be part of a total community advertising package.

Such a project — and the agency best suited for its promotion — is an area that has not been explored by city council, he suggested.

"When you advertise Belleville you're advertising it for a good number of things not just tourism," he cautioned.

Frank Murray noted the city had successfully promoted itself as an industrial asset — without support from any other advertising source.

"I see no association whatsoever in tourist promotion or industrial promotion," he said.

The city's industrial commission had "managed to succeed without any difficulty" despite no support from a tourist promotion program."

Hugh Murray noted the Ontario government has emphasized it looks to Chambers of Commerce as the prime community tourist resource in Ontario.

Mrs. Tice Knits for Belleville's Needy Christmas Exchange

She Knits for Needy

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Christmas — as far as 81-year-old Mrs. William Tice is concerned — is a time when giving is one of the most important things to do. And give she did — her time, energy and her ends of wool.

"With these "ends of wool" as she calls them, Mrs. Tice knitted mitts, socks, baby sets and toque and mitt sets — to be given as gifts to some of the more than 1,100 underprivileged children in the city as part of the Christmas Exchange.

This was exactly what Mrs. Tice had in mind when she began knitting last summer in her spare time. She will tell you she has been knitting ever since she was about eight, and that the whole thing is so automatic that it's just like breathing.

"But then I like everything in the line of needlework," she adds hastily.

Mrs. Tice is modest about her contribution to the Exchange.

"Knitting is something I do in my spare moments. I feel it is worthwhile to do things like that, particularly when you have the time," she said.

Speaking about the Exchange Mrs. Tice terms the project as "worthwhile".

"I think the Exchange is doing a tremendous job. I have always been impressed with the unity that is much a part of the organization, particularly the elimination of overlapping of various groups," she added.

The Exchange acts as a confidential clearing house, matching the needs of families with the right donors, offering assistance in the form of vouchers, hampers and cheques, where possible.

Donations may be mailed to Box 815, Belleville or 221 John St., at the offices of the United Community Services.

Time Running Out; Exchange Needs Help

Response to a recent appeal for much - needed funds by the Christmas Exchange has been enthusiastic.

The xchange, which called for a total of $4,400 . . . the needs of more than 400 families, has received $ . . . to date — but is still short of its goal by $2,800 . . . and time is running out.

At present, there are close to 300 families registered with the Exchange, and according to director Mrs. Jane Haslett, registrations are mounting day by day.

Mrs. Haslett expressed the need for more donations particularly for more individuals and groups to sponsor families already registered For assistance please call 962-9531.

Mrs. Haslett termed the response from the young people in the city as "tremendous", calling them the "most responsive donors so far".

"An excellent example is the fact that Centennial Secondary is sponsoring 32 families alone. The young people are behind us all the way," she remarked.

Telephone Answering Service has now been set up — offering their services free of charge to the Exchange. Any calls will be received by calling 962 9531.

Donations may be mailed to the Christmas Exchange, Box 815, Belleville, or at 224 John St. at the United Community

Misunderstood Letter: Potter

County council and Belleville Surburban Planning Board have misunderstood the intent of the letter from Minister of Municipal Affairs Darcy McKeough regarding planning, says Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP for Quinte Riding.

He gave this opinion from Toronto today on the controversial letter outlining options in planning areas for the county.

"The letter was intended only as a query, to find the viewpoints of all municipalities concerned, I'm sure," Dr. Potter said.

He read portions of the minister's letter, in which Mr. McKeough said all municipalities in the county are aware of the need for "a co-ordinating policy for municipalities near the Bay of Quinte and development plans for the centre and south of the county."

The provincial member quoted a portion of the letter which read: "I would appreciate receiving the views of the county as to which option is the most workable."

Dr. Potter said that in his opinion, the minister was saying in effect in his letter. "You've got to start somewhere on planning, so let's have your views now, and after the new year we'll sit down and say where we are going from here."

Crippling Purchase Plans

Mayor Scott added that "obviously this letter (from the minister) was put out with the knowledge Belleville has a lame duck council — we can't do anything until the new council is sworn in next year."

He said a planning proposal be made to the deputy minister of municipal affairs in conversations in Toronto had been considered "very interesting."

The mayor's proposal calls for one planning board encompassing Trenton, Brighton, township, Frankford, Sidney, Thurlow, Ameliasburg and Belleville, with subsidiary boards for each municipality to deal with zoning by-laws.

Reeve Casey of Thurlow summed up the apparent feelings of Sidney and Thurlow members of the planning board when he admitted he "wasn't the least bit happy" about county council's move.

"In his letter, the minister has contradicted his traditional position that the city and surrounding area plan jointly", he said. "That's the only way I think it can be done."

"The county can pass bylaws that make fools of all planners," commented chairman Horace Knight of Sidney. "There are some areas up the north to swing all decisions on county council."

Thurlow and Sidney represent 40 per cent of the population of the county, yet never have had any say," noted Ernest Kells of Sidney.

Reeve Bush of Sidney expressed concern about a conflict between the decisions of Belleville, Sidney and Thurlow councils on the recommendations in the letter.

"If the city votes for one recommendation and the townships for another, the minister will impose the second option in his letter — one over - all planning area for the entire county," he warned.

Both reeves said they could not support hiring of another planner for the Belleville and Suburban board. Belleville council has already voted in favor of the additional planner, and the position was to have been advertised soon, following approval from Sidney and Thurlow councils, expected early next week.

"Your councils have to go ahead with approval of the hiring of this planner, so it won't look as though we're backing up in defeat," Mayor Scott told the two reeves.

"We can keep him busy," the mayor added. "That's the only job that would be stuck with him if you (Sidney and Thurlow) are cut off and we want to be stuck with him."

The mayor said the minister's letter will be on the agenda of city council Monday.

"Under normal circumstances, it would be forwarded to planning board for comment," he said. "But since you have the matter before you now, make your comments tonight."

The mayor advised against the suggestion of Belleville members of the board that the letter to the minister expressa the board's displeasure at not receiving a copy of the letter and not being consulted before county council.

"A wink's as good as a nod to a blind horse," he commented.

Not Once, But Twice!

Personnel of the Unemployment Insurance Commission regional offices in Belleville yesterday struck a happy note — not once, but twice — for the Salvation Army's Christmas kettle. They raised enough to deposit two $100 bills with Capt. Ed. Gurney. UIC representatives were Tyrone Collins, Elizabeth Gordon.

Second Plaza Here Feasible, Consultants Tell Councillors

The Belleville area economy could support a second shopping plaza in the city and if this is denied by the Ontario Municipal Board another major shopping plaza in all probability will be built outside the city.

These are the views taken as a result of an economic survey of the Quinte district carried out by W. W. Urban Consultants.

The survey report was presented to city council yesterday by D. Hamilton, president of W. W. Urban Consultants.

Mr. Hamilton said the economic survey, carried out at the request of city council after the downtown urban renewal study was ordered discontinued, showed that the city and area could definitely support a second plaza which included a large department store offering quality merchandise.

Downtown merchants could actually benefit from the second plaza because of its attractions for out of town shoppers.

Mr. Hamilton said if the Ontario Municipal Board approves construction of the $2½ million plaza, fewer shoppers would be going to Kingston and Toronto.

Figures quoted by Mr. Hamilton and taken from a consumer survey conducted by Proctor Redfern in connection with their urban renewal study indicated that many Belleville residents now go outside the city to do their shopping.

A Feb. 2 date has been set for the rezoning into the northeast plaza issue and Mr. Hamilton told council that the major tenants to occupy the plaza will be revealed at the hearing.

Mr. Hamilton warned that if the OMB ruled against the applications for rezoning to allow the plaza, the development as all probability would be constructed outside the city.

Mr. Hamilton, who has also been retained by Cambridge Leaseholds — the plaza developers — as their consultant, said the major tenant would occupy "about 90,000 square feet." He suggested this was nearly twice the size of the Towers store and about equal to all the floor space in the present East end plaza.

The consultant said there would be an additional 20,000 square feet occupied by food services, about 60,000 square feet in ancillary stores and 10,000 square feet in personal service stores or offices. Parking, he said would be in the neighborhood of 10 to 11 acres.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said today that yesterday's report by W. W. Urban Consultants was "a good report and well prepared."

"It ties in with urban renewal but was more specific and more accurate," he said.

Referring to the proposed northend plaza Mayor Scott said in his opinion there would be little point in waiting for urban renewal.

"It would be four or five years before there was urban renewal — even if we had the money," he said.

Land Costs, Competition Urban 'Dog' Won't Wag

By ROY PEACOCK

Rapidly increasing land prices caused by competition from metropolitan buyers is forcing a halt to the Moira River Conservation Authority land purchase program.

At the final fall Authority meeting of the year yesterday at Cannifton members were told that no new reforestation land had been purchased this year. There was a suggestion that the authority low out of the land purchase business.

"The authority has had to change its policy on land purchases," authority chairman Graham Bell told members. "Marginal land which could be purchased a few years ago for $4.50 per acre is now being offered at $65 per acre."

Mr. Bell said, however, that the authority might sell isolated parcels of land and use the money to consolidate and enlarge reforestation areas it now owns.

Bill Hiscock, forester with the department of lands and forests at Tweed said in purchases of marginal land by metropolitan buyers the purpose of conservation was still being met because trees were being planted.

Leslie McLaren, forestry advisory committee chairman, said the authority now owned 16,124 acres on which almost 2,500,000 trees had been planted.

Cecil Ketcheson, conservation areas chairman, said that 223 compers permits had been issued last summer for the Vandervaeter area east of Thomasburg.

Of these, 101 were from Belleville, 38 from other parts of the Moira watershed, 84 from other parts of Ontario and 16 from the USA.

The official opening of the O'Hara Mill museum was said the main event of the year. Mr. Ketcheson said the O'Hara Mill was the show piece of the authority and he hoped it would continue that way.

Next year, a $1 per car fee will be charged for use of the grounds which see heavy use by picnickers.

Water control committee chairman Guy Hughes of Tweed said construction of the the Deereck dam on Partridge Creek northeast of Flinton was almost completed.

General contractor for the dam which will create a reservoir lake of 1,000 acres is the Tatham Company of Belleville. Cost of the dam is $132,324. Kaladar Construction is doing clear cutting of 500 acres for the lake site at a cost of $162,000.

Railway Dispute Builds Steam, Carload of Protests Lodged

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers is building steam in its contest with Canadian National over transfer of Belleville railroad employees to Montreal.

The fight to prevent the move of 11 staffers in the CN's regional revenue office at Belleville saw these developments today:

(1) A warning from M. K. Carson, Brotherhood presidential assistant, that the move could lead to eventual elimination of the Belleville - based CN Rideau area administration offices.

(2) A city hall meeting between Brotherhood executives and Mayor Russell Scott.

(3) Plans for 300 Belleville Brotherhood members to write local MPs in an effort to introduce the issue before the Commons.

Centre of the suddenly mounting dispute is CN's proposal to move 17 workers from its regional revenue office in Belleville to Montreal by March 1970.

"I think this is the first move to eliminate the Rideau area within the Canadian National system," claimed Mr. Carson, who journeyed from Ottawa for this morning's meeting with Mayor Scott.

Mr. Carson believed administrative functions of the Rideau area might some day be divided between CN centres in Toronto and Montreal.

CN Rideau general manager Harry Fast said there was no such plan, "at this point in time" to abolish the area.

Mr. Fast said the move was part of a centralization of CN's billing system involving a vast administrative zone from Toronto to Riviere du Loup in Quebec.

The Belleville employees have the option of exercising seniority rights to other CN jobs, either in the city or other Eastern Ontario communities.

Under work contract terms they have 90 days to signify their choice.

The selection of alternate jobs available would be broadly based, said Mr. Fast. The employees involved were "quite knowledgeable" in railroad activities and would qualify for "any number of jobs with a little bit of retraining."

However, Herbert Pointer, president of Brotherhood Local 126, who went with Mr. Carson to city hall, says the workers do not accept the move as necessary "so we're not going to negotiate."

Mr. Pointer is heading a grievance committee which has drafted outlines of a letter which all Local 126 members are asked to send Quinte area MPs.

Among other points suggested for mention by members are queries on personal and educational security in Quebec.

Mr. Pointer claimed the transfer would cost the Belleville area $200,000 in wages — in railroaders' earnings and those of working wives or husbands.

Mr. Carson said the Brotherhood would dispute the move "to the bitter end."

"We would give consideration to going so far as calling a work stoppage," he added.

The Belleville workers also were concerned they would forfeit seniority in the move, said Mr. Carson.

Mayor Scott said he hoped at this morning's meeting he would "find out exactly what is going on."

"I certainly want to do everything I can to help," he added.

The Lobster Tale

It was a live capture in the wilds of the lobster tank at Mark's Fish House.

And as far as is known, there were no injuries to three unidentified males who braved the seething network of claws and pincers to steal two live lobsters from Mark's lobster tank last night.

According to Belleville's City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, three unidentified men took the lobsters, valued at $10 at 9.55 p.m.

But somewhere, broiled lobster is testifying to the fact that champagne taste on a beer diet can lead one to a life of crime.

Air Brakes Fail, Transport Crashes

TWEED (special)—Damage amounting to approximately $3,000 resulted to the front of a Toronto Peterborough Transport yesterday at Madoc when air brakes on the unattended vehicle released.

The transport driven by George H. Dawkins, R. R. 2, Belleville, had been left parked on a hill north of the village's main intersection. When the air brakes released the vehicle rolled down the hill and crashed into a hydro pole.

Rebuff for Minister

The Indians of this country are a proud people, and none more so than the members of the Six Nations Iroquois Confederacy. They have this unique background dating far back into time, ancestry going back far beyond the arrival of the white man.

But pride in race unfortunately is not necessarily synonymous with social and industrial progress in terms of the modern world. Deprived as they were of their lands and heritage as hunters and people who lived close to nature — characteristics little understood by the materialist-oriented white man — it may be understood how difficult it is for the Indian. Nevertheless those who do make the effort to merge with the European culture, without necessarily giving up their own traditions and heritage are treading the path of progress and common sense. Many have done so and have not regretted the decision.

In similar situations in other lands we find the benefits of education and citizenship embrace for example Hawaiians (of many racial backgrounds) and whites in common American citizenship, and in New Zealand Maoris and pakehas (Maori term for whites) as New Zealanders.

Yet in Canada, unfortunately, there is still resistance to such merging of peoples, while each preserves his own identity. Thus we have a spokesman for the Six Nations Iroquois Confederacy berating Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien for calling them Canadians.

"Is it not logical," said the minister in a Brantford address, "that in 1969 you should join your Indian brothers across Canada who are looking toward a future of equal status, dignity and freedom?"

All Mr. Chretien won in response to this suggestion was a letter (addressed to Prime Minister Trudeau) by confederacy secretary Garnett Thomas saying the minister's remarks were "another example of Canadian tyranny and aggression against the Iroquois nations."

So much for any immediate hope of co-operation from the Six Nations people. Unfortunately, a similar negative attitude has been prevalent for some time in the attitude and deliberations of the Indian population generally. The letter by-passing Mr. Chretien could be regarded as an affront to the minister personally, quite apart from its lack of any positive content. And until the Indians can inject some goodwill and understanding of the Government's efforts to meet their needs and desires, and of white society generally, no long will dissensions and misunderstandings between Indians and whites be the order of the day.

Dark Continent

The continent of Africa politically has changed out of all recognition. As a contemporary newsmap indicates, no fewer than 41 of the 126 members of the United Nations are African countries.

Here there is a paradox. Since all are developing countries, they pay the minimum, or near-minimum, on UN assessments; yet the one-vote one-country rule gives them equal influence (more in fact, because "of their corporate strength) with the great powers.

Thus the Africans have major support on many issues among the Asians and the Soviet bloc countries and have allies also among Europeans and in the Americas.

More perhaps than any other region of the world Africa is a melting pot of many races and shifting political sands. Of the 41 UN members at war — Egypt with Israel) and Nigeria (with its eastern province of Biafra) — while colonialism has its last champions in the big Portuguese" territories of Angola and Mozambique, not to mention sundry French and Spanish territories.

Then there is the former Commonwealth country of South Africa, now a republic whose white-dominated government holds sway over some four million European and 13 million Africans and also has jurisdiction over the former German territory of South-West Africa.

And there is Rhodesia, unique in the independence it took upon itself rather than submit to the dictates of Britain regarding ultimate black majority rule. All in all it is a vast region of potential economic development and political influence.

Pollution Factor

Cars in Germany are coming under scrutiny as a factor in air pollution. German Features of Hamburg says there are 15 million registered vehicles in the country belching out about 23.7 trillion cubic feet of exhaust fumes annually. This has resulted in stepped-up testing of electric-powered cars with a view to reducing air pollution.

Divisions of Opinion...But

Britain May Extend Abolition of Death Penalty

By JOHN LaBLANC

LONDON (CP)—Conscience and politics are involved in a struggle over whether the hangman's rope should be returned to Britain.

Politicians and many British voters are agonizing—one way or the other—over possible restoration of the noose next year. The tussle has some relevancy for Canada, which is due to review its five-year trial period of partial death-penalty abolition at the end of 1972.

As things now stand, Britain is faced with a fair amount of uncertainty over whether the existing amnesty from executions will be continued when it expires next July 31.

If opinion polls are right, most of the general public would like to see the gallows restored. The politicians are divided.

Home Secretary James Callaghan, responsible for law enforcement in the Labor government, is reported to feel so strongly that he will quit if abolition is not made permanent.

Prime Minister Wilson, also an abolitionist, is faced with a political dilemma. He may or may not squeeze back into power in a general election to be held probably next year, and he does not want extraneous issues cluttering up the election campaign.

Hence, Callaghan's notice this week of a motion to extend abolition indefinitely, long long before the issue need come up in the legislative process.

The recent history of punishment for murder in Britain has been chequered. Parliament in 1957 enacted that offenders could be executed only for a few crimes, such as killing a policeman. The law contained such anomalies as allowing a husband or wife to poison a spouse without execution.

Under the present five-year experiment, the maximum is "life" for anything. In practice, this can mean as little as three years, depending on parole arrangements.

Unless both houses of Parliament pass a motion to make abolition permanent, the position at next July 31 will revert to that of 1957, described by some legal administrators as an "abomination."

But the Tories don't want the issue out of the way as quickly as Labor. They want to see more statistics on how the current system has worked. Up to now, advocates on both sides have been able to use the killings figures to prove anything.

In the normal course of events, a Callaghan motion for solidifying abolition should go through the Commons next week.

But there is a possibility of trouble in the Lords. It is reported that hanging exponents are trying to rally several hundred "backwoods" peers—quite types who rarely turn up at Westminster—to kill the measure. Whether they will again chance Wilson's wrath and goad him into another trying at cutting the powers of House of Lords is open to conjecture.

A Newsman's Life Is Not A Happy One

Winnipeg Free Press

This just isn't the newspaper man's year.

In the U.S. they have been lambasted by Eugene McCarthy and Spiro Agnew. In Canada, Senator Keith Davey's squad is about to take a long hard look at them. In Greece they are told what not to print. In the Argentine, Brazil and other countries they are being muffled by the government.

But none of these touches the unkindest cut of all, which comes, of all places, from Kenya. It seems that that country's first casino will be opened on Dec. 16. Built by an Italian controlled firm, it will seek to attract only what it calls "top crust" tourists who come to see East African wildlife.

And with this laudable end in view, the casino will bar "undesirable characters, prostitutes and journalists."

Which may, of course, be somewhat academic. Who ever heard of a journalist with enough money to gamble?

Brockville Recorder and Times

What we on the inside have always known has now been confirmed by an unexpected source.

A newsman's life not only is not easy, it's more than likely not even very long. Some occupational research in Poland, as reported from Warsaw by the official news agency PAP, places journalism among the most hazardous professions.

The hazards are not, however, as might be expected, the wars, riots, crime and assorted other natural and human catastrophes that are the reporter's normal beat. He is being done in instead by such prosaic complaints as circulation and respiratory disorders, stomach trouble, nervous tension and two uniquely occupational hazards—hearing and vision impairment resulting from overexposure to, respectively, noisy teletypes and bright television lights.

The cumulative effect, reports PAP, is such that "only 20 newsmen in 100 have a chance of reaching retirement age."

Now we feel really put upon. All this and Senator Davey too.

Chaos Results

Free Parking at Christmas Is 'Misguided Benevolence'

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I have just read with alarm and concern that the Town Council of Picton had decided to abandon the use of parking meters and allow free parking anywhere from the 11th to 26th of December in order to "spread a little Christmas cheer."

May I respectfully point out that because most towns have double the traffic on their parking at Christmas this issue was fully discussed at a full day traffic conference and parking workshop held in Kingston on November 17 and open to all towns of 3,000 population and over.

Unfortunately no representative from Picton attended for if he had he would have learned that the consensus of parking authority chiefs from more than sixty Ontario municipalities was that non enforcement of parking by-laws at Christmas invited flagrant mis-use of street parking, especially in the Central Business district. In towns where it has been tried it was found that store employees and even merchants themselves parked their cars in front of their offices and businesses, thus preventing their customers from using these spaces.

May I quote with permission the remarks of the Chairman of the Parking Authority in Kingston: "We allowed meter free parking here a few years ago and it was chaos. If you had seen it you would have wanted to leave town and go somewhere else where you could park your car".

I know that Chief Pitt and his excellent and well-paid Police Force will handle the traffic problem efficiently but their task will not be lightened by the misguided benevolence of Council's lifting of the meter regulations. I note that one of the recommendations of the Ontario Police Commission for your town was the hiring of a parking meter attendant. It is for such hectic times as December that these personnel are needed.

Pensioners' Tax Burden

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Our present system of Municipal Taxation is unrealistic and unequal when it is based, as at present, on the ownership of property, and not on wealth and income.

We who are retired and also widows receiving small pensions who through thrift have managed to own a home, are taxed on our home just as much as our neighbors who may be still working and earning a good income.

Now that the Province is taking over the municipal Assessment on Jan. 1, 1970, it is hoped that the Government under the new system will take a good look and recognize what the pensioner and widow is faced with.

United States Has 15,000,000 Hungry People Seeking Aid

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — It appeared for a while last week that 15,000,000 hungry Americans were going to get food for their stomachs instead of rhetoric from their politicians.

What they ended up with after a three-day White House conference on food, nutrition and health were excellent proposals to solve their problem eventually, but no additional relief from a long, cold winter.

One of the most impressive facts about the conference's call for a massive emergency assault on hunger was that it was not the work of small militant groups. It was the considered action of respected professionals with intimate knowledge of the poor and hungry.

What turned out to be the key recommendations by some 3,000 representatives of the poor were:

—A call for immediate action by President Nixon to "provide food now" to hungry people on an "emergency basis."

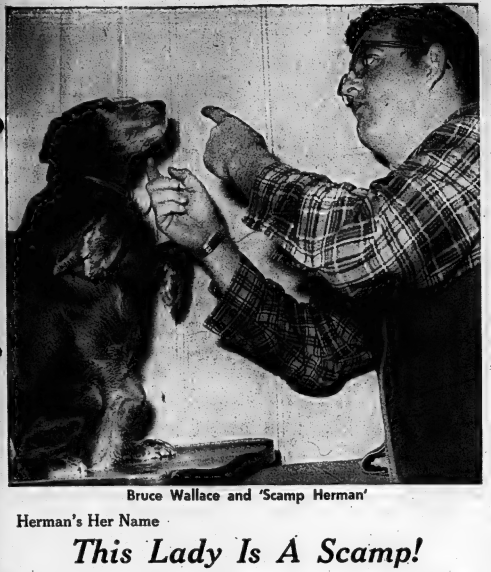
—A call for action to guarantee "an adequate cash income for every American family" by government action if necessary.

The delegates had taken heart and hope earlier by the fact the conference was called by a president who last May had said the moment was at hand to end hunger "for all time."

Optimism faded when they were greeted at the conference by Nixon. He promised an assessment of conference recommendations, called attention to his administration's efforts so far, but he promised no new action.

The reaction was bitter from the delegates who had come to the conference expecting to find more than stacks of paper and promises.

"We heard the Great White Father speak," commented a Navajo leader. "We Indians are very quick to detect the disease of forked tongue in its early stages."



The delegates had decided during working sessions that the main priority was to get action immediately. They asked the president to declare a national hunger emergency this winter and find the money somewhere to begin feeding every family in the U.S. adequately.

The second major point they stressed was the establishment of a guaranteed annual cash income of $5,500 for a family of four as the "eventual No. 1 remedy to hunger and malnutrition."

Nixon, proposed in earlier legislation $1,600 plus $720 in food aid.

The establishment of such a p r o g r a m, they said, would eventually make obsolete many of the existing aid programs, including food stamps to the poor.

The final report on the conference will be sent to the president sometime before Christmas. It is then up to Nixon and Congress to make use of some of the best recommendations on hunger they are likely to get.

Bruce Wallace and 'Scamp Herman'

Herman's Her Name

This Lady Is A Scamp!

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Scamp Herman Wallace by any other name would be a star.

Handicapped by her monicker, this clever canine still practises her comic routine hoping eventually her "big break" will come, despite her shady background.

This tail wagging trick dog has a skeleton in her closet: her mother was a Cocker Spaniel who defied canine society to elope with a rakish beagle. Their "careless love" sealed Scamp Herman's fate.

While both of her parents were registered dogs, she is recognized as a cross-bred. According to one local dog authority, cross-breds and mongrels lack the necessary stamina to compete with purebred animals in obedience trials. When the pressure is on during obedience tests, the Heinz '57's lose their coal and lose points at the same time. But Scamp Herman — Scamp for short, could be the exception to the rule.

Scamp's intelligence became apparent to her owners Mr. and Bruce Wallace, while she was just a puppy. Like all family dogs Scamp Herman learned fundamental commands such as come, fetch, stay down. She soon expanded her bag of parlor tricks to include several original stunts. Without coaching Scamp discovered the pleasure of having a gentleman offer her a cigarette.

Well, Mr. Wallace didn't really offer the dog one of his cigars, she simply snitched a puff when he wasn't looking.

For Scamp, happiness is a cigar, unlit of course, to carry between her teeth from room to room. Scamp Herman is a south paw. At least she definitely believes that the right hand should know what the left is doing. She will refuse any titbit offered to her in her owner's right hand. Mr. Wallace has attempted to confuse the issue by crossing his wrists but Scamp just backs up and barks until he transfers the treat to his left hand.

Now seven-years-old, Scamp has proven that she is smarter than the average dog but can she overcome her doubtful past to win honors in obedience school?

This is the question Scamp's owners hope to answer next year. By enroling her in dog obedience classes in Prince Edward County each spring, it will be possible to see how the frisky black crossbred stacks up against the elite of the dog world.

Scamp Herman's specialty for the past few years has been fun and games; she thinks it is about time she gave some thought to her education. Already she has put her paw down on one point.

If and when she is enrolled in obedience school the teacher can skip the Herman bit, for the lady is a Scamp!

Picton Police Report Recommends Meter Maid, Extra Officer Be Hired

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

The long awaited recommendations of a survey of the Picton Police Department were released to the press today.

Town council was informed immediately of three recommendations contained in the report.

One suggestion concerned the advisability of employing a meter maid to service Picton parking meters.

Radio coverage for police officers on patrol, in the office and in the car, at all times on a police frequency was suggested also.

Members of town council read the recommendations at their November meeting and referred them to the finance committee for further discussion. Yesterday, members of this committee met with the Picton Police Commission and examined the recommendations.

Yesterday's motion to release the police report to the press in its entirety was the police commission's first decision on whether or not to publicize its total contents.

The survey, conducted this fall at the request of town council, by an inspector from the Ontario Police Commission, examined the adequacy of the Picton police force.

A motion for the immediate release of this report was forwarded by Picton police commission member, Jesse Mason and seconded by Mayor H. J. McFarland, Chairman of the commission. County Judge Wilfred S. Lane, agreed with the motion.

Mr. Mason moved publication of the report following the commission's receipt of a letter from Picton Police Chief George Pitt, commending on the survey. Chief Pitt received a confidential copy of the police report shortly after its arrival in Judge Lane's office in October. He was instructed by the police commission to study the report and outline his proposals for the implementation of its recommendations.

Hospital Hires Administrator

By MALCALM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The board of directors of Trenton Memorial Hospital have taken the step to ease their strained relations with town's doctors by hiring a fully - qualified hospital administrator.

The move has been urged by the doctors and was recommended by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission in a June report on the dispute between the board and the doctors.

John A. Lupton, a native of England, is quitting his post as assistant administrator of Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal to become administrator here. He is expected to assume his duties in early March.

"I'm very pleased", said A. J. C. Ward, chairman of public relations for the hospital's board of directors.

"The hiring of Mr. Lupton is in following with the OHSC recommendations and actually we have been trying to hire a competent administrator since July but you can't hire these people overnight", he added.

Mrs. Clara M. Lowe, who has been acting administrator since the retirement of Miss Hazel F. Naudett in December of 1968, will resume her former position as assistant administrator when Mr. Lupton arrives.

The 39-year-old Mr. Lupton spent 18 years in administration at four hospitals in his native land before coming to Canada in 1957. He has been on the staff of the Royal Victoria Hospital since 1964. He is married and is the father of two children.

PICTON (Staff) — Vandals using axes stored in a main building at North Beach Provincial Park, Consecon, broke windows and a large plywood door causing more than $100 damage.

Ontario Provincial Police report the four windows were broken in the maintenance building as well as a large double door.

The vandals, using axes, smashed all the windows in the control booth at the Park, entrance.

City Doctor Mohawk Candidate

He is Dr. Claire Brant, running on the slate headed by Chief Earl Hill.

Dr. Brant's original home is on the reserve.

Chief Hill is being opposed in his re-election for a second two-year term as chief by a fellow councillor — Charles Maracle.

The Tyendinaga campaign is more clear-cut than most municipal elections.

Chief Hill leads the Mohawk People's Party while Councillor Maracle heads the Progressive Mohawks Party.

Other candidates: People's Party — Carl D. Brant, Willard Hill, Clell Maracle; Progressive Mohawks — Garnet Maracle, Bennet Brant, Gerald Maracle, Victor Brant.

House Passes Flight Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — The government glided easily over Conservative objection Thursday to give third and final reading to a bill placing a tax on airline tickets. The Commons then began debate on a proposed extension of the three-per-cent surtax through 1970.

Government supporters defeated by 116 to 76 a Conservative motion to kill the airline tax bill by delaying third reading for six months.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberals 153, PC 72, WDP 22, Creditiste 14, Independent 2, vacant 1.

The airline tax bill, given third reading in an informal vote, amends the Excise Tax Act to provide taxes of $3 to $5 on airline tickets for overseas flights and a five-per-cent tax on fares for flights in Canada, the U.S. and the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), who moved to delay third reading, also moved Thursday night to delay second reading of the bill extending the surtax. That debate continues today.

The surtax, instituted in 1968, was to have been lifted at the end of this year.

But Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced in his budget speech last June that the tax would have to be continued until Dec. 31, 1970, as an anti-inflationary measure.

The three-per-cent surtax on individuals applies to basic taxes ceeding $200. It applies to corporations, tax before deductions for provincial abatements and old age security taxes.

Mr. Lambert charged the government with patting up false arguments to justify the tax on airline tickets and the surtax.

There were many ways in to raise the revenue needed to provide airport maintenance service and aviation aids without imposing a tax on air tickets.

The government claimed, it needed the revenue from the surtax only for another year. "But what was supposed to be a temporary measure, subsequently further lengthened, will become permanent."

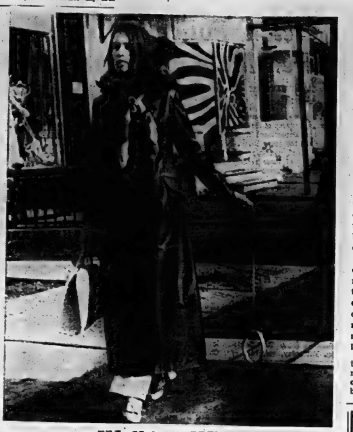
Herb Gray, minister without portfolio with special duties in the finance department, said the measure is necessary to maintain a strong fiscal position. It would not mean an increase in either personal or corporate tax rates above their current levels.

Today the government also is expected to ask unanimous consent of the Commons to introduce a bill providing for installation of a financial controller over the Company of Young Canadians.

The Commons broadcasting committee recommended last Friday, after an inquiry into the CYC, that the company be placed under a three-man trusteeship for a year.

The government was expected to ask the Commons to waive the 48 hours notice usually required and give the bill first reading today.

The Commons is to rise Dec. 19 for Christmas recess and the government apparently wants passage of the bill before then.



Debating the air fare tax, Gordon Blair (L—Grenville-Carleton) said he favors the measure but the bill should have provided an exemption for those living in northern areas.

The development of the Canadian North depended largely on the development of a strong aviation system and it was "unfair and unjust" to tax people living there.

They rarely enjoyed good flight or airport service and it was absurd to expect them to pay the same tax as those living in more populated southern areas.

Toronto Dead Ducks in Two Batches

TORONTO (CP) — The owner of the Kortright Waterfowl Park at Guelph said Thursday he killed 29 Toronto Island ducks with alpha-chloralose May 23

William Carrick told a provincial inquiry into the deaths of several ducks on the island that at first he thought he was responsible.

But, said Mr. Carrick, the age of the ducklings whose deaths sparked the inquiry indicated "they were not even hatched at the time I was there."

Workers Ordered Back

REGINA (CP) — Non-professional workers at Victoria Union Hospital in Prince Albert were to return to work today after the Saskatchewan government Thursday invoked provisions of the Essential Services Act.

"I don't think we'll defy the legislation," said Bill Troupe secretary of Local 81 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Thursday.

"But just how many of the workers will return is another matter," he said in an interview following a special meeting. "It depends on how many of them could be contacted."

Microwave Ban Irks TV Firms

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Thursday strongly condemned a recent decision by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission to ban the use of microwave relays for importing United States TV programs.

Claude R. Boucher, president of the Canadian Cable Television Association, said in a statement released in Toronto the CRTC decision is an infringement on "basic Canadian rights."

"Canadians will never tolerate the kind of censorship suggested by the CRTC," said Mr. Boucher, a Port Arthur cable operator.

The association represents about 300 of the 315 cable TV operators in Canada.

The CRTC decision, announced Dec. 3, prohibits the use of microwave which would have enabled cable operators to import U.S. programs and distribute them through virtually all parts of Canada.

Quebec Plans Communications Department

QUEBEC (CP) — A bill setting up a provincial department of communications received third and final reading in Quebec's national assembly Thursday.

The bill, introduced Wednesday, empowers the new department to "Supervise communications networks in the province of Quebec, establish communications services for the government departments and co-ordinate the services established by public bodies."

The bill defines "communications" as "all means of transmitting sounds, pictures, signals or messages by wire, cable or by means of waves."

Davis Controls School Budgets

TORONTO (CP) — An amendment to the Education Act which escaped opposition notice in the legislature as given Education Minister William Davis the power to govern estimates and expenditures of Ontario school boards.

The amendment, passed by the House Dec. 2 and certain to draw fire from school boards, was brought to the legislature's attention Thursday by Walter Pitman, education critic for the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Pitman (Peterborough) said the opposition did not notice that it gives the department of education authority to pass regulations to control the budgets of local school boards.

The authority is contained in an amendment to Subsection 3 Section 12 of the Education Act setting out matters which can be included in department regulations.

The amendment says the minister of education "may make regulations ... governing estimates that a board is required to prepare and adopt, and expenditures that may be made by a board for any purpose."

An explanatory note says the amendment authorizes regulations to be made governing school board estimates and expenditures for any purpose.

The amendment creates the review of school board budgets which Treasurer Charles MacNaughton announced in a white paper last spring. Mr. MacNaughton said the government would increase its support for elementary and secondary education to 60 per cent from about 44 per cent over a three-year period.

He warned, however, that the increased assistance was to enable school boards to reduce their local tax levies, and was not for new programs.

Robarts Has No Objection To Special Aid to Quebec

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts told the legislature Thursday the Ontario government would have no strong disagreement if a special financing arrangement were made for Quebec by the federal government.

Ontario does not want federal power weakened in grants to provinces, he said, but that does not mean that if special arrangements were made for Quebec, Ontario, or any other provinces would disagree.

Mr. Robarts said you have only to look at equalization payments to the provinces to see that they are already treated differently.

Provincial Finance Ministers Get Chance to Air Tax Views

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial finance ministers and treasurers get their first joint opportunity today to criticize the federal government's tax reform plans, but Finance Minister Edgar Benson doesn't anticipate a noisy meeting.

He said Thursday night, after the first day of the two-day annual finance ministers meeting that it was "friendly and understanding." He has told the provincial ministers they'll have plenty of opportunity to discuss tax reform today and at later dates, before the government makes its final decisions.

Premiers Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, Harry Strom of Alberta and W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia signed a joint declaration Monday objecting to some features of the tax reform proposals unveiled last month.

Their main criticism was that small and resource-based industry, particularly important in the western provinces, would be hard hit.

Mr. Benson said he had already told the provinces individually—and would tell them collectively today—that the tax reform proposals are only proposals.

"We expect representations from the provinces," he said at a news conference Thursday night. "Indeed, we invite representations from people across Canada, and we expect to get them.

"We want to have meaningful consultations with the provinces as often as they want to talk about the matter before we actually produce our legislation for the House of Commons."

Bills embodying the government's tax reform plans are to be introduced next fall, with the object of having them passed and put into effect by Jan. 1, 1972.

Mr. Benson said another meeting of provincial finance ministers and treasurers will be held.

Next month's meeting will be held next month, and any num- primarily to prepare for the Feb. 16 federal-provincial conference of prime ministers and premiers on bread-and-butter issues, including current tax matters.

At Thursday's session, the ministers discussed revenue and expenditure projections for the federal and provincial governments heading into 1971. The figures had to be kept secret, Mr. Benson said, because they were tentative and based on confidential provincial estimates.

Mr. Benson said the more frequent meetings of finance ministers is not a fence-mending operation, but a natural result of the fact that the provinces and their municipalities now tax and spend as much as the federal government.

"It is particularly important in the financial field . . . that we meet often, if we are going to have an agreed economic policy in this country that is to benefit the whole of the country."

Mr. Benson declined to make public the Bank of Canada and finance department's reports on the economic outlook for 1970, but said the outlook is "for moderate expansion—and, we hope, expansion at a reduced inflationary rate in the country."

No one suggested the country might head into a depression because of the restraints being applied to dampen inflation, he added. There is an underlying growth factor in the plans of business to make capital investment commitments for the medium and long run.

NDP, Liberals Fail to Block Animal Supply

TORONTO (CP) — A contention by the New Democratic Party that the government's animals research bill will supply animals for chemical and biological warfare research in Ontario failed Thursday night to halt approval in principle of the bill.

The 49-to-39 vote in the legislature also defeated a motion by Liberal Leader Robert Nixon that would have delayed passage of the bill by another six months.

The bill will force pounds to hand over dogs and cats for period during which owners may reclaim them.

However one of the NDP objectors, Margaret Renwick (Scarborough Centre) said she will move an amendment at the bill's next stage which would change the legislation to stipulate that animals obtained from pounds may be used only for peaceful research.

Both she and Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) appealed to the government to cut off the supply of animals they said were being used for chemical and biological war research.

Corrections Minister Allan Grossman termed her argument a red herring. He said if he were ever involved in chemical-biological warfare "I hope someone will be doing some research on my side."

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald accused the bill's sponsor, Agriculture Minister William Stewart, of carrying on a personal vendetta against the humane society and of failing to play a constructive role in reconciling opposing views on the bill.

The humane societies have threatened to close their municipal pounds if forced to submit to the bill's requirements.

Mrs. Renwick said the federal defence research board in 1966-67 gave grants to Canadian universities totalling $41,800 for biological and $97,000 for chemical war research. She said the radiation section of the board had renewed five grants to two Ontario universities in 1969-70 worth a total of $29,300.

Four of these were to the University of Ottawa and $7,500 went to a University of Toronto researcher for a study of the combined "effects of thermo-trauma and simulated fall-out on the early mortality in mice."

Mr. Lewis said grants worth a total $1,839,100 were made in 1969 to seven Ontario universities by the U.S. defence department.

Mr. Nixon said earlier he was asking for the six-month delay to give MPPs time to look into laboratories, schools and pounds to study the need for, and treatment of research animals.

Mr. MacDonald supported his amendment and said the NDP cannot support a bill which would destroy the Ontario Humane Society.

University Women Enjoy Fondue Party

Festive activities for the University Women's Club commenced with a fondue party held at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club which was gaily decorated for the occasion by conveners, Mrs. W. G. G. Lindley and, Mrs. P. Harris who were also responsible for the preparation of refreshments.

The president, Mrs. R. W. Cass welcomed members and guests and Grace previous to the meal was said by Miss Muriel Gibson. A toast to the Queen was proposed by Miss Nell Merry.

Mrs. R. G. Butler chaired the introduction of new members by current members. A letter was read from Mrs. Marion K. Grey in which she related some of her experiences in Nairobi, where she will spend the next two years at the Kenya Institute of Education.

Mrs. Lindley gave a reading of Dickens 'Christmas Carol' and the evening concluded with the singing of Christmas carols led by Mrs. J. Boyd and accompanied at the piano by Miss Lamoine West.

Margarine Was Invented 100 Years Ago in France

TORONTO (CP) — The year now drawing to a close is the centennial of a popular food product that has come a long way in 100 years.

Margarine was invented in 1869 in France by Hippolyte Mege-Mouries. He was a chemist, encouraged by Napoleon III to find a substitute for butter, which was scarce at that time.

The first 100 years has been an uphill climb for the product and its makers. Apart from the fact that the early product—made largely from tallow—tasted awful, Mege-Mouries ran into legislative trouble shortly after he took out his United States patent, in 1873.

In 1886, both the U.S. and Canada, in response to pressure from butter interests, began slapping restrictions on margarine manufacture and sales that still exist in some form in many areas.

The Institute of Edible Oil Foods has been formed in Canada by 18 growers' groups, processors and manufacturers to promote margarine and to lobby for the lifting of all special restrictions. They presented a brief to the minister of finance in October. In November they threw a gourmet buffet party, using margarine, to mark the 100th anniversary.

Margarine was banned in Canada completely from 1886 to 1917. Then the ban was lifted briefly because of a First World War butter shortage, but it was reimposed in 1923. When it was lifted again in 1949, it was with some restrictions that still exist.

At first it had to be white in every province but Newfoundland. Then color sacs were included in packages, so housewives could color their own margarine if they wanted to. Some color restrictions have been lifted completely in British Columbia, and margarine may be pre-colored in every other province, but how it is pre-colored is still specified.

There is a federal sales tax of 12 per cent on margarine; the brief to the finance minister asked that it be lifted.

A booklet put out by the institute says margarine in Canada is usually based on oils from rapeseed, from soya beans or from fish, mostly herring. It says there are 25,000 farmers in Western Canada who grow rapeseed, 10,000 in Ontario who grow soya beans, and of course, farmers and fish processers in the Maritimes who supply the marine oils.

Honor Couple Wed 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Ellis were "at home" recently to a large number of friends and relatives who gathered at the Wellington Town Hall to honor them on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

The couple was married on December 3, 1919, the bride being the former Clarice Mc-Paul. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis, who still live in Consecon, attended the bride and bridegroom.

WEDDING

HILL — O'BRIEN

All Saints Anglican Church, Tyendinaga Reserve, was the scene of the recent marriage of Cathy Lee O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Compton, Rochester, N.Y., to Carl Ernest Earl Hill, Shannonville, son of Mrs. Lulu Hill, Shannonville. Rev. C. J. Betts officiated at the ceremony and organist Mrs. Myrtle Brant played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her step - father, wore a floor length gown of white chiffon. The skirt was A-line with an empire waist of lace with small chiffon covered buttons down back, a white bow at the waist and long sleeves appliqued with lace. Her shoulder length veil was caught by a white bow and she carried a cascade of white carnations and fern.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Carol Potts, sister of the bridegroom. She wore a floor length blush of nylon and rayon lace over mauve taffeta. In her hair she wore a tiara of rhinestones and she carried a nosegay of white carnations.

The bridesmaid was Mrs. Della Hill, sister of the bridegroom. She wore a street length dress of beaded lurex in lime green, appliqued with white lace down the bodice and skirt and featuring long sleeves appliqued with lace. In her hair was a tiara of rhinestones and she carried a basket of lime green and green shasta daisies and fern.

Best man was Daniel Pillette, Rochester and ushers were Edward O'Brien, Rochester, brother of the bride, and Neal Brant, Deseronto.

The reception was held at the home of Mrs. Della Brant. Receiving the guests was the bride's mother, wearing a brown and beige suit with matching accessories and a corsage of apricot roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a gold brocade dress with fur trimmed sleeves, brown accessories and a corsage of apricot roses.

The couple will reside in Rochester.

Mrs. Ellis, like her husband, a life-long resident of Prince Edward County, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McFaul. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ellis. Since their marriage the couple has lived in Hillier and Wellington. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis have one son, Raymond who lives in Wellington.

Mr. Ellis has a sister, Mrs. Ethel Hubbs, of Medicine Hat, Alberta. Brother Arthur Ellis, sisters Mrs. Rose McCartney and Norma Ells are deceased.

Mrs. Ellis has five brothers and sisters. They are Douglas McFaul of Wellington, Cory McFaul of Picton, Luella Burris and Stella Gerow, both of Consecon, and Lelia Pantin, of Hillier.

The couple received many gifts, cards and flowers. His sister, Mrs. Ethel Hubbs, of Medicine Hat, Alberta sur prised them with a long-distance phone call. A telegram of congratulations was received from Premier John Robarts of Ontario and a framed certificate from the province of Ontario through North Hastings, MPP.

Over one hundred people braved snowstorm and hazardous roads to congratulate the highly esteemed couple at the "at home", Flowers decorated the hall and an anniversary cake and candles were on the tea table, Pouring tea were Mrs. Raymond Ellis, daughter-in-law of the honored couple, Mrs. Everett Lloyd, Mrs. Norman Courneyea, Mrs. Roland Clarke and the Misses Margaret and Barbara McFaul. Delicious refreshments were served by the Wellington Women's Institute members.

Previous to her marriage Mrs. Carl Hill (nee Cathy Lee O'Brien) was honored at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Carol Potts with Mrs. Nancy Ryan as hostess. Following the rehearsal the bridal party was entertained at the home of Miss Stella Brant, Deseronto by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Lulu Hill, Shannonville.

TAIL TELLS TALE

When purchasing a cooked lobster in the shell, test it by straightening out the tail. If the tial springs back into a curled position, the lobster was alive and healthy when cooked.

Springbrook UCW Sponsors Turkey Dinner

Springbrook United Church Women entertained the Senior citizens to a turkey dinner in the church hall on December 4. Mrs. W. Cox and Mrs. G. Williams welcomed the guests. It was the regular UCW meeting and all members were invited for the dinner. Rev. W. Cox, on behalf of the guests, thanked the members.

Mrs. Joe Thompson had a contest for the guests on outstanding Springbrook people who had gone out in the 19th century as ministers, doctors, school inspectors, lawyers, mayors and wardens.

Mrs. G. Williams, the president, conducted the devotional. Another part of the program was taken over by Mrs. Murney Mason, Mrs. S. Downer and Mrs. Clayton Bullitt. Mrs. Ralph Wellman supplied the music for the hymns. A film of the Christmas story was shown by Mrs. Joe Thompson.

The members remained for a business meeting. The secretary, Mrs. Burkitt read the minutes and the business was dealt with. Mrs. Murney Mason, treasurer, gave the report and the committees gave their reports for the year. The next meeting will be January 8 and all women of the congregation are invited.

Mrs. Williams closed the meeting with prayer.

Free Food Stall Closes Due to Lack of Interest

VICTORIA (CP) — Victoria's unique free food stall had died of malnutrition—lack of public interest and a sharp decline in contributions of food.

But when the doors closed in late October after 18 years of continuous service to the needy, Joan Price refused to sign the death certificate, and the stall reopened within a month.

As the stall's convener for the last three years, Mrs. Price, a hospital laboratory worker, was still convinced there was lots of surplus food going to waste and that it could be distributed to the 200-odd families she knew of that needed it.

"Call up the wholesalers and tell them Joan is back in town' and wants to start the stall up again," she told nine people who came to a meeting in her home in response to a city-wide plea for volunteers she had issued.

The stall was started in 1951 by Mrs. Barbara Green—now a Vancouver resident and mother of five.

"The enthusiasm is catching," Mrs. Price said. "Many others have contacted me to offer their services—they have promised that the Christmas stall in December will be the most successful in the entire history of the operation."

At its peak the stall was supported by many volunteer groups, businesses and individuals. A group of anglers regularly stocked a freezer with a variety of fish for the stall; operators of small farms in the outlying areas would telephone to offer surplus crops of celery, potatoes, beans or tomatoes; hunters gave meat, bakers bread, and so on.

But from time to time the simple "lettuce over the back fence" procedure failed. Cheery volunteers, lacking sophisticated distribution knowledge or consistent ways of transporting and storing the surpluses, fell under criticism for funding out stacks of spuds that had gone bad, or sausage meat that turned out to be putrid when thawed.

The anglers became discouraged and dropped out when told fresh salmon—not frozen was preferred. Controversy also soured the operation at one time—when a handful of welfare recipients made an unfounded claim that their payments were reduced because they obtained goods from the stall.

Yet white support was strong. Business came in sufficient appreciation to the stall locked in an annex, not much bigger than a garage, and tucked in at the rear of the Elks Home on Cormorant St.

They took away with them bread, meat, tinned food or vegetables, or when things were plentiful, a number of all the items—maybe even cookies or cake.

One might be the elderly and all but voiceless pensioner. No bread for him. He managed to tell the stall he dies he had cancer of the throat and could swallow no rough food. A canned goods shelf they found two tins of baby food for him.

Another, the mother of eight, mentally disabled those bananas among her brood—about an inch and a half for each youngster.

So it went—and will go again—from 9 a.m. to noon on the third Saturday of each month. If it fails there will be no one to care except Joan Price and her volunteers—"I need 34 more."

"I feel like a professional beggar at times," she said, "but it's pretty easy to put your pride in your pocket when you see how much this stall is needed."

Ann Landers

Ex-wife Constant Visitor at In-Laws

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What can I do about an ex-wife who invites herself to my parents' home and tries to get herself included in all the family affairs?

I would like to see my parents once in a while but I'm afraid to go over there because my former wife is always hanging around. I am uncomfortable in her presence and would travel 50 miles to avoid her. She still wears her wedding ring and acts as if she is married to me.

It isn't as if she is an orphan, Ann. This woman has parents in town but she rarely sees them. She prefers mine. It has made me orphan out of me, however. And I resent it. Any suggestions? — FED UP.

DEAR FED: Instead of dropping in on your parents, let them know in advance when you plan to see them, then call before you set out. If your former wife is visiting when you call they should tell her you are coming and suggest that she return another time. If they feel they cannot do this and she is present when you arrive say, "I'll see you another time, folks." — and leave.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter is one of the brightest, most talented young women in this town, but she is no beauty. Cora is flat chested, broad-beamed and she walks like a duck.

Eight years ago Cora married Lester. He is so handsome that heads turn when he enters a room. Lester was completely faithful during the entire courtship but when they started to disappear from his bed at 2:00 a.m. Sometimes he'd slip back at 6:00. Other times she'd meet him in the kitchen at 8:30 when she went to prepare breakfast. Last year two married women offered to leave their husbands for him. Yesterday a school teacher came to see my daughter and asked her to free Lester so they could find true happiness together. When Cora told Lester he could go if he wanted to, he replied, "That girl is nuts. I hardly know her."

My daughter is not concerned about any of this. She says he is a wonderful husband and a fine father to their three children. I knew Lester's father and two of his uncles. They were the same way. Lester also has a brother who is a chaser. Can it be an illness that runs in families? Please tell me what I can do about it. — CONNECTICUT WOE.

DEAR WOE: Chasing isn't inherited, although it can run in families. No doubt Lester got his ideas from the environment he grew up in. As for what you can do about it, the answer is nothing. It is not your problem and apparently your daughter is coping with it. So keep your oar out of her water, Mother.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 14-year-old boy who acts dumb and feels like everybody is looking at him and thinking, "What a knot-head!" I say stupid things and then I could kick myself. I do dumb things to get attention and when I get the attention I am embarrassed and wish they would look at somebody else. As you can see, I'm a nut. I feel awkward and ugly and my face has the beginning of acne and my hands and feet are too big for the rest of me. Please tell me what it takes to get over these faults. — MR. NOTHING.

DEAR MR.: About four years — may be less. But be patient, pal, you're more normal than you think.

Club Activities

TWEED KINETTE CLUB

TWEED — The recent monthly meeting (regular) of the Tweed Kinette Club was held at the Hotel Tweedmuir. Three guests, Mrs. Reevie, Mrs. C. Bell and Mrs. Wilson attended, along with the guest speaker, Mrs. Sheila Richards, supervisor of the Unmarried Parents and Adoption Department of the Family and Children's Services of Hasting's County. Following dinner Mrs. Richards gave a very interesting talk dealing with her work and the people involved. This was followed by a question and answer period. The Lee Kum Kum letter for December will be written by Kinette Sharon Oatman.

President Kinette Marion Cope thanked Kinette Carole Bleecker for the effort involved in arranging the anniversary meeting held in October. A report was given at this time on the sale of tickets for the "Dollar Doll".

A report was given by Kinette Carole Bleecker on the Inter-club meeting which was attended in Picton recently. A wreath was placed at the cenotaph, November 11, by president Marion Cope. A report was also given on the recent senior citizens' dinner, which the club members felt to be a decided success.)

Kinette Marion Little read a letter dealing with the Kinsmen Golden Anniversary, which contained many suggestions to make a successful year.

Owing to the temporary resignation of Kinette Eileen Hunter, Kinette Brenda McGuire volunteered to be the club's representative on the welfare board. Snow queen convenorship once again will be Kinette Sharon Ostman, with Kinette Hedi Siroompi as assistant. A discussion followed regarding the Winter Carnival in Tweed, with Kinette Carole Bleecker appointed convener. Kinette Carole Bleecker gave a report and asked for help on behalf of the Kinsmen with their new bingo project which they are trying to organize at the present time.

A letter was read from Reverend I. E. Munro regarding choosing a Senior Citizens' Club, and having a representative from the Kinette Club sit on the Senior Citizens' Club Board of Directors, with various Kinettes assisting when needed. President Marion Cope suggested ways of setting up standing committees for various programs so as to involve all Kinettes and give better organization to projects and meetings. A report on ideas for the Christmas meeting, to which the Kinsmen and wives will be invited, was given by Kinette Carol Norris. A new convener is to be appointed for this committee.

Successful Living

Mourns Deeply Sudden Passing of Brother

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: You offered to send a counsellor's name to a brother who had lost his sister. I would like to speak to someone as I lost my brother three months ago and can't stop thinking about him and crying. He was 34 and so good.

I feel I need help. Please, Doris, who do I talk to? Someone who can explain to me why? I feel quite bitter about it; very hurt. I suppose, is more the word. — Grieving

Dear Grieving: To lose a vital young person is doubly hard—and the emptiness can be terrible. Three months is not very long, and you are still in shock.

Just the same would your brother have wanted you to weep?

When you feel like crying and being lonely, don't do it. Find yourself a friend to go out with or a kind deed to do for someone who is in worse trouble than you are. Diversion into useful activities could be a life-saver for you now.

If you feel it would help to blow off steam, have a talk with your minister or priest; or with a family counsellor in your area, whose name I am forwarding to you.

* * *

Dear Doris: Have recently taken on the job of president of our local home and school association. I'm troubled at how to plan a stimulating and informative program.

Matters educational are of primary interest but I would like to introduce additional topics such as welfare, laws, careers, and even have demonstrations of arts and crafts, if this is possible.

Have you any prepared literature to cope with this type of situation? — Inexperienced But Keen

Dear Inexperienced: I'm sending along my complete list of leaflets (about 175 in all). You name it — we've got it — almost!

We have them on How to Study, Tuning in on Your Teen, Talking to Junior, Explaining the Facts of Life, Choosing a Career, and perhaps a number of others which might make good jumping-off topics for discussion at your meetings.

Any one leaflet is 10 cents; any one dozen of a particular leaflet costs $1. The complete list is 10 cents too, and when you write in for any leaflet, please enclose a large, six-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Good luck with your challenging new responsibility.

* * *

Dear Doris: I wrote you for ideas on how to make money at home, and was glad to receive so many ideas that I had never thought of myself. — ended up baby sitting for my sisters and selling Christmas cards and gifts for a firm in a large Canadian city.

Also, your idea to do typing at home gave me the incentive to learn how to type. So I want to thank you. — Happy to Report.

Dear Happy: That makes two of us. Better pat yourself on the back for having the push to get going at something. An idea man is no good without somebody to follow through.

* * *

Doris welcomes your comments and ideas. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Grandmother: "The children have always brought their families home for Christmas dinner, but it's awfully hard on me. They think if they wash up the dishes after the meal, they've done their share."

Grandmother: "I would love to have you all for Christmas dinner, but I don't feel able to do the work this year. How would it be if everyone brought some part of the meal all ready to serve?"

Some family customs should be modified as parents grow older and have less strength and energy.

A Deluxe Macaroni and Cheese Dish

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: . . would you please send gourmet macaroni and cheese . . . Mrs. A. G.

ANSWER: I am glad to for this recipe will help some of our gourmet readers who are trying to budget for Christmas gifts.

DELUXE MACARONI AND CHEESE

Cook 6 oz. (approximately 1¼ cups) elbow macaroni in boiling salted water and drain. Melt 1 tbsp. of margarine; blend in 1 tbsp. flour. Gradually add 1 cup milk and beat, stirring constantly until thickened. Add 2 cups grated cheese, ½ tsp. dry mustard, ½ tsp. salt and a generous dash of pepper; heat stirring, until cheese is just melted. Stir in 1 cup thick sour cream. Put half the cooked macaroni into a greased casserole, then add ½ cup diced cooked ham and half of the cheese sauce. Sprinkle with 1 tbsp. chopped parsley. Repeat with another layer of macaroni, ham, sauce and parsley. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 min. Be careful not to overbake because of the sour cream. Serves 6.

QUESTION: Would you please forward your recipe for barbecued blade steaks? — Mrs. S. M.

ANSWER: ELEANOR'S SWISS-BARBECUED BLADE STEAKS (Repeated from July, 1965 and August 1967)

Two 1¼ lb. blade or chuck steaks
Flour
¼ cup bacon drippings
½ lemon, sliced thinly
1 large onion, sliced
2 tbsps. brown sugar
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. freshly ground black pepper
½ tsp. barbecue seasoning
1 tbsp. parsley flakes
1¼ cups tomato juice
and 2 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce

Sprinkle the blade steaks on both sides with flour. Now brown them in hot bacon drippings on both sides. Transfer steaks and fat to roasting pan large enough to fit them in one layer. Arrange lemon slices, then onion slices over steaks. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Then sprinkle over the salt, pepper, barbecue seasoning and parsley flakes. Carefully pour tomato juice and Worcestershire sauce evenly over all. Cover and bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 3½ hrs.

Dinner Menu

Grilled Pickerel Fillets with Barbecue Sauce; Fluffy Rice; Frenched Green Beans; Carrot and Celery Curls; Baked Custard with Canned Peaches; Tea.

(This was cooking in Eleanor's automatically-controlled oven most of the afternoon. At 5:00 p.m. when she returned home from work she found the meat was quite tender so she reduced the heat to 300 deg. Fahr. to retard the cooking until dinner time at 6:30 p.m.)

A CHRISTMAS REMINDER

As in previous years, anyone wishing to have a social or personal item in the Intelligencer Christmas issue is requested to mail information or phone the Social Department at the Intelligencer no later than December 22. No other contacts will be made in the solicitation of Yule personals.

Deseronto S.A. Home League Holds Bazaar

DESERONTO — The Home League of the Deseronto Corps of the Salvation Army had a successful bazaar and tea in the Lions Hall recently. Mrs. Captain Barkhouse assisted Mrs. Claus at the door and Miss Harriet Hannah of Napanee received admission fees.

The damask cloth of the tea table was centred by the Home League emblem, a large open Bible and a miniature house lighted from within. It was flanked by two silver candelabra with red candles. Mrs. Violet Plumley of Napanee presided over the silver tea service throughout the afternoon. Karen Hearns, Patsy Keith, Anna Jackson and Shirley Claus served the guests and Mrs. Clara Millgate and Mrs. Hazel Barker of Napanee kept things going in the kitchen. Mrs. Frank German was responsible for making the tea.

The sale items were all on one long table divided into sections. Mrs. Eldon Hearns was busy with the baked goods, some of which Napanee women had contributed. Everything sold early.

Mrs. Vernon Claus was in charge of the knitted goods which included mitts, socks, slippers and baby sets. The sewing included aprons, runners and pillow cases sold by Mrs. Mary Brant. Janet Claus was in charge of the white elephant table.

Code of Ethics Opposed, Press Council Favored

OTTAWA (CP) — The idea of a press council to police the communications industry received some qualified support Thursday from members of the Ottawa press corps testifying before the Senate committee on mass media.

Charles Lynch, chief of Southam News Services, said he opposes codifying ethics for the industry, but a press council would have a place.

To be effective, it should operate on some kind of regional basis because of the size of the country. He opposed a code of ethics because journalists work to public.

"If you operated as a scoundrel in that milieu you could be judged so by the public," he said.

Robert Hull of the Windsor Star, Press Gallery president, said members of the gallery could never agree on a code of ethics. He supports a form of press council.

Tom Callaghan, parliamentary correspondent for the CBC, said the press council might have a role in the area of ethical conduct for the industry.

He doubted the council was necessary, but if the public wanted it then it should be considered. Ethical conduct was Canada's own attitude.

basically a question of the journalists' own attitude.

These journalists and Joyce Fairbairn of FP Publications gave their views under questioning by committee members.

All five witnesses were from the Parliamentary Press Gallery, the working home of 120 journalists who report Parliament and the federal government in the capital. Mr. Hull said the gallery itself has no collective view on anything, so each spoke as individuals.

The testifying group generally rejected statements by the government's recent study group on information services that the gallery had a news monopoly, that too many people were denied membership, that it constituted an influential power bloc and that members interviewed each other for stories.

Mr. Lynch, who writes a political column, was the chief target of questions from committee members. Some of his points:

—The gallery "is a competitive jungle" and not "a toy's club" or "a cosy-cosy place."

—Financial rewards for journalists are better than ever as newspaper publishers had finally realized "that news is something you pay for."

—He had never seen a political question on which there were fewer than three versions of the truth.

—The press corps, contrary to some beliefs, does not have the power to make a good government. Look at them was Louis St. Laurent. . .

—The press neither hatched nor forced the communications bulldog for Pierre Trudeau during his rise to power, but merely reported the Trudeau material.

—He was worried that the "players called the critics before them" in the Senate media inquiry because it might have an inhibiting effect on journalists.

—Group ownership of Southam papers improved the papers involved rather than reducing their quality.

—The Southam head office is "unbelievably detached" from the operations of their newspapers, which have varying political stripes.

News Media's Unifying Role Rates Government Aid: Witness

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's survival depends on public willingness to subsidize cross-country communication in all forms, including distribution of news papers and perhaps collection of foreign news by Canadians, a Senate inquiry into the press was told Thursday night.

Tom Sloan, former newspaper man who directs journalism and Information at Laval University, Quebec City, said establishment of postal services and increased postage rates for journals "can have only a bad effect."

He urged the special committee on mass media to consider government subsidies in some form for distribution of newspapers and for news coverage abroad by The Canadian Press, the national co-operative newsgathering organization.

The information industry today plays the unifying role that railways did in the last century, he added.

"In a country such as Canada, where a combination of small population and vast distances makes inter-communication both harder and more necessary, the government must do all in its power to facilitate the process."

Criticizing the idea of Communications Minister Eric Kierans that the post office should pay his own way, Mr. Sloan added:

"Assuming that the preservation of Canada is a valid goal, such a principle falls of its own weight."

Communications are expensive in Canada, but if the country is to survive communications must have constant aid, he said.

"Any government action that compromises financial reasons, communications between Canadians, in print or otherwise, is in say the least shortsighted." Mr. Sloan added.

He suggested that the post office should subsidize distribution of newspapers.

Mr. Kierans had argued subsidies should be paid directly to newspapers, if they need help, rather than granted in the hidden form of low postal rates. Mr. Sloan suggested there could be a direct vote of funds to the post office to pay for delivery of periodicals.

Direct grants to the newspapers themselves would carry administrative problems, especially in making sure the subsidies were used in the way intended.

Mr. Sloan said The Canadian Press is making a substantial contribution in terms of coverage of Canadian events and some elsewhere. But for foreign coverage, it depends largely on The Associated Press.

"Under present circumstances, the subsidiary relationship of CP to The Associated Press is perhaps an economic necessity, but at best it is a crutch.

CP has Canadian staffed bureaus in New York, Washington, London and Paris. Main foreign coverage is received from AP, Reuters news agency and, for French-language newspapers, from Agence France-Presse.

Member CP newspapers apparently do not have the money to pay for expansion of foreign coverage and suspicion of government subsidy runs broad and deep, Mr. Sloan said.

"Would there not, however, be an argument for the financing of CP's foreign services by an independent corporation established, but not controlled, by the government?"

If Canadian-produced foreign news is insufficient, at least it is not necessary to rely exclusively on one or two other sources. Further, the fact that the use of Agence France-Presse is virtually limited to French-language newspapers tends to reinforce divisions.

Senator Keith Davey, (L—Ontario) committee chairman, said CP had testified in an appearance Wednesday that in effect reporting of foreign news through non-Canadian eyes does not really matter, because it is fast and accurate from present sources.

Mr. Sloan disagreed, saying a report is necessarily colored by the cultural background of the reporter.

He said there is no willing idea of distorting the news, but foreign-owned agencies covering Africa, for example, do not take into account Canada's special wealth countries on one hand and former French colonies on the other.

Similarly, a report from Latin America by a United States agency naturally is colored by the background of U.S. relations with that part of the world. That is important for Canadian readers, too, but not as important as it is in the United States.

Giving other examples, Mr. Sloan said AFP's coverage of Algeria's insurrection against French rule in the 1930s was "distinct, to put it mildly" from that of U.S. agencies. The same is true now of Vietnam coverage by the French and U.S. services. But neither brand necessarily meets what Canadians want.

Mr. Sloan also questioned the heavy reliance on the United States for entertainment programs in television.

He said he does not oppose drawing on foreign sources, "but the facile dependence on country, to the practical exclusion of others, should be challenged."

Community News Monopoly Not Dangerous, Senators Told

OTTAWA (CP) — Michael Sifton, owner of the major newspaper and broadcasting group in Saskatchewan, told a Senate inquiry Thursday he sees nothing dangerous in the concentrated ownership of various sources of information in a community.

Mr. Sifton, president of Armadale Co. Ltd. of Toronto, qualified the view by saying the ownership should be fair and responsible and nothing should be done to prevent competition.

Testifying before the special Senate committee on mass media, Mr. Sifton said at another point in a 3½-hour session that centralized control of thinking is dangerous. A community would be threatened if it had access to only one source of information.

Armadale owns the Regina Leader-Post and the Saskatchewan Star-Phoenix newspapers. Regina radio station CKCK and CKCK-TV in the same city. Outside Saskatchewan, Armadale holds the monthly magazine Toronto Life and radio stations CKRC Winnipeg and CKOC Hamilton.

In Regina, there are four other radio stations and a television station based in Moose Jaw which also beams programs to the Regina area.

Questioned by Senator Harry Hayes (L—Alberta) about direction given to persons who run the two newspapers, Mr. Sifton said he does not want managers or editors who are tools.

However, he tries to put together a group of people who share the same philosophies, he said.

Senator Hays asked if it is socially desirable for business conglomerates to own newspapers and broadcasting stations. Mr. Sifton said he does not believe Armadale is a conglomerate. He said he thinks the company is doing a good job and it is open to anybody to move in and compete.

Senator Hays read part of a letter received from a Saskatchewan resident saying the province has survived various scourges, including dust and grasshoppers, but the worst curse of all is the monopoly of wan."

Questioned further, Mr. Sifton said it would be undesirable for one firm to own all information sources in Canada. But if the people decided there should be a limit on concentration of ownership, it should not be achieved through a regulatory body or licencing.

"If all media fell into the hands of a regulatory body it would be a serious threat to the freedom of the individual."

Social Evolution Swift

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Biological evolution takes millions of years. Cultural or social evolution takes place in hundreds of years, and sometimes even in decades. This puts a great stress on man's biological nature.

I am persuaded, for instance that a lot of what we loosely call "juvenile delinquency" — both in the untended slums and the over-protected suburbs — is really the result of a swift social evolution that has left little room for certain natures and temperaments.

Biologically, we are turning out much the same kind of people we did 10,000 years ago, when men hunted and fished for a livelihood. Temperamentally and bodily, a certain large percentage of little boys are still born who need the stimulus and satisfaction of a primitive way of life.

Until the rise of the industrial age, a century or so ago, such boys could grow into manhood confidently expecting that their daring and dexterity would be rewarded: society needed them, to break trails, to hunt buffalo, to tame the wilderness and ply the rough waters in rude crafts. They were heroes, or at least respected members of society.

With the startling transformation of our society in the last century — and with the rate of change itself increasing every decade — the need for this kind of man has shrunk to an absolute minimum. The trails have been broken, the buffalo exterminated, the wilderness is now a shopping centre, and the rough waters a challenge only to the water skiers.

Industrial and urbanized society wants tame men, tractable men, men who will sit at a desk or work at a lathe eight hours a day and trudge home dutifully to the television set. This suits many men of such temperaments — but nature is still producing as many hunters and river-pilots and foresters as it used to. Only now they must be repressed and molded into the form and needs of a technological age.

Of course, delinquency is a product of many causes, such as poverty at one extreme, and over-organization at the other; but since delinquent leaders so often tend to be stronger and smarter and more agile than others, it seems evident that they are boys who would have found constructive outlets for their abundant energies in past ages, when the world was loose, open, physical and, agrarian.

Like the Indians, who apparently cannot operate optimally in our constricted culture, many of these boys are "delinquent" only by the artificial standards of our society, which no longer has any place for the kind of men who made it all possible in the beginning.

"Imagine, electric nail scissors! What'll they think of next—an electric lipstick?"

Noresco. The stereo system for people who want sound equipment, not furniture.

Dual

Let's face it.
There are two reasons to buy stereo. One of them is because it matches your chesterfield.

But the important thing about a stereo isn't its cabinet. It's the sound reproduction.

And that's what makes Noresco great. Sure there are other component stereo systems. But do they have Dual precision turntables? Every Noresco does. And you know Dual's reputation for quality and precision.

Noresco is a flexible system. Custom speakers may be positioned anywhere for the best possible effect.

And you can add to the system anytime you want to.

Noresco looks good. Comes in teak or walnut. And if you're really big on matching things, you can get custom shelving in matching woods.

But basically, Noresco isn't just another pretty face. It's precision sound equipment, not furniture.

And isn't that what you really want in a stereo system.

Constable To Be Tried

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Richard Yeowart, 26, former Metropolitan Toronto police constable, was committed for trial by judge and jury Thursday in connection with the Sept. 7 kidnapping of Mary Nelles.

Bail of $30,000 was renewed by Provincial Judge Crawford Guest.

The next jury assizes in Ontario County are to start March 16.

Yeowart is charged with kidnapping and conspiracy to kidnap Mrs. Nelles, who was taken from her Claremont, Ont., home by six men who were paid $200,000 in ransom. She was released unharmed and the ransom money recovered.

Five men pleaded guilty to the kidnapping and were sentenced last month.

Parade Ban Ends

QUEBEC (CP) — Lucien Saulnier, chairman of Montreal's executive committee, said Thursday a 30-day demonstration and parade ban which expires Saturday under a controversial bylaw will not be renewed.

He said there is "no reason" to continue banning protests or parades, provided they have obtained a license from the city.

Rawdon

RAWDON — Allan Wrightman shot a wolf on the fifth concession, Rawdon.

William Heath is reported to have undergone surgery in Scarborough Hospital recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMillen attended the wedding of their nephew, David Mott, and Sheila Mae Brooks on December 6 in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Cornwall. A reception followed in the church hall.

Miss Nancy David was tendered a miscellaneous bridal shower with 40 women present. The hostess was Mrs. William McAdam and co-hostesses were Mrs. Will Jeffs, Mrs. Harry McAdam, Mrs. Irwin Potts and Mrs. Burton Sharpe.

Carleton's Pair Timely for Bruins

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Wayne Carleton may not score another two goals in several National Hockey League games to come but the two he got Thursday night were enough to polish Milt Schmidt's image as a shrewd hockey man.

Schmidt is the Boston Bruins general manager who just two days ago acquired Carleton in a trade with Toronto Maple Leafs.

And Carleton is the left-winger whose two goals gave the Bruins a 2-1 win over New York, snapping the Rangers' 14-game unbeaten streak and moving Boston back to within four points of the East Division leaders.

In other games, Jim Harrison, who went to Toronto in exchange for Carleton, assisted on one of three Maple Leafs goals as Philadelphia but the Flyers took a 6-3 victory while Detroit Red Wings earned a 2-2 tie with Minnesota North Stars.

One game tonight has Pittsburgh Penguins visiting Oakland Seals.

Schmidt first emerged as a wily trader when he talked Chicago Black Hawks out of Phil Esposito, Ken Hodge and Fred Stanfield for defenceman Giles Marotte, forward Pit Martin and goalie Jack Norris.

None of the Chicago acquisitions in the 1967 trade developed as well as the three who went to Boston. Esposito last season won the scoring championship with Hodge finishing fifth. This season, Esposito and Stanfield both are among the top 10 scorers.

Carleton had picked up only 10 goals and 16 assists in the 81 games he played with Toronto since the 1965-66 season and his best performance with a miner club was 17 goals and 15 assists with Tulsa in the Central League in 1966-67.

MILT SCHMIDT
Looking Shrewd

The 23-year-old winger was plagued with injuries through most of his career and claimed the Leafs never gave him a chance to develop.

The Bruins gave him a chance Thursday and he took advantage when hard-working centre Derek Sanderson set him up twice in front of New York goalie Ed Giacomin.

His first goal came at 1:52 of the first period on a rebound from a shot by Sanderson.

Dave Balon of the Rangers tied it up eight minutes later but the Sanderson-Carleton combination came back for another in the last minute of the second period.

The Bruins held the advantage for most of the game, outshooting the Rangers 49-33.

Andre Lacroix got his second three-goal game against the Maple Leafs to lead the Flyers before a Philadelphia crowd of 10,039. Lacroix's other three-goal night came Oct. 22 at Toronto.

Bob Clarke, Earl Heiskala and Gary Dornoefer were the other Flyers marksmen in Philadelphia's fifth win of the season. They also have 10 ties for 20 points, worth fourth spot in the West Division.

Harrison assisted on a goal by Bob Pulford with Mike Walton and Terry Clancy providing the other Toronto scoring.

Goalie Marv Edwards absorbed the loss after stopping 32 Philadelphia shots while Bernie Parent earned the victory by making 27 saves.

Goals by Gary Unger and Nick Libett gave Detroit the tie which kept them in fourth place in the East Division, four points behind Boston and Montreal Canadiens.

Big Jean Gone

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens will be lost to the club for two to three weeks because of a cracked ankle bone, a spokesman for the National Hockey League club said Thursday.

Beliveau was injured Saturday against Minnesota North Stars when he and Minnesota defenceman Barry Gibbs collided along the boards. Gibbs fell on Beliveau's leg and the veteran Montreal captain limped off the ice. He was removed to hospital immediately but x-rays did not show any break.

Beliveau tried to practise Thursday after missing games Sunday and Wednesday but was unable to skate and was sent back to the hospital for a further x-ray session.

The spokesman said Thursday's x-rays revealed a small crack on the left ankle bone. The limb was placed in a cast.

The injury means that left wing centre Peter Mahovlich, up from Montreal Voyageurs of the American Hockey League, will remain with the Canadiens.

Orr Marks Time

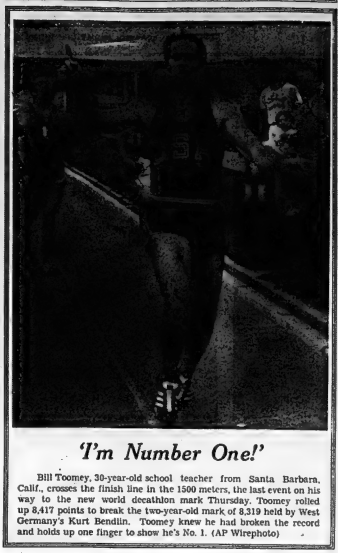
By THE CANADIAN PRESS



Walt Tkacruk of the Rangers picked up an assist in New York's 2-1 loss to Boston Thursday night to move to within 10 points of scoring leader Bobby Orr of the Bruins.

Orr failed to collect a point Thursday but second-place Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues was not in action and remains four points back. Jean Ratelle also failed to score but remained in third spot, two points ahead of team-mate Tkacruk.

Chance Taken By Cleveland

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Twins of baseball's American League announced Thursday a major four-for-two trade with Cleveland Indians involving pitchers Dean Chance of the Twins and Luis Tiant of the Indians.

Tiant and Stan Williams, both right-handers, go to the Twins in exchange for Chance, outfielder Ted Uhlaender, infielder-outfielder Craig Nettles and a player to be named later.

Both Tiant and Chance had off-years in 1969, but rank among the league's top right-handers.

Chance, 28, was bothered by a sore shoulder and pitched 89 innings. He had a 5-4 record and a 2.97 earned-run average. In 1967 he had a 20-14 record and a 2.73 ERA.

Tiant, 29, broke in with the Indians in 1964. His best year was 1968 when he had a 21-9 won-lons record and led the league with a 1.60 ERA.

He slumped to a 9-20 mark last year and had a 3.71 ERA.

Chuvalo Will Quit If Quarry Beats Him

NEW YORK (CP) — With the end of a long and sometimes rocky road staring him in the face, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion George Chuvalo goes for broke in a 10-round bout against cocky Jerry Quarry in Madison Square Garden tonight.

"If I lose, it will be my last fight," said Chuvalo. "If I win then I'll go after Frazier."

Chuvalo was stopped by Joe Frazier, recognized as world champion in five U.S. states, fourth round in the same ring two years ago and it almost ended his career. It took surgery to correct a fractured cheekbone that was diagnosed by doctors as from a previous battle.

Chuvalo, like Quarry, is a two-time loser in world title bouts. He lost 15-round decisions to Ernie Terrell, then World Boxing Association champion, and to Cassius Clay, then world champion, in bouts fought in Toronto.

Quarry, 24, lost a 15-round split decision to World Boxing Association champion Jimmy Ellis in an elimination tournament to find a successor to Clay after he was stripped for refusing induction into the U.S. armed services, and was stopped by Frazier in the seventh round of their title bout in the Garden last June.

Frazier, who fights in the same style as Chuvalo, gave Quarry a bad beating in their fight when Quarry tried to stand up to him and Quarry remembers well.

Big Win for Nought?

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Leotis Martin, the Philadelphia heavyweight who knocked out Sonny Liston last week, is to undergo eye surgery today which may end his career, his manager said Thursday. Martin is have an operation to correct a detached retina in his right eye, said manager Pinny Schafer. Schafer said Martin has been assured by doctors of success for the operation, but danger of recurrence makes it seem unlikely that he will box again.

Schafer said the fighter complained his right eye was bothering him on the return trip from Las Vegas following Saturday's nine - round bout with Liston.

That's right.

THOMAS ADAMS DISTILLERS LTD., TORONTO, VANCOUVER.

Lifting 200 pounds might be routine for some of the more senior members of the Apollo Barbell Club, but it's got to be a team effort for novices Richard Bly, Robert Kornblum, and Joel Carr-Braint. The three are among the 10-member Apollo Club contingent competing in Saturday's 15th annual Eastern Ontario Christmas Teenage Weightlifting Contest.

Apollo Club Lifters Never Seem Satisfied

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Sports Editor)

Weightlifters are never satisfied.

Take the Apollo Barbell Club as a case in point.

The Belleville weightlifting club won the Ontario Teenage team title in April, and numbers three Canadian champions among its ranks.

But come Saturday, the 10 Apollo entries in the 15th annual Eastern Ontario Christmas Teenage Weightlifting Contest will be hosting bars like they had never won so much as an honorable mention.

Gary Walt, for example, could probably be spending his evenings taking in a good movie this week. But last night he was accomplishing, among other things, a 315-pound clean and jerk — 25 better than his previous best.

Gary, at 21, is not eligible for Saturday's teenage competition, but his improvements over last year's personal totals place him in the running for one of three major trophies to be presented at the Sir Mackenzie Bowell School event.

In addition to an award for the most improved Eastern Ontario lifter over the past year, there will be a best lifter trophy for the teenage competition, and a "Champion of Champions" trophy, a second year honor to the best lifter in the province awarded on a pounds-over-body weight basis.

The local Apollo's club's 10 teenage competitors makes them the biggest contingent in the 35 lifter field.

The public are welcome to Saturday's afternoon and evening competition at the Leland Drive school.

Mo-Hawks Have No Sympathy for A's

Despite their 1-16 won-lost record, the Woodstock Athletics are not going to get any sympathy from Belleville Mo-Hawk coach Davey Jones as they come into Belleville today.

"Why should I feel sorry for them. Nobody feels sorry for us when we lose. And besides, we're the only team Woodstock has beaten this year!"

Jones was referring to the Mo-Hawks' 4-3 road loss Oct. 31 in Woodstock. The embarrassment of that Hallowe'en setback prodded a seven-game unbeaten string out of the Mo-Hawks largely responsible for their current share of fourth spot in the eight-team OHA Senior A standings.

Since then, Jones has been cautious about over-optimism.

"Don't sell them short. They've got a good club. They're going through a stage that we went through before Christmas last year."

The Mo - Hawks are going through a stage themselves. It's called being a winning team, and the club's 9-7-2 record marks the first time they've been above .500 into the season in the club's four-year history.

But shooting for not just a playoff berth, but an UPPER berth, Jones lets it be known that the Mo-Hawks' are not taking any team for granted. Two points are two points.

Still shaved from the lineup in tonight's 9 p.m. Memorial Arena game will be Billy Armour, sidelined for a couple of more weeks with a head injury. Forward John "Shaker" Baker and defenceman Wayne "Weiner" Brown returned from illness bouts for Tuesday night's 4-1 rout of Kingston. Captain Ralph Plaxe will be playing, but probably shouldn't be, laboring under a severe shoulder injury received in the first two weeks of the season.

On the plus side, the Mo - Hawks are getting strong efforts of late from Al Ferguson (15 goals in 18 games); Lorne O'Donnell (his 20 points lead the club and place him in the league's top 10); and the red hot "second" line of Davey Jones, Ray Johnston and Wayne McConnell.

The defence corps of Lionel Bodry, Lou Kazowski, Greg Marchen, and "Weiner" Brown have been providing the club with bioeline backing absent in previous years.

And goalie Steve Rexs's goals - against average is progressively shrinking, now down to a respectable 3.30 in the high - scoring senior loop.

Trojans Hosts To Hoop Wars

Moira and Quinte Secondary School are not going to walk till the end of the current Bay of Quinte High School Basketball season to settle their junior hoop rivalry.

The two teams — each sporting 3-0 records in league play to date — are among the eight entered in the first annual Trojan Invitational Junior tourney being staged at Moira Tuesday, Dec. 30.

Bolstering local chances of a tournament win is the entry of Centennial Junior Chargers, currently sporting a 2-1 record in the Bay of Quinte league standings.

Joining Quinte's Hawks, the Trojans and Chargers in competing for the tournament's inaugural championship will be Kingston's Loyalist Lancers and Queen Elizabeth Red Raiders, Cobourg West, Thousand Island Pirates (Brockville), and Peterborough Collegiate Raiders.

Quinte and Centennial kick off the day's action with an 8.30 game, with Cobourg and Loyalist pairing off at 9.45.

At 11 a.m., the host Trojans tangle with Kingston's Queen Elizabeth, and at 12.15 game pits Brockville against Peterborough.

The consolation title will be decided in a 7 p.m. game, with the grand championship slated to get under way at 8.30.

Cast No Problem

Playing with a cast on his hand was no handicap to goalie Gary Genereaux last night.

Playing his first game after suffering a broken stick hand, Genereaux was unbeatable as his Bata Brave teammates rolled up a 10-0 score over Newcastle in intermediate "C" hockey action.

Roger Smith's hat trick paced the Braves, who also got two goal efforts from Vince Siesner, Chuck Howard, and Dan Dixon. Bob Bartsch's single rounded out the scoring.

Four-timer !

A four - goal performance by Rick Barbeau pared Belleville's Maurice Rollins peewee all - stars to a 7-2 win over Madoc Wednesday.

Eddie Grills picked up a pair of goals for Belleville, with Ross McLeod collecting the other.

Top Floor

Moira Junior Trojans are hoping to get the big jump on their opponents in the first-ever Trojan Invitational Tournament, scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 30. Here, Moira's Don Hazleton (22) tries to stop Phil Kirby's drive in a practice session.

Golden Hawks' Gravelle Mum on Oshawa Coaching Bid

TRENTON — Mum is Trenton Junior B coach Orval "Red" Gravelle's word, but "maybe" is the one that seems through.

"There's nothing official. But I will say that I was approached," commented the veteran hockey tutor on reports that he is headed for coaching-general manager duties with the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Oshawa Generals.

The popular carrot-top got his Golden Hawks off to a promising start in the Eastern Ontario Junior B league this season, but personnel problems have seen the Trenton B's slump into a seven-game winless streak and the league basement as they play host to third-place Peterborough tonight at the Community Gardens.

The rumored move to Oshawa would not exactly be a rags-to-riches affair. The Generals are currently languishing in the 10-team Junior A loop's seventh spot, and have come a long way down since Armand "Bep" Guidolin coached them to the Memorial Cup final in 1966.

"Being a coach and general manager in that league is a full - time job," commented Gravelle, a sergeant-ranked machinist based at CFB Trenton.

"Red" admits his armed services career would be no stumbling block to his accepting the Oshawa — or any — coaching post.

"I had planned to leave the air force this year anyway," he revealed. "I'm a qualified machinists' instructor and I'd like to get into that sort of teaching."

Gravelle's hockey qualifications are also impressive. For openers, he was a member of the RCAF team that won an Olympic gold medal for Canada in 1948. He currently holds down second spot in the CFB Trenton Intersection League's scoring race.

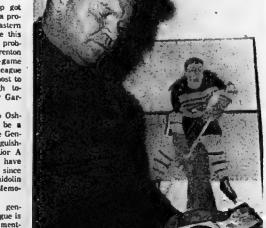
"Red" served his junior hockey apprenticeship under the masterful coaching eyes of the Montreal systems Bill Boucher and Bill Durnan, and Turk Broda in the Maple Leaf chain. A regular with two Allan Cup squads, he served 11 seasons in the Quebec his performance with Quebec his performance with Quebec City earned him most valuable player honors in the circuit.

Belleville rink-goers may remember "Red" behind the bench of that city's Junior B club in the 50's when Dennis Hull was on the roster.

Gravelle was the logical coach when Trenton made a re-entry into Junior B ranks last winter.

Former team trainer Doug Williams is currently handling coaching duties for the Oshawa A's, but reportedly on a trial basis. Last night Williams was ejected from the Generals' game with Peterborough for protesting too hotly on a penalty call.

Those who know Gravelle are betting he'll accept the Oshawa position — but not this year.



"He'd never leave his 'B' kids, even when they're playing as poorly as they are now," commented one.

Gravelle's attitude seems to bear this out.

"We're just not clicking, that's all. We've had a problem with all the kids' parents wanting their youngsters to get equal ice time. If not, they'd get their releases and go off and play juvenile or something."

"But we've played 10 games or so, now, and these left, on the team are committed. Starting tonight, the players producing the most get the most ice time. Even if I have to play them 50 minutes.

"If I can get five wins out of them by Christmas, we'll make the playoffs."

Those were the Days

Trenton Junior B hockey coach Orval 'Red' Gravelle recalls his days as a colorful member of the RCAF Flyers. Here 'Red' fondles the gold medal he won as a member of the 1948 RCAF team that won an Olympic hockey title for Canada.

When your Intelligencer carrier comes to collect, watch his face, smile that's why "Thank You".

Your Intelligencer carrier makes it his business to collect at a regular time — convenient to you. That way he comes expected and you can be ready for him.

You can help too, by having the money there when he calls so that he won't have to come back.

Because this carrier is in business for himself he depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. Repeat calls for him mean extra work with no extra profit.

Next time your Intelligencer carrier comes to collect, be ready — Watch his big smile and say, "Thank You".

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto stock market rose sharply in light mid-morning trading today as they moved into their second successive upward session.

A moderate gain Thursday broke an eight-day slump.

On index, industrials jumped 1.63 to 183.64, western oils 1.18 to 187.07 and base metals .54 to 112.14. Golds slipped .01 to 144.68.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 577,000 shares compared with 510,000 at the same time Thursday.

Advances outnumbered declines 137 to 105 with 190 issues unchanged.

Twelve of the 17 industrial components were higher, five lower.

Industrial mines led the advance with Falconbridge up 1¾ to 16½ and Inco 1¼ to 47¾.

Canadian Export Gas was unchanged at $4.65. The company reported second-quarter earnings of $120,000 compared with $54,000 in the similar 1968 period.

Canada Cement rose ½ to 30. The company's six-month earnings were $2.42 a share compared with $1.91 in the corresponding 1968 period.

CPR was up ¾ to 67¾, Home A ¼ to 28¼, Aquitaine ½ to 21¾, Lake Dufault ½ to 17¾ and Mattagami ½ to 10.27.

Chieftain lost 1 to 11 and Kerr Addison ½ to 21¼.

On index Thursday, industrials were up .75 to 182.61, Golds lost 1.33 to 144.82, a low for the year, and base metals .94 to 111.60.

Western oils gained 1.87 to 185.89 with Banff up 1¼ to 12½, Aquitaine 1¾ to 21¾ and Pacific Pete ½ to 25¾.

A group headed by Banff said further drilling at its natural gas-sulphur encounter in the Strachan area of central Alberta had indicated further production potential.

Pacific Pete has a 25-per cent interest in the group, Aquitaine and Banff 15-per cent each.

Seagrams was unchanged at 53¾. The company reported first-quarter earnings of $1.06 a share compared with $1 in the similar 1968 period.

Slater Steel gained ¼ to 12¾ on annual earnings of $1.01 a share compared with 90 cents last year.

Losers and gains were even at 226 with 276 issues unchanged.

Santa Visits Napanee

NAPANEE — The Junior Chamber of Commerce saw to it that Santa Claus visited Napanee again this year, with forty entries in the parade which preceded him. Crowds of people lined the streets along the parade route.

The route was shortened this year, commencing from Dundas St. to Bridge St. on Donald St. Children had found the longer route of previous parades going to York St. two blocks farther west, was a bit too tiring.

It was a good parade, one of the best the town has seen spectators said. Five bands kept the marchers in step; two were from Trenton, the Citizens' Band and the band from the RCAF base; two were from Kingston, the Lions Club Band and the CFSCLOE band. The Napanee District Pipe Band gave a good account of itself.

Heading the parade was the car of notables, including Mayor Lorne Smart, Warden Harold Creighton, and Mike Kourl, president of the Jaycees.

Two groups of majorettes delighted everyone, the Gayettes from Trenton and the Valerie Smith highstepers. Clowns seemed to be everywhere.

Empey Hill Church presented the real Christmas with its float, the Nativity scene. The 3rd Napanee Girl Guide Company had a Charley Brown float and the Pioneer Square Dance Club danced its way through town on a farm wagon. The Rad and Gun Club presented a winter scene featuring a snowmobile. The Lennox and Addington County Riders provided horses.

The Jaycees themselves had built five floats: The Queen of Hearts, The Toy Soldier, The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe, A Winter Wonderland and The Wizard of Oz. Sponsors were the Macdonald Nursing Home, Heed's Furniture Store, the Lions Club, Napanee Industries and the H. D. Lee Co.

Parade Marshal was Bill VanKoughnett, and parade chairman was Basil Young.

Santa Claus wound up his day by visiting the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I know when The Chief (my husband) gets home even before he gets by the door. I smell his cigarettes. When he passes me I get one whiff of his cigarette smoke and my throat burns like a radiation burn.

Not too long ago I noticed that when I sit in the living room, the smell is strong from the curtains. I have to wash them every week in order to get the smell out. Otherwise, I have to go around the house with a mask.

The trouble is that he is a chain smoker and doesn't believe how the smoke affects me. And how the dead butts in the ash trays kill me! I know they can't outlaw all smoking, but what are those of us who are so sensitive to smoke to do?

I have a number of non-smoking friends who feel the same way. When exposed to smoke we get dizzy, eyes become inflamed and our sinuses ache feel as if we've been given a Mickey Finn. Meanwhile, we will have to slowly die while the smokers go on puffing.

All I hear is how deadly cigarettes are for smokers. How about us? The innocent ones? Wherever we go, we have to fight the effects of cigarette and cigar smoke. Is there no end? — What can we do?

MRS. D.

COMMENT: I doubt that you can do anything about it in public places. You are at the mercy of smokers who feel it is their right to smoke, regardless of the feelings of others. It's not against the law. But being exposed to smoke unnecessarily in the home is another matter entirely. I hope The Chief sees today's column.

The least you can do is take your smokes outside the house. I know many cigar smokers who take their after-dinner smoke outside so their wives won't suffer the smoke inside. If your wife is so unhappy and so sensitive, the least you can do is be an inside non-smoker.

* * *

For Mrs. H.: I would not consider an operation right away for "painful coccyx." I believe your doctor shows good judgment in recommending the "pillow treatment" when going to the movies; trying to take pressure off the end of your spine when sitting.

It is true that pain often lasts for months; but usually the discomfort ends without the need for surgery.

* * *

For Mrs. O.: "Palpitation" is such an indefinite term. Therefore, as much as I'd like, I can't give you any specific advice. It's your doctor's job to find out what kind of palpitation you have. Then he can treat it. Is it due to premature contractions (heart skips)? Or to auricular fibrillation (an organic heart irregularity); or to any number of other conditions which cause "heart awareness."

* * *

For Mrs. S.: The true facts about lemon and grapefruit? And how is a person supposed to eat them to reduce? Well, here's the truth. How it got around, I don't know; but they are of no value in "thinning fat" and causing weight reduction.

* * *

For Miss F.: Other than not wearing tight girdles or tight-legged panties I know of no way to prevent spider veins in the legs. Some people are just more susceptible than others. As for treatment, I can't say that injection of the veins is always successful.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 13

Your birthday today: Your own intuition and opinions must lead you through the coming year. Old habits, home and work arrangements should be revised to accommodate your changing needs. Stay alert for a fresh start in a new field or in a different role in your present one.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Seek the company of people you are willing to help, or vice versa. Gather friends and loved ones around you for a sociable afternoon and evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Take the initiative gracefully; avoid defensiveness or hard-sell extremes. Keep details simple and to the point. The less important people are, the less co-operative they are apt to be.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There is a special premium on an early start if you travel and even more if you are going to unfamiliar places. Anticipate minor annoyances, including tension among in-laws.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): You have the main responsibility for keeping your experiences peaceful and calm. Most of the flaws are strictly minor, petty details.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Faults in yourself and others surface. Relations which are failing can reach an impasse and must be dealt with by mutual consent rather than by a strong hand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Strangers and influential people are easy to cope with. The difficulties are in the fine nuances of your close relationships.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The day is full of tensions, and you may trigger some of them. Speculative ventures in either emotional experience or material gain should be strictly avoided.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your direct expression is too emphatic for some people. Approach explosive subjects carefully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): A demanding approach is sure to bring resistance, even refusal. Use your diplomatic skills.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You are neither careless nor extravagant but today you encounter situations in which you seem required to spend more than anticipated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): An early petition is likely to be heard. Friends continue to be helpful.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The attitudes of somebody you had thought friendly to your views and projects surprise you.

Press Conference

Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes answers reporters questions at a press conference which he tabled his royal commission report into the collapse of the Atlantic Acceptance Corporation. The probe took four and a half years to complete and covered four volumes. (CP Photo)

Hughes Report Tabled

Atlantic Acceptance Corp. President Called Inventive, Ingenious, Corrupt

TORONTO (CP) — The ghost of C. Powell Morgan—"inventive, ingenious, incompetent and corrupt"—stalks through almost every one of the 2,757 pages of the royal commission report on the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp Ltd. in 1965.

And the shadow of the financial wizard and manipulator named in the report as one of the world's most notorious swindlers remains a long one years after his death.

As Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes said after his report was table in the Ontario legislature Thursday: "The waves are still washing on the shore."

He referred in the shock sent through the North American money market after the collapse of the $176,000,000 finance company, then the country's fifth-largest. In the final accounting, the loss was something between $70,000,000 and $75,000,000.

Money sources dried up, not only in Canada but in the U.S. as well where much of Atlantic's funds had been raised, and an intertangled web of associated companies collapsed like a deck of cards.

Criminal charges were laid in a number of cases, some are still before the courts and others could result when legal officials have studied the commission report.

Mr. Justice Hughes lays the blame for the debacle clearly on the criminal genius of Morgan, who died in late 1966 of leukemia, guiltily aware that he was facing a long penitentiary term.

Morgan's personal fortune died with Atlantic, withering from $2,152,291 to $32,485 in a matter of weeks after the company crumpled June 14, 1965.

In the final analysis, Morgan was a shrewd man in the heady world of high finance—but not smart enough to check his own greed.

"Morgan, and Morgan alone, drove Atlantic forward to catastrophe," Mr. Justice Hughes writes, "and, like all the well-known swindlers of history, he did so with a fantastic and cynical disregard of those principles of fair and honest dealing which have been generally accepted and adhered to for generations in both the civilized and savage world."

But the Ontario Supreme Court justice placed some of the blame on inadequate legislation, and he made specific recommendations for tightening the control of finance companies.

These included:

—A special act should be established for finance companies.

—The government should appoint an inspector-general of finance companies, with wide powers to control and investigate their activities.

—The government should hire outside lawyers to prosecute companies for irregular or fraudulent practices.

—Trust company directors should be required to give annual shareholder meetings a full financial statement for the year.

—The government should have the power to suspend or cancel the right of any trust company from doing business in Ontario.

The four - volume report, larger than the 1967 Carter report on taxation to become the most massive in Canadian history, was the result of a 4½-year effort. There were three years of hearings with 180 witnesses and 42 companies, 4,918 exhibits, 17,000 pages of evidence, and four tons of documents. The investigation itself cost $1,162,626.

Morgan gave some evidence from his death bed after being told he was dying.

Atlantic was born in 1953 in Hamilton, moved to Oakville, Ont., and was taken over by Morgan in 1958.

"From the earliest days . . . the activities of C. P. Morgan, prosecuted with considerable energy and ingenuity as they were, have been shown to be dishonest," the commissioner reported.

"Without his successful application of dubious accounting devices, it is unlikely that Atlantic would have survived its first two years of operation."

But it did survive, and it wasn't until mid-1965 that the bottom fell out when a $5,000,000 cheque bounced. In three days between the collapse and receivership, shares of the company on the Toronto Stock Exchange dropped to $7.75 from $30.75. Today they are only curios.

Mr. Justice Hughes held out no sure hope that his recommendations can avoid a similar situation in the future.

More Atlantic Court Actions Possible as Result of Report

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes of the Ontario Supreme Court recommended no additional prosecutions of those connected with the complex financial collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. Ltd. in 1965 in his royal commission report.

"But when the Crown looks at the report they may find grounds to lay charges—that's their job," he told a news conference Thursday, held just after the release of his four-volume investigation of the collapse.

In fact, court actions have been occurring periodically ever since Atlantic went down.

Mr. Justice Hughes mentioned some at his news conference. In addition, there have been civil actions brought by subordinate Atlantic noteholders and other individual creditors attempting to recover some of their $70,-000,000 loss.

Mr. Justice Hughes named these convictions:

—Donald Reid, a London, Ont., lawyer, convicted of bribery in connection with Treasure Island Properties Ltd., a firm loaned money by British Mortgage and Trust Co. Ltd. of Stratford, Ont., sentenced to one year and disbarred;

—William Walton and Harry Wagman, accountants, for some of Atlantic's subsidiaries, convicted of theft and conspiracy to defraud in 1967 and sentenced to two years;

—William Pike, former British Mortgage manager in Stratford, convicted in 1966 of bribery and sentenced to two months; later convicted and sentenced to three months on charges of receiving benefits from Belfield Investments Ltd., a company which got financing from British Mortgage.

Charges pending, mentioned by Mr. Justice Hughes, are these:

—Pike, conspiracy to defraud British Mortgage, along with Wilfrid P. Gregory, former British Mortgage president; Roy Calladine, former president of Belfield Investments, and Lawrence Facey, former Toronto mortgage manager of British Mortgage;

—Arthu Duncan, former mortgage manager of Canada Trust, and Jack Young, former Belfield Investments sales manager, with fraud;

—Eugene Last and Neville Levinson, both with fraud. Last was the president of Dalite Corp. (Canada) Ltd. and Levinson the president of Nevil Enterprises Inc., both companies associated with Atlantic through loans;

—Elias Y. Rabbiah, former president of Racan Photo-Copy Corp. Ltd., which borrowed heavily from Atlantic, with fraud, uttering and conspiracy. Never appeared for trial.

C. Powell Morgan, president of Atlantic, died in 1966 while the commission was still holding hearings. Mr. Justice Hughes said Thursday Morgan would probably have been sentenced to a "substantial term" had he lived.

Robarts Says Laws Altered

TORONTO (CP) — Important changes in legislation in Ontario and Ottawa were made with the approval of Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes before his royal commission investigation into the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp., was completed, Premier Robarts said Thursday.

"Prosecutions have been undertaken against 12 persons," he told the legislature in a statement as the commission report was tabled.

"Four have been convicted and imprisoned, one acquitted, one is a fugitive from justice having forfeited his bail and the remainder are undergoing preliminary hearing."

"I am not in a position to say what further prosecutions may be contemplated. However . . . it will be the subject of much discussion and the recommendations will be given closest scrutiny."

The inquiry already has resulted in one lawyer being disbarred and one reprimanded and four chartered accountants and a stockbroker being expelled by their professional organizations.

Priority for U.S. Domestic Needs Urged When Vietnam War Ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — The national violence commission, concluding an 18-month study of the menace of violence in the United States, said Friday U.S. spending for domestic problems should take precedence over defence spending as soon as the Vietnam war has ended.

"We solemnly declare our conviction", the commission said, "that this nation is entertaining a period in which our people need to be as concerned by the internal dangers of our free society as by any probable combination of external threats".

The commission chairman, Dr. Milton E. Eisenhower, presented the report to President Nixon this week — 18 months after the panel had been formed by former president Lyndon B. Johnson following the assassinations of Senator Robert F. Kennedy and Negro civil rights leader Martin Luther King.

The commission's term expired Wednesday.

Greece Facing Isolation

PARIS (Reuters) — The military-backed Greek government faced increased international isolation today after quitting the Council of Europe rather than submitting to suspension.

Eleven nations sponsored a resolution calling for suspension and at least one or two others were expected to support it.

But before the vote could take place, Greek Foreign Minister Panayota Pipinelis asked for the floor and said his government had instructed him to withdraw from the council.

Pipinelis later announced that Greece would no longer be party to the European Human Rights Convention.

Accusations that the Greek government repeatedly violated the convention were a key part of the pressure mounting against its continued membership of the council.

Lagos Ready To Talk

LAGOS (Reuters) — Nigeria is prepared to attend "meaningful peace talks" with secessionist Biafra in Ethiopia, Okio Arikpo, federal commissioner for external affairs, said today.

Asked whether Nigeria is prepared to attend the Addis Ababa talks without preconditions, Arikpo replied: "That question is premature. . . . We are prepared to go to talks provided the talks will be meaningful and will not be a public relations exercise."

Asked if the talks would have to be on the terms of a resolution of the Organization of African States which said peace talks should be held in the context of Nigerian unity, Arikpo said: "Oh yes . . . after all, why do we go to war to maintain the unity and territorial integrity of Nigeria?"

Informed sources here said earlier this week that the first direct meeting between Nigeria and secessionist Biafra is being arranged for Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, next week.

But Arikpo said federal authorities have not received an invitation for talks with Biafra from Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, chairman of the OAU's six-nation consultative committee on Nigeria.

The OAU called for Biafra and Nigeria to accept immediately "the suspension of hostilities and the opening of negotiations intended to preserve the unity of Nigeria" at its summit meeting in Addis Ababa in September.

Biafra has rejected the resolution and advocated peace talks without the terms stated by the OAU.

"Quit griping, you could have been born a human!"

Pope Paul Assails War Crimes

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope Paul spoke out Friday against war crimes, saying their "fierce inhumanity" reflect dishonor on those responsible.

His message, issued to mark the celebration of Jan. 1 as a day of peace, raised speculation among Vatican observers that some of his remarks were inspired by reports of the alleged massacre by United States troops of civilians at My Lai, South Vietnam, in March, 1968.

The Pope said the whole world now deplores terrorism, torture of prisoners, retaliatory repression of innocent civilians and the killing of hostages.

Sharp Rejects Universal Role

WINNIPEG (CP) — The notion that Canada should attempt to fill the role of a universal peacemaker was rejected Friday night by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

While Canada's interest in peacekeeping is known and accepted by other countries, he said, "this does not confer upon us any superior moral standing in the world community."

Nor did it mean that Canada should force its good offices on parties to every conflict.

Mr. Sharp addressed a meeting sponsored by the Winnipeg branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

Some Canadians took the view that if their country is not actively involved in bringing parties to every armed conflict to the conference table, "we are failing in our historic mission," Mr. Sharp said.

"This is a proposition that will not stand up to the most casual scrutiny."

Canada's capacity to contribute to peacemaking was limited by its acceptability.

"We cannot bring together the warring partners in Nigeria unless we are asked to do so by both sides . . . An experienced nation does not get involved in peacekeeping unless there is reasonable evidence of a will to agree on both sides."

U.S. Plot Is Alleged By Sudan

KHARTOUM (Reuters) — Head of State Jaafar Mohamed El-Nimeiry says a foreign conspiracy, involving at least one American aircraft, has been foiled in the Sudan.

Maj.-Gen. El-Nimeiry said in a speech Friday night he has documentary evidence showing there was a plot to land foreign troops in his country by air while saboteurs destroyed a government radio station and set fires in public places.

He said an American military plane landed in northeastern Sudan Nov. 7 while trying to locate a site for foreign troops to land.

A week after the plane landed the chief American diplomat in Khartoum lodged an official apology. He said the pilot mistook the landing site and then took off while being questioned because of landing difficulties.

But El-Nimeiry said in his speech that arrests have been made and documents found on prisoners indicating a plot and implicating the U.S.

His speech was broadcast by Omdurman Radio, and in a version of it contained in a report from Cairo by the Middle East news agency, El-Nimeiry said an attempt to topple his government was foiled.

Report Rejected

Air Strike Moves Nearer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada moved a step closer to a national air strike Friday with unanimous rejection of a conciliation board report by the 11-member national council of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association.

The association coupled the rejection with announcement it will seek strike authority from its 1,000 members across the country at the same time it polls them on acceptance or rejection of the report.

Should members reject the report — and national councillors now are fanning out to collect votes from 32 branches — the union could legally strike by next Friday afternoon, Dec. 19.

There appeared little doubt a strike by controllers, who direct aircraft movement through use of radar and other equipment, would effectively clear the skies of commercial aircraft.

Meanwhile, the conciliation report will not be made public until 11 a.m. EST Monday at the request of Jacob Finkleman, chairman of the civil service staff relations board.

Thomas O'Connor of Toronto headed the conciliation board.

Government spokesman declined comment, other than to say the report is being studied and employer negotiators remain ready to hold further talks with the union.

Technicians May Walk Out

HALIFAX (CP) — Federal government electronic technicians will walk off their jobs Dec. 19 unless the federal treasury board honors an agreement reached through conciliation, a spokesman for the union representing the man said here Friday.

The technicians are employed at airports.

Leave the Driving to Us!

Six students from the Ontario School for the Deaf were the guests of The Intelligencer on a trip to Christmas Wonderland at Toronto this week. One of their number had written a prize-winning letter to Santa in The Intelligencer's contest and had asked that, if her letter was selected, she be allowed to take her classmates along on the trip. Santa thought this was in the true spirit of Christmas, so off they went together. Here three of them find out how well they fit in the seat of a fire truck, apparently of ancient vintage. Santa is a close friend of firemen, who often arrange his visits to Ontario communities. For story and other pictures see Page 3.

Wallbridge Road Overpass Planned for 1971 Start

The Belleville and Suburban Roads Commission plans construction in 1971 of a grade separation over the CN double tracks on Wallbridge Road.

The railway overpass is part of a program which eventually will see Wallbridge Road extended from concession 4 in Sidney to Highway 2 near Marsh Hill.

Commission chairman Harry Morrow told county council this week the three-phase program for reconstruction of Wallbridge Road north from Highway 2 past Loyalist College would be completed next year.

A new bridge over Jones Creek was constructed this year and in 1970 the road will be rebuilt south to Highway 2.

Plans for the CN railway overpass will go ahead in 1970 to allow for construction in 1971.

The suburban roads commission has taken over the township sideroad north from the Sidney township hall and a start on reconstruction as an extension of Wallbridge Road is planned for 1972.

The county roads and bridges report by chairman Reeve Garman Gibson showed that $972,202 had been spent on county roads this year to Dec. 31. Of this amount $402,000 was spent on development road projects.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen again asked that the obsolete truss bridge over the Moira River in her village be considered for reconstruction.

Contrary to "rumor" opinion, she maintained the bridge was unsafe and asked that something be done before an accident occurred.

County Engineer Peter Anderson agreed that the bridge was obsolete, but said priority for its reconstruction was the responsibility of county council.

Robert Sim, municipal engineer for the Ontario highways department urged early planning for expenditures under their "regular" roads bylaw.

Expenditures for new roads equipment should be included in the regular bylaw and not in the later supplementary bylaw, he said.

IN MEMORIAM

CRONKRIGHT — In ever loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Ivan Cronkright, who passed away Dec. 13th, 1962.
We seem to see in the soft light,
A face we loved the best,
The sweetest of it when the sun's last rays,
Goes down in the far off west.
We miss you more as time goes on
Than we did on the day of your passing,
For during time can never close our hearts
The hand of our love is still given,
Your heart was the truest in the town
Your love the best in recall,
For no one could take your place,
You are still the dearest of all.
—Sadly missed by wife Clara and family.

GRAY — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Percy Gray, who passed away Dec. 13, 1962.
To some you may be forgotten,
To others a part of the past,
But to us you will be remembered,
As long as life shall last.
—Always remembered by Mom, brothers and sisters.

ROBINSON — In loving memory of our dear son, Edward Hiscard (Teddy) who passed away Dec. 13th, 1963.
Loving memories, treasured forever,
Of the days when we were all together.
—Always remembered by Dad, Mom and Larry.

ROBINSON — In loving memory of my dear grandson, Edward Hiscard (Teddy) who passed away Dec. 13th, 1963.
Beautiful memories are woven in this
This is the picture we tenderly keep
Deep in my heart your memory is kept
To live and cherish and never forget.
—Sadly missed by Grandmother Knox.

COOK — In loving memory of a dear husband, Ernest Cook, who passed away Dec. 13, 1963.
Gone from us but leaving memories dear,
Dearer than words can ever express.
Memories that will always linger,
While upon earth we stay.
—The Cook family.

CHRISTOPHER — In loving memory of a dear mother, Sharpener Lucy Christopher, who passed away December 16, 1962.
Deep in the heart of memory,
Of a loved one laid to rest,
Remembrance will dwell
Because she was the best.
—Ever remembered by daughter Barbara and son-in-law Ron.

HILL — In loving memory of a dear sister, Dorothy Hill, who passed away Dec. 13, 1963.
The dearest sister, the kindest friend
One best whom God could lend
Loving, thoughtful, gentle and true
Always willing a kind act to do.
—Sadly missed and fondly remembered by sister Beatrice, Walter and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to express my thanks to my relatives, friends and neighbors for the many cards, flowers and visits. Also to the nurses on 4th floor and Dr. Cronk and Dr. Ken Cronk for their care to me. Mr. Thos. Wright, Trenton.

We would like to thank all those who sent cards, gifts and flowers during our recent bereavement. Also for their many acts of kindness and sympathy during the passing of our dear friend, Percy Delnap. Also thanks to the doctors, Belleville General Hospital, Ambulance and Weaver Funeral Home.—Mrs. Percy Delnap and family.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank all our friends and neighbors for their kindness during the illness and passing of our father, Ralph Parks of Foxboro. Mrs. Clayton (Eastman) Perry of Wellesley, Mrs. Donald (Marjorie) Gaudin of Belleville, Mrs. Donald (Winnifred) Rolan of Belleville, Mrs. Alton (Velma) Parks residing at home. Also survived by 13 grandchildren and 16 great grandchildren; also by two brothers.

Resting at the John H. Bush Funeral Home, 94 Hutton Road, Belleville. Funeral services will be held on Monday, December 15th at 2 p.m. at Foxboro United Church. Rev. Abel Parkinson officiating.

Interment, Foxboro Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

CROSS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harold M. Cross who departed this life Dec. 13th, 1963.
We often sit and think of him,
When things are quiet and still,
And picture him as a friend,
That grief can call its own.
We miss his smile and kindness,
When other things decay,
And memories of him will be green,
And never fade away.
—Sadly missed and still remembered by wife and family.

CRONKRIGHT — In loving memory of Charles Malcolm (Mac) Cronkright, who passed away Dec. 13th, 1964.
God took him home, it was His will
But in our hearts we love him still,
We miss him as dear today,
As in the hour he passed away,
And think of him always the same,
For memory is with us constantly.
—Always remembered by Ron, Barb and Ronald.

HILL — In loving memory of a dear wife (Mac), mother and grandmother who passed away Dec. 13th, 1963.
Today recalls sad memories,
Of a dear mother once in peril,
And the ones who think of her today,
Are few.
Are the ones, who love her best.
—Ever remembered by husband Howard, children and grandchildren.

Strawberries in December?

Well, not quite. At West Lake's Kleindale Farm owned by Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Kleinstuber the strawberry patch this week was covered with a liberal blanket of straw. The plants will be protected from the destructive freeze and thaw circle which damages them in cold weather. Well known market gardeners in Prince Edward County, the Kleinstubers sell some of their produce in the Belleville area during the summer months.

Government Offers Dairy Herd Course

The Stirling office of the Ontario department of agriculture and food is looking for several more dairy farm backgrounds to take a dairy herd workers' course at Kemptville.

Following completion of the course the men would be assisted full time employment on large dairy farms in Ontario.

Clayton Hall, rural development counsellor at Stirling, told county council this week that the demand for skilled dairy workers was for the success of the supply of skilled men. The Kemptville course to commence Jan. 12 was designed to upgrade dairying skills to qualify men for jobs on large dairy farms.

Many low income farmers would be better off financially working on large farms, Mr. Hall suggested.

Selected students for the 10-week course will be eligible for the same assistance from Canada Manpower as the Business of Farming Course already has. This ranges from $40 for single men up to $80 for married men with dependents, plus living out allowances for married men.

Boswell Street Area Residents Object to Store Expansion

Information on possible contravention of a city bylaw by the Canadian Tire Corporation store on Coleman St. has been sent to the city for action.

The move was the outcome of a public hearing Thursday night before Belleville and Suburban Planning Board on rezoning for a parking lot west of the store.

Action on the rezoning from a B to a D district was deferred by the board until planning director Bert Kenny can bring in a report in January.

But a letter from three ratepayers in the area, objecting to the rezoning application, brought the bylaw contravention to the notice of the board.

The property in question is a lot, now occupied by a vacant house, at the rear of the Canadian Tire store and fronting on Boswell St. It is now owned by Canadian Tire Corporation, Toronto.

Belleville lawyer J. D. Temperman petitioned the corporation's proposal at the hearing. Its plan is to demolish the existing house and use the lot for herringbone parking, with entrances and exists on both Coleman and Boswell streets.

"A driveway has been permitted over this land, allowing an entrance and an exit to Canadian Tire property through the residential area," the ratepayers' letter read. "Vacant land around the dwelling is used for parking, storage and display areas for commercial purposes, which is a clear violation of the bylaw as written."

The lot is located in an area now zoned B, although the store is in a D district. Only residences and grocery stores are permitted in a B district.

Fifteen residents of the Boswell St. area attended the hearing as their spokesman, Harry Eaton objected to the proposed rezoning on the grounds it would depreciate property and increase the traffic hazard in the area.

The planning director said two issues were at stake — commercialization of a residential area and the traffic hazard.

The residents are more worried about the traffic than the commercialization," he noted.

"This is only a foot in the door for Canadian Tire," said board member Mrs. Margaret Orr. "Coleman St. is a lost cause now, but Boswell St. is still worth saving. Most Canadian Tire stores, as they expand, move to the outskirts of a city."

The board decided to table the matter until its professional staff can make a planning study of the area.

Lots of Deer Says Official Wolves Haven't Cut Total

Wet unfavorable weather — not decimation of herds by wolves — was responsible for the relatively poor deer hunting season this fall.

This is the feeling of Frank Cheshire, Tweed area wildlife official, who said there was actually a large deer population in the Tweed forest district.

Mr. Cheshire admitted that brush wolves were on the increase but said the numbers of timber wolves which are mainly responsible for deer kills are actually on the decrease. Mr. Cheshire's comments followed a long discussion by county council this week on the wolf problem.

Inadequate feeding grounds during the winter months killed off many more deer than did wolves.

He estimated that there could be as many as 30,000 deer in the Tweed forest district.

He said there were winter deer yards in his area with up to 2,000 deer.

Mr. Cheshire said complete elimination of all wolves would mean a deer population increase of only two per cent.

More important was adequate winter range for feeding. Deer were always more plentiful in areas where timber cutting operations have been under way.

The reason for the relative absence of deer in Algonquin Park was that this area was over-browsed.

Moira River Channel Study Ready for Council Airing

The channel improvement study by Crystal Davis and Jorgenson Ltd., on the Moira River inside the Belleville city limits has been completed and is expected will be soon presented to city council.

The study was undertaken by the Moira River Conservation Authority at the request of the city, which will pay the heavy share of the cost.

Highlights of the channel improvement study and also of a flood plain survey done in Thurlow township, were presented Thursday to the authority's year-end meeting at Canniffon. The report was by Keith W. Lathem, representing the engineering firm.

The report of the Thurlow flood plain study has already been received by the authority.

Mr. Lathem said several recommendations had been made with the view of relieving flooding above the Corbyville dam. He refused any recommendation for straightening out an "ox bow" curve in the river south of Fairfield's bridge, and the possibility of providing a flood channel around the Corbyville dam.

Flood control measures at the Canniffon dam are also recommended.

The spring flood possibility in Belleville was also taken into consideration by the engineering firm with recommendations for construction of a control dam and storage for the ice which poses the danger threat.

Purpose of the ice, storage area, recommended for the Reid Island area south of College Street, would be to prevent ice floating downstream and jamming against the CPR railway bridge.

Executive members of the Moira River Conservation Authority on Thursday recommended a 1970 budget of $124,635 to the incoming authority.

The recommended levy against the local municipalities making up the authority membership will remain at $75,000, the same figure as this year.

Authority chairman Gray Ham Bell said the authority this year had spent $250,000 on five capital projects, the largest of which had been construction of the Deerock Lake dam northeast of Flinton.

The over all budget for this year was $352,137.

Faces of Pupils From OSD During Visit To Wonderland Mirror Enjoyment of Day's Trip to Toronto

Letter to Santa Wins Trip for Classmates of Shawney Berry

A fairy tale dream came true for the Ontario School for the Deaf class of Miss M. H. Machum this week as six students of OSD visited Christmas Wonderland as guests of The Intelligencer.

Shawney Berry's letter was picked from Santa's mail bag as the second winner in The Intelligencer's Christmas Wonderland contest.

Shawney, a student at OSD and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Berry of Oshawa, requested that she be able to take her classmates to Wonderland. The Intelligencer obliged and with the co-operation of school officials and Miss Machum [illegible] ments were made for Shawney's request to come true.

Before visiting Christmas Wonderland Shawney, Wayne Charbonneau, Paul Scott, James Shedden, Danny Fitchett, Vivian Pheasant, Miss D. Reynolds and Miss Machum spent a few joyful hours viewing downtown Toronto, complete with a visit to Simpson's Toyland.

In the afternoon Shawney and her classmates were given the grand guided tour through Christmas Wonderland. Free rides with Snoopy and visits to Blinky the Talking Police Car, Elmer the Safety Display, Little Toot the Tug Boat, A train ride through the Enchanted Mountain and a wish from the Fairy Princess were but a few of the many experiences of the day.

Shawney and her classmates were completely dazzled by the hustle and excitement all around them at Wonderland. Snoopy was here, there and everywhere making friends with children and grownups alike. Snoopy even rode on some of the many rides with the happy group from OSD.

The children quietly communicated among themselves and their teacher. Not one of the children could hear the wonderful sounds of Christmas which filled the air of the Automotive Building. Nor was there a word spoken the whole day long, but the smiles and grams of excitement which showed on their happy faces was a sight to behold. St. Nicholas and Black Peter who were in attendance at the Netherlands Christmas display distributed free gifts to the children and spoke to them in their own sign language.

Highlight of the event was the traditional visit with Santa Claus. In fact the children even returned for a second visit to say good bye to Santa before returning home to Belleville.

Transportation arrangements were courtesy of Trudeau Motors Sales Ltd. of Belleville.

Crowning Touch

Avon Sends Bit of City To Japan for Expo 70

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A bit of Belleville flew off to Japan Wednesday — in time for Expo '70 at Osaka.

Avon Jewellery of Belleville is responsible for the local contribution to the big world's fair.

The firm made the hair bands, belt buckles and shoulder pins for the hostesses at the Canadian pavilion.

The job, done for the federal government, brought no dividends—except goodwill — to the company.

"Because of the small size of the order, 73 pieces of each of three items, and the amount of hand cutting called for, this is a non-profit job," said Gary Lafferty of the sales department.

Avon was chosen for the contract because it is one of the few Canadian companies with the equipment for the job.

The shoulder pin, and belt buckle have a stylized maple leaf design cut out in the centre. The head band is plain.

The pieces will be worn with the silver-grey hostess uniform that features a cape and high boots.

So rushed was the job that the Belleville firm neglected to keep one set of the jewelry for its own archives. As soon as the pieces were plated Wednesday afternoon they were shipped out to Toronto to catch a Japan-bound flight.

Brighton Industry Hopes to Re-open

BRIGHTON — The future of a local furniture-manufacturing plant — J and S Industries, which began operations here in late September will remain in doubt for a few more weeks.

Plant manager John Warden said Friday evening that he expected a decision from two government lending institutions in a few weeks time.

Mr. Warden praised Prince Edward-Hastings MP George Hees for his prompt assistance in contacting the Industrial Development Bank and the Ontario Development Corporation and outlining the situation.

A week ago J and S Industries laid off 20 workers because of a lack of funds. Immediately Mr. Warden and many of the workers contacted Mr. Hees requesting help.

"I contacted the managers of the IDB and the ODC, stressing that Brighton badly needs industry and noting that this was just the right size industry for the village" Mr. Hees explained.

"I'm leaving the case with them and they have assured me they are willing to advance money if the situation necessitates it".

Meanwhile Mr. Warden said action by Mr. Hees brought rapid results from the two lending institutions and added, "they are working diligently and doing their very best — they may seem a little slow, but they are examining the situation as fast as they can."

Mr. Warden retained a few lead hands when he laid off the bulk of the 20 workers and is hopeful of a solution despite the fact that he previously failed to meet the qualifications of the IDB and commercial banks and so was unable to obtain a loan.

UIC Takes Action To Speed Insurance

Christmas will be bright after all for the 20 workers laid off from the J and S Industry plant last Friday after the firm ran aground financially.

The situation has looked far from bright as the future of the Brighton area furniture plant hinges on the obtaining of sufficient loans to keep it operational.

Officials from the Unemployment Insurance Commission have visited workers and picked up their applications for unemployment insurance. There, they informed the men, will be processed before Dec. 22.

Workers feared they would not be able to obtain the insurance before Christmas, and would be forced to go on welfare in order to provide for their families.

The Mafia—and Others

The threat to society through organized crime taking over legitimate businesses was presented graphically before a West Vancouver Rotary Club audience recently.

Mervyn Davis of the John Howard Society warned that some small loan and stock promotion companies have already been brought under the control of international crime syndicates.

At one point he said: "Now, if this relates to anything that is of particular local interest, use your own judgment." According to a Vancouver Sun report, a scheduled question period was abandoned when the slightly dazed members had no questions to ask.

Mr. Davis said some organizations moving into the area previously had been active in Eastern Canada and he warned they may use local people "to do the fronting."

The John Howard Society executive warned that the syndicate people are not easily-recognizable, George Raft movie types, hats pulled down over their eyes, but rather the "type of guy that lives in your neighborhood . . . the kind that holds real nice cocktail parties.

"He might be the kind of guy that makes a really fine donation to your local charity and be all for helping the underdog.

"What is there about him?

"The one thing about him is this — that he is an element in a completely amoral kind of business. He is interested in two things: money and power."

It is not the old Al Capone gun-in-the-ribs type of operation, said Mr. Davis, but rather "it is . . . becoming a friend and offering you a fast buck to get in on this real estate opportunity."

It is frightening, and that is what Mr. Davis obviously intended it to be. If that is what is happening in the business world in Canada it is one of the most dangerous developments the country has known. Subversion by alien political creeds may be fought, but when organized crime invests in legitimate businesses then, as Mr. Davis put it, "you have got it."

Control in the United States. That country's Attorney-General, John Mitchell, named a Florida audience recently that the Mafia has gained control of a "large group" of internal revenue service employees in one state and that indictments expected in the case would "break up the largest gambling syndicate in history."

As Mr. Davis warned his West Vancouver audience: "If you have the capacity to be vigilant, be vigilant now."

She's the Mayor

An intriguing sort of person we imagine is one who sees herself as half-way between Charlotte Whitton, former Mayor of Ottawa, and Bernadette Devlin who represents an Ulster constituency at Westminster.

Since neither Miss Whitton nor Miss Devlin can be termed shrinking violets it may be presumed Preston mayor-elect Claudette Millar, 34, will not be afraid to sock it to her fellow councillors when she feels the occasion demands.

As she sees herself there are a number of negative factors in her life — none of them, however, of the kind that would cramp her style or make her any less effective a public figure.

First of all she says she is not a politician, and who knows but this engaging disclaimer could be an advantage, because democratic government needs people who are more than just politicians. In any council there must be representatives who are attuned to the needs of the community and can act out of practical need, sympathy and compassion.

"I'm not a feminist," she says — and briefly that means she is not parading the streets waving placards demanding some real or imagined equality. She has no church or club affiliations and admits further she is not the world's greatest cook.

Which means no one can accuse her of any conflict of interest that would preclude her from the position of chief citizen. What then are her qualifications? Mrs. Millar is a graduate sociologist and world-traveller; she works with her husband at their Kitchener travel agency and this of course may explain in part why she has no time for clubs or the kitchen sink.

This Preston (population 15,000) now has a cosmopolitan for mayor, a woman but not a feminist or a "belonger." An individual, too, who entered the race on the urging of a friend only ten minutes before nominations closed, because no one had come forward to oppose incumbent Mayor Halberstadt. In that fact alone there is a lesson for our largely apathetic electorate.

If the NDP Mouse Roared... Would

The U.S., Portugal, South Africa and All Be Upset?

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Someone was saying the other day that if the New Democrats ever get into power at Ottawa, it might set off World War Three.

This unkind comment by a Liberal cabinet minister was a reference to the foreign policy aims of the NDP as aired almost daily in the House of Commons.

The cabinet minister said if the NDP formed a government Canada would become such an international burghody as to stir up bellicose reactions among other nations.

A prime target of NDP leader Tommy Douglas and his followers is of course the United States. If the NDP had its way, arms shipments to the U.S. would be cut off. American investment in Canada might be nationalized or placed under controls; further U.S. investment here would be scrutinized and perhaps rejected.

In addition, Mr. Douglas would have a steady stream of moans going to Washington telling the president how to run his country and lecturing him on the shortcomings of his domestic and foreign policy.

Mr. Douglas apparently would not be worried about an adverse U.S. reaction. He does not fear that the elephant might sneeze to the peril of the mouse.

But the NDP political proposals range the wide world over. They dislike the Trudeau attitude toward the Nigerian-Biafran conflict. If the New Democrats had their way, Canada would be much more involved in this terrible affair, and probably on the side of Biafra.

Further in Africa, Mr. Douglas and company would want to dismantle the white regimes in Rhodesia and South Africa. He would kick the Portuguese out of Angola and Mozambique.

The Greek dictatorship would go if the New Democrats could swing it. General Franco would be fired in Spain. Canada would get out of NATO. In fact the Douglas line would have the NATO alliance lie down like a lamb alongside the peace-loving Warsaw Pact partners.

Some of these NDP proposals may commend themselves to a good many Canadians but the overall effect of these bolshiness by a Canadian socialist government might be somewhat startling.

However the foreign policy of the New Democrats would probably be more attractive to citizens generally if the dictatorships in the Soviet Union, the Iron Curtain countries and mainland China were criticized from time to time by this party.

"Please, oh please, don't give me a raise, sir! Under Mr. Benson's new tax proposals, I couldn't afford it!"

Modern Youth

Some Have Nothing Positive to Offer

Bruce West in
The Globe and Mail

It has long been one of my beliefs that, although youth in general is much more upbeat and better informed than the young of previous generations, many of those who pretend to speak for youth are chronic bellyachers and cry - babies.

Their entire stock - in - trade seems to be made up of complaints about how sadly previous generations have fouled things up. Peering out upon the world through clouds of marijuana-smoke these vociferous critics — most of whom have never shaved one brick upon another or grown a single stalk of wheat — insist that they could run all of our affairs a much better if only "the establishment" would be decent enough to bow out of the picture and give them full rein.

Seldom, if ever, do they give any clue to their actual plans for human betterment. Oh, they are against war and they are against poverty, as who isn't. Such vague and general stands are about as valuable as being against sin and for motherhood used to be. But how to actually stop wars and how to actually end poverty are questions which are going to take a good deal of hard and serious study and a certain amount of positive action.

And it is my hunch that when such study does take place and such action does follow, both will be accomplished by the squares who are now quietly following their academic pursuits instead of trying to gain attention by holding constant protest parades and dressing as though they were on their way to a Hallowe'en costume party.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The naval battle of the River Plate began 30 years ago today—in 1939—when three British light cruisers encountered the German pocket battleship Graf Spee in the South Atlantic. HMS Exeter was disabled but the Ajax and the Achilles pursued the raider until she took refuge in the neutral Uruguayan harbor of Montevideo, where Capt. Hans Langsdorff was given 72 hours to clear the port. He took his ship out of the harbor Dec. 17 and scuttled her, later committing suicide.

1784—English lexicographer Samuel Johnson was born.

1859—Archbishop Makarios was elected first president of Cyprus.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—United States Superfortresses attacked industrial targets on the Japanese home island of Honshu; Greek Insurgents launched attacks against British forces in Athens.

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—United States Superfortresses raided Thailand and Rangoon; British and American governments endorsed Premier Ivanoe Bonomi's new Italian government; it was announced that four U.S. coast guard cutters had beaten off German attempts to establish bases in Greenland between July and late October.

City Student Cites His Experience in Arctic

Canada Is Failing to Harness Energies of Its Youth

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

There has recently been much discussion on the merits and problems during the past three years of the operations of the Company of Young Canadians (CYC). There seems to be at this time an opportunity for re-evaluation of the CYC and the role such an organization can play in the future of Canada. The CYC has fallen into fairly wide disrepute and I feel that thought should be given to its incorporation into a larger and more far reaching organization to provide a vehicle for service by Canadians in their country.

Before continuing I would like to refer to two recent articles which have done much to clarify my thoughts. I refer to one by Kenneth Bagnell ("A Voice Unheard at the CYC Inquiry", Globe and Mail, Dec. 5, 1969, p. 7) in which he expresses surprise that the notable experiences of Frontier College were not used for evaluation of CYC operation.

Founded in 1925, Frontier College uses volunteers to work along with illiterate workers in the daytime, usually in manual jobs in northern areas, while acting as tutors to these men in the evenings. Another article, by Martin O'Malley ("Good By Judy", Globe Magazine, Dec. 6, 1969, p.4) describes the operations of the Department of Veteran Affairs' post World War II system of serviceman rehabilitation.

The program provided, according to length of service, free University education, technical education, grants and loans for investment in farms and business or a cash gratuity. The article does make reference to a concept which was advocated about a year ago by Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier. The concept is that of some sort of a domestic service corps or a task force, predominantly of young Canadians, to work in development projects at home and abroad. It is this concept which I enthusiastically support.

My personal experience would indicate that there is a real need for some vehicle to enable enthusiastic Canadians to participate in the development of the frontier regions of Canada. I have worked for three summers in the bush of Northern Ontario and one in the high Arctic. Each fall and winter, and especially after this last summer in the Arctic, I have found that many of my fellow students (both male and female) are very interested in my experiences and wish that they had such opportunities. But the fact is that for most of them, especially for those not studying engineering, there is little chance of them finding a job in the North. It really pains me to see such potential, such interest in our country effectively extinguished.

As I see it, some sort of organization should be developed to utilize such energy in a positive way. Such an agency (or task force, or service corps) would enable Canadians to invest in their country and future. The key word here is "enable", for presently the desire is there while the facilities are not. People seem to have an urge to seek excitement and adventure. Too often, without a field for such self-expression (for which adventure just supplies the means) people resort to artificial conflicts with their fellow man to provide the excitement. This is especially true of the young. So many students today admit that they are really aimless. What they need is a challenge to enable them to see what they are capable of, what they can really do in life. Surely this restlessness and energy could be directed away from destructive or artificial conflict in society to developing our country. The physical environment has always proved to be one of man's greatest challenges. The development of our country, possibly emphasizing the unconquered North, provides such a challenge to all Canadians.

With a bit of vision and some government encouragement and organization for such a task force, Canada would have the basis for tremendous development. It may be that she could catch up with some of her northern neighbours, Russia, the Scandinavian countries and even Denmark in Greenland all provide examples of marvelous development in northern regions—development which would put all Canadians in shame if they were told about it. Canada is apt to stop feeling like "threatened little brother" to Uncle Sam. She has to stop living in about domination by the United States while at the same time trying to imitate the U.S. way of opportunity. Such a negative approach will lead nowhere. Canadians must be positive and progressive on their own. A few positive actions to boost national spirit and development would do more than a hundred half - hearted sneers at our southern neighbour. Canadians must widen their perspective to other northern nations instead of focusing only on our own continent.

The Cost Of A Bride In New Guinea

Montreal Gazette

Inflation is a serious problem everywhere, but only in New Guinea have the authorities imposed price controls. From here on, says the report from Port Moresby, the local council will decide that no more than $2,-240 is paid for a bride.

Controls like this sound fine in principle. It's the details that are difficult to define. Egyptian authorities have had this trouble ever since the Pharaohs sent orders to their provincial governors on tablets of baked clay.

The New Guinea edict says that where dollars are scarce, the deficit can be made up in "tuned food, mother of pearl, pigs and dogs teeth."

Too Much Power?

The Globe and Mail

We have published accounts of a study into the drug lobby prepared by a student seeking his Masters degree. The thesis demonstrated that the drug lobby was broken only through the tenacity of civil servants.

They did their own investigations, held their own hearings, rejected representations from the drug companies, drafted the legislation on drug prices and pushed away at it until Parliament finally passed it.

The resulting laws will benefit all Canadians. But we owe very good, bad or indifferent as the results may be, should civil servants have this much power in a democratic society?

Contemporary Worship Urged

TORONTO (CP) — When Rev. Ron Atkinson looks at the average United Church service, this is what he sees:

People lined up in pews, all wearing their best clothes, stiff, starched, inhibited. The minister is isolated up in front reading about things that happened a long time ago. He reminds everyone about how wicked they have been. He prays out loud in 19th century rhetoric. He talks about how to solve problems.

And if people participate at all, they read off lines with their heads buried in the back of somebody else's neck.

What Mr. Atkinson, director of the United Church's Centre of Contemporary Worship, would like to see is a church with no pews at all. He'd like to see people sitting around a warm friendly place, in cam pchairs or even on the floor, wearing their old clothes so they can relax; the minister moving among them freely, leading them in celebrating the joy of their life together in Christ.

This is what he would call contemporary worship.

His centre was set up as a two-year experiment with a $35,000 grant from a committee on experimental projects.

Mr. Atkinson finds tremendous interest among church people in new forms of worship. He conducts workshops and seminars across the country and has put out a catalogue of music, drama and films to help work out something new in the congregations.

He knows that some people are perfectly content with what goes on now on Sundays, and he doesn't believe that a congregation has to change if it doesn't want to.

But he knows from the letters that have come to the centre and from his contacts especially among young people that what goes on now is unsatisfying to many people in the church and meaningless to many outside it.

A new gimmick isn't enough in itself, he says. "People don't achieve contemporary worship just by talking back to the minister during a sermon now and again. You get it by asking what is a festive celebration of people together in Christ and how such a celebration is possible in the world today."

New Zealand Churches Are Proposing Union

AUCKLAND (CP) — After five years of discussion a commission of five Protestant churches in New Zealand has recommended a plan for union.

The churches are the Anglican, Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregational and Churches of Christ. Nominally they cover 60 per cent of the population of New Zealand.

The plan of union will take several years to implement. The earliest possible legal date is 1977. But various union schemes already under way will in practice merge churches in some respect well before then.

Hailed as the greatest move toward church unity yet made in New Zealand, the plan is based on union with diversity. The combined church will be called the Church of Christ in New Zealand.

Significantly, a Roman Catholic bishop had a hand in the choice of name. The finding of a suitable title proved one of the most difficult tasks before the commission. A Presbyterian member of the commission happened to mention the matter to Bishop B. P. Ashby, Roman Catholic bishop of Christchurch, who indicated that the Church of Christ in New Zealand would be inoffensive to him and perfectable from a Catholic point of view.

After the merger plan has been considered by each of the five Protestant churches concerned, they will vote individually on whether to take part.

If they do, there will be little obvious difference in the form of service in the individual churches. Those who kneel, stand or sit to pray will continue to do so, and so on. But the belief is that the form of service will be acceptable to a member of any of the five churches.

The main differences will appear in church administration and government.

The new church will be governed by local parish councils, which will unite in groups of 40 or 50 parishes into about 20 dioceses. Over all will be a national assembly. Diocesan synods will meet at least four times a year, and the national assembly at least annually.

The clergy in each parish will consist of a presbyter, assisted by ordained deacons and elders. Some presbyters will earn their living in secular occupations.

There will be a bishop in each diocese. The dioceses will be smaller than existing Anglican dioceses, giving more opportunity for personal contact by bishops.

The commission believes that there will not be surplus clergy —in fact, there are plans for team ministries. No great problem is expected from redundant buildings. In some places more will be needed, it is hoped, since the essence of the plan is to bring the church more prominently before the general public and thus encourage greater church membership.

Book on Canadian Artist Deemed A Success

TORONTO (CP) — The initial success of the book Tom Thomson. The Algonquin Years has its two Toronto area' housewives-turned-authors puzzled.

"It's a book that shouldn't have happened," Mrs. Otralyn Addison and Mrs. Elizabeth Harwood agree.

But then, why shouldn't it have happened? Mrs. Addison grew up in Algonquin Park where Thomson spent the last years of his life capturing in his paintings the rugged beauty of the Ontario wilderness.

Her father was a park ranger who left a collection of about 300 pictures and letters of Algonquin Park.

"All these things of my father's were just sitting there. I kept telling myself I had to do something with them," she recalls.

After persistent encouragement from an artist friend, she finally sat down to write—but just a short article.

The short article took three years to complete and grew into a fair-sized book.

—who was found drowned in a park lake in 1917—got into the book because it seemed impossible to write about Algonquin Park and not mention the painter who spent so many years there.

She said she asked her friend, and neighbor, Mrs. Harwood, for help and the two women gathered everything they could that reflected Thomson's life.

Most of the writing was done at the kitchen table in Mrs. Harwood's home.

"When we had the material selected and arranged, we just came down and presented it to Ryerson (Press)—and they took it."

The result now is going to press for the second time after the initial 2,500-copy run sold out.

The authors hope the book will bring forward letters, reminiscences and other Thomson works to illuminate the inside story they feel is yet to be told.

Thomson, who died at the age of 39, spent much of his years rambling through the forest near Owen Sound, Ont. He became a commercial artist, but in his later years worked only during the winter to support his forays into the wilderness.

In the winter of 1911 he met a group of artists who taught him all they could of methods and techniques of painting. He in turn inspired the members, including A. Y. Jackson, J. E. H. MacDonald and Arthur Lismer, with his love and understanding of the Canadian landscape.

It was shortly after Thomson's death that the artists formed the now famous Group of Seven.

Doll-like Dancer Has Firm Will

TORONTO (CP) — With her porcelain white skin, blue eyes and leggy figure, Suzanne Farrell, the former principal dancer of the New York City Ballet, has been described as a little doll.

She has had the unfortunate public image of "a little marionette" with George Balanchine of the New York City Ballet pulling the strings.

That is why it's surprising to hear her say firmly:

"Nobody runs my life and nobody's going to."

Balanchine discovered her at 15 and moulded her into a near-perfect dancer. She spent nine years—all her professional life —with the company and then quit.

She is a free-lancer now, dancing mainly with the National Ballet of Canada. She knows that critics are watching when she steps into the first roles that Balanchine didn't choreograph for her.

Last spring Suzanne married Paul Mejia, 22, another Balanchine protegee, apparently also being groomed for principal roles.

"Mr. Balanchine wanted to marry me and I wanted to marry my husband. And after I told him that, Paul stopped getting the roles. He was hardly dancing at all any more. I was still dancing a lot but I was feeling uncomfortable with Paul just sitting around."

Balanchine is 65 and has been married four times already to ballerinas. But Suzanne says:

"I don't hold that against him. He can't help it. It was 'You see I like him very much.'"

She is still hurt that he almost stopped speaking to her.

"I suppose I hurt his pride. Love does strange things to people."

It seems likely that unless Paul's budding career in television choreography diverts him permanently from the world of ballet, Balanchine will have to make it an invitation for two.

"As she says: "Nobody runs my life."

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

Mrs. Frank Tucker was hostess for the November meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute. There was a good attendance of members and visitors. In the absence of the president, the first vice - president, Mrs. Gordon Garrison took charge.

After the usual opening, the roll call was answered with "Something I have done since leaving school to improve my education." The minutes of the last meeting were read and business arising from them was dealt with.

Plans were made to hold the first meeting of the short course "The Main Dish Makes the Meal" at the home of Mrs. Don Storey in the form of a potluck dinner with some of the dishes from the course to be used for the meal on Dec. 4.

Mrs. Helen Johnston reported from the area convention and Mrs. Pat Braza had a contest on naming the different cuts to a side of beef. The draw was won by Mrs. Vanderveld. Mrs. Tucker then introduced Mrs. Elwin Hart who showed slides on her tour of Australia, New Zealand and Japan.

WEDDING

McLAREN — MOORE

Bridge St. United Church Chapel was the setting for the wedding of Elaine Mary, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Moore, Belleville and Robert William McLaren, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLaren of Belleville. Dr. Harry M. Davis officiated and Alec Gordon was organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of white silk crepe with long sleeves enhanced with an embroidered front panel and embroidery on the detachable train. The three-tier shoulder length bouffant veil was held in place by a floral headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and pink mums.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Diane Long, Trenton. She wore a long blue silk taffeta dress with lace bodice and back panel, a matching blue headdress and carried a nosegay of white and pink mums.

Best man was Glen McLaren, brother of the bridegroom. Usher was Harold Long of Trenton.

Following the ceremony, a reception with buffet supper was held at the bridegroom's home. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a dress of black lace over gold metallic with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a raspberry fortrel suit with black accessories and a white carnation corsage.

The couple will reside at 132 Bridge St. East, Belleville.

Director Has Frank Advice For Women

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tony Emery, director of the Vancouver city art gallery, has some frank advice for women: Speak your mind.

"If you go to the symphony or an art gallery and it bores hell out of you, have the guts to say so," he told a service club here.

He said some wives think they should take an interest in art as "part of the white women's burden."

"We don't want you unless you enjoy it," he said.

Mrs. Emery, an art historian, said the term art represents different things and different times, and he could not define it.

Marysville CWL Plans Events

The December meeting of the Marysville CWL was held in the school on Dec. 8. It was decided that the meetings in January and February be brief and held in the church after Mass unless new business comes up. The chairman of the standing committee gave brief reports and the president, Mrs. McLaren reminded the committee to keep these up to date as no regular report forms will be filled out this year. Membership cards will be made available. Membership at present is 68. Attention was brought to the white paper on tax reform and anyone in disagreement should make this known to Mr. Benson.

Mrs. McLaren asked for the names of all the shut-ins so they may be remembered at Christmas.

The Christmas dance will be held December 27 and an orchestra is to be engaged for the St. Patrick's dance, March 20. A card party will be held on a Sunday evening, the date to be announced later.

A thank you letter was received from Father Jim Farrell S.J. for the group gift which was used for the dig ging of a well, and also for used clothing.

The school children as well as pre schoolers are to receive the usual Christmas treats to be purchased by Father Dwyre, packaged by a few of the mothers and paid for from league funds.

A few plans were discussed regarding the fall bazaar such as a quilt to be started on early in the year and materials for sewing to be acquired. Each member was asked to give 25c to help purchase yarn so that an afghan could be completed before April.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Bill McCauley was in charge of the program which included a skit put on by the 4 H girls, mind teasing contests, the singing of Christmas carols and an exchange of gifts.

The meeting concluded with lunch.

Student Unrest Topic At Carmel W.I.

The November meeting of the Carmel Branch of East Hastings Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Borden Baker, Carlow ville.

Mrs. Gearge Graham, first vice - president opened the meeting and welcomed the 16 members.

Mrs. Grills read a paper on "How Do Insects Survive in Winter" and Mrs. Graham read a paper on "Mrs. Palmer's Receipts in 1865."

Mrs. Russell Ritz, the president, conducted the business. It was decided to send $10. to Mental Health Association. The December meeting date is set forward to December 9 and is to be held at the home of Mrs. Ritz.

Mrs. Lyle Bradshaw introduced the guest speaker Mrs. Elaine McGrath, who taught five years at an all girls high school and also at Trenton Air Force one is studying English at university.

Mrs. McGrath spoke on "Student Unrest". There are many causes for unrest, the main ones seemed to be lack of something to do, and money is too available. The speaker did not agree on "too examinations", as they help to prepare the student for University.

Mrs. McGrath also disagreed with the new method of teaching "Let the Child Learn for Himself." The child should be made learn certain things Today the child seems to lose respect for others, due to lack of discipline. We need liberalism and conservatism. She also stated that there is too much extreme sex education and as a result values have gone down today. Too much publicity in the papers is not good, as half of the students do not know what they are protesting about," she concluded.

Mrs. McGrath followed her talk with an open discussion period.

Mrs. Harold Pound thanked the speaker and presented her with a gift in appreciation.

Lunch was served and a most enjoyable evening brought to a close.

KNOW THEIR PASSENGERS

QUEBEC (CP) — The 109 calèche drivers here are as knowledgeable about their passengers as about the city. Chances are their riders are on the first of a few days' stop-over, they are probably Americans from the eastern seaboard or Canadians from the Maritimes and most will ask several questions about the horses. Calèches are horse-drawn carriages that tourists can hire for sight seeing.

Women Drivers Tend to Be Over-cautious

TORONTO (CP) — Pat Curran, public relations director for the Ontario Motor League, says women drivers tend to be overcautious, probably because they have inferiority complexes about their driving.

She says the too-cautious driver confuses and annoys other drivers.

"Surveys have shown that women who go to work or who are active in their community make better drivers than the stay-at-homes.

"These women have greater awareness, and awareness is th key to safety in driving. The active woman is more geared to what is going on, and thinks quickly."

Statistically, women have a good driving record. Last year, Ontario figures showed men were involved in more than 220,000 accidents, while women shared in only 37,209.

Miss Curran says that women, like men, should realize that most accidents involve persons who have been driving for more than 10 years and have not glanced at a motorist's handbook to review the rules of the road.

"The greatest weakness of all drivers is that they occasionally go through stop signs, or only come to a 'rolling stop' at the signs when they should make a full stop."

She says women do not need to become mechanics to know how a car works, but they should read the owner's manual to become familiar with basic car operations.

She also suggests that car owners have their cars checked periodically for safety features.

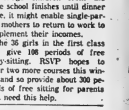
If a woman runs into difficulty on a highway, she suggests that a handkerchief be tied to the door handle as a distress signal and that the doors be locked. At night, the woman driver should not get out of the car.

When a good Samaritan comes along, roll down the window and ask him to phone for a tow-truck, the police or whatever is needed, she advises.

As for parking, she says no one should park at night on a dark street, but rather at a well-lit lot with an attendant.

Organization To Provide Baby-sitting Instructions

REGINA (CP) — A five-week baby-sitting course sponsored by the Regina Services Volunteer Projects organization will provide 36 young girls with the knowledge to cope with everyday and emergency situations that arise in the care of children.



In return, the girls will each provide RSVP three free periods of baby-sitting, to be used in situations where volunteer sitters are needed.

RSVP is an organization set up to help people in need. Interested persons donate time rather than money.

The baby-sitting course sponsored by RSVP is based on a booklet published by the Safety Council of Canada. Lectures include one on baby care given by a registered nurse, one on grooming by a beauty consultant, one on first aid by a member of St. John Ambulance, one on security by a policeman, one on fire prevention by a fireman and one on community services by a social worker.

When the student enrols in the course, she promises to donate three free periods of baby-sitting, to which the welfare department will have access through RSVP. For example, if the volunteers can care for school-age children from the time school finishes until dinner time, it might enable single-parent mothers to return to work to supplement their incomes.

The 36 girls in the first class will give 108 periods of free baby-sitting. RSVP hopes to offer two more courses this winter and so provide about 300 periods of free sitting for parents that need this help.

Spiral Air Twist Stems In First Wine Glasses

Up to the time of George I, glassmakers endeavored to blow glass vessels clear of air bubbles. It was then discovered that a decorative air bubble "tear" could very readily be left in the stems of wine glasses.

Stems with air bubbles, made by George Ravenscroft of London, began to appear in the latter half of the 17th century. Ravenscroft is famous as the inventor of lead crystal. His air bubble achieved significance in 1745 when a tax was introduced on the weight of glass. To reduce the weight, the quantity of lead was cut and air bubbles served to further decreasing the weight of the finished product.

It was found that several bubbles could be introduced into the stem. If these were drawn out and twisted, a spiral air twist stem resulted.

The spiral decorative effect was heightened by the use of colored glass threads and strips which were embedded in clear glass and then twisted in the same manner. Sometimes both air twists and glass strips (known as enamels) were combined in the same stem. Large air twists with a mirror-like surface are known as mercury twist stems although they contain no mercury. They were made in the same general period.

Most of these glasses were made in England and the date of their introduction coincided with the battle of Culloden and the defeat of Bonnie Prince Charlie.Quite a number have Jacobite sentiments or symbols.

The commonest motif is the rose. A single rosebud is said to commemorate the Old Pretender. Two rosebuds commemorate the Old and Young Pretenders. Oak leaves refer to the oak tree in which Charles II hid at the battle of Worcester. One style of air-twist glass is engraved with a portrait, supposed to be of the Young Pretender. It also has the motto "Audentio Ibo" which has been variously translated as "I Go Boldly" or "I Go as Audentio Bibo", "I Drink Boldly".

At the time these glasses were made the reigning house of Hanover issued an edict removing water as a beverage at official and military functions. It was the practice of Jacobite supporters to drink the loyal toast over their water glass, as a toast to the King or the Pretender "over the water". Many messes still do not permit water at the table at official functions.

Air twist decoration diminished in popularity toward the end of the 18th century although it never completely disappeared. Tear drops are still popular decorative motifs in modern glass. The glasses illustrated show air twist stems combined with Jacobite engraving of roses and one odd combination of oak leaves growing from a rose stem. They are known collectively as Georgian, a catch-all label that embraces the dates 1714 to 1837. These glasses are certainly after 1750.

Georgian glasses are not common in Canada. They were individually produced, never in identical sets. Although glasses might be similar they would not be identical.

How to Write Up A Meeting for Newspaper

By DORIS CLARK

A PR secretary has the job of sending a meeting report to the newspaper. Sometimes it isn't easy to know just what to say.

It was a man who was pinch-hitting in the women's department of the Saint John (N.B.) Telegraph-Journal who talked to me about this. Here are some of his ideas:

1. Give the highlight of the meeting; what important thing did the speaker say? Simply never record: "The president presided, the secretary read the minutes" — or unreasonable facsimile. Pick out the news.

2. Ask the women's editor for any set style the paper likes to follow (and double your chances of getting published.)

3. Supply full names. "Dora Jones presided" is simply not enough for an editor who may want to call Mrs. Jones about things left out.

4. On every meeting report, put a telephone number for further information. Notes that are clear as crystal to the writer may be foggy to the reader, even if he specializes in mind reading.

5. Tiniiness counts, but is not as all-fired essential as a good newsy story about a significant happening dripping with names that make news.

* * *

Dear Doris: Thank you for your letter of advice. It really works. It seems my husband is annoying himself, not me. When he does make any comments about other women I just pretend I don't hear him.

I just turn and talk to my sons and find interests otherwise. He just burns up when he sees it does not annoy me and I don't care. Thank you again, Doris, for your good letter of advice. — Grateful.

Dear Grateful: So your ex. pertinent in human psychology worked! O.K., but try not to gloat over him.

Unless you want him to start hating you. Now my idea would be to accentuate the positive. Could you eliminate his apparent urge to tease by giving him ways to feel important? Could you praise him or pamper him in some unusual way?

Lighten the day for the person you care about. This is a far higher kind of satisfaction than the tit-for-tat technique we have been discussing.

* * *

Confidential to Phone or Not To: Phone your boy friend — sure! Especially since he has asked you to call him under these circumstances. The calls the boys don't dig are the chatty ones with no real purpose.

What the boys say about the girls who make a practice of doing this isn't very complimentary.

Points for Parents
By MARY BAYSON

Mother: "Terry, give the car to Jimmy. You know he's just a baby. You shouldn't be selfish and make him cry."

The baby has to learn that what he wants. Don't force an older child to give in to unfair demands just because he's older.

Mother: "Terry, hand Jimmy another toy if you're not through playing with the little car. You had it first and he has to learn to share."

Mother will not always get him to learn will not always get him

A Round Up Using Inexpensive Beef Cut

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Mary do you remember Peking Roast that you requested from readers three or four years ago? Would you mind repeating it? It was great but I have lost or loaned my recipe. . . S. J.

ANSWER: I am glad to repeat this from March 1966 because it calls for an inexpensive beef cut.

PEKING ROAST
(Using Pot Roast)

Use a 3 lb. boned and rolled pot roast. Cut four or five deep pockets in the meat — to within 1" of bottom — and in these insert thin slices from one medium onion. Shake garlic salt sparingly in the slits. Put roast in a deep bowl, pour over 1 cup white vinegar, being sure it flows into slits. Cover and refrigerate for 24-48 hrs., turning three times.

Lift meat from vinegar. Discard vinegar. Heat ½ cup cooking oil in large heavy pot and brown meat in it on all sides until very dark. NOTE: You may use a heavy iron frying pan if it has a lid to fit it. Watch carefully for the vinegar on the meat will make the fat spatter. When thoroughly browned all over, pour off surplus oil, add 3 cups hot strong coffee and 2 cups hot water and simmer four hours adding about 1-1½ tsps. salt and about ¼ tsp. pepper 20 min. before time is up. The dark gravy is delicious on mashed potatoes or fluffy boiled rice.

QUESTION: I am preparing a cold buffet for 50 people. Would you give me a recipe for turkey or chicken salad for this number? — Mrs. Laura M.

ANSWER: A timely request.

CHICKEN OR TURKEY SALAD (for 50)

10 cups cold chicken or turkey cut in ½" cubes
10 cups diced inner celery
16 hard-cooked eggs, chilled, shelled and chopped
2 cups canned cubed pineapple, drained
1 tbsp. salt
6 cups pared diced cucumber
3 cups toasted blanched almonds, chopped
3 cups mayonnaise or salad dressing
About 5 heads iceberg lettuce

Combine all ingredients except lettuce, adding more mayonnaise or salad dressing if it is not moist enough. Chill and serve on lettuce.

Ann Landers

Divorced Father Has Sad Experience

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Been There's" frontal attack on divorced fathers was unfair. We are not all "rats" because we don't see our children. I am a badly wounded veteran of the battle for custody and I hope you will print my letter in the name of justice.

I tried, without success, to get custody of my three emotionally disturbed children. It seems that only a mother who is a proven drug addict, an alcoholic or a prostitute is considered "unfit." My ex-wife had a history of mental illness complete with psychotic episodes, but he didn't mean a thing. I lost and she won.

After the divorce, every visit with my children was a traumatic experience for them and a nightmare for me. Their mother brainwashed them so thoroughly that they viewed me as a monster. When I took them out for dinner, they were nervous and tense and couldn't eat. I couldn't eat either. I knocked myself out trying to make our time together exciting, sensational, fun. It didn't work. Finally, after developing an ulcer, I decided it wasn't worth it. After considerable soul-searching and professional advice, I decided to sever all ties except the support checks. It was a heartbreaking decision, but it was best for everyone concerned. I'm not the only father who has gone through the agony of losing his kids. You owe it to all of us to print this letter. Sign me — A VERY SAD DAD.

* * *

DEAR DAD: Here's your letter. And my heart goes out to you all.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is an intelligent, level-headed girl. We are having a difference in opinion and would like to hear what you have to say. Marie feels she is doing her friends a favor when she corrects their mistakes in grammar and pronunciation. I say it is not favor, it is just plain rude and any benefit that might come from a correction is completely negated by the embarrassment — especially when others are present. We are both eager to hear what you have to say. — MARIE VERSUS MOTHER.

* * *

DEAR M.V.M.: Rare, indeed, is the person who appreciates being corrected in the presence of others. If Marie wishes to do a friend a favor she should wait until they are alone.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Settle an argument. I say a bridesmaid should be a maiden — not necessarily a virgin, but at least unmarried. My sister is planning her wedding and she has asked five friends to be bridesmaids. Three of the five are married women and two have children. What about this? — DIXIE.

* * *

DEAR DIX: A bridesmaid can be single, a virgin, an ex-virgin, pregnant, married, divorced, a mother — it matters not, so long as she is female. And one of these days don't be surprised if a fella shows up as a bridesmaid. The way the world is going it's got to happen.

Waste of Our Time to Change Say Quebec CYCs

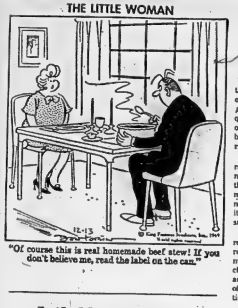
OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec members of the council of the Company of Young Canadians said Friday the CYC is what it is and should not waste its time trying to make itself over to please Parliament or the government.

"If the government doesn't like us as we are, we'll get out of the company and do our work elsewhere," said Marcel Desjardins, 24, of Trois-Rivieres.

He spoke as the CYC's governing council opened a three-day meeting to evaluate its projects and other internal matters.

An hour after council began its session, the government introduced a bill in the Commons to appoint a financial controller for the company. It is an interim measure, to be foldered in January by a second bill making structural changes in the CYC.

The government is considering what permanent action it should take on recommendations of the Commons broadcasting committee which found after an inquiry that the company is in "chaotic condition" due to untidy financial procedures. It also found that the company in Quebec has been infiltrated by subversives.



Jack Johnson of Calgary, CYC chairman, said the committee acted on insufficient evidence. He said council members should have been allowed to rebut some of the charges made against the CYC, especially by the Montreal civic administration.

Little was accomplished in the opening day Friday and volunteer Mickey Poskuns of Aylmer, Que., pleaded for a more orderly day today.

He said the atmosphere at the meeting, with parliamentary action hanging over council and the internal squabbles between volunteers and appointed members of council, was "eating his guts out."

In the only solid piece of finished work, the CYC council decided to notify community officials when a new CYC project is planned for their area.

Gravel Pits Must Be Rehabilitated If Proposed Legislation Is Passed

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario legislature committee recommended Friday that gravel pit and quarry companies be required to pay security deposits of up to $100,000 to ensure rehabilitation of worked-out quarries.

Mines Minister Allan Lawrence, tabling a report of the mineral resources committee in the legislature, noted it recommends the provincial government take over from municipalities the authority to regulate surface mining operations.

The report, prepared at the request of the quarry industry, recommends that the department of mines regulate the choice of excavation site, road and building construction, hours of operation, noise levels and ultimate land use.

Mr. Lawrence indicated the government may act on the report early next year, if the municipalities are agreeable.

"In many cases the operators have failed to take the necessary steps to restore the aesthetic appearance of the land in which they work," the minister said.

The report recommends operators be required to file with the mines department a detailed site plan outlining its program from initial excavation to eventual rehabilitation. The department would have the right to require changes in the plan, or reject it entirely.

It also suggests that operators pay security deposits annually on the basis of tonnage of material shipped or $5,000, whichever is less. Payments would continue until a maximum deposit of $100,000 was reached. Interest would be paid on the deposit.

If a company failed to rehabilitate a worked-out quarry, the department of mines would be authorized to use the money to carry out its own rehabilitation. Otherwise, the operator would receive a refund based on the amount of work carried out or to be carried out.

Amendments to the Mining Act would require operators to beautify quarries with topsoil and vegetation as the stone or gravel of a site is exhausted.

In cases where the excavation is deep enough for water to collect and form a pond, the operator would be required to bank the site to a gradual slope.

The report also recommends that quarries be located more than 500 feet from a road, that dust on quarry roads be controlled and that sites be screened by trees.

Operators also should be required to erect a barbed-wire-topped fence around their operations, including gates on all road which would be locked when pits are not being worked.

Jail Not Needed Once Centre Opens

What to do with the century-old Hastings County jail after the new four county Quinte Regional Detention Centre at Napanee is completed, will be a matter of discussion for county councillors at their January session.

Clerk Treasurer Carl Bateman in his administrator's report to county council this week said the new provincial jail would be completed early in 1971. At that time he said the necessity of keeping the present county jail would disappear.

Council referred discussions on the disposition of the county jail to its January session.

At the end of the year with the provincial take-over of the assessment function, the county assessment office will be phased out.

All personnel in the county office, including assessment commissioner S. C. Jevons, will be employed at the Trenton regional office under the provincial set-up.

Office space in the county building now occupied by the assessment office will be taken over the county social services department now housed at the Bellville city hall.

Rental fee for the office space has been set at $3,600 per year to be shared by Bellveille, Trenton and the county. Rental at the county building will be the same as is now being paid at city hall.

Critics Delay 3rd Reading Of Adoption Amendment

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition parties Friday delayed legislation which would ensure that a child cannot be returned to his natural mother once he has become a Crown ward and has been singled out for adoption.

Critics from both Liberal and New Democratic parties debated the proposed legislature for three hours until the legislature adjourned at 1 p.m. Debate is expected to resume Monday.

The legislation was drawn up after 18-months-old David Mugford was returned to his natural mother from a foster home who wished to adopt him but had not had time to do so.

The Supreme Court of Canada upheld Nov. 17 the Ontario Court of Appeal's decision to return the child.

John Brown (NDP-Toronto-Beaches-Woodbine) said Mr. Yaremko had lost sight of the natural right of parents.

"You are trying to sever the natural tie," he said.

James Renwick (NDP-Toronto-Riverdale) said such legislation would make it impossible for someone like Miss Mugford to retain her child.

He said natural mothers should be given a 30 day notice when someone has decided to adopt their child. Mr. Yaremko replied that his department did not want to "reopen the anguish" the mother had first experienced when she gave her child to a children's aid society.

Under the proposed legislation, a child may be placed under Crown protection if it has been abused or neglected or if the natural mother has signed a consent, putting it up for adoption but without making a private arrangement with adoptive parents.

The child can become a ward of the Crown 10 days after birth.

No Veto on Research

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis told the legislature Friday he will not order Ontario universities to refuse research grants from United States government agencies, including the defence department.

Mr. Davis was replying to Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) who had asked the education minister to tell university presidents not to accept grants "funded from the military establishment."

The education minister has an annual meeting scheduled with Ontario university presidents next week.

Mr. Lewis said Thursday the United States Congressional Record says Ontario universities are receiving about $2,600,000 annually in grants from the defence department.

Mr. Davis said the grants "partly" aid the military, but he said they provide valuable research that helps the whole community.

Belleville Rock Concert Jan. 16

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Most Belleville area young people will be ringing in the New Year to the strains of rock music.

January 16 will see another rock concert comparable to the one at the Ben Breecker Auditorium during Belleville Week.

Sponsored by the Belleville Theatre Guild on behalf of the guild's theatre and the young people in the community, the concert is to be called the Maria Rivercottom Blues Festival. It will be staged at the armories.

The project will be co-ordinated by youtheatre members in the hope of raising money for further Belleville Theatre Guild activities.

Work has already begun on the concert. It started Tuesday night at a meeting of young people and produced various committees needed to organize and run the event.

It will run for four or five hours, starting at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 16. Advance tickets will go on sale next week. There will also be tickets on sale at the door.

Four bands will be featured at the event — two from Toronto, one from Kingston and one Belleville group. Whiskey Howl, touted as Canada's best blues - rock group and Milkwood, one of the featured groups at the Belleville Week Rock Concert, will be back for a return performance.

The Kingston group, Two-Minute Hate, will also be making a return journey to Belleville for the event. Belleville's representative will be Bill the Lizard.

The festival is expected to draw from 1,200 to 1,500 rock fans.

A Sincere Thank You

To all those who worked for and supported me in the recent election. I sincerely appreciate every effort made on my behalf, for without your help my success would not have been as great. Also to the citizens of Belleville, may I extend best wishes for a Happy Holiday Season.

Beliveau Road to Fame Not as Smooth as Surface Looks

MONTREAL (CP) — To the average hockey fan, life has been a bowl of cherries for big Jean Beliveau.

Beliveau, 38 and in his 19th season with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, has helped create this image with a fluid style of play and an easy off-ice affability.

A casual check of NHL records shows the many honors he has won over the years.

But look again. Players' records to injury also show up in the games-played column.

Beliveau was told Thursday what had initially been diagnosed as a sprain was in fact a cracked ankle bone—an injury that sidelined him, for about three weeks.

The Canadiens' captain was injured last Saturday when Barry Gibbs, Minnesota North Stars defenceman, fell on Beliveau's left leg.

Beliveau was taken to hospital for x-rays, but was released when no bone break showed.

He missed Sunday and Wednesday games, tried to practise Thursday and found it too painful. More x-rays disclosed the break.

Beliveau broke into the league in the 1953-54 season as one of the most heralded rookies of all time.

In his first season with the NHL club he suffered a broken leg and a broken jaw and sat out 26 games. The first season apparently set a pattern.

Only twice since then has he played a full season free of serious injury, in 1954-55 and again the next year.

The 1955-65 season was his biggest personal triumph. He won the Art Ross Trophy as the league's leading point-getter with 47 goals and 41 assists and the Hart Trophy as the NHL's most valuable player. The same season he scored 12 goals in 10 playoff games to equal a mark set by Maurice (Rocket) Richard as the Canadiens won Stanley Cup, a feat they repeated for the next four years.

In 1956-57 Beliveau missed only one game, but the next year he sat out 15 contests with fractured ribs. He missed six games in 1958-59 and 19 more 1959-60 season with pulled groin and stomach muscles.

And so it has gone—one game in 1960-61, 27 in 1961-62, two in 1962-63, two in 1963-64, 12 in 1964-65, three in 1965-66, 13 in 1966-67 with an eye injury and another (our with a groin injury, 15 games and the Stanley Cup playoffs due to a knee injury in 197-68, and seven last season.

Prior to his ankle injury, Beliveau had missed only two games this year, early in the schedule with a condition described as weariness.

Lucky Hook KO's Quarry

Chuvalo Desperate Winner

Fight Nearly Stopped

NEW YORK (CP) — George Chuvalo, possibly only one second away from defeat and retirement, threw a desperation left hook and knocked out Jerry Quarry in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Chuvalo, the Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto, battled Quarry toe-to-toe for six rounds and had his eye closed during the seventh and final round.

Dr. A. Harry Kleiman of the New York State Athletic commission had examined Chuvalo's eye after the sixth round, and it looked as though the fight was in danger of being stopped.

But with seconds to go in the seventh round, Chuvalo unleashed a left hook to the temple and Quarry toppled over backwards in a corner. He got up quickly at the count of three, but then sagged to the canvas in a hunched position as referee Zack Clayton counted him out.

Chuvalo's eye was closed tight by that time. If Chuvalo had not knocked Quarry out, the fight most likely would have been stopped and Chuvalo would have been faced with his promise to retire if he lost the fight.

But now Chuvalo is in line for another shot at Joe Frazier, recognized in five U.S. states and Mexico and Argentina as world champion. Frazier stopped Chuvalo for the only time in his career in the same ring two years ago.

In his dressing room Quarry said:

"I couldn't hear him counting. I wasn't hurt. I was pulling away off balance when I got hit. I got up and went down again - eight count. I was only squating, not down on one knee."

Referee Clayton had a different version:

"I was counting right in his ear," he said. "Why did he go back down after he got up? He says he wasn't on one knee. Well, look at the pictures. He was down."

Despite the roar of the crowd, the count was heard by ringside reporters.

"He says he couldn't hear the count," said Chuvalo. "If he can't tell the difference between nine and 10, then it must have been a real good punch. It was a beautiful surprise when he didn't get up, though."

"I was trying to end it with one shot," said Chuvalo. "But I wasn't ready to leave myself open for possible further damage to my eye. It was near closed as it was and I was worried about the fight being stopped.

"I could see what he was up to, but I was one step ahead of him.

"We were in mid-ring and I knew he was after my sod eye. He thought a right hand lead to the body would bring my guard down for a clear shot with his left hook to the eye. That's when I let fly with my hook."

"If Quarry feels he was short-changed and if Frazier is unavailable, then we'll give him another shot," said Chuvalo. "But the money will have to be right."

Quarry got $25,000 to Chuvalo's $15,000, for their battle.

Bad Boys Make Return For Habs' Run at Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal's two bad boys return to action tonight and the defending Stanley Cup champion Canadiens will be seeking to close the gap on New York Rangers, East Division leaders in the National Hockey League.

Back in the Canadiens lineup will be defenceman Jacques Laperriere who sat out a three-game suspension and left-winger John Ferguson who was out for six games.

Laperriere's sentence was handed down last week by league president Clarence Campbell after hearing details of the defenceman's altercation with referee Bill Friday in a Montreal game Nov. 29.

Campbell put Ferguson down for six games for a Nov. 27 stick-swinging incident in a game against the Blues in St. Louis.

The Canadiens have kept close to the Rangers in the standings despite being plagued by injuries and other player problems since the season started and now face Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings in weekend action with centre Jean Beliveau the only regular out of the lineup.

In the only game Friday night Oakland Seals beat Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1.

The Red Wings meet the Maple Leafs in Toronto tonight before returning to Detroit to face the Canadiens Sunday, while the Black Hawks return from Montreal to meet Philadelphia Flyers in Chicago.

Boston Bruins are at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Los Angeles against the Kings and New York in Minnesota against the North Stars in other games tonight. The Leafs travel to New York and the Penguins to Boston to round out the Sunday action.

The Canadiens, tied with Boston on 34 points, are just four points behind the Rangers.

Beliveau's ankle injury means he will be out of the lineup two or three weeks, the club said Thursday, and left winger Pete Mahovlich from the Voyageurs in the American League will stay with the NHL club to fill the gap.

The Canadiens tonight face former team-mate Tony Esposito who has allowed Montreal to score only one goal on him in the Chicago nets.

In International Hockey, What Bunny Wants, Bunny Gets

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

His fortitude is mirrored in the bulldog set of his Irish jaw.

His azure eyes are alert and merry. But he balances his weight on the balls of his feet like a karate expert on the offence, and seldom sits.

His name is J. P. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, although he has been called "the master of the double entendre," the "dictator of world h o c k e y" and other names less complimentary.

What Bunny wants, Bunny gets. Bunny knows only English, although his role as world hockey czar brings him in contact with a dozen other languages.

Once a federation member asked what the working language of the IIHF was English and not French.

Ahearne glanced down the length of his Irish nose and said:

"How do you say working language in French?"

The delegate stammered and then confessed there was no phrase for "working language" in the French vocabulary.

"See," said A h e a r n e, "That's what I mean, gentlemen. The working language must be English."

The authoritative power of Peter the Great, Henry VIII's persuasiveness and Churchillian diplomacy are all rolled into his character.

Many close associates claim he could have solved the cold war years ago as chairman of the United Nations or wrangled Britain into the European Common Market as prime minister.

But one thing is certain: Ahearne is tough. He is the unchallenged ruler of world hockey and perhaps the only man in the world who can hold together the shredded ends of a society caught up in the whirlpool of worldwide political chaos.

Canadians know him "as the man who has ruined Canada's image in amateur hockey."

Ahearne answers:

"Everything I do, or have done, is for the benefit of world h o c k e y, but never would I commit any act that would in any way endanger or harm the member of my family."

The "my family" phrase is an affectionate reference to the members of the IIHF.

Bunny, 68, has ruled international hockey since 1933 when he loaned office space to the struggling British Ice Hockey Association, entered the game through the back door and never relinquished his hold.

The secret of this reign can be outlined by a look at his solution to the crisis before the 1970 world tournament.

Ahearne arrived in Cransan-Sierre, Switzerland, last July to preside over a meeting of the IIHF, where the solitude of the Alpine resort bulged with the mollien lava of its members' dissent.

Russia, rulers of world amateur hockey since 1954, and her satellite countries had been instructed to oppose any rule changes that might endanger that supremacy.

C a n a d a, the once-proud ruler, was set to fight for changes that would enable the country to regain that greatness.

Canada was asking for an open championship, w h i c h would allow her best players to compete in the 1970 tournament. The Canadians threatened to abandon world competition unless this was forthcoming.

The Russians were naturally opposed and counterthreatened to withdraw from world competition if the Canadian request was granted.

Ahearne made no bones about the fact that the success of world hockey centred on competition between Russia and Canada.

Some day, when a less-strong character inherits the building pot of international hockey, even Canada will remember "the good old days."

Encounter NFL 'Spoilers'

Vikings Cruising for 12th Straight Win

By SHEILA MORAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Minnesota Vikings put their 11-game winning streak on the line Sunday in a skirmish with the national football League's spoilers, San Francisco '49ers.

The Vikings, 11-1, are the fifth team ever to win 11 straight in one season and they have a chance to equal the all-time record of 13 straight set by the 1934 Chicago Bears — if they can beat the 49ers and then Atlanta Falcons in the season finale. The Vikings play Los Angeles Rams for the Western Conference title Dec. 27.

The 49ers, 3-7-2, beat Baltimore Colts twice and Chicago Bears once and tied Dallas Cowboys and Washington Redskins.

Los Angeles also has a record riding on the last two games. The Rams, 11-1, play Detroit Lions, 7-4-1, and if they win they'll set a season record for victories. Los Angeles wraps up the regular season in a meeting with Baltimore.

The Lions will be ready because they're battling Baltimore and Green Bay Packers for third-place money in the Western Conference.

In other games Sunday, Cleveland, 9-2-1, is at St. Louis, 4-7-1; Green Bay, 6-6, at Chicago, 1-11; New Orleans, 4-8, at Washington, 6-4-2; Atlanta, 4-8, at Philadelphia, 4-7-1; New York, 4-8, at Pittsburgh, 1-11, and Baltimore, 7-4-1, at Dallas.

Cleveland Browns, who play Dallas for the Eastern Conference title, were tied by St. Louis in October and lost their chance to the Cardinals last year. In Dallas, the Cowboys were seeking their first victory in four games against Baltimore.

Gayle Sayers will be out to extend his NFL rushing lead in the Bears' 102nd meeting with their old rivals from Green Bay. The Packers blanked the Bears 17-0 in the season opener, but Sunday's game will feature different quarterbacks: Don Horn has taken over for Green Bay for injured Bart Starr and rookie Bobby Douglas and Virgil Carter are directing the Bears.

Vince Lombardi's Redskins need one victory to assure their best record and first season over .500 since 1955. Washington already has clinched third-place money in the Eastern Conference.

An Ardent Jogger-3 Days A Week

In all fairness to the writer of the article in Thursday evening's sports section and to the proposed Jogging Club, I should like to express my convictions as I did to the reporter concerning Sunday activities.

It has always been my strong Biblical conviction and still is, to maintain a firm stand against Sunday sports activities. The Lord's Day was set aside and designated as that the Risen Lord Jesus be honored and worshipped one day in seven. I have therefore no intention, for using it for any other purpose than this.

Having disciplined myself and my time in such a way I set aside my noon hour three times a week, as far as possible, in order to do my jogging and participate in a fitness class at the YMCA. This has proven to be a real blessing to me and as was intimated to the reporter, I thank God daily for the privilege of being as well. Recognizing that I have been given a body by the Lord I am determined to keep it for Him as well as I can, as long as I can, therefore I highly recommend jogging as a means to that end.

My calling is to present a "living Savior to dying mankind" everything else is secondary and to this call I shall be faithful. Therefore lest the article might be misinterpreted by any I hereby make this further testimony in order to clarify any position.

Second Trip for Harris

Unionville Rink Breezes to Berth

KINGSTON (CP) — Bob Harris of Unionville, Ont., clinched a berth in the Ontario Curling Association finals with an easy 10-4 fifth-round win over Paul Savage of Toronto in the Ontario challenge round Friday night.

The win for Harris was his fifth straight and left him and his rink of Murray Roberts, Graham Wallace and George Stark as the only undefeated rink in the 32-team double knockout competition.

Harris' victory gave him an automatic bye into the OCA fins beheduled for Oshawa in February. Another rink will be declared tonight when the remaining losers complete the day's play in the B section.

For Harris, it will be in his second appearance in an OCA final. His first trip was in 196 .7 Against Savage, the Unionville skip was nearly perfect in piling up a 6-0 lead after four ends before Savage finally counted two in the fifth end.

"We got a good jump and that was it," said Harris. "Paul never really got going."

Despite the loss, Savage and his rink are still in the running. They move to the B section today with a berth in the semifinal.

The other rinks left in the running for the second berth in the OCA finals are skipped by Paul Holbein of Ottawa, Ted Brown and Bill Sarvis of Unionville and Bob Wood of Toronto. All have suffered one loss in the three-day competition.

In fifth-round B section action, Holtom defeated Doug Cameron of Ottawa 9-6, Dave best Ralph Donovan of Weston 8-3, Wood downed Earl Jones of Trenton 6-4 and Howat edged Ray McGee of Unionville 8-7 in 12 ends.

In fourth-round action, Holtom defeated Harry Sheldon of Unionville 8-3, Jesse downed Bruce Munro of Toronto 9-5, Bill Davis of Kingston edged Don Gilbert of St. Thomas 10-9 in an extra end, and Ted Brown of Kingston defeated Eldon Coombes' Ottawa rink 6-3.

Mo-Hawks Down A's

Win Not Pretty, Worth Two Points

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

For Belleville's Senior A Mo-Hawks, Friday night's 5-2 win over Woodstock A's was strictly a case of making a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

Coach Davey ones assessed the win as one of the club's poorer efforts, but the resulting two points boosted the Mo-Hawks into a three-way tie for third spot in the eight-team OHA Senior A standings. And the locals, who have only lost twice in their last dozen outings, enjoy a game in hand over both Barrie and Oakville, with whom they share the third berth.

"This is the type of game I'd expect some of our younger players to come and fatten their point production, needled Jones.

That was a reasonable assumption, considering Woodstock's 1-16 record, with 92 goals - against going into last night's Memorial Arena contest.

One of the younger players who took opportunity mentioned by Jones was his linemate Wayne McConnell, who picked up a pair of goals to equal his output in his previous 16 games.

McConnell accounted for all the first-period scoring with a 30-foot bullet on a perfect feed from behind the Woodstock net from Ray Johnston after the Jones-centered line had strafed goalie Brent Pennington for a solid minute.

McConnell's second goal, one of five, scored in the second 20 minutes, came on a similar play this time with Jones providing the centering pass.

Most of the game's scoring action came in the second period, which Lorne O'Donnell got off to a rousing start by punching in a crease-edge power-play goal only 14 seconds after the opening faceoff.

Coach Jones' worst fears about his club relaxing against the league cellar-dwellers were realized when George Godson laid a perfect pass from behind his own net onto Berk Parker's stick just inside the Belleville blueline. A surprised Steve Rexe moved just as the 60-footer whizzed over his shoulder into the net.

WAYNE McCONNELL
Collects Couple

Godson had compensated for this earlier in the period when he got the game's nicest goal on a perfectly-executed two-on-one play with Al Ferguson.

Playing-coach Gerry Stirling got Woodstock's other goal just past the two-minute mark of the period when the Mo-Hawks developed clearing sickness.

Ralph Plane ended a long drought by banging in Lionel Scully's rebound for the only third period goal, and by far the most popular one of the night for the 1,200 spectators.

It marked the first goal in several games for the club's "third line" of centre Gary Dalliday, Plane and either "Shaker" Baker or Ray Summers.

More Arena Heat Than Bargained For

The heat was on more than the Woodstock A's last night as they dropped a 5-2 OHA Senior A decision to the host Belleville Mo-Hawks.

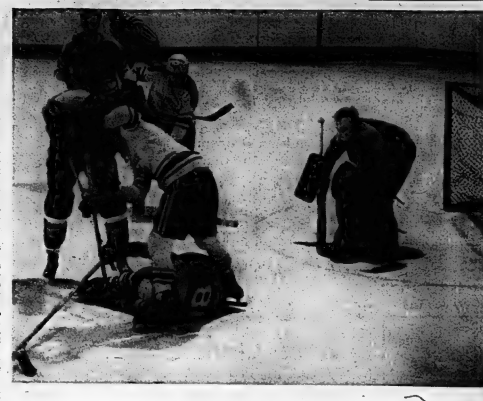
Last night's game marked the official debut of heat for spectators at the 40-year-old Memorial Arena as Mayor Russell flicked the switch to activate radiant heaters above the arena seating areas.

The heaters were effective — TOO effective.

It was already a relatively mild night for hockey and shirt-sleeved spectators and wet ice took some of the edge off the Recreation-Arena Committee's accomplishment.

But the general reaction was favorable, and hoisting forward to the luxury come those frigid January hockey nights.

* * *



They might have had a pair of contributions to the win, but Brethauer's loose second - period officiating when he was bumped from behind after breaking through the Woodstock defence.

A fistful of first-period misses helped keep the score respectable. It could just as easily have been 10-2.

Steve Rexe, who dipped his goals against average another few points to 3.22, was busy in the latter half of the game, handling 35 shots in all, while the Mo-Hawks peppered 43 at Pennington.

Al Ferguson didn't add to his 15-goal total, but added a handsome clock-trophy to his collection for being selected the Mo-Hawks' player - of - the-month for November. Canadian Tire executive representative Jack Trembley presented the O'Keefe Trophy.

Next action for the Mo-Hawks comes in a Tuesday night game in Kingston against the Aces, whom the locals have bested in the teams' three encounters to date. Next Friday second place Galt Hornets are in town.

Get Off It!

Belleville Mo-Hawk forward Wayne McConnell tries to pry the puck loose from under Woodstock A's defenceman Bob Hall while teammate Ray Johnston and three other Woodstock players, including goalie Brent Pennington look on. McConnell scored twice to lead the Mo-Hawks to a 5-2 OHA Senior A win over the A's and boost Belleville into a tie for third spot in league standings.

Danny Lupenette, a 15-year-old grade 10 student in the five year Arts and Science program is another Quinte Secondary School student playing with the locals. Danny is a bantam graduate who played with the Belleville OMHA Bantam 'AA' champions last season.

injury is reported to have healed and Dennis 'Tooty' McCormack is expected to be back in the lineup. McCormack hurt his elbow in the last Trenton game and sat out the Juniors' 10-3 win over Cobourg last Sunday.

The presence of his fellow students may be the inspiration Terry Meagher needs to surpass Colin Louden in the scoring race. The date, Louden has 29 points on 11 goals and 18 assists while Meagher has 25 points on 10 goals and 15 assists. Belleville's John McConnell ranks fourth in the race with 23 points on 9 goals and 14 assists.

Ron Jury, a main reason for the Ellis winning streak, will again start in the nets for the locals who haven't lost since he joined the club. Jury has allowed five goals in his three games, and at one point ran up a string of 114 shutout minutes.

The locals are in fourth spot in the league standings just three points behind Peterborough Don Byers and one point ahead of fifth place Cobourg Cougars. A win would move Belleville to within one point of Peterborough and three points behind second-place Oshawa Crushmen.

Any Quinte Secondary School student in the possession of a Quinte students' card will be admitted into Sunday night's game for 25 cents.

Golden Hawks Fall Short Despite Last-minute Goal

TRENTON — The Trenton played eight games without a win.

The Peterborough Don Byes defeated the Golden Hawks 6-5 in an Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey game last night at Trenton's Community Gardens.

Pulling goalie Brian Wilson for an extra attacker in the final minute of play netted the Hawks a goal, but they had been trailing 6-4.

Trenton's goal scorers were Gary Lisle, with two goals and Mike Poirier.

Third-place Peterborough's goal - getters were Dave Gibson, Gary Brewer, Phil Grady, olan Rutherford, John Patterson and Brown.

Going into the second period the score was tied 1-1 but the Byes exploded for four goals in the middle frame.

There were 28 minutes in penalties in the game with Trenton getting the gaze for 12.

The Golden Hawks next venture to Belleville for a 7:30 p.m. game against the Ellis Juniors Sunday night.

Trojans Rolling

Moira Secondary School's junior Basketball team is off to a flying start to the Bay of Quinte High School Basketball league.

Yesterday the junior Trojans recorded their fourth straight win by defeating Prince Edward Collegiate 70-45 while Moira seniors beat Prince Edward 60-44. Prince Edward did manage to salvage a 48-37 bantam win.

In other action BCI got two wins, out of Centennial, 74-47 senior and 52-40 bantam wins. Centennial juniors handed BCI a 63-38 setback.

Prices Lower for Week

Canadian Stock Markets Stage Belated Rally

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets lost ground for the second consecutive week this week but displayed some strength near the close.

Following Wall Street, Canadian markets dropped sharply Monday and then turned mixed Tuesday.

After more weakness Wednesday, markets advanced strongly Thursday and Friday.

Trading volume was light as investors continued to show their concern over the current monetary conditions in Canada and the United States by staying out of markets.

R. N. Steiner, chairman of the board of governors of the Toronto Stock Exchange, said this week government restraints on wages, prices, credit and possibly profits can be expected in 1970 unless inflationary pressures moderate.

However, he said there was a possibility that restraint policies would result in economic overkill.

He said that it was evident that the Canadian and U.S. governments are prepared to face up to an inevitable increase in unemployment as a cost of containing inflation.

But he said that the prospect is not for a recession but for a period of consolidation.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said this week at the federal-provincial conference of finance ministers that he did not think Canada will face a recession in 1970. But he said that "inflation is still a very major problem in the country."

He could not say if interest rates would be lowered next year. He said that unless there is some success in fighting inflation, "we will not be successful in reducing interest rates."

During a break at the conference, he said that "in my opinion the problem (inflation) has not been solved yet."

He was hopeful that there would be some break in the grip of inflation next year, but this would depend on the extent of the inflationary psychology in Canada and the U.S.

Statistically, on the Toronto Stock Exchange this week, industrials lost .31 to 183.63, golds 11.72 to 114.34 and base metals 1.14 to 113.38. Western oils gained .19 to 189.86.

Volume was 9,613,000 shares compared with 10,763,000 last week. Losers outnumbered gains 533 to 219 with 215 issues unchanged.

Statistics from the Montreal exchange were not available because of computer problems.

Less Inflation, More Jobless Is Prediction of Economists

TORONTO (CP) — A group of University of Toronto economists Friday predicted less inflation, higher unemployment and slower growth for Canada in 1970.

The economists predict the gross national product will increase 6.5 per cent in 1970, compared with a 9.1-per-cent increase this year.

Unemployment, which has been at a relatively high 4.8-per-cent rate for the last two years is forecast to increase to 5.9 in 1970.

The study is the result of three years of part-time work by four economists at the University of Toronto Institute for the Quantitative Analysis of Social and Economic Policy.

Trust Companies Act Changes Come Under Opposition Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — A bundle of proposed amendments to the Trust Companies Act was criticized in the Commons Friday as nothing but a revised rule for "a senseless little game played by strong men in an arena called the market place."

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) led off his party's attack on the amendments, now at the second-reading stage of debate, with the charge they will do nothing to make trust and loan companies responsive to the real needs of the country and public policy.

Rather than making more money available for housing mortages—one of the government's intentions in the bill—it could leave even less mortgage money in the market.

Debate on the measure was adjourned Monday, the House is to debate a bill to create a comptroller to oversee the finances of the Company of Young Canadians.

The trust companies bill was presented to the House by Herb Gray, minister without portfolio, as a measure to increase the flexibility of trust companies in allocating funds for housing loans.

It also incorporates reforms to increase stockholder control and requires companies to issue at annual meetings a statement of affairs to include a balance sheet and statements of retained earnings or surplus, income and general reserve.

The bill opens up the range of investments open to trust companies and includes a provision to permit investment of surplus money outside of Canada.

A further measure would permit loans of unguaranteed trust funds on the security of real estate and on insured mortgages exceeding three-quarters of the value of the real estate.

Opposition speakers of various economic persuasions found the bill lacking mainly in provisions to direct money into the housing market.

Harold Ritchie (PC—Edmonton West) called for completely new legislation which would bring all financial institutions—banks as well as loan and trust companies—under one authority.

Mr. Saltsman and Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) wondered why the government bought trust companies will choose to invest in mortgages when they have opened up to them more profitable areas. Mr. Ritchie termed the bill "an inadequate answer to the housing crisis."

Mr. Saltsman criticized the government for ignoring what is the fundamental recommendation of the Porter Royal Commission on Banking and Finance which reported in 1964. He said the government has implemented recommendations to free financial institutions from certain restraints but has failed to make them responsive to public policy.

The result, he said, has been that the government's anti-inflation policy of restraint has been observed "least of all by the financial institutions."

The government was defended by Gordon Blair (L—Grenville-Carlton) who praised the bill for increasing the control over trust companies by the superintendent of insurance.

He was answered by Conservative housing critic Lincoln Alexander (Hamilton West) who ordered the bill a "bandage measure" that would have little effect on housing shortages. The need was for action that would lower interest rates while also increasing the funds available.

The debate also provided an opening for Henri Lahaliope (Creditiste—Compton) to enter a demand that the government take over trust companies and the issuing bonds and loans and control credit.

"The Canadian people are increasingly being plunged deeper and deeper into a chasm of debt that they can't get out of."

Earlier in the day, the Commons gave first reading to a bill which would impose a comptroller on the Company of Young Canadians.

He would exercise complete authority over financial activities.

The proposal for a new office is the first response by the government to recommendations of the Commons broadcasting committee, following its investigation of the CYC, including one that it be put under trusteeship for a year.

Close Study Promised Objections to Tax Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told provincial treasurers Friday he will consider seriously their main objections to his plan of income tax changes.

"We'll change anything to that white paper if we can be convinced it should be changed," he told reporters after a long closed meeting with the provincial ministers.

Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton presented a lengthy brief criticizing many of the tax plan's basic features and the government's estimates of the revenue it will produce.

He said the federal government grossly underestimates what extra money it will collect in taxes. He asked that half the excess be turned over to the provinces.

Mr. MacNaughton also urged that capital assets be evaluated for tax purposes every 15 years, instead of every five years as Mr. Benson proposes. The Ontario minister said taxpayers should be given 10 years to pay off high tax bills based on capital gains.

Dave Steuart, Saskatchewan's provincial treasurer, apparently led the Western Canada fight against the government's proposal to withdraw special 2-3 in Quebec City. One day will be devoted to tax reform, the other to the present federal-provincial tax structure.

The Quebec meeting will be just two weeks before Prime Minister Trudeau and the provincial premiers meet here for their so-called bread-and-butter conference, discussing inflation, pollution, and taxation.

Ontario and Ottawa agreed to exchange their working papers on estimates of tax revenues from changes embodied in the white paper.

Ottawa estimates that in the fifth year, the new plan will produce $630,000,000 more than current taxes. Mr. MacNaughton said the figure should be at least $1,000,000,000 and perhaps $1,200,000,000.

Mr. Benson dismissed talk of sharing taxes under the proposed changes. The white paper doesn't deal with that matter and it will have to be discussed later—presumably, much later.

It is understood that in the closed session, all the provinces joined in denouncing the white paper plan to eliminate the special low rate of corporation taxes on profits up to $35,000, and to apply the maximum rate of about 50 per cent of all company profits.

Mr. MacNaughton and Mr. Steuart in particular saw this as crippling small business.

Premier John Robarts of Ontario said the same thing in a statement issued in Toronto Thursday. Premiers Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, Barry Strom of Alberta an W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia in their signed statement at Monday's heads-of-government talks.

Benson Sleeps In

OTTAWA (CP) — Even Finance Minister Edgar Benson is human enough to sleep in and be late for an important appointment occasionally.

For years, he says, he has not used an alarm clock and always wakes up at 7:15 a.m.

Friday, with the federal-provincial finance ministers' conference scheduled to resume at 10 a.m., Mr. Benson woke up with a start at 10:05.

He got to the conference room about 10:30 a.m. "I just slept in," he said sheepishly.

Bargaining For Air Routes On

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian team which sat down Monday at a table in the U.S. state department to start negotiations for new air routes between the two countries will come with poker faces and stacks of statistics but no illusions.

"You can take it for granted," said Gerald Moriset, the unofficial head of the team, in an interview before leaving Ottawa, "the Americans will be hard bargainers."

The Canadian position now, as in 1965-66 when the present bilateral air agreement was negotiated, is to add another factor to the talks: the convenience of the travelling public.

The principle is that air travellers should be allowed direct access to their destinations.

Any change in the situation which would permit deep penetration by Air Canada or Canadian Pacific Airlines would also mean a loss of business for a U.S. carrier and the prospect does not sit well with the aviation lobby in Washington.

Judge Named

TORONTO (CP) — Judge Colin E. Bennett of Meaford was sworn in Friday as chief judge for county and district courts of Ontario. He succeeds Chief Judge Arthur Roy Willmott who retired in October.

Hydro Must Give Notice Of Rate Boosts

TORONTO (CP) — George Kerr, minister of energy and resources management, said Friday the publicly-owned Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission will be required to give "ample notice" to the provincial government of any future proposals to increase its rates.

Mountain of Mail

Sorters at Vancouver's main post office work hard to clear a mountain of Christmas parcels. Biggest-ever volume of Christmas mail is straining handling capacity to utmost, say officials. A total of 5,400,000 pieces of mail were moved last week and the peak is expected to be reached next week. (CP Photo)

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — St. Mark's Anglican Church held their annual turkey supper and bazaar recently with a large crowd in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Burkitt, Don, Joanne, Jim and Mr. and Mrs. B. Collins and girls as well as Mrs. Charles Roberts, Campbellcroft, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burkitt attended the baptismal service held recently in Christ Church, Campbellcroft when Cynthia Charlene was baptized by Rev. B. Jacques.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Burkitt are both reportedly undergoing treatment in Belleville General Hospital after a two car accident in Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. John Solmes and Mrs. Don Gowsell visited Don Leonard who is reported to be receiving treatment in Kingston General Hospital.

Mrs. Murray Heath passed away following a car accident near Spencerwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Heath attended the recent funeral of their daughter-in-law.

OLD, OLD STORY

The first "apple polisher" in recorded history was a Sumerian schoolboy who, some 2,000 years before the Christian era began, buttered up his teacher with a hoodwinked meal. Tablets dug up in Iraq related the story of the youngster.

NORMAN ALEXANDER PARKS

Foxboro — Sidney

A retired Sidney township farmer, Norman Alexander Parks of Foxboro died Friday in Belleville General Hospital following a six weeks illness. He was in his 70th year.

Born at Millbridge he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Parks and until retirement had farmed in the 7th concession of Sidney. He was a member of Foxboro United Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Nina Moon, one son Ralph of Foxboro, and four daughters, Mrs. Clayton (Beatrice) Prest of Holloway; Mrs. Donald (Marjory) George of Norwood, Mrs. Donald (Winnifred) Nolan of Belleville and Miss Alma Parks at home.

There are 13 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home from where the funeral will be held Monday with service in the chapel at 2 p.m. conducted by Rev. Abel Parsons. Interment in Foxboro Cemetery.

MRS. AGNES CURRY

The funeral service for Mrs. Agnes Curry was held Friday afternoon from the Thompson Funeral Home where service in the chapel was conducted by Dr. Harry H. Davis. Interment was in Stockdale Cemetery.

The bearers were Everett Fairman, Christopher Stock, Kenneth Holland, Victor White, Raymond Gunsolus and Harold Mott.

MRS. ARLEY EVANS

The funeral of Mrs. Arley Evans was held Friday afternoon from the Thompson Funeral Chapel where service was conducted by Rev. Laurie Sutherland. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Donald Leslie, Harry and Cameron Ritchen, Douglas Evans, Jim Gilbert, Jr. and John Patterson.

Firefighters Repair Toys

PICTON (Staff) — Picton firefighters are "fired with enthusiasm" as they paintstackingly repair toys for donation to the Salvation Army.

Firemen have become accomplished Santa helpers since their annual program of toy collection and repair began four years ago.

About 15 volunteers now are investing their spare time in face-lifting dolls and repainting other toys.

This year the firemen reported an excellent response to their appeal for toy donations. Many of the toys brought in have been repaired and now are wearing Santa's seal of approval.

All rehabilitated Raggedy Annes and Andys are turned over to the Salvation Army by members of the Picton Fire Department, Christmas morning, these just-like-new toys fill many stockings, hung in Picton and Prince Edward County homes.

Chamber Role Said Not Clear

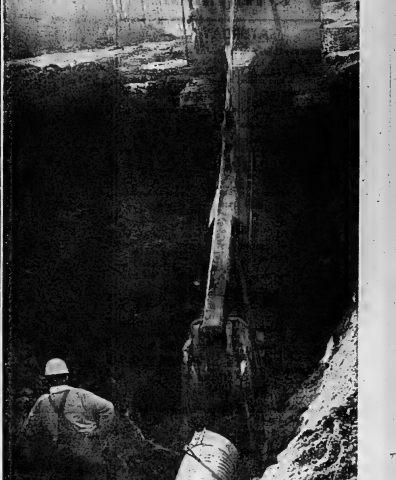
By HARRY McLEAN
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce needs sharper definition of its role in the community, one of its retiring directors said yesterday.

Future directors should work toward bringing the Chamber's objectives into sharper focus, indicated Alderman Gerald Joyce.

Ald. Joyce, Belleville Industrial Commission chairman, was among six directors ending a two-year term on the Chamber's executive group.



It was the alderman's second such stint on the group and during that time, he said, he "had yet to figure out just what we're trying to do for the community."

"I really felt that the (chamber's) terms of reference and our aims and objectives were not clear enough.

"I'd like to think that future directors may be able to be more positive in whatever areas they are working on."

Incoming directors who take office in 1970 are E. G. Colebourne, J. B. Driscoll, R. M. Haggarty, H. W. Hunter, J. J. Trafford and H. T. Turley.

Incumbent directors entering their second year in office are D. C. Finkle, J. R. Bradford, Frank Murray, Fred Denton, F. E. Hrist, J. R. Belanger and H. J. Fast.

Subway Drainage Tile Installation

Ditch to Run 1900 Feet

TRENTON (Staff) — Lightfoot Construction Ltd., of Belleville is moving along in its contract to install drainage facilities for the subway area at the Highway 33 - CN overpass at the northern outskirts of Trenton.

The work calls for installation of an underground tile and a 1300-foot-long drainage ditch leading to the Trent River.

Construction of the new railway overpass on the Frankford Road was completed some weeks ago but the subway will not be put in use until the drainage tile is installed and the roadway surfaced.

Also planned for north of the subway is some highway realignment to reduce a sharp curve and channelization for the intersection.

Until installation of drainage facilities for the subway area is completed, Highway 33 will remain closed to traffic at the subway area and the detour will remain in effect.

Fund Gets $5,000 Aid

Hastings county council has voted a $5,000 contribution toward the cost of the proposed $3,000,000 memorial to the Royal Canadian Air Force to be built at Trenton.

The money is to be paid over a three-year period with the first instalment in 1970.

A request for a county contribution toward the memorial was made in September but action was deferred to allow more information being made available.

Last Five Decades Second Renaissance

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Historians of the future may look upon the last five decades as a second Renaissance, a city educator told Hastings County Board of Education this week.

W. J. Musgrove, principal of Centennial Secondary School, outlined some of the changes in secondary school education for trustees and contrasted attitudes of today with those of the past.

"In the past," he said, "the most dominant factor was unquestioned authority. Success depended upon ability to learn all the rules and a willingness to live by all of them."

Curiosity was generally considered sinful, the principal said. But as wars were fought, monarchies overthrown, and old institutions challenged, a new questing spirit took over in the 20th century.

"Young people are seeking a change, as their elders did, from an authoritarian form of democracy to a participating democracy," Mr. Musgrove asserted. "They accept authority, but wish to participate in rule making."

The schools are still teaching skills and knowledge, but they have added the teaching of procedures for acquiring further skills and knowledge through independent study.

W. R. MacKay, principal of RCI, commented on the new program in secondary schools, designed to allow each student to develop to his maximum potential.

Now, 27 credits are required for a secondary school graduation diploma. Students choose credits from four areas of study — communication, social sciences, pure and applied sciences and arts.

The new program allows more choice, is more student centred, he said.

"The secondary graduation diploma will mean less in the future than it did in the past," Mr. MacKay added. "Institutions of higher learning and employers will have to rely more on the word of the school concerning a student's ability than they did in the past."

Already, the two principals agreed, some universities are basing admissions on the school's opinion of a student's chance of success, rather than on marks.

Ethiopian Guards Victorious

Hijackers Slain in Gun Battle in Air

ADDIS ABABA (Reuters) — An Ethiopian airlines jetliner arrived here today with the bodies of two would-be hijackers aboard.

The hijackers, believed to be members of an Ethiopian separatist movement, were slain in a wild gun battle by security guards while the plane cruised high above the Mediterranean on a flight from Madrid to Athens.

The plane stopped briefly in Athens and the 15 passengers remained there.

The American pilot, identified only as Capt. Lem Tew, flew the Boeing 707 back to Addis Ababa with his six crew and three security guards.

The captain, crew and security guards went to the airport lounge here immediately after the plane landed. They began writing out reports of the midnight incident.

The two slain hijackers were said to be carrying Senegalese and Yemeni passports, Athens authorities said.

But Ethiopian sources said they were both Ethiopians.

Propaganda leaflets for the Moslem separatist Eritrean Liberation Front—a commando group which opposes the Coptic Christian government of Ethiopia—were reported found in the possession of the two dead men.

When the plane landed in Athens, passengers were taken in a hotel while authorities went on board to investigate.

But the Athens public prosecutor ruled that the incident took place in Spanish air space and the plane was allowed to continue its journey to the Ethiopian capital with the two bodies still on board.

Two almost simultaneous gunfights broke out about 30 minutes after the Boeing took off from Madrid's Barajas Airport on the leg of its regular scheduled flight to Addis Ababa.

It started when a man in the first class compartment stood up, pulled out a gun, and headed for the cockpit.

Shots rang out as a terrified stewardess screaming "Oh my God, oh My God" ran into the rear compartment where the second hijacker was sitting. He was shot down as he tried to head forward.

The two men were identified only as a 19-year-old Yemeni student and a 24-year-old businessman from Senegal.

Jacoby, 48, said he was sitting in the first-class compartment opposite one of the security men.

"I noticed him because before takeoff he was sort of checking me and generally passengers aboard the Boeing," Jacoby said.

"Thirty minutes or so after takeoff I saw the stewardess come to him running. She spoke to him nervously. He then jumped and began to scuffle with a man sitting in the first row of the first class.

"The man in the front row was holding a gun. The security man was able to grab his wrist and point the gun towards the individual who held the gun and shot him with it," Jacoby said.

"Then I saw the stewardess run to the rear compartment, hands to her head shouting 'Oh, my God, oh My God,' he said.

Then a second man, in his shirtsleeves actually, who heard the shot, came running from the rear compartment and shot six additional shots. The man was by then finished."

While the scuffle was going on in the forward compartment, the other hijacker evidently heard the shots and got up from his seat in the tourist compartment and tried to head forward.

Calcutt said a second security man in the tourist compartment immediately tackled this hijacker.

"The security men drew his gun and fired straight to the hijacker," he said. "A lot of shots were fired. It was amazing that no one got hit.

"Then the security man from the first class compartment, who was in his shirtsleeves, came running back and he, too, started shooting," he said.

"The whole incident was over in a few minutes."

Several hours after the plane landed, Athens coroner Dimitrios Kapsaslis went aboard to examine the bodies. He ruled that they were both killed while the plane was still in Spanish air space.

On the basis of this report, Athens chief public prosecutor Constantine Christopoulos said the incident did not concern Greece as it involved foreign subjects against foreigners inside the air space of a foreign country.

Following consultations with the Ethiopian embassy in Athens and airline officials, the Greek authorities granted permission to the airliner to take off for Addis Ababa with the two bodies.

The Boeing left immediately it was cleared and Greek police said they have closed their inquiries.

Ethiopian airlines have been carrying diplomatic guards following a spate of hijacking and attacks on aircraft by members of the Eritrean Liberation Front, an Ethiopian separatist movement.

You'd Better Be Good

Kelly Akey, a little elf at the opening of Santa's Village last night, got a double dose of good advice on pre-Christmas behavior from both Santa and Mayor J. Russell Scott. The mayor brought civic greetings to Santa, but refused to reveal what he requested from the jolly old man for Belleville during the coming year.

Santa Arrives in City For Stay at His Village

Despite early rumors that he might bypass Belleville this year, Santa Claus arrived in town last night to stay until Christmas.

He moved into his village, especially created for him by Stewart Meeks, on property at LaSalle Ambulance, on his parking lot on Dundas St. East.

Mayor J. Russell Scott was on hand to bring a civic welcome to the seasonal visitor, and hordes of youngsters and their parents stopped in to add their best wishes.

Santa will be on hand to welcome visitors every day except Sunday from 7 to 9 p.m. until Dec. 24. On Saturday he will be open from 2 to 4 in the afternoon as well.

Santa's village was organized and built by Mr. Meeks after cancellation of the annual Santa Claus parade. He was assisted by other public spirited citizens and businessmen who shared his concern that local children would be disappointed in the loss of a Christmas tradition.

Santa came anyway, after Dan Foster organized the parade to escort him through town. And thanks to Mr. Meeks' efforts he was able to return on a more permanent basis for an extended visit.

The jolly old man brought his pack with him, to present a sample of Christmas goodies to every young visitor who whispers his gift list in Santa's ear.

The Village includes a mail box where letters may be posted to Santa. And visitors can play Santa themselves, if they wish to drop a donation into the mail box.

The money donated will be used to pay for the toys on display at the Village. If sufficient money is collected to cover the cost, the toys will be given to the children's wing at Belleville General Hospital.

Canadian Farmers May Obtain Wider Selection of Machinery

LONDON (CP) — Canadian farmers who have been buying tractors in Britain instead of via distributors in Canada may end up with a wider choice of agricultural equipment following a visit here by a group from Ontario.

The group, consisting of 69 representatives from Ontario's agricultural community, has spent much of its time since arriving in London this week inspecting a wide range of farm implements at the Royal Smithfield Show.

The show, held at Earls Court arena, was a major attraction for A. Roy Coulter of Burlington, president of the Ontario Farm Machinery Agency, who was impressed by the possibilities it indicated of new lines for purchase.

The agency's practice of buying tractors and other equipment through on-the-spot purchasers in Britain has stirred some criticisms here.

One unofficial report said British government officials are looking into allegations that the practice damages the manufacturers' export trade.

The main criticism is that the buying technique undermines the sales and service system established in Canada by manufacturers in Britain.

Ontario farmers say British tractors bought in Canada can cost $2,000 more than the same machines bought at list price in Britain.

Apologists for this situation say the manufacturers must "cost in" the expense of establishing distribution networks in Canada together with facilities and service.

The Ontario Farm Machinery Agency, a subsidiary of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, was established after experimental ventures into on the spot buying in Britain showed how much money could be saved for the province's farmers by this technique.

To the criticism that machines bought in this way do not carry a manufacturer's warranty, Coulter said in an interview Friday that this made little difference for farmers.

Despite statements to the contrary, they also could obtain service for the tractors so bought, he said.

Critics in Britain say the method, although perfectly legal, is a form of "bootlegging" — a contention denied by Coulter.

"We buy on the legitimate market," he said.

His group is helped in the purchasing operation by Agricultural Central Trading Ltd., a British firm controlled by a development company of the National Farmers Union.

Coulter's company has bought 250 tractors here in the last year, with its British contacts dealers in the United Kingdom and in turn selling them to their Canadian customers.

Coulter said that firms distributing their British-made machines through Canadian sales outlets include David Brown Corp.

Dean Swift, secretary of the Agricultural Engineers Association in Britain, is quoted as saying recently that some tractor purchasers selling to farmers in North America "are riding on the backs of firms like David Brown who have done all the work in establishing markets and service."

To such criticism, Coulter says his company's buying technique can only help the British companies since it encourages additional export sales through the offer of lower prices.

Any possible threat by manufacturers here to withhold their products from the purchasing representatives of the Ontario farmers could be met with the rejoinder that other countries besides Britain might serve as equipment sources for the Canadians.

Coulter said more farmers across Canada are becoming interested in the Ontario buying practice.

He and his companions on an eight-day visit "came to see other lines of English equipment we could branch out into," he said.

Victoria Detective Must Pay $1000 for Invading Privacy

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Victoria private detective, the first person sued under British Columbia's Privacy Act, was ordered Friday to pay $1,000 damages to a man he investigated in 1968.

Mr. Justice P. D. Seaton of B.C. Supreme Court found that private investigator John W. McArthur had wilfully violated the privacy of John George Davis, a Victoria school janitor.

The act says privacy may be violated by eavesdropping or surveillance. It is the nature and degree of privacy to which a person is entitled in the circumstances of the case.

In this case, a matrimonial investigation, Mr. Justice Seaton said the purpose of McArthur's investigation was lawful. But an investigator's licence "does not make lawful that which would otherwise be unlawful."

His judgment was handed down here after a hearing in Victoria, at which Mr. Davis testified he was driven "nearly crazy" by the tailing around Victoria between May and December last year.

When the act was passed, Robert Bonner, then attorney-general, said it applied to police as well as citizens. How far they could go in violating privacy would depend on the gravity of the case.

The act makes invasion of privacy a civil wrong, not a criminal offence. Thus the penalty is damage award, decided by the court.

The judge said that when McArthur started his investigation in May, 1968, Mr. Davis was already under investigation by others and McArthur knew this.

"He knew," said the judge, "or he ought to have known that the plaintiff's (Mr. Davis') privacy was being so thoroughly invaded as to cause a reasonable man to be worried, apprehensive and emotionally upset.

"When the conduct in private investigator reaches this point, I have no hesitation in saying that he is violating the privacy of the person he is investigating."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Many Healthy Folk Worry About Heart

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I suffer from heart skips and irregularities. When I read your column about these symptoms, I noticed that you said many people with healthy hearts worry unnecessarily.

My doctor has told me I have a healthy heart, yet I have these heart palpitations that upset me. My question is how can I not worry when by bending down too quickly or jumping up I get these horrible skips that make you think the end has come?

I am afraid to do anything that involves jumping of any kind. No more tennis or other fun I used to have. I don't want to spoil my friends' activities when my heart decides to "go funny." Is my doctor overlooking something?—Miss D.

Comment: Too many people with healthy hearts worry unnecessarily because of symptoms like yours. They give up sports, some give up their business because they think they are going to die shortly.

Mind you, I do not blame them for being concerned, when the heart begins doing flip-flops. It's difficult to believe that it is a normal heart (like a youngster suddenly doing hand-springs.)

Nevertheless, if you hope to live a normal life, there will come the time when you will have to believe your doctor implicitly. If he has looked you over carefully, taken X rays and electrocardiograms, and finds that the skips (premature contractions) don't mean anything — that the heart is normal, you will have to believe him, or suffer the consequence.

And what is it? Living in unnatural fear for the rest of your life. Better be grateful your doctor has told you your heart is healthy.

* * *

For Mrs. L.: Let your husband take the sleeping pills his doctor has prescribed. They are not "dope." You must remember that convalescence after a coronary attack is long and trying. Men are preoccupied and anxious, as they lie there in bed sleepless. They need all the physical rest and peace of mind they can get.

* * *

For Mr. H.: Congratulations on kicking the cigarette habit. You have a lot of company. One estimate is that over 21 million Americans have quit smoking, among them, about 100,000 physicians. But there's still a long way to go, when we consider that approximately 60,000 Americans will die of lung cancer this year. Not counting heart and artery complications. But why get maudlin at this time, when you and I should be celebrating your will power and good intentions.

* * *

For Mrs. J.: It is true that heart disease and arthritic conditions are the two most common disabling diseases. The patient says, "You can't do much for a bad heart or arthritis so why spend time and money?" Often, we can help a lot.

* * *

For Mrs. L.: I agree that the ideal time to prevent obesity in the adult is in childhood. Increasingly, statistics seem to show that most overweight children remain overweight as adults. Cut down on your child's food intake — but don't overdo it. I believe he should be allowed the occasional pleasures of ice cream and other goodies. He should not grow up believing he is being punished because he is fat.

For December 14

Your birthday today: New methods and the challenge of mastering them fill your vocational life in the year ahead. Other people begin to your needs and attitudes: Most social enjoyment and advantage is in connection with marriage and what you do about it. The trend toward a peaceful home life is strong.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You can lead yourself astray today with very little encouragement from acquaintances you may mistake for friends. Leave business deals out of your life this Sunday.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Detailed plans are sidetracked rather easy if they deal with the handling of money. Avoid speculation and complicated discussions with people you do not know well.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Intellectual activities predominate this Sunday. Very active mental exercise tire you more than is desirable. Find time for study, correspondence, meditation and prayer.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your rapport with people lessens a bit. Commune with yourself and review your direction and way of life. Social activities lack something you need first to find within yourself.

LEO (July 23—Aug. 22): Listen and hear with the pressure and confusion. Serious decisions should be delayed for another, more auspicious time when you are familiar with all the information.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Don't be surprised at the erratic doings of anybody this Sunday, and be prepared to act out of their way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your feelings run ahead of your mind. Material gains and questions related to them would not be resolved if you spent time studying them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Avoid extremes in exertion or opinion. People turn out to be surprisingly complex. Many of them switch sides or reveal traits beyond your expectations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your attitude is now more extroverted and offers more attraction to others. Talk over family matters and agree on a general plan of action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Strive to keep both physical stress and business discussions out of your life today. Focus your attention on your self-potential.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you can conquer a stubborn streak of resistance or make it palatable to the people who must cope with you, this Sunday is emotionally satisfactory.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You can lead your group this Sunday, and show you should. Expect differences to arise later in the day, and adjust your emphasis accordingly. Take some solitary time for meditation, prayer.

For December 15

Your birthday today: Your own way of viewing life changes in a few short weeks. With different values, your vocation and other areas of your life pattern must change. You speak up more than ever before or even encounter situations where you must defend your position and actions. Some relationships wither and are replaced with more impersonal contacts. The tide of change shifts to much more personal achievement in about three months. Today's natives are noted for bravery and individual charity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Helpful friends are numerous. Financial situations are not a problem; your rashness may be. Let your intuition guide you to the right thing to say, not pause to think of the results of your doings.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Vocational contacts and friends demand perfection, yet themselves fail to offer full co-operation, information. Depend on your own resources.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You have quite a lot of energy, and a tendency to scatter it over too broad a range of activities. Pick out a few important matters; do them one at a time.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your abundant unconscious reserves open to support you in the stress of today's contingencies. Cutting answers are to be avoided if you care for the quietlover. Driving is hazardous; start early, select your route thoughtfully.

LEO (July 23—Aug. 22): Today's challenges are stimulating. People you differ with unwittingly present you opportunity to see life in fresh perspective. Work schedules are interrupted or upset altogether.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Remember that people unfamiliar with your set activity may be unable to follow your quick references to it. A cautious approach to spending pays off. Add something to your savings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): People expect you to carry more than your regular load, while others have no answers for your questions or requisitions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Speculation today comes to a quick crisis. If you are rash enough to start, be alert to sudden turns very soon.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The day after tomorrow is soon enough to start your seasonal shopping. Get your workweek started first. Travel to find a needed special consultant or source of technical support.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Postpone business changes for further thought and planning. Patience with everybody concerned is essential.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Abrupt expressions may end a long period of inner conflict and indecision. Be sure you present your convictions truthfully. Friendly advice doesn't fit your circumstances now.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The harder you push, the less willing anybody is to go along with you. Give everybody a chance for his special exception from the program.

Parents May Be Pushing Young Into Drug Abuse, Expert Says

OTTAWA (CP) — Parents may be pushing the young into drug abuse, the Le Dain drug inquiry has been told.

But until research is undertaken it remains an important and unanswered question about the use of drugs.

"I would like to know what the parents do," said Dr. Robert Popham, research director of the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation.

For example, he said, does the young birbiturate user's mother consume large amounts of the same drug obtained legally on prescription?

The importance of the "parental model" and the distribution of drug use in society are the important questions to be answered about the drug scene.

Dr. Popham, replying to commission chairman Gerald Le Dain, dean of law at the University of Toronto, held out little hope that the first can be answered before the commission's work end in 1971.

He urged that the effort be made now to establish whether the proportion of heavy drug users increases as the total number of users increase. That is the pattern with alcohol and scattered evidence indicates that is so for other drugs too.

A resurvey of Toronto and London school children will be made to establish more clearly the tentative conclusion that the incidence of heavy use of drugs is correlated with the extent of total use by the group.

At the same time, studies must be given a very high priority to determine the physical and behavioural characteristics of different drugs at different dose levels.

The foundation's brief said that so little now is known that any major changes in the law must be based on assessment of public opinion and political exigencies. They could not be defended on scientific grounds.

In afternoon and night hearings Friday, the committee heard from young people who acknowledged using drugs, mainly marijuana and amphetamines.

At Carleton University Friday night, the commission was presented with a petition with 564 signatures out of a student body of about 6,000 urging that marijuana and its derivative hashish banned as narcotics.

The petition suggested government-operated control councils to sell the drugs to anyone age 18 and over.

Following its usual style of dialogue with the audience, the commission heard from one student who reported a "fantastic" increase in marijuana smoking and drug trafficking in the university residence.

"As a matter of fact we've had to clamp down on public smoking. We're not worried a bit about underage drinking. We are worried about a (narcotics) bust," he told the commission.

"Our security problems in a residence of 1,200 come from people who drink, not from people who smoke marijuana."

Another youth who said he was still in high school said "there shouldn't be any law against" cigarettes, barbiturates, tranquillizers and amphetamines which is also known as speed.

Much less was known about marijuana and various hallucinogens and their effects on the body. More important were deficiencies in knowledge of the prevalence of use, and social and anthropological aspects.

Experience with alcohol suggested that legalization of any drug "is likely to increase the extent of its use and of heavy use."

"Yet accurate predictions of the size of such increase are virtually impossible."

The brief said "proposals for major changes in legislation would have to rest heavily on an assessment of current public attitudes and political exigencies."

"Such action could not be defended on the grounds of scientific evidence."

Don't Make 'Pot' Legal But Don't Charge Users

OTTAWA (CP) — A prosecutions pause in cases of young marijuana offenders could be justified, officers of the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation said Friday.

But legalizing the drug, now banned as a narcotic, would bring with it an inexhaustible set of circumstances which could not on the basis of present knowledge be weighed or foreseen.

The views were given at the special request of Gerald Le Dain, University of Toronto dean of law, who heads a federal inquiry commission into drug abuse, which is meeting here.

Mr. Le Dain said that in six months of public hearings the strongest impression gained so far by the five-member commission is the deep concern about enforcing the law with respect to marijuana and thus giving many youngsters criminal records which seriously affected them in later life.

H. David Archibald, one of three addiction foundation witnesses, replied that the commission, now preparing an interim report for Health Minister John Munro, should assign "considerable importance" to this question.

He could see no great social benefit from "criminalization" of young marijuana experimenters. This should be a major factor in the commission's examination of the marijuana problem.

Dr. Harold Kalant of the foundation said that in cautioning against any major legislative change the foundation had also implied total removal" of criminal charges against the young, pending some final solution to the problem, could be defended.

Mr. Archibald said one possibility would be for the commission "to request a moratorium" on marijuana proceedings pending study in the next year or so of the short-term effects of the drug on individuals.

Dr. Robert Popham, foundation research director, said that it would take a lot longer than a year to assess the long-term effects of use of marijuana.

But he referred the commission to studies which had been done in Morocco, where cannabis or marijuana or cannabis once was legal and sold under government monopoly and later placed under a ban.

The foundation's brief stressed the lack of information on most drugs, except for alcohol where it was "fairly extensive" and for opiates, barbiturates, tranquillizers and amphetamines which is also known as speed.

Much less was known about marijuana and various hallucinogens and their effects on the body. More important were deficiencies in knowledge of the prevalence of use, and social and anthropological aspects.

Experience with alcohol suggested that legalization of any drug "is likely to increase the extent of its use and of heavy use."

"Yet accurate predictions of the size of such increase are virtually impossible."

The brief said "proposals for major changes in legislation would have to rest heavily on an assessment of current public attitudes and political exigencies."

"Such action could not be defended on the grounds of scientific evidence."

'Democracy Dead'

Saskatchewan Unionist Bitter at Order to Work

REGINA (CP) — A union representative said democracy is dead in Saskatchewan, but 180 employees at Victoria Union Hospital in Prince Albert voted Friday night to end their 26-day strike and obey a government return-to-work order.

The first shift of 50 non-professional workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, had returned to work at 7.30 a.m. Friday.

The Saskatchewan cabinet had invoked the Essential Services Act Thursday after a request by Herb Basset, hospital administrator.

Doug Lavallie, president of the Prince Albert CUPE local, said 75 per cent of the workers had voted "reluctantly" to end their strike which began Nov. 16.

He said the Essential Services Act "is a slave labor bill."

"If there is any democracy in the province, it's been wiped out with this bill," he said.

Failure to comply with the act, passed at a special session of the legislature in 1966, could mean fines for each person of $1,000 a day and possible decertification of the union.

Still on strike, but not affected by the government order, are 97 employees of St. Joseph's Hospital in Estevan. That strike began Oct. 23.

Workers have voted for strike action without setting a strike date at Humboldt, North Battleford, Yorkton and Weyburn. Negotiations are continuing at Canora, Holy Family Hospital in Prince Albert, Kamsack and Melville and at two sanatoriums in Qu'Appelle and Saskatoon.

Hundreds Held After 14 Italian Bomb Deaths

ROME (AP) — Fear spread through Italy today after explosions in Rome and Milan killed 14 persons and injured more than 100.

Police arrested hundreds of persons for questioning after the four bombings Friday. Leftists and rightists blamed each other and police said those arrested came from both groups.

President Giuseppe Saragat, Premier Mariano Rumor and Pope Paul deplored the explosions. While police questioned suspects, the government met in emergency session.

Rumor said on television that nothing would be left "undone to seek out and strike down the perpetrators."

Already edgy because of disturbances that have broken out during a wave of strikes this fall, residents of Milan and Rome said they felt even more insecure.

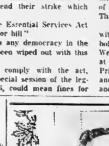
Police in the two cities posted guards at the main political public monuments, railway stations, political party offices, and newspaper buildings. Airports and museums also were under guard.

After the blast in a Milan bank which killed 14 and injured more than 90, theatres and movie houses closed, streets were almost empty and people kept to their homes.

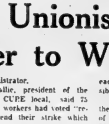
The explosion in the National Bank of Agriculture knocked down several walls and sent glass flying. Witnesses said they saw a man throws into the air. Nine persons were killed out right and seven of those injured each lost a leg, doctors said.

In another Milan bank, police found a car they said contained about 13 pounds of explosives. It apparently failed to go off.

Less than an hour after the Milan explosion, a blast rocked Rome's National Bank of Labor and injured 16 persons. Rome is 300 miles south of Milan, Italy's second-largest city.



There were also two explosions at the Victor Emmanuel Monument in the heart of the city. Flying chips of marble in jured several persons.



The effect on normal life in Rome wasn't as great as in Milan but an increased concern about security was evident. Several newspapers and shops pulled down their iron shutters and at the newspaper offices guards checked all who entered.

It was the second time in five months that a wave of explosions has disturbed Italians. In August, 12 persons were injured when bombs exploded on several trains.

The Italian Communist party newspaper Unita blamed "Fascists agents of the colonels of Athens," a reference to an alleged plot by Italian right wingers and the Greek military government to topple the Italian government.

Rome's independent daily, Il Messaggero pointed the finger at leftist groups and at the Communist party, which it said gives them "either open or disguised support."

Montreal Parade Ban Expires

MONTREAL (CP) — A month-long total ban on parades and demonstrations in Montreal expired at midnight Friday night.

However, a city bylaw remains in effect and permits city authorities to forbid any parade or demonstration if they believe there is a possibility of violence.

There is no time limit on this controversial bylaw, adopted by city council Nov. 12, although Lucien Saulnier, executive committee chairman, yielded to complaints of some aldermen by giving an assurance that council would be asked to review it no later than six months after its adoption.

After the bylaw was passed, city council immediately adopted a regulation that forbade all parades and demonstrations for a period of 30 days.

The annual Santa Claus parade and the Grey Cup parade, scheduled for later in November, were not affected because their permits had already been issued.

The Grey Cup parade proceeded on schedule and without trouble Nov. 29, the day before the national pro football championship.

The Santa Claus parade was cancelled, however, by its sponsors, the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., in a manner that left the public confused. The company said the police had advised the cancellation, the police said this was not so.

There have been three demonstrations protesting the bylaw since its enactment, and numerous persons have landed in court as a result.

Russia Says She Has Solved Problems of Arctic Voyages

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Soviet Union says its scientists have conquered the problems of travel by ship in the North.

An article in the latest issue of Soviet Life says that Russian computer forecasts based on information from years of study have become so accurate that river ships now can sail through grim Arctic seas," knowing in advance where to expect gaps in the ice-filled seas.

"The northern sea route is now one of the Soviet Union's most important water arteries," it states. "Millions of tons of freight needed in the eastern areas of the country are transported along it."

After extensive study of such conditions as weather and ice drift, the article says, the correlation of these elements now can be expressed in mathematical terms, with electronic computers predicting future conditions.

By comparison, Canada and the United States who share the North American Arctic, are lagging far behind as the recent voyage of the tanker Manhattan through the Northwest Passage indicated.

While the article lists the U.S. and Russia as the only two countries involved in extensive Arctic research, it is evident the Russians are especially far ahead in development of surface navigation techniques.

The U.S., with relatively ice-free waters around its Alaskan Arctic ports, has stressed exploration of the Arctic Ocean floor by submarine although ice drift and weather problems have also been studied.

Canada's particular problem has been getting supplies to far northern outposts by ships.

Strike May Halt Yule Air Travel

Traffic Guides Vote to Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Air Traffic Control Association voted overwhelmingly at the weekend in favor of a strike that could shut down Canada's major airports over Christmas.

John David Lyon, president of the association, said Sunday night that 1,909 votes were cast by members of the 22 branches across the country, representing a 96.5 per cent vote for strike action.

The 11-member national council had recommended the membership vote to reject a conciliation report. The vote to reject the report constitutes a strike vote. Mr. Lyon said the membership were asked to vote either to accept the report or to reject it and authorize the executive to call a strike.

No time or date has been fixed for the strike which can be called legally any time after noon on Friday, Dec. 19, one week after receipt of the report.

The union represents about 1,650 air traffic controllers and a strike would effectively halt all major air traffic.

William Bill, executive vice-president of the union, said Saturday there are "eight or ten issues unsettled by the conciliation report."

The report itself will not be made public until 11 a.m. EST today.

Mr. Hill said earlier that a Christmas air strike is as unappealing to controllers as it would be to the public, although he did not rule out the possibility.

Controllers had been seeking a two-year contract and a 16 to 20 per cent pay increase, but this position was presumed to have been modified in final negotiations.

The union also wants work hours reduced from 168 a month to 130 and a study of the stress involved in their work.

A trainee controller starts at $4,200 and the top salary for a working controller is $12,884.

Rocket Talks Seem Sure

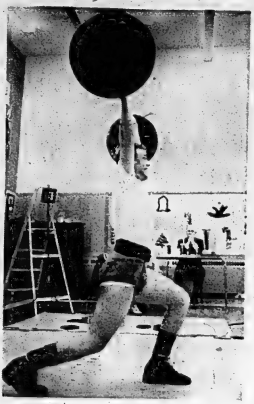
HELSINKI (Reuters) — The Soviet-American strategic arms limitation talks enter their fifth week today amid clear indications that agreement has been reached to begin full-scale negotiations early next year.



Within the next few day , possibly today or Tuesday, the super-powers representatives in the Finnish capital are expected to issue a communique announcing the success of their preliminary exchange and perhaps naming a site and starting date for the new meeting.

It is believed that the two chief delegates, Gerard C. Smith of the U.S. and Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Semenov of Russia, have little left to discuss but the contents of the communique, which would be the first official word put out by either side since the talks began in mid-November.

The talks began Nov. 17, about three years after Russia and the U.S. began tentative contacts on the issue.

Those early contacts were aimed at a Washington-Moscow agreement on the specific subject of halting development of anti-missile systems.

But the Russian view was that offensive missiles were a more suitable question for discussion. As contacts developed, the original concepts of both sides broadened until they embraced an agreement to include rockets of all types in the talks.

Huge Dutch Ship Sinks After Fire

ROTTERDAM (AP) — The 207,000-ton Dutch supertanker Marpessa became the biggest ship ever sunk when she went down early today off the West African coast.

The Marpessa, owned by Royal Dutch Shell, was ripped by an explosion and fire last Friday. The crew put out the blaze, but water poured into the engine room and the tanker began to sink stern first. Ocean tugs tried to save her, but the ship sank 50 miles northwest of Dakar.

Two seamen were injured in the explosion and two were reported missing. The survivors were taken aboard the British tanker Serenia Saturday. It was not known what caused the explosion.

The ship sank while en route to the Persian Gulf after delivering her first cargo of crude oil in Rotterdam. The Marpessa was built in Japan and delivered to Shell on Sept. 30. Because her cargo tanks were empty, the sinking did not raise a pollution problem.

First Cut In Force Complete

SAIGON (Reuters) — The first American troop withdrawal of 60,000 men from South Vietnam was completed today, hours before President Nixon was expected to announce more troop cuts in the war zone.

The latest U.S. command figures on troop strength in South Vietnam show 472,500 American servicemen in the country, the lowest number since November, 1967.

The U.S. troop withdrawals started July 8 and the deadline for completion of the second phase—which started Sept. 21 — was today.

Nixon goes on television tonight and it is almost certain he will announce more U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam.

The White House said he would speak for about five minutes beginning at 6 p.m. EST, but it refused to be drawn on details of what the president might disclose.

Consumer Index Up As Food Costs More

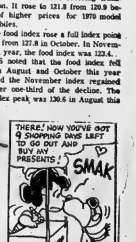
OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose to 127.4 last month from 126.8 in October, mainly because of higher food prices, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The index, based on 1961 consumer prices equalling 100, was 121.9 in November last year.

Six of the seven components of the index rose during the month. The only one to decline was the tobacco and alcohol index, down one tenth of an index point to 126.3.

Next to food prices, the largest gain was made in the index covering transportation. It rose to 121.8 from 120.9 because of higher prices for 1970 model automobiles.

The food index rose a full index point to 128.8 from 127.8 in October. In November last year, the food index was 123.4.



DBS noted that the food index fell between August and October this year and said the November index regained just over one-third of the decline. The food index peak was 130.6 in August this year.

CYC Council Riddled by Dissent

OTTAWA (CP) — Riddled by dissent and resignations, the governing council of the Company of Young Canadians barely managed to totter through a weekend meeting.

By Sunday three of its members announced their intention to ask State Secretary Gerard Pelletier today to abolish the council and establish a new one to make administrative decisions.

The weekend meeting added fuel to executive-director Claude Vidal's argument that the present council setup—10 volunteers elected and five appointed by the government—cannot work.

Those who said they will seek the council's abolition today include two government appointees to the council—Shawn Sullivan of Vancouver and Lloyd Axworthy—and Jack Johnston of Calgary, an elected member.

Mr. Johnston and volunteers Roy Daniel of Yellowknife, N.W.T., and Mickey Poulsen also announced their resignations from the council.

Failure of council to make any decisions endangered the life of many projects throughout the country, including Sydney, N.S., Montreal, Toronto, the Lakehead and Vancouver, CYC officials said.

Mr. Daniels walked out Friday because of "racial" bickering that wasted too much time, he said.

Mr. Poulsen left when elected members ignored his advice and reinstated a $44,000 project among Toronto youth. He said the two volunteers on the job were doing "no useful work" among alienated youths there, refused to talk to CYC staff about their work and were running up high telephone bills.

Area Yule Travelers May Be Grounded

By ROY PEACOCK
(Staff Reporter)

Belleville area residents with flight reservations for the Christmas holiday are keeping their fingers crossed, hoping the threatened strike of air traffic controllers does not materialize.

"We haven't had one cancellation," Mrs. Irene Rolut of Rolut's Travel Agency said this morning.

"We've had lots of enquiries, but people are taking it quite well — about the only thing they can do is hope and pray that the strike doesn't take place."

"People are leaving it as it stands," she said, suggesting that if the strike does materialize, many people with flight reservations will be staying home for Christmas.

The same was true at Davison and Davison where also there have been a number of enquiries but no cancellations.

"People are hanging in there," was the comment.

Davison and Davison emphasized that the strike has been approved, but has not been called and said it may very well be that the strike will not be staged.

Neither travel agency could see much percentage in people with air reservations cancelling their tickets in favor of train transportation.

Space would be at a premium on trains, they said.

And for people travelling long distances time would be an important factor, necessitating either an earlier start or a shorter delay.

Christmas flights to sunny Florida have been "booked solid" for weeks, travel agencies said.

Chief Earl Hill, Opponent Charles Maracle

City Doctor Sweeps Indian Reserve Election

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter

A Belleville physician Saturday night headed the polls to become a leading figure on the Tyendinaga Mohawk reserve council.

Dr. Clare Brant won office at a significant time in his people's history — and Saturday's election showed they are aware of it.

The voting results ensure the federal government will continue to hear some blunt talking from the Bay of Quinte Mohawks in the next two years.

Dr. Brant was returned as party slate headed by Chief Earl Hill — a man who has emerged as an outspoken critic of government Indian policy.

Chief Hill was returned to a second two-year term, defeating opponent Charles (Bud) Maracle 173-119 votes.

The physician polled even more votes than the chief — 194.

Both men later left no doubt they shared more than an election triumph. Their opinions are broadly similar.

...Current issues involving Canada's Indians and the federal government, are not an "Indian problem, but a white problem," said the chief after his election.

Dr. Brant, 28-year-old graduate of Queen's University and a medical practitioner in the Belleville area for the past two years, also supports the critical view that the federal government is attempting to abolish the reserves.

Mohawk unity was a theme stressed by both men — and other candidates.

The election was fought under a two-party system, a local Mohawk tradition.

Chief Hill headed the Mohawk People's Party, opposed by Mr. Maracle and the Progressive Mohawk Party.

The People's Party returned three of the four members who form the council along with Chief Hill.

Although he was not specific on issues, the chief indicated Saturday's election was being watched in Ottawa.

"The-burden of this council will be great, due to the fact that we have proposals made by the department (of Indian Affairs) which need answers," said Chief Hill.

He added: "It has been mentioned by some of the top officials of the federal government that they would wish for a decision from a new council. I feel this council is qualified to answer such questions."

"We feel there is not an Indian problem — but a white problem."

One of the immediate issues to receive attention will be an addition to the reserve's Quinte Mohawk school.

The addition is needed to centralize facilities to the reserve's 165 public school students in grades one to six, said the chief.

Quinte Mohawk School has three classrooms while room has been made in the basement for two other classes, said the chief.

The reserve also has three other small "outdated" schools he said.

An addition to the main reserve centre is "long overdue" to remedy the overcrowding, added Chief Hill.

Dr. Brant believes public opinion does not support federal government proposals on Indian affairs. And public opinion is the Indian's only resource, he says.

"the government has the House of Commons in which it can legislate anything," he says. "the only weapon we have is deal with them is popular opinion."

Members of parliament "too often" are not aware of government policy because they are not informed by the Indians affairs departm ents, he said.

The department lays down policy and "seems to be a world unto itself," said Dr. Brant.

The election drew 311 of the reserve's 600 eligible voters to the polls.

Other winning candidates and their vote were: Carl D. Brant, 187; Willard Hill, 151, Garnet Maracle, 140. Defeated candidates were Bennett Brant, 124; Clell Maracle, 119; Victor Brant, 99; Gerald Maracle, 96.

The election coincided with a similar vote at the Mohawk's Six Nation reserve in Brantford.

Richard Isaac was re-elected to a third term, defeating Keith Martin 315 to 202.

Picton Police Told to Curb Rowdy Activities of Youths

PICTON — The survey of Picton's police force, conducted this fall by an inspector from the Ontario Police Commission and released in full yesterday, contains five recommendations not previously made public.

Town council heard three recommendations at its November meeting — those calling for hiring of a meter maid and an extra constable and use of radio coverage for police officers on patrol.

The other five recommendations in the report, received confidentially by Police Chief George Pitt in October and released by the police commission here Friday afternoon, call f

Co...rated effort to eliminate complaints regarding behavior of some youths on the streets, especially on Friday and Saturday evenings;

The chief of police to include in proposed budgets a justification report showing reasons for increases or decreased in the budget (this formerly was done verbally);

Radar to be utilized more often on streets when residents register complaints;

Promotion from one grade to the next for constables to be based on evaluation of work habits and written examinations;

A steady level of enforcement to be pursued with emphasis placed on need and selective traffic enforcement.

comment on Police Chief Pitt.

The survey report included "Chief Pitt, during the past two or three years, unfortunately experienced some health problems, but apparently now has improved." The report read. "In the past years he has rendered a service to the municipality which was satisfactory at that time. Police services and operations have changed drastically in the last few years and it is incumbent on the chief to change with progress."

Break-in

TRENTON (Staff) — Provincial Police from the Brighton detachment are investigating a weekend breakin in the village of Codrington, 10 miles north of here

Police suspect the theft of a radio, a pocket knife and a walnut cabinet containing a silverware set was the work of amateurs.

Residents of the house, the Lloyd Parker family, were in Toronto for the weekend and the break-in was discovered by their daughter-in-law.

Office Break-in

Two Belleville youths have been charged with breaking and entering following a weekend theft in the law offices of Maraskas and Hurley.

Charged are Craig Martin, 17, of Bridge Street, and Michael Letourneau, 17, of Haig Road.

According to police, Constable Tom Stone was on foot patrol at the corner of Victoria Avenue and Front Street when he noticed something amiss.

After calling for assistance, he and other officers entered the building through a door, the frame of which was split. It had been forced open.

Police found the office of Louis Maraskas ransacked. A hole was knocked in a wall on the third floor.

Two youth were arrested on a floor over the Steven Licence Building.

Board Vetoes Sidney Township Subdivision Plan

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board has rejected plans for a proposed subdivision in Sidney Township on the east side of Aikten Road.

The plan, submitted by Stanley Brown, would have create...l 103 urban-type lots with 66 foot frontages and 125 foot depth. The land is now laid out for 15 2½ acre lots.

Assistant planner Frank Siokmans told the board the subdivision is premature because of lack of city services in the area.

"The subdivision is an urban type of development in a basically rural area," he said.

"Development in the township is now on a random bases and it is dangerous to let this go on. Sooner or later the township council will be faced with servicing these scattered settlements on a very uneconomic basis."

He suggested the township should concentrate urban development in one area to make servicing practical.

Although Reeve Jack Bush of Sidney said the 2½-acre lots now in the new property were "waste of land" he agreed 103 urban were too many.

On his recommendation, the board refused to approve the application.

Students Assist Exchange

Singing their hearts out at rehearsal, Moira students prepare for their music and drama night this Wednesday. All proceeds from the evening of entertainment will go to the Christmas Exchange to assist needy Belleville families.

Moira Students to Sing, Act for Needy

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

When Moira Secondary students see a need, they do something about it.

That something includes donating all the proceeds of a first-time effort — a music and drama night this Wednesday — to meet the needs of the more than 450 underprivileged families in Belleville.

Organizers termed it an "expansion" of the usual Christmas program.

Mrs. Diane Coyne, whose theatre arts group plays an active role in the program remarked, "The kids put it together themselves, which gives the whole production an original touch."

Originally the money from the evening was to go for school band uniforms, but students and teachers felt the Christmas Exchange had a more urgent need expressed in its recent request for $4,400 to assist needy families.

"We are hoping to attract a good number for our show — because we would like to raise as much money as we possibly can," said one of the students.

More than 150 young people are involved in the evening program which combines the talents of folk singers, intermediate and senior bands as well as choirs.

Students are putting not only heart, but plenty of enthusiasm into the production. They hope it will bring in enough money to give the Exchange a big boost financially.

"The students are somehow managing to keep an even balance between homework and rehearsals," added Mrs. Coyne.

Asked to comment on the students' plan, Mrs. Jane Haslett, director of the Christmas Exchange, called their efforts part of a "wholehearted support to our pleas for help".

She emphasized that young people have been among the first to call in to help, and the "most responsive".

"We, at the Exchange, are certainly hoping that everyone supports what they are trying to do, because in supporting their efforts, the citizens of Belleville are assisting us to meet the needs of the many families who would otherwise have no Christmas at all," said Mrs. Haslett.

The music and drama program starts at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. Prices for tickets run from $1 for adults, 75 cents for students and 50 cents for children.

Time Out for Santa

Santa Claus took time out Sunday afternoon for a spin around the floor with Mrs. Lillian Ashley of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, in attendance at the Shriners' Christmas party for crippled children. Both have been faithful participants for many years in the annual event.

Christmas Party Time

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Countown to Christmas began this weekend as city organizations marked the Yuletide season with traditional parties and services.

For one newly formed group, the Christmas observance was a first — a party of internation scope with 40 guests from around the world.

They are members of Quinte International Club at the YMCA, who banded together last spring. Saturday night they shared Christmas observances in their homelands with each other. Present were people from Germany, New eZaland, the Philippines, Egypt, Formosa, Hong Kong, Barbados and England.

They joined in a traditional Canadian festive activity — carol singing — watched an Indian dance, and enjoyed fellowship and holiday refreshments.

The Shriners annual Christmas party for crippled children was held at the Shrine Club Sunday afternoon. Youngsters from the district, including Picton, Tweed, Deseronto and Foxboro were transported by Shriners to enjoy a musical program and meet Santa Claus.

St. John Ambulance personnel were on hand to assist, and the musicians' union contributed the services of Doug Annelaide's Dixie Band.

Victoria Ave. Baptist Church was the scene of the annual Christmas program of the Belleville Choral Society under the direction of Murray Irwin.

Contract Talks Resume

PICTON (Staff) — Negotiation between employees of Lake Ontario Cement Co. Ltd. and company representatives are continuing following conciliation talks last Friday.

Plant manager Bruce Price said today that the company has made an offer, but declined further comment.

He said from the company's point of view, the company's relationship with the union, demands that the negotiation talks be confidential.

The workers voted last week 159-1 to reject a company offer. They also voted in favor of a strike if negotiations failed.

Local union president Larry Conroy was not available for comment today.

The plant employs 160 workers.

East Meets West

The contrast of modern mini skirts and graceful saris added to the festive feeling at the Christmas party of Quinte International Club. Sharing in the gift exchange were Rose Pasilabban, John Zikodoulos, Dr. Pritam Singh, Edna Evangelista, Dr. Balu Hegdekar and Mrs. Hegdekar.

Valuble Discussion

It was not a time for decisions — but if nothing else, last week's further discussion on urban renewal and the proposed north end shopping plaza has clarified the thinking of council and the views of its professional advisers.

The statements of consultant Allen Brass and Malcolm Martini of Procter and Redfern, planning consultants, went far toward clearing up misunderstandings and misconceptions that have been haunting the two matters.

At one point Mr. Brass admitted that in the past there was "some misconception over our role, due to lack of contact." The moral? Not only is there a need for regular communication between a council and its consultants but also for full discussion of all the implications of future planning.

Both urban renewal and the plaza project have been discussed extensively, but the earlier decision-making process was clouded by the divisive nature of the proceedings. In short, it has been a political football shunting back and forth between council, its consultants, the Ontario Municipal Board and a local citizen's committee.

The position now, following Wednesday's discussion is that the urban renewal study likely will be completed to the conceptual stage recommended by provincial and federal authories. At the same time the city probably will get a shopping plaza. Mr. Brass, who suggested at an OMB hearing some time ago that the plaza project was "premature," now says there is a potential for it.

A number of other points have emerged from this latest chapter in the city's controversial planning future. One is that the consultant firm's economic survey will be amended in the light of new information since the original report was prepared. Retail floor space will feature prominently in this, Mr. Martini noting that there is, or soon will be, a demand for a department store.

This was coupled with a warning that the city should be careful about incurring debt that does not produce revenue. Members of council also were confronted with the startling advice from Mr. Brass that few urban renewal plans are carried to the point of implementation. He cited not only deficit as to cost-sharing arrangements available, but also the unpopularity of urban renewal proposals because of the disturbance and displacement involved.

"Cyclical fluctuations in economic growth constituted another cautionary note in Mr. Brass' testimony. "Belleville is thriving now," he said. "But this may not be sustained. In the past, the city has never sustained thriving growth over a number of years. Over the long run the average growth will be what we have projected."

In short, the report terms Belleville a "moderate growth area". Certainly that is reflected in current industrial and commercial development. The city has need of more and there is little doubt it will be forthcoming. We have nowhere to go but forward and council is all the better armed for future planning from this latest discussion.

Conflict Of Views

The wisest comment on the continuing hassle over the Ontario government's proposed Landlord-Tenant Act comes from Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

He has said neither side should make the "bald assumption" that rents will rise because of the bill, until the legislation has been tried and the results analysed.

Landlords contend for example that the provision for abolishing security deposits will lead to compensating rent increases.

But rent increases may be expected in any event. The question is how much is enough without reaching exorbitant levels?

Landlord and tenant legislation has long been in need of an overhaul. Now that the province has taken this step through the new act, it should be given a chance to work.

Fitness Counts

A man can have no greater boon than good health and many are finding and maintaining such fitness through the sport of jogging.

But gentle exercise that it is for most a little goes a long way initially. The extent to which it is indulged depends on one's general health and the advice of one's doctor.

It can increase the strength and capacity of the heart, yes — but it can also overtax this vital organ. So watch it joggers, particularly those who hitherto have been accustomed to little or no exercise.

Feeling of Well-being A Distortion and Therefore Harmful

Drugs, 'Pot' Included, Can Cause Lasting Brain Damage

From The Globe and Mail

The following is a draft of a preliminary brief to the commission of inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs. The report was written by DR. KEITH YONGE, president of the Canadian Psychiatric Association and head of the department of psychiatry at the University of Alberta. It is a personal statement written by him and sent to selected members of the association.

All the psychotrophic drugs at present being used non - medically on a wide scale in Canada, particularly by youth, are definitely harmful — marijuana certainly included. They are all detrimental to health (health as defined by the World Health Organization as "a state of complete physical, mental and social well-being").

On this we can be firm and definite in the face of opinions of others to the contrary who argue that there is no reliable evidence that these drugs cause damage to the brain structure.

While it is true that there is yet no direct evidence that damage to the cellular structure of the brain is caused by these drugs, there is some evidence that they may include lasting changes in the chemical processes of the brain cells. But what is of much more significance and on which there is much more certain knowledge is that the use of these drugs does indeed induce lasting changes in personality functioning, changes which are pathological in so much as they impair the "mental and social well-being."

This impairment of mental and social well-being should be clearly identified. Otherwise it might be wrongly concluded that psychotrophic drugs, by inducing a pleasant subjective feeling of well-being, were enhancing rather than impairing mental functioning. Yet it is well known in the psychiatrist that some forms of mental illness, not necessarily those related to drug intoxication, are characterized by subjective feelings of well-being, complacency, euphoria, magnanimity and absense of jubilation and omniscience. The pathology of such states lies in the inappropriateness or falseness of these feelings and by their association with other aspects of personality disintegration and deterioration of behavior.

Although some of the mental changes induced by the psychotrophic drugs may be subjectively pleasant in these ways, they should be recognized as being distortions of normal mentation, particularly of the perceptual and cognitive (thinking) processes. The harmful effects are of the same order as the pathology of serious mental illness (psychosis), namely in distorting the perceptual and thinking processes and in diverting awareness from reality, impairing the individual's capacity to deal with the realities of life.

Hence, the frequent association of psychotrophic drug use with the development of anti - social attitudes — non-participation, "dropping out", "opting out" of society, the "hang loose" attitude, and a generally idle and parasitic attitude to society. (That is not to say that the psychotrophic drugs cause these attitudes.)

The evidence that some of these psychotrophic drugs — marijuana, for example — are less harmful than others should not detract from the conclusion that all; including marijuana, are seriously harmful by virtue of their specific action of distorting perceptual and cognitive processes of the brain. The argument that marijuana is no more harmful than alcohol is specious. Although alcohol does constitute a serious health hazard in our society because of its readiness to intoxication, its action on the mental processes cannot be simply equated with that of marijuana. The primary action of alcohol is that of a relaxant. Impairment of mental functioning occurs when intoxicating quantities are taken. Marijuana, as with all the psychotrophic drugs, on the other hand, acts solely as an intoxicant, its effects being primarily the distortion of perception and reasoning.

St. Jean-Baptiste Societies Back Separatism

The Globe and Mail

It is . . . no shock that the Federation of St. Jean-Baptiste Societies should finally have decided to remove its mask and display its separatist face to the world; but it is certainly no cause for comfort either.

What it does is to underline the fact that the racial and social and economic unease in Quebec is not a simple thing, is not something with clear and defined causes for which clear and defined remedies exist. Until this decision, most of the known separatists came from young, educated and urban groups. The St. Jean-Baptiste people represent a different section of society altogether. They are chiefly middle-aged or elderly, many are small businessmen or professionals, many come from Quebec's rural areas and smaller centres. Essentially they are conservative in their viewpoints.

They thus give a much broader base to the separatist cause, one which dispenses to some extent with the age, education and rural-urban gaps.

It would be foolish to write these people off as simply extremists, but equally foolish to think that they can be won from thoughts of separation by pragmatic arguments about the desperate state into which separation would plunge Quebec. The economy is already in deep trouble, taxes are high, unemployment is high, wages of many groups are terribly low in relation to those in Ontario. A spirit of violence is abroad in the province, and the reaction against violence — toward a degree of authoritarianism — is also apparent.

Claude Ryan of Le Devoir, discussing the recent Montreal decision to take arbitrary measures to control demonstrations, expressed this important thought: "We cannot deny that certain subversive elements are active here and that we must act firmly to curb subversion. But nothing will make us believe that one can and must explain by the sole action of subversive elements, the profound discontent at the political and social levels."

Profound discontent. Compounded of many different things. Economic problems. The language conflict — with its high emotional content. Violence and the fear of violence, with the Quebec tendency to seek authoritarian solutions. Above great, almost insuperable difficulties of financing the leap from a near-feudal way of life into the technological society of today. A lack of faith in the Quebec Government which has proceeded from disaster to disaster, which has at times seemed scarcely to govern at all.

This partial disintegration in Quebec places Canada in great danger, perhaps the greatest yet. It is a time for very cool and realistic assessment, and for strong leadership. There is the most serious lack. Within Quebec there is not at present any strong leadership, and in that vacuum divisive elements could find power far beyond their numbers.

Mineworkers' W. A. Boyle Back But Union Under Pressure

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The intense bitterness of the election campaign that returned W. A. Boyle as president of the United Mine Workers has cast a long shadow across his realm.

According to union-compiled figures, he has easily withstood the well-organized and articulate assault of opponent Joseph Yablonski, even though the Boyle victory was the narrowest in the union in 43 years.

But with every indication that the Yablonski machine will remain intact to heckle from the sidelines and with the United States government making threatening gestures, the long-term future for Boyle and the union establishment is uncertain.

Yablonski has called the balloting in 23 states and four Canadian provinces "the most dishonest election in the history of the American labor movement."

His declaration that he will "see Boyle in court" suggests that it may be months and perhaps years before litigation ends. And there is always, of course, the possibility the election outcome might be invalidated.

The complete summary of Wednesday's voting compiled by Boyle partisans showed Boyle with 75,680 votes to 43,307 for Yablonski, a veteran member of the union's international executive board.

Yablonski claimed that his unofficial tally gave him 50,000 votes.

The thrust of Yablonski's campaign was that the union hierarchy has been living in style in Washington and on a too-friendly basis with politicians and management. In general, he charges, it concentrates too much of its effort on combatting opposition from within and not enough in promoting the causes of miners against their outside opponents.

More specifically, he charged that Boyle's apparent election victory was due to "tremendous" expenditure of millions of dollars" of union funds for his campaign and illegal use of 500 regular union employees as campaign aides.

Boyle has refused even to comment; but after the election a spokesman called such remarks "falsehoods by a poor loser."

Although Boyle's election to the $50,000-a-year post seems almost a landslide, it is not at all an overwhelming mandate by comparison with earlier UMW votes.

John L. Lewis in his 40 years as president met only token opposition and never was faced by it. Boyle himself triumphed over a lesser-known opponent by 95,000 to 19,000 votes in 1964.

But in this election, in the words of the Wall Street Journal, "a potentially troublesome voting pattern emerged". Boyle did well in districts with heavy concentrations of retired miners, but lost or won narrowly in the so-called working districts.

It is in these areas, where restive and even militant miners have demonstrated dissatisfaction with the present administration, that the Boyle administration will have to look for co-operation in the future.

Additionally, the Yablonski campaign apparatus auracted a lot of idealistic support and is likely, in the view of many observers, to keep up the pressure of criticism.

The most telling test of the durability of Yablonski's strength comes next year when he must seek re-election to the executive board. He is one of only three members of the 25-man board not appointed by Boyle.

The success of the leadership's "Dump Yablonski" campaign may hinge on how much dirt is dug up in the wake of an Internal Revenue Service audit indicating gross abuse in the use of dues-payers' money. Similar charges by UMW members on the handling of pension funds are awaiting trial.

Street Closing Sparks Furor Among Residents

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
(Staff Reporter)

TRENTON — Northend Trenton residents have been annoyed and inconvenienced since July 2, 1962, by the closing of Highway 33 — but now they are furious.

Cause of their anger is last week's closing of Davis Street, the connecting link between the closed portion of Highway 33 and the temporary thoroughfare — Wooler Road. It was closed to allow elevation work on the CNR tracks.

Among the problems cited by area residents are:

- Many Davis Street residents (approximately eight families) must now travel about a mile further (round-trip) to get their mail because town council endorsed the blocking off of Davis Street at the CNR tracks just west of Front Street. The residents' alternative is to climb the page wire fence which stands a few feet east of the CNR tracks. The situation exists because Davis Street residents have been forced to travel to a drop box — at the corner of Davis and Front Streets — to pick up their mail ever since the Town of Trenton annexed Davis Street west of the CN tracks from Murray Township two years ago.
- Businesses in the area will be losers in two ways: (1) many present customers may choose to do business elsewhere rather than travel the increased distance to their usual places of business; (2) the closing of Davis Street further diminishes the accessibility of the area (north end of Front Street, Davis Street and Trenton Street) and the subsequent reduction in traffic will harm the area's four major businesses — a fully licensed motel, a licensed hotel, a variety store and a combination car wash and gas bar.
- Residents are under the impression that a connecting link is planned to replace Davis Street, but no apparent attempt was made to complete that stage before closing Davis Street. However the assistant town engineer Arie Hoornweg said this morning that the closure is permanent and no connecting link is planned.

One resident angered over the situation is Mrs. Essie Conley of 149 Davis Street. Mrs. Conley used to walk to the east end of Davis Street every morning to get her mail and often she trekked a block further to Bradshaw's Variety Store for a loaf of bread or a quart of milk.

If Davis Street cannot be reopened, Mrs. Conley at least wants a pedestrian walkway established on Davis Street. This would allow her to get her mail and go to Bradshaw's the closest store which suits her particular needs — without a long, unnecessary walk.

Disenchantment was also displayed by Mrs. Conley's son, Harry, who lives with her. The truck driver strongly intimated that Davis Street residents were gained little benefit from being annexed by Trenton, and in fact, were better off previously as residents of Murray Township.

Equally critical of the closing of Davis Street was Doug Bradshaw, the proprietor of a Variety Store on Front Street, a block south of Davis Street.

"The detour of Highway 33 (caused by the construction of a new CNR overpass) has been playing hell with the business and this makes it unbeckuva lot worse," Mr. Bradshaw asserted. "Now Barrie Heights and the area to the north and west of Davis Street is cut off — they're not going to come all the way around here!"

"Apparently we're a forgotten community up here," he added. "Not one candidate in the Dec. 1 election dropped in to see me — so I assume they have little interest in us."

Mr. Bradshaw echoed the need for a pedestrian walkway or right-of-way on Davis Street, noting he had already lost the tourist and Christmas trade and did not want to lose the local customers — the bulk of his business.

Colbourne Hess, proprietor of the Queensway Hotel located on Davis Street just east of Front Street, was also disturbed by last Tuesday's closing of Davis Street to through traffic.

"I don't know how people come in here at all — it's like having the front door closed and making the people come in the back way!" Mr. Hess explained.

"Business has been bad since Highway 33 was closed July 2 — roughly speaking I'd say that I've been losing $50 to $75 per day — but it could become terrible in winter," he prophesied.

"The council and mayor of this town look after the downtown section and couldn't care less about us — for example the street cleaner and sweeper haven't been up here in the 11 years I've run this hotel!" Mr. Hess charged.

"I guess the majority thrives when we lose business," Mr. Hess added, noting: "Things will be wonderful for us when the construction is completed but in the meantime we're being overly abused."

He then said that he preferred that Highway 33 be opened this winter at all costs — even if the surface was only gravel and not pavement.

Mr. Hess went so far as to say: "The best means of transportation to my business is helicopter, Ski-Doo or dog sled!"

That statement portrays the problem facing Cecil Plachta, the owner and manager of the carwash and gas bar just across the street from the Queensway Hotel.

"I'm unhappy," Mr. Plachta said, "the closing of Highway 33 has killed the gas pumps and cut deeply into my carwash business (he estimates a 40 percent drop in car wash volume)."

When asked about the effect of the street closing on his business, Mr. Plachta shrugged philosophically: "Once a serious slow has been rendered, another jab doesn't hurt much."

"Two summers (1969 and 1970) will be shot before this thing is through and you just can't afford that when you're starting out," he added, noting that he had been in business only two years and had not yet built up a reserve fund for a rainy day.

"I'm hoping for completion by July 1, 1970, but I doubt that the project will be completed by that date," Mr. Plachta predicted.

Mr. Plachta, although dissatisfied with the situation, felt that it was "sort of out of the town's hands" because the road contract was let by the Ontario Department of Highways and the overpass contract by the Canadian National Railways.

However, both Mr. Plachta and Mr. Hess could not understand why their business tax wasn't reduced — not even by a penny — despite the vast reduction in business.

In addition, Mr. Plachta wondered why the sewer on the north side of the new CNR overpass had not been started yet, but then he wasn't surprised by the way things are going, he said.

Ameliasburg Honors Reeve

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Reporter

AMELIASBURG — Community leaders Saturday night honored the 12 years of service of Reeve George Cunningham. The reeve has decided to drop out of municipal politics this year.

Reeve and Mrs. Cunningham were guests of honor at a banquet in the municipal building. The reeve's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Cunningham of R. R. 1 Wellington, were seated at the head table with dignitaries.

Earlier this year Reeve Cunningham expressed intention to devote more time to his federal political activities. By a unanimous vote he was chosen last week to represent the riding of Prince Edward Hastings as a Liberal candidate in the next federal election. The riding at the present time is represented at Ottawa by Conservative George Hees.

There had still been a possibility Reeve Cunningham would continue his municipal role but it was dashed at the nomination meeting in November for township election. After his name was proposed as a candidate he formally announced his decision to retire was definite.

MPP Norris Whitney in his after dinner remarks, noted the departing reeve's service would be missed.

Prince Edward Warden George Foster said Ameliasburg residents could be proud of the calibre of representatives they sent to county council and in particular Reeve Cunningham's contributions would be missed.

Township Reeve - elect Russell Thompson presented the gift from council and various township boards. Reeve Cunningham also received a plaque in recognition of his service.

Paper Board Chairman Wins Second Term

TRENTON (Staff) — A Trenton resident will serve a second term as chairman of the paper board section of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association.

H. J. Campbell, president and general manager of Miller Bros Co. Ltd. of Glen Miller, was re-elected this week at the association's monthly meeting in Montreal.

In his chairman's report for the year 1969, Mr. Campbell advised the association that the year had been a good one for Canadian Containerboard and Boxboard Mills.

He gave a statistical breakdown which showed the average Canadian used 700 pounds of paperboard products during the past year while Canadian Mills have shipped in excess of 1,662,000 tons during 1969.

Anticipating the future, Mr. Campbell said the outlook for 1970 was generally good for containboards, but the boxboard mills have experienced some slacking-off during the last half of 1969.

Mr. Campbell started his career in the paperboard industry in 1946 and has been associated with Miller Bros. since that time. He was appointed executive vice - president in 1960, then president and general manager in 1963.

ANAF News

A good number of members turned out for the general meeting and nomination of the officers for 1970. After a short meeting, President R. Burns invited Dominion President, J. C. Lundberg, to chair the nomination of officers. The big surprise was the number of acclamations, ten in all out of one dozen.

The following comrades and their positions were: President, R. G. Burns, 1st Vice, J. Browning, 2nd Vice, W. J. Ford, Treasurer, J. "Mac" McArthur, House Chairman, A. Tuck, Beverage Chairman, L. Shore, Entertainment, J. Fitzgerald, Sports, C. Ackerman, Publicity, A. S. Hobbs and Membership, A. W. Jordan.

The two positions being contested are Secretary, P. B. Kelly and R. Workman, and Sick Chairman, M. Aquafreddo and D. Galpin. The meeting closed with President Dick thanking Cde. Lundberg and the general body thanking and congratulating the 1969 executive for a job well done. A social evening was enjoyed after the meeting with the successful candidates being congratulated by their supporters. An advance poll will be held from noon, Thursday, Jan. 6th until noon Thursday, Jan. 8th, 1970 with the election at 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 8th.

A cheerful bit of news to all war disability pensioners has been announced by the Veterans Affairs Minister Dube, that the War Service Disability Pensions would not be subject to Income Tax as had been recommended in the Carter Report. This is certainly as it should be for it was granted for services rendered in the defence of Canada and most thoroughly earned the hard way.

The entertainment chairman has been handing out some nice packages including turkeys, baskets of groceries and jorums. Winners of the jorums were Ted Breadman, Shannonville and Jack Clark, Belleville. The Friday evening socials are relaxing, enjoyable and, with a modicum of luck, profitable. So make up a party, try your luck and enjoy an entertaining evening.

Members in the Belleville hospital are J. Wilson, 708, J. Fisher, 615 and C. Lloyd, 629. In Kingston hospital is R. Mondeville while B. Feather and J. McNaught are at home. The Rev. Stanley Gentle, Unit Padre, is slowly recuperating at his home, also Cde. Mike has visited and looked after them all.

The sports chairman wishes to announce that the Saturday men's darts doubles have again started by popular request, and will be continued for the rest of the winter. Two contests were played; winners, H. Boyle and George Christopher. Runners-up, S. Storms and P. I. Cornell. Second, H. Ford and I. Wagar. Runners-up, D. Austin and G. Ackerman. In the mixed darts doubles, the crowd was a bit smaller than usual but what they lacked in numbers they made up in enthusiasm and fun. Winners, Jean Gannon and Ted Newman. Runners-up, Ruth and George Woodhouse. The next mixed doubles will be on Saturday, Jan. 10, 1970.

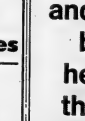
The president and executive take this opportunity of wishing all the members and their families a very jolly Christmas and continued good health and happiness in the coming year.

Plainfield Home for Retarded Featured in Benefit Movie



Quinte area residents will be given the opportunity of learning more about the problem of retardation through a benefit movie presentation to be shown at the Belle Theatre Tuesday night.

"A Home of Their Own" is a movie made in 1958 dealing with the organization of the OHMRI and the laying of the foundation for the present home at Plainfield. It will be followed by the feature presentation, "Charly" — Academy Award picture starring Cliff Robertson.

The net proceeds of the showing will go toward help for the mentally retarded.

However, Lorraine Velleman Plainfield home, says the main purpose of the benefit showing is educational, rather than finducial. Cost of a ticket for the showing is $1.50.

Santa Visits Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Santa Claus arrived in Picton Saturday morning to receive Christmas lists in the Armory Mall.

Before greeting his public Santa teamed his reindeer through town, escorted by colorful floats, bands, marching corps, a horse color guard, and several clowns.

This year's parade chairman, Ronald Scott, said Saturday that he was pleased with the large turnout of paraders. If the parade was a few moments late, it was because of the heavy entry of floats which gathered at Picton fairgrounds, he explained.

Even the weather co-operated with this Christmas parade. The sun came out just as the first marchers turned on to Main Street.

Drug Abuse in Small Towns Worsening, Inquiry Told

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal drug abuse inquiry commission after taking a preliminary look at the city drug-taking scene, Saturday got a glimpse of the small town problem.

They were told of a five-fold rise in drug-taking by the young in the small Ottawa valley town of Renfrew and a similar rise in nearby communities.

"And it's getting worse," testified Robin Burgess, a 20-year-old self-described marijuana smoker who with the help of collegiate teacher Robert Amaron and friends is trying to help young people off chemical drugs.

Both appeared before the inquiry headed by Gerald LeDain, dean of Osgoode Hall Law School in Toronto, to describe drug taking in a town of 9,200 and the public response to the problem.

Mr. Amaron organized a public meeting on the drug problem which was attended by about 150 persons, including those who acknowledge taking drugs.

Mr. Amaron testified that after a discussion of the problem the meeting agreed unanimously on a five-point submission to the commission.

One recommendation was that marijuana should not be regarded in the same way as "hard narcotics. Its use should be discouraged by heavy fines, "much in th esame way as drinking under age is now."

Possession now can bring up to seven years in prison.

Mr. Burgess, questioned extensively by commission members about small-town drug taking, said that he was "busted" —arrested—with a group of friends for drug-taking. The others got off, he said, because they were using "speed," an amphetamine drug not classed as a narcotic and not illegal to possess, and he was "smoking" —using marijuana.

Mr. Burgess said that in Renfrew about 30 young people were using drugs at the start of last summer. Now there were "250, 300 or 400 and it's getting worse."

Use in surrounding communities is "expanding like mad," tensively by commission members about small-town drug taking, said that he was "busted" —arrested—with a group of friends for drug-taking. The others got off, he said, because they were using "speed," an amphetamine drug not classed as a narcotic and not illegal to possess, and he was "smoking" —using marijuana.

'Significantly Worse' Drug Use in Metro Schools: Chairman

OTTAWA (CP) — A "significantly worse" picture of current drug use in Toronto schools is expected by school board officials who said Saturday results of a new survey on drug-taking will be published in the spring.

The survey is a follow-up to a January, 1968, study which showed among other things that one student in 10 took tranquillizers at least once in the preceding six months, 8.7 per cent marijuana, 5.7 per cent glue and other solvents, 3.3 per cent barbiturates, 2.8 per cent LSD and two per cent other hallucinogens.

Forty-six per cent reported using alcohol and 37.6 per cent cigarettes.

"I would guess conditions are significantly worse" Alex C. Thompson, chairman of Metro Toronto's school board, testified before the drug abuse inquiry commission.

Charles Prince, the board's director of physical education, said the survey also shows a recent shift from marijuana to "speed," an amphetamine drug rated by many far more dangerous. Possession of amphetamines is not yet subject to the criminal law, which has penalties attached to possession of marijuana and narcotics.

Dead Boy, 11, Wearing Snoopy Sweatshirt New York's Youngest Heroin Victim

NEW YORK (Reuters) — The man from the medical examiner's office said the boy, wearing a Snoopy sweatshirt and sneakers, looked like almost any other 11-year-old.

Only this 11-year-old lay dead Sunday in the common bathroom of a Harlem tenement, the victim of an overdose of heroin.

He was, Dr. Michael Baden said, the youngest person known to have died from heroin in New York City.

All the trappings known to a veteran heroin addict—"the works," as they are referred to by the city's thousands of "junkies"—were at his side.

"He was a mainliner and the evidence indicates that he had been taking heroin for some time—maybe as long as two years," Baden said.

The boy, who lived in a nearby tenement, had locked himself in the bathroom which is used by about five families, a not uncommon situation in the Harlem ghetto. A tenant who forced the door open found the boy's body.

Baden said he had been dead anywhere from 12 to 18 hours.

Friends of the dead boy gathered outside the tenement when they heard about his death.

"It was amazing to see their reaction," Baden said. "They were completely unperturbed. They were surprised only by the fact that he had been 'shooting it up' in that particular building, the boy, about 10, asked me, 'Was the works (heroin implements) still in his arm?'"

Baden said it appeared that some of the youngsters themselves were addicts.

The boy's death, Baden said, illustrated the shocking rise in the number of heroin deaths among teen-agers in New York City.

So far this year, he said, more than 200 teen-agers have died from overdoses of heroin, 50 of them 16 and under. By comparison, he said, in 1966, the figure was 33. And the number of teen heroin deaths this year is more than three times that of last year.

The parents of the boy found dead were notified of his death. They said he had turned 11 only two weeks ago.

Baden said the boy had been expelled from school two years ago, apparently because he was a "troublesome child."

Thousands Attend Burial Of Italian Bomb Victims

MILAN, Italy (Reuters) — Work stopped and flags flew at half staff today as an estimated 100,000 persons gathered here in light rain for the funeral of the 14 victims of a bomb attack on a Milan bank Friday.

Police, on the alert for other incidents of violence, were stationed along the funeral route to the Piazza de Duomo, and at Milan Cathedral.

The victims' coffins, covered with wreaths, lined the centre isle during the service conducted by Giovanni Cardinal Colombo, Archbishop of Milan.

Department stores and factories were closed to allow workers to attend the services, at which Premier Mariano Rumor, Interior Minister Franco Restivo and veteran Socialist leader Petro Nenni also were present.

All political parties, from the extreme right to the extreme left, as well as the student organization Democratic Studenten co, were represented at the funeral.

The families of the victims wept openly as they heard Cardinal Colombo express horror at the bomb attacks, which he described as "the work of Cain."

QUOTES SCRIPTURE

He then quoted an eyewitness to the attack who had said: "This cannot be, Do something at once to change this world."

Unions called a general four-hour stoppage in Milan to allow workers to attend the funeral. Public transport was ordered to halt for half an hour as a mark of mourning.

Right-wing and left-wing organizations have each accused the other of causing Friday's series of bomb explosions in Milan and Rome—culmination of three months of strikes, demonstrations, riots and social unrest. Police in Rome and Milan are reported to have arrested 150 leftists and rightists for questioning.

In Milan, a blast at the bank in the city centre killed 14 persons and injured 90 others while in Rome explosions in two bomb attacks injured 17 persons the same day.

Rumor's minority Christian Democrat government has been struggling to hold Pommand while former allies, the feuding Socialist and Unitarian Socialist parties, have been locked in quarrels, ruling out any co-operation.

But since the bomb attacks, the two Socialist groups and the small Republican party have declared willingness to back Rumor's government. The Unitarians also have called for a reformation of the coalition.

Political observers think his timing is right—with a wave of fear and horror in the country and criticisms that the government has been weak, there were indications that amid the national grief, the old coalition members had started to rally toward a mood of renewed collaboration.

Libya Wants U.S. Out; Air Base Future Uncertain

TRIPOLI (AP) — Libya's future military government called for a speedy U.S. withdrawal from Wheelus Air Base as the regime and U.S. officials prepared to open negotiations today on the American-Libyan relations."

Ambassador Joseph Palmer was the American negotiator. The Libyan team was headed by Capt. Abdel Salam Jalloud, a member of the ruling junta who negotiated a withdrawal agreement with the British last week.

Britain agreed Saturday to withdraw the bulk of 1,700 servicemen from its bases at Tobruk and Al Adem by March 31. Families of the men began leaving during the weekend to spend Christmas in Britain and will not return.

The 2,100 acre Wheelus base was used for many years as a training site for U.S. airmen in Europe and also to train the Libyan air force. In recent years the force at the base has been reduced and now numbers less than 2,000 military personnel, with about 2,500 civilians and dependents.

Under the U.S. agreement with the royal government which the junta overthrew, either Libya or the United States can terminate the base agreement by giving notice after Dec. 24, 1970, and the agreement would then expire one year later. But the new Libyan government has made clear that it wants the Americans to get out long before the end of 1971.

Says Acne, Chocolate Not Related

CHICAGO (AP) — Good news for teen-agers: Chocolate is not related to acne, a study by three skin specialists indicates.

The research was done by Drs. James E. Fulton Jr., Gerd Plewig and Albert M. Kligman of the University of Pennsylvania medical school.

They report their findings in the Dec. 15 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. The research was underwritten by the Chocolate Manufacturers Association of the United States.

Throughout history foods have been judged with regard to whether they are thought to contribute to or cure disease, the doctors report.

For serious diseases, special foods tend to be prescribed, while in less serious diseases they tend to be forbidden.

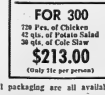
"Acne vulgaris (pimples) is a sovereign example of the latter," they write. "No foods are favored for acne victims, but many are inveighed against."

"One remarkable feature" characterizes the list of foods forbidden for acne victims, they say. "All of the blacklisted items are delicious and delectable to the adolescent taste."

They include nuts, candy, soda pop, shellfish, cheese and malted milk. None of the foods is more universally condemned than chocolate, they say.

But there is an absence of reliable studies on the project, they claim.

Acne "is enough of a curse" without its victim having to be deprived of the pleasure of eating, the doctors say. They studied 65 subjects, including 30 teen-agers suffering from acne and 35 young-adult male prison volunteers.



They used two kinds of specially manufactured candy bars. One bar was made to look and taste like chocolate. It contained vegetable fats and had a few more calories than the real chocolate bar. The other, a bittersweet chocolate bar, contained more than 10 times the amount of chocolate in an ordinary 10-cent chocolate bar.

Christmas in Belfast: Some Folk Not Home

BELFAST (AP) — Christmas for the Nellins family, who are Roman Catholics, will be spent in a two-room wooden hut amid a sea of mud.

Christmas for three generations of the Graham family, on the Protestant side of Belfast's barbed wire "peace line," will be much more in the family tradition.

For both the Nellinses and the Grahams, however, as for most of Northern Ireland's 1,500,000 people, the festival will be clouded by fear that more communal violence may not be far away. In the last year, more than 20 were killed and hundreds wounded, and each side blames the other.

Trouble started last summer for George Nellins and his young wife and five children. They lived then in a three-bedroom house on Lisburn Road, a mainly Protestant area in Belfast's southern suburbs.

Belfast long had been boiling up toward one of the clashes that have erupted here every generation or so for two centuries. In August it came to a head.

Nellins, a merchant seaman, was home on leave when the threatening letters started arriving—"Get out or be burned out," or "Get back to your own," meaning get back to a Catholic district.

Now, with more than 100 families with similar histories, they live at Beechmount, a mud-stream building site dotted with huts and trailer homes.

Hilda Nellins fetches water from a faucet 50 yards away. Mobile latrines and washrooms stand across the road.

Their old house of Lisburn Road still is standing, but the Nellinses won't go back.

"As soon as we left they looted everything worth taking and smashed the rest," George Nellins says.

"It's just not possible to leave the wife and kids in these circumstances," Nellins says while giving up his job at sea and drawing unemployment pay. "And everybody says the real trouble is still to come."

Letitia Graham, a lively grandmother living in Wareworth Street right by the barbed wire and steel shuttering of the army's peace line, says much the same thing: "The trouble hasn't started yet."

Mrs. Graham, wife of a retired locomotive fitter, has lived 40 years in the redbrick streets on the Protestant side of West Belfast.

"In 40 years I'd seen nothing like it," she says.

Apollo 13 Starts Journey to Pad

CAPE KENNEDY — (Reuters) — The Apollo 13 rocket and spacecraft began its journey to the launch pad early today.

The 363-foot vehicle perched on top of its large crawler transporter left the vehicle assembly building for a 3½-mile trip to its launching pad near at Atlantic.

Once on the launch pad, the rocket and spacecraft will receive their final grooming for liftoff March 12 with its crew — Navy Capt. James Lovell, Lt.-Cmdr. Thomas Mattingly and civilian Fred Haise.

Lovell and Haise plan to touch their lunar landing craft down in Fra Mauro, one of the roughest landing areas on the lunar surface, to further scientific investigation of the moon.

Germans Executed For Killing Greeks

ATHENS (Reuters) — Two West Germans, sentenced to death for armed robberies in which they killed six Greeks, were executed at dawn today by a firing squad, authoritative sources said.

The execution followed the rejection by Greece's regent, Lt.-Gen. George Zoitakis, of the appeal by Herman Duft and Hans Wilhelm Bassenhauer, both 30-year-old plumbers from Frankfurt.

The two men were sentenced to death by an Athens court last summer after admitting they killed six Greeks in pre-dawn raid on gasoline stations and a seaside villa near Athens.

Duft was executed on the Ionian island of Corfu where he had been detained, and his companion Bassenhauer on the island of Aegina, a few miles south of Piraeus.

Beatle Lennon Planning Toronto Peace Crusade

TORONTO (CP) — Beatle John Lennon and his wife, Yoko Ono, are expected to arrive here this week to launch a Christmas crusade for peace.

John Brower, 23, one of a Toronto group that is organizing the visit, said Sunday he visited the Lennons last week at their home near London and the couple had decided Canada was the best place to "talk to the press about peace."

He said Lennon was impressed during his two earlier visits to Canada this year by "the sensible political attitudes that prevail here."

Brower said Prime Minister Trudeau "has given us a tremendous international image with thinking people, young and old."

Brower and the 50 young persons in his group have put up posters, signs and billboards across Toronto to publicize Lennon's peace plea.

Lennon said in London Sunday he plans to put up signs and billboards in 11 cities around the world. The signs will read:

"War is over. If you want it. Happy Christmas from John and Yoko."

The pop star was quoted as saying he had decided to return to Canada because "the maturity of the people is amazing when you consider Canada is so young."

"Canada's attitudes with regard to Vietnam, China and NATO, are very sensible. Everything points to Canada as being one of the key countries in the new race for survival . . . the peace race."

Lennon said he expected to arrive in Toronto Wednesday.

'We Make Mistakes,' Rost Office Admits

TORONTO (CP) — Postal workers here might be excused if they lack enthusiasm for the Christmas season, their busiest time of the year.

It's difficult to be full of cheer when an average of 4,000,000 letters and more than 30,000 parcels move through Toronto each day.

"We try to get mail delivered on time but we make mistakes sometimes," says F. G. Cosgrey, who handles complaints at the post office's quality control department.

Mr. Cosgrey says the most usual error is overlooking one letter in the bottom of a bag of mail. This happens occasionally although handlers are instructed to scan every bag with a light.

The most serious error is when a whole bag of mail gets misplaced and ends up in a pile of empty bags.

"In the rare instances this happens and the mail is late we send along an explanation with each letter or parcel," says Mr. Cosgrey.

Because of the flood of mail, Saturday service has been restored for the two weeks just prior to Christmas.

Mr. Cosgrey says the post office makes far fewer mistakes than its customers do.

"You would be surprised how many people neglect to put a return address on a parcel or envelope. Sometimes they will write 'Town' or 'City' instead of 'Toronto'."

Strictly Personal

People Are Better Looking

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Someone showed me an old class yearbook of 30-odd years ago, in which my foolish face is peering out, and I was struck with the remarkable change in our looks over the last generation or two.

It is not merely that the dress is different, for all dress looks faintly absurd a few decades later — it is that people themselves today are better-looking than they used to be, up and down the line, from youngsters to older folks.

We may not be a healthier nation than we were (there is some conflicting evidence on this score), but we are certainly handsomer. Maybe better nutrition has done it, or the freeing of old repressive bonds; but whatever the cause, faces today seem more animated and expressive and even the bodies look better than they used to.

Men of my father's generation were "old" when they reached my age, but most of my contemporaries neither look nor act old — and their wives even less so. When I was a schoolboy, a woman in her 40s was "through" — she looked it, felt it, and acted it. Today, except for the heavy toilers, a woman in her 40s looks 10 years younger, and is still skiing on snow or water at an age when her mother was heating her feet in a hot basin.

The infirmities of my school class have likewise disappeared. In those days, nearly every grade had a boy nicknamed "Chink," because of his Asiatic features, as well as kids with other anomalies of spine or leg. Though our infant mortality rate is nothing to brag about, we have succeeded in rehabilitating most infants who are born with such defects, or correcting them in early childhood.

And, despite the grumbling of oldsters about the way our adolescents wear their hair and dress, the plain fact is that they are, for the most part, shiningly handsome children, long and clean of limb, fresh of feature, graceful and vivacious, open to experience in a way we were taught to shun.

This modern generation is probably the best - looking group of young people our country has bred. There are more pretty girls around than I can ever remember, and even the boys — beneath the formidable foliage and outrageous apparel — make my high school class of '34 look sick. For one startling thing, they enjoy their bodies, and are not vaguely ashamed of them, as we were trained to be.

If we are on the brink of "degeneration" as some doleful critics complain, it is the most proudly attractive bunch of degenerates the world has known. Personally, I think "regeneration" is the proper word.

Liberal Club Member Continues Education

OTTAWA (CP) — Young Sharon Shoiberg, jaded with lengthy sessions in her science labs, "wandered over" to a McGill University Liberal Club meeting. It took.

She's Mrs. Herb Gray today, wife of the new minister without portfolio with special responsibilities in financial affairs. They met at a political convention in 1964 here.

Sharon Gray is a warm and feminine young woman who has packed a lot of learning into her 27 years, confirmed by degrees from three universities.

She's "plodding along" on a fourth, a law doctorate from the University of Ottawa in French, and her thesis is a study of constitutional law as applied to Canada's cultural affairs.

But politics still probably tops her list of interests.

She has been interested in the work of the Liberal party ever since her second year in a McGill University course leading to a bachelor of science degree.

"I was spending much of my time in the lab and realized I had very few interests outside of it," she says, attractive Mrs. Gray said in an interview in the ladies sitting room on Parliament Hill.

"So I wandered over to a Liberal Club meeting advertised on campus because there were some prominent speakers. I met people and bit by bit became very involved."

It was through the Liberal students' association that she met her husband—already a greater say for students. We were upset at the fee increases and wanted student representation on senate committees and such."

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sholzberg of Montreal, Sharon helped pay her way through university by working summers in a business office and later as a computer programmer. She was also awarded scholarships.

She was called to the Quebec bar in June, 1967, and a month later was married.

She got a master of laws degree in 1968 from the University of Ottawa, where she studied for it in French. She hopes eventually to teach law.

As well, she has to keep two apartments—one in Ottawa and one in Windsor, Ont., in her husband's riding of Windsor West—comfortable and stocked with groceries, a job she doesn't find easy.

Soft-spoken and feminine, her brown hair drawn softly back and bound with a bow, she admits she used to be terribly shy and even now gets a little nervous at times in crowds.

"But it goes away when I look at the people as individuals," she says.

She at one time thought of running for Parliament but has given up the idea on the theory that one MP in the family is enough. But she likes attending political functions with her husband and hopes to continue "even if hopefully we have children in the future."

In the dilemma of home versus career, she tries to strike a balance.

"I have never been terribly concerned about women's rights in the sense of fighting for them. Each woman should be free to do as she pleases.

"It can be a very difficult and satisfying job to keep a home and raise children, and the full-time homemaker should be very proud.

"On the other hand, women who want careers should be able to have them without feeling guilty."

EDUCATION AND POLITICS—Mrs. Herb Gray is working on her fourth university degree, a law doctorate from the French University of Ottawa, but politics probably tops her list of interests. Her husband is the new federal minister without portfolio with special responsibilities in financial affairs. They met at a political convention. (CP Photo)

Now Let's All Sing Out!

Bridge Street United Church choir rehearses for candlelight service in Scripture and song to be held Sunday, December 21. Presentation at Bridge Street church "Fantasia on Christmas Carols" by Vaughan Williams, (a contemporary work), soloist Hazelanne Reid. Dr. H. M. Davis will lead the service. The congregation and their many friends are cordially invited to attend and participate in the carol service comprised of old familiar favorites. Duets by Maribeth Cronk and Janet Loynes. Everyone will be warmly welcomed.

Beauty Prefers Teaching to Movie Career

SHIPPENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Susan Goodman has beauty and brains, but she prefers the brains.

The 23-year-old hazel-eyed blonde has declined movie and television offers to keep her job as assistant professor of foreign languages at Shippensburg State College.

SNOW-LOVING ALLIGATOR — Shoes and boots of alligator textures by Red Carpet Shoe of Montreal. Lined with nylon acrylic for zero weather, they are made of corfam poromeric material, a washable synthetic leather. Leg of the boot is in a velvety suede-like texture. The buckled shoe has a hand-moulded wrap-around sole that is virtually waterproof. (CP Photo)

"Life as an actress is precarious and not very fulfilling," she insists. "There are a lot of talented people out there who are rudely awakened when they discover it's really a fake world."

Teaching, especially French is something else.

"It accomplishes something really worth while," Miss Goodman says. "I am much more thrilled when a student learns something from me, than when I create a false image on the screen."

Recently she played a small role in the Paramount production of The Molly Maguires, a movie about labor strife and murder in Pennsylvania's hard coal region in the early 1900s.

The film is to be released early next year.

"It was a small part," she says, but it brought offers of other movie roles, a Broadway play and a television series — all rejected.

"Acting just doesn't mean me up to the art of teaching," she says.

"Sure, the movie part was exciting and glamorous, and I enjoyed that much of it. But what happens when the movie is finished?

"I want more out of life than what acting and modeling have to offer."

Actually, the mini - skirted Miss Goodman never had any dramatic training when she landed the role in the movie that stars Richard Harris and Sean Connery.

"It was really a coincidence," she says. "I just happened to be in Hanover, Pa., at the time the directors were testing. I had no big desire but I suppose every girl dreams of being in the movies, and I was enveloped by it."

When she came to the casting office she found 63 other girls waiting, and learned the director didn't want a blonde for the part of a coal miner's wife. She was hired anyway.

Family Supper Held at Church

NAPANEE — Wednesday marked another first in the history of the Free Methodist church in Napanee. It was the first time they had had facilities enabling its members to sit down together for a church family supper.

The new church edifice, the Westdale Park Church has a full sized basement, with auditorium, stage, classrooms, a utility room, washrooms, and a larger, fully-equipped kitchen, used Wednesday for the first time. Over 100 people served themselves buffet style.

The happy atmosphere was mingled with a feeling of pride and of achievement, as so much of the equipment had been donated, and so much of the work has been done on a voluntary basis. A short Sunday School entertainment followed the dinner. William Huthes, the superintendent, was chairman and led in the singing of Christmas carols. The youth band gave two selections, and classes participated in Christmas exercises.

Then came the presentation of gifts, each teacher received a corsage, and each pupil a gift from his teacher. Sunday School and church officers were also remembered. The minister and his wife, Rev. Gordon and Mrs. Hannond, were presented with a substantial cheque.

Fashions Highlight 4-H Achievement Day

TWEED — There was great excitement recently in the Denbigh Community Hall. The crisp sunny day was an excellent setting for the modelling of the cozy housecoats, lounging pant outfits and ultra feminine dusters by the five 4-H Homemaking Clubs of Addington District (County).

The fashion parade was part of the Achievement Day program for the Club Project "Being Well Dressed and Well-Groomed".

For some of the girls, this club gave them their first opportunity to use a sewing machine and from results did exceptionally well.

The visitors were entertained by the excellent skits and exhibits presented by the girls on aspects of "Being Well Dressed and Well Groomed". The girls' colorful record books were displayed as well as the sewing projects.

In recognition of line leadership given, the voluntary 4-H Leadres and Fabric — each 4-H Homemaking girl received a sterling silver spoon upon successful completion of the project. Certificates of achievement were also presented. The girls judged the classes of dusters and fabric, giving oral reasons for their decisions. They also were given time to do a patching test.

Girls who were presented with county honors on six projects were: Debra Madigan, Pat Boundall, Debra Rosen, Angela Goodfellow. The Addington District Women's Institute president, Mrs. Wilkes, presented the County honor pins and certificates.

Assisting the county home economist, Ann McGiffin, was Mrs. Mary Moore, of Kemptville.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

UNIONDALE W. I.

The family night of Uniondale Women's Institute was well attended and the program put on by Fred Stone with violin, accompanied by Mrs. Burkitt at the piano, was enjoyed by all.

The Christmas party, consisting of members and visitors, was held December 4 at Scott's Uniondale Hall with the welfare association of Frankford being given $25 as well as the Salvation Army of Trenton $25. A report of the area convention was given by Mrs. P. Tracey; Several readings were given by Mrs. K. Bush, Mrs. E. Anderson and Mrs. G. Harrington.

Highlight of the meeting was the giving of life member certificates and pins to Mrs. M. Sine, Mrs. G. Burkitt and Mrs. H. Frost. They were taken by surprise as Santa Claus brought them along in his sack as he came to give out the gifts to the members.

A short course, "The Main Dish Makes the Meal," was well attended and will be ready for achievement day January 13.

Hostess for the January meeting will be Mrs. Morley Sine and the topic will be schools.

U.C.W. Meetings

MELROSE UCW

The afternoon and evening units of Melrose U.C.W. met jointly in Shannonville Church Hall December 2 for their meeting.

Members of the afternoon unit were hostesses. Each member brought a dish for the potluck dinner which followed.

After the meal, the president of the afternoon unit, Mrs. D. Lazer, called the meeting to order and offered prayer. Mrs. Wescott conducted the worship service. A business period dealt mainly with finances. The treasurer, Mrs. R. Clarke, reported the cash on hand and its distribution was decided. Entire proceeds of the turkey supper amounting to $602, held on November 19 in Melrose Church basement will be handed over to the local fund of Melrose Church. The cost of supplies purchased recently for the church kitchen will be shared jointly.

Mrs. S. Demille took charge of the entertainment portion of the program. A contest and various stunts took place, after which there was an exchange of gifts.

Crumb Coffee Cake Excellent Snack for Holiday Drop-ins

By MARY MOORE

Anyone who has two eyes to read this and two hands to carry out the instructions can make this Coffee Cake. It calls for yeast and baking powder. It is the kind of yeast mixture that "I-never-bake-with-yeast" cooks should start with. You do not have to know anything about rising times or temperatures — just do as the recipe states.

It is an excellent economical snack for holiday dropins.

CRUMB COFFEE CAKE
(courtesy Jean H.; tampered with by Emem)

DOUGH:
1 pkge. granular yeast
¾ cup lukewarm water
1 tsp. sugar
¼ cup scalded milk
½ cup shortening (room temperature)
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ cup sugar (second amount)
1 egg
TOPPING:
¼ cup brown sugar (I used dark)
4 tsps. flour
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tbsp. soft butter

In large mixing bowl soak yeast with the 1 tsp. sugar in lukewarm water 10 min.

To make measuring the shortening easy, pour the ¼ cup scalded milk into your measuring cup and add shortening until milk rises to ¾ cup line on measuring cup.

To the sifted flour add the baking powder, salt and the ½ cup sugar. To the risen yeast liquid add the milk-shortening mixture and the dry ingredients and the egg and beat for 2 min. Butter a cookie sheet. I used a 15 x 10" (approximately). Toss one-fourth of dough out onto cookie sheet and spread and smooth it with spatula to edges. Let rise at room temperature for 1½ hrs.

Meanwhile mix together in small bowl the topping ingredients. When coffee cake dough has risen 1½ hrs. sprinkle topping mixture gently and evenly all over top. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 min. Serve warm, cut in squares, with coffee.

If any is left over it will reheat nicely if wrapped in foil and put in oven at 350 deg. Fahr. for 10 min.

CONCERN FOR THE FAMILY — Mrs. Robert Stanbury is concerned about the family and the effect upon it of today's trend to elevate the wife out of the home. She wonders whether the family will exist after 20 more years of mother being told to go out and work at something else. She feels it is her responsibility to be home while her children are at home. (CP Photo).

New Cabinet Minister's Wife Concerned About Family Life

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Robert Stanbury says women are being elevated right out of the home, and it is a trend she is resisting.

"I am concerned about the family, whether it will exist in 20 years, with mother being told to go out and do something else.

"I don't enjoy vacuuming or washing dishes particularly, but I have felt a responsibility to be at home while my children are at home. I took on that responsibility, and as long as they need me here, I'll be here."

Mrs. Stanbury is the wife of the new junior member o tthe 30-man federal cabinet. Robert Stanbury was first elected in 1965. In October he was appointed minister without portfolio with special responsibility for Canadian citizenship.

Mrs. Stanbury and their four children live in a modern row housing development in Don Mills, a suburban area of Toronto. The children are Susan, 16, Carol, 15, Ian, 13 and Duncan, 8.

"We tried living in Ottawa for about a year and a half. The purpose is moving back was to see more of Bob. The House sits until 10 p.m., and he's diligent, and was there, and on weekends he felt he must come back to his constituency, so he'd come to Toronto and stay with my sister."

Mrs. Stanbury says they don't yet know what difference his appointment to the cabinet might make.

"I don't think there is anything comparable to the insecurity of a politician's life."

The Stanburys met when both were students at the University of Western Ontario. Mrs. Stanbury is the former Mirian Vachler of Kitchener. They were married while Mr. Stanbury was at Osgoode Hall.

Mr. Stanbury was active in Liberal groups even as a student, and his wife says that though she spent 10 relatively quiet years as the wife of a Toronto lawyer, she is not surprised to find herself the wife of a member of Parliament.

"The first time I heard him on a platform I couldn't understand it, but I could see his fervor.

"You can only consider it worth while politics if you have the guts of life. I think most men want to make a contribution. If he can contribute anything to improving the human condition, then he has."

Mrs. Stanbury says she believes that is what most politicians want to do. She says that if politics have a bad name, it is probably the politicians' fault.

"In the past it has seemed to the public that the prevalent political type has been irresponsible. Politicians haven't informed the public of their duties, people don't realize the challenge of their jobs. Dollar for dollar, they work harder than many people, I think—but I'm not being very objective.

"I would love to see a study on the motivation of politicians. It would be very interesting."

Mrs. Stanbury says the family of each MP must make adjustments.

"You have to make adjustments to separation, to changes in family rearing, in some cases a change in income. For 10 years we lived normally. We were in a terrible rut. It was starting for us, the change. . . .

"I answer the phone here because Bob doesn't have an office in Toronto. I don't attempt to play the MP, but I have to listen and take messages.

"I suppose I'm busier as a parent, alone most of the week. But then most wives are alone all day—their husbands aren't there. Perhaps I over-estimate that.

"I pain and sew and read a great deal. I don't lead a very leisurely life because I'm not a leisurely person, but I do the things other housewives do.

"I am reaching the point where the youngest child is demanding less of my time at home, where I feel I must take up some vocation. I might go back to school."

IMMERSE IN WATER

To remove onion skins easily, let stand in boiling water for a minute or two, then plunge into cold water.

Ann Landers

Psychologist Also Helps the Disturbed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why do you repeatedly advise readers with problems to see a psychiatrist and completely ignore another group of trained specialists who might also be of help? I refer to the psychologists. While the psychologist does not have the medical background of the psychiatrist, his training is generally more extensive in the area of psychological techniques. Psychologists can be extremely effective with clients whose problems are not organic, and who require no medication.

ANN LANDERS

The Yellow Pages can be very helpful in locating psychologists in almost any city. Please tell your readers about us. We are qualified and eager to offer our services. — CLEVELAND PH.D.

DEAR PH.D.: Many psychologists are, as you say, well qualified to treat people with emotional problems. In fact, psychiatrists frequently refer patients to psychologists.

I do not suggest to my readers that they see a psychologist for the following reasons: It is not possible to determine from a letter if the reader has an organic problem of which he is not aware. Only a physician can determine this. Psychiatrists are physicians. Psychologists are not. Furthermore, there are many different kinds of psychologists —and they are listed indiscriminately in the Yellow Pages. For example, some psychologist do only vocational testing and would be useless to a person with a clinical problem.

For years the American Psychiatric Association and the American Psychological Association have been at odds for reasons which need not be specified. A distinguished psychiatrist put it this way: "Some psychiatrists with their impressive credentials and medical training are ineffective with certain patients. They have referred these patients to psychologists with extremely gratifying results." He added —"You, Ann Landers, should continue to send your readers to physicians and psychiatrists and let them recommend certified psychologists when they feel the situation warrants it."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For a long time I wondered why I couldn't make friends. It bothered me terribly but I was never smart enough to look for the reason where I should have looked. Inside myself. For years I found fault with everyone and blamed them for not accepting me. I told myself they were jealous of me or they were inconsiderate, or stupid or snobbish. I manufactured a whole list of reasons why I wasn't liked.

A few weeks ago I read something in our church bulletin. It opened my eyes to the real problem.

Here's the line that changed my life: "The only way to have a friend is to be one."

I hope you think it is worth printing, Ann. Maybe it will help someone else. — BLUE HILLS.

DEAR B.H.: I do think it is worth printing. In fact, I thought so ten years ago when I printed it for the first time. Whoever puts your church bulletin together has a wonderful file system or a fine memory.

Should She Always Go Where He Is?

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have a daughter 22 who is living with a chap 50 miles away. He does not have a car and she does so she goes to where he is every weekend. I say if he really thought anything of her he would find a way to her house. She also goes in the middle of the week and does not get home till three a.m. I have always wanted her in by 1.30, but my husband says you can't tell her what to do at that age.

She takes another girl along when she's late but I don't think it is proper for girls to be on the road at this hour of the morning. — Worried Mother.

Dear Worried Mother: Do you simply never see him? And what does she do with the other girl when they get to that distant town?

She is of age, should have learned by now to put their right limits on her conduct on her comings - and goings; and you can't lay down many rules. But if I were your girl I wouldn't want to do all the running after a car-less male.

There are such things as buses and trains. Try inviting him for dinner some weekend.

* * *

Dear Doris: It seems to me someone asked you for "The Monkey's Viewpoint." I just found this very odd verse where it was packed away for over 50 years, so I am sending it along. — Mr. C.

Dear Mr. C.: What a long memory! The request for this tale was made ages ago. We got a heap of copies. (And still have some, if anyone's interested.)

* * *

Dear Doris: I read an article in a magazine on how to make your own floating candles, and wondered if you or one of your readers could send it to me. It is for a very important therapy idea that I have. — Enjoying You

Dear Enjoying: I am sending you the names of three sources of candle making instructions and supplies. Perhaps a reader will see this and send in her special method.

Handcrafts are good therapy for many patients. Would you like to tell us more about your idea?

Confidential to In Need of Help: Why should you lose a favorite church because you and her older brother like each other? Many a romance has come of such a connection. Forget what other people say; it's the truth that counts.

* * *

Confidential to Not Sure Now: Finally your little girl's daddy is back and eager for marriage; what you have always dreamed of. And now you are the unsure one! Better do some serious talking.

Remind him that these two years have been hard indeed for you to face alone; and you need to be sure. Far better to break off now, than to know real, permanent unhappiness later, married to the wrong man.

The rest depends on the nature of his response.

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large six-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope, unless otherwise specified.

Church Groups

ST. ANDREW'S WMS

The December meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society was held in the Sunday School auditorium.

The president, Miss L. Burnside opened the meeting with a Yuletide message and conducted the business period.

Notes of appreciation were read by the secretary and a letter from Dr. E. Johnson, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, was read by Miss F. Matthews.

The Christmas worship service was led by Mrs. R. Jones and took the form of a family circle discussing the meaning of giving and receiving gifts and the meaning of Christmas as God's gift. Also taking part in the service were Mrs. F. Parsons, Mrs. P. Bondy, Mrs. J. Miller and Miss N. Bell with Mrs. I. Rollins as soloist.

Refreshments were served by the group in charge.

A CHRISTMAS REMINDER

As in previous years, anyone wishing to have a social or personal item in the Intelligencer Christmas issue is requested to mail information or phone the Social Department at the Intelligencer no later than December 22. No other contacts will be made in the solfeitation of Yule personals.

Cyrus Eaton Reports

Hanoi Thinks Nixon Doesn't Want Peace

HONG KONG (CP) — Industrialist Cyrus Eaton said today the greatest obstacle to peace in Vietnam is the North Vietnamese conviction that President Nixon does not really want to end the war.

Eaton, the 86-year-old Canadian-born advocate of better relations between the United States and Russia, arrived here Sunday by air after an eight-day visit to Hanoi and talks with North Vietnamese leaders.

"The greatest single obstacle to peace in (North) Vietnam is the absolute conviction of Hanoi's leaders that President Nixon does not want to end the war but wants to continue it," he told a foreign correspondents' luncheon.

He said he thought he had made some progress in attesting to Hanoi that the American people wanted to end the war.

"I found enough goodwill in Hanoi to encourage me to believe that compromises are possible," he added.

As one indication of this, Eaton said the North Vietnamese told him they were going to take "a more liberal attitude towards Americans held as prisoners of war in North Vietnam."

"They assured us that every prisoner was going to be well taken care, well fed, will have his mail from home delivered, and have his letters back home dispatched promptly."

Eaton said the North Vietnamese themselves brought up the prisoner situation. He said he did not initiate the subject because he thought it would not be conducive to talks about how to end the war itself.

He said he "would guess that it will not be long before they will release the names of those held prisoner of war."

Eaton, a native of Pugwash, N.S., who lives in Cleveland and is the founder of the Pugwash conferences of scientists, said one reason given for U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war was to limit the influence of China and the Soviet Union in the area.

"The steps we have taken have greatly increased their influence there," he added.

He would not disclose the confidential talks he had with Hanoi leaders but said he would pass on their ideas to Washington officials.

"How soon the war will end depends on Washington," he said.

Eaton said he believed the United States should end the war "on the best terms we can get."

Asked about the possibility of a Chinese-Russian war, he said "China and the Soviet Union are going to stand together as long as the war goes or in Vietnam."

He compared the relations between the two Communist countries to those between the United States and the Soviet Union during the Second World War when they co-operated in the face of a common enemy.

"My own guess is that they will work out their own problems," Eaton added. "Each has the bomb. Each can destroy the other."

He said he was not carrying any official message from Hanoi to Washington but he expected to pass on the views of North Vietnamese officials to their American counterparts.

He leaves for Tokyo Tuesday on his way back to the United States.

Israel Plans Towns in Conquered Area

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's new government says it will seek peace with its Arab neighbors but will hold onto all of Jerusalem, build more settlements in occupied Arab territories and strengthen its army "to deter and repulse aggression."

In a program of action published today, Prime Minister Golda Meir's new cabinet emphasized that Jerusalem's Jewish and Arab sections would remain united as Israel's capital.

The statement also said Israel would "speed up the establishment of security outposts and permanent settlements, rural and urban, on the soil of the homeland" captured from the Arabs during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

The government said it will not abandon any Arab lands without a peace treaty but will "steadfastly strive to achieve a durable peace with Israel's neighbors . . . through direct negotiations."

Israel "will continue to maintain . . . the situation as established by the 1967 ceasefire" but remains ready to make "an agreement leading to disarmament, on the condition that mutual and constant inspection of its implementation is assured," the program said.

Mrs. Meir presented her new cabinet to the Knesset, or parliament, today.

The new cabinet may take on a "more hawkish outlook," one source said, with the addition of Brig.-Gen. Ezer Weizmann. Weizmann resigned as Israel's chief of military operations Sunday amid reports that he would be named transportation minister in the new cabinet.

Weizmann, brother-in-law of Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, once flew with the RAF and was the first commander of Israel's air force in 1948.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union indicated Sunday it may reject the new U.S. peace plan for the Middle East. The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda said "the obvious fact that the United States is supporting the Israeli ruling circles and their aggressive actions cannot be hidden."

It was the first high-level Soviet reaction to the proposal communicated in October to the Russians and the Egyptians. Israel rejected the plan last week after U.S. State Secretary William P. Rogers outlined its chief points, including the internationalization of Jerusalem.

PCs Plan to Counter Tax Reform Propaganda

OTTAWA (CP) — The Parliamentary caucus of the Progressive Conservative party expressed determination Sunday to "counter the misleading propaganda" it said is being spread by the government about the recent white paper on income tax revision.

It said in a statement following weekend meetings the process of urbanization and all its problems is proceeding faster in Canada than in any other country.

The Conservative members of Parliament and senators "condemned the present federal government for its failure to accept the fact that the problems of urban growth now are national in scope . . ."

The statement also reported a unanimous consensus on federal policies toward agriculture are "proving inadequate to an alarming degree," particularly in marketing.

The caucus met Saturday to discuss a stand on the tax reform proposals made public Nov. 7 by Finance Minister Edgar Benson, and then again Sunday morning.

Caucus Chairman George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) said the paper "deliberately and grossly" underestimates the revenue assumptions. It exaggerated the figure of those who would pay less tax and provided an unrealistically high figure of those who would pay more.

Sextuplets Born

LONDON (Reuters) — A woman who took fertility drugs because she feared she might never have children gave birth to sextuplets in a London hospital early today.

Four girls and a boy survived. The sixth child was stillborn.

Rosemary Letts, 23, had been told by doctors she probably would have seven children in February. The drugs were taken on a doctor's prescription.

Air Pollution Car Industry's Major Problem

DETROIT (AP) — It appears that pollution has supplanted vehicle safety as the major problem facing the automobile industry.

The state of Illinois claims in a suit against the industry that automobiles have created "an atmospheric sewer."

Consumer crusader Ralph Nader has led a demonstration against the New York headquarters of General Motors to "humanize" the giant corporation.

And autos are blamed by local authorities for 90 per cent of the air pollution problem in sprawling Los Angeles County.

Ford, General Motors and Chrysler, the Big Three of the automobile industry, are spending millions of dollars to reduce pollutants from automobile engines. But federal, state and civic officials have criticized the industry for dragging its feet and being indifferent to the problem.

People like Nader, who wrote a scathing book about automobile safety called Unsafe at Any Speed, have made the public more aware of pollution.

Ford has committed $60,000,000 to a two-year program to find ways of reducing pollutants from Ford cars.

Environmental pollution, says board chairman Henry Ford II, is "by far the most important problem facing this company and the entire industry during the decade ahead."

There is optimism about reducing pollution by automobiles.

In California, which has the most stringent legislation against automobile pollution, mandatory exhaust emission devices appear to be cutting down on the amount of pollutants spewed into the air.

A peak output of 1,800 tons of hydrocarbons and 9,000 tons of carbon monoxide was produced daily in the Los Angeles area during 1966.

California's authorities say that level will never be reached again because of the emission control devices.

The big auto makers have been experimenting in recent years with engines other than gasoline-powered ones: steam, natural gas, electric, turbine.

All three have come to the conclusion that today's engine is here to stay for the foreseeable future.

But they are still looking.

First Automatic Transmission Was Introduced in Thirties

By RAY STAPLEY

My first experience with automatic transmission was in 1938 when a wealthy customer pulled into my garage with his brand new 1938 Buick Eyeiet as a kid with a new toy, he said "Take her for a spin, she's got a self-shifting transmission." Sharing his enthusiasm, I got behind the wheel and headed out on a test run. There were four forward gear ratios and, sure enough, to quite a degree depending on speed and throttle position, they did shift up and down automatically.

While at this point they had not managed to eliminate the clutch, it's use was quite limited. Before pulling away it was necessary to disengage the clutch, place the automatic selector lever in the "low" position and re-engage the clutch. The vehicle would then move forward at a touch of the gas pedal.

Without further use of the clutch and once the car got rolling, the transmission automatically shifted up to second gear. But, before it would shift up to the third and fourth gear ratios the driver had to move the selector lever to the "high" range.

As you can see, in its early stages, while the automatic transmission did much of the work, it was still necessary for the driver to take an active part in manipulating the gear shifting arrangement.

The "self-shifting" transmission was offered as a mighty expensive option and, too, it was introduced during the depression of the hungry thirties. In those years few of us could afford a new car, let alone consider investing in a new fangled complicated option that had yet to prove itself a worthwhile reliable component.

Looking back to that eventful road test, I remember pondering whether the engineers could whittle down the cost to the point where this revolutionary maze of mechanism would fit into the depression plagued budget of the average motorist. Then, too, I wondered what on earth they could cost to repair. Would they stand up? Could the average mechanic gain sufficient technical experience and necessary data to accurately repair them at reasonable speed — this was my main concern.

I finally shrugged it off as being entirely too complicated, a pipe dream that likely would never get off the ground.

However, determined to eliminate the clutch and come up with a fully automatic transmission, the engineers continued in their quest for perfection. After struggling with various designs and countless modifications, they finally produced a transmission that shifted through all the forward gear ratios with no help from the driver and without the need of a clutch.

While in the late forties optional automatic transmissions were available on the popular production cars, they were not a big seller. People were reluctant to invest in something that might be expensive to maintain and that few mechanics knew anything about.

More or less happy with the clutch and stick shift, many new car buyers would say "I can shift a lot of gears for the extra cost of an automatic transmission." However, they gradually started to sell and today, even the die-hard shifters after experiencing the convenience of automatic for a few weeks, forget about price just as quickly as they forgot about the gearshift and clutch.

The vast majority of domestic cars on the road today are equipped with automatic transmission and they are now available on most of the imports.

Three Eskimos Train as Flyers

BASE BORDEN, Ont. (CP) — Three homesick Eskimos may form the vanguard of native residents able to fill demands for aviators in Canada's North.

The three are studying airframe and aero-engine mechanics at this Canadian Armed Forces base 18 miles west of Barrie as the initial part of a program to train them as helicopter pilots.

Michael Kusagak, 21, of Rankin Inlet, N.W.T., Thomas Suluk, 19, of Eskimo Point, N.W.T., and Moses Tookloo, 17, of Churchill, Man., are counting the days until Dec. 20 when they will be flown to their homes for Christmas.

They said in weekend interviews they are looking forward to the community dances and snowmobile races that are part of the Christmas holiday season there.

As Mr. Kusagak observed about their stay at the base: "There are so many guys around here and not so many girls."

Evening on Town Costly

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An evening on the town with a boa constrictor cost Gregory Bernard $131 in fines and a trip to jail. His snake rode up with the Humane Society.

Patrolman J. E. Witcher said he received a complaint about a man with a snake in his shirt. He said he found Bernard in a musical museum in underground Atlanta, an old section of the city being restored.

When Bernard refused to leave, Witcher said, he took into custody both the man and the snake—which kept poking its head out from Bernard's shirt. It later took three policemen to separate Bernard and his companion.

Film Board Union Says Government Betrays National Trust

MONTREAL (CP) — The union representing 419 technical operations and production employees of the National Film Board said Sunday that budget and personal cuts resulting from federal government austerity measures have caused a "crisis" in the NFB.

In a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau, the Syndicat General du Cinema et de la Television charged the federal government with "a betrayal of a national trust and a denial of the government's stated policy of fostering national unity."

The union said the government's austerity measures have frozen the board's grant and caused an estimated decrease of 56 per cent in revenue from films made for other government departments.

Thirty-one employees had been fired or had received notices and an additional 71 were to receive their notices today.

In addition, 56 distribution employees had been designated as "cost recoverable." If they were unable to recover their salaries by renting NFB films to Canadians, they were also to be dismissed.

The union said this would mean a loss of 154 by next summer, out of a staff which stood at 1,025 on Aug. 1, 1969.

The union charged the government with acting in a "very questionable manner" by signing a collective agreement with the union and "almost immediately applying austerity measures which mean that between 12 per cent and 16 per cent of our bargaining unit must be fired so that the rest can be paid their increases."

"In plain dirty words, the government is engaged in what is tantamount to union busting in the public service. . . ."

The union charged State Secretary Gerard Pelletier, the minister responsible to Parliament, for the NFB, with "misstating the seriousness of the cuts at the NFB in the House of Commons."

Best Films Will Be Presented to Trudeau

MONTREAL (CP) — Employees of the National Film Board plan to present a dozen of the board's best films to Prime Minister Trudeau Tuesday to show what the government "is jeopardizing in its arbitrary application of austerity on the NFB," a union spokesman said today.

John Howe, president of the Syndicat General du Cinema et de la Television, said the presentation, which will include a film projector, will be the culmination of a motorcade from Montreal to Ottawa by 16 members of the union.

The motorcade is in protest against the firing of 31 of the NFB's 1,025 employees of a few weeks ago and the planned dismissal of others to be announced today.

"We who work at the NFB are concerned far beyond the immediate layoffs and cutbacks," Mr. Howe said. "The core of the problem lies in the preservation of the National Film Board as a unique Canadian institution where films are made of a kind that aren't made anywhere else.

"We ask the government to reappraise not only the austerity measures applied to the NFB, but also to announce plans for the future growth of the board."

The union represents 419 employees of the NFB technical operations and production branches.

Credit Unions May Offer Services of Banks

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a select committee of the Ontario legislature will recommend legislation to permit credit unions to expand their operations, offering savings and loan services to the public.

The newspaper said a report by the select committee on company law recommends enactment of a new credit unions act that would enable them to go public in competition with chartered banks, trust companies and provincial savings offices.

At present, membership in an Ontario credit union is restricted by law to employees of the same company, members of the same club or religious group, or residents of the same defined community.

The newspaper says the restrictions have inhibited growth of credit unions. It says the report recommends removal of the stricture for any credit union that has shown itself to be sound and well managed.

The newspaper says the report also suggests creation of a seven member stabilization board to examine annually all credit unions. The board would be appointed by the government and composed of four representatives of credit unions, two public representatives and a director.

The Globe and Mail says the board would also be responsible for a mandatory stabilization fund which would be used as deposit insurance to protect members in the event of collapse.

Gordon Carton, chairman of the committee, refused Sunday night to confirm or deny the newspaper report. The Conservative member of the legislature for Toronto Armourdale called the report "pure speculation."

He said his 13-member committee spent more than a year studying the 1,650 credit unions in Ontario. The 112 page committee report went to the printers during the weekend, he said, and he hoped it would be tabled Tuesday in the legislature.

"That's all I can say," he added. "Anything you read at this date is pure speculation."

The credit union report is the second written by the select committee. Its first, tabled April 4, 1967, was on corporation law, and contained a number of controversial recommendations dealing with the legal liability of company directors.

A new corporations act based on the first report is expected to be introduced in the next session of the legislature.

Time Says Stalin Knew German Plans

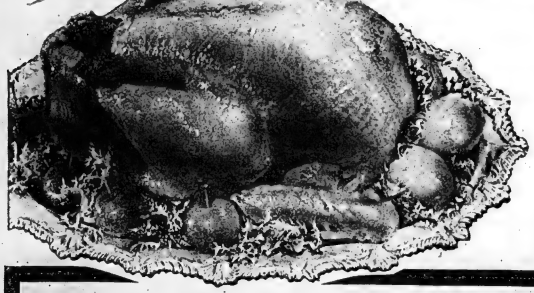
NEW YORK (AP) — A retired German officer says former Soviet premier Joseph Stalin withheld secret information from the United States and Britain about Hitler's plan for Battle of the Bulge counter-attack, Time Magazine reports in its current edition.

The result, Time says, was to prevent the Western allies from reaching Berlin before the Russians.



Quoting Hasso von Manteuffel, now 72, leader of the 5th Panzer Division, one of the spearheads in the battle, Time says:

"Had Hitler been persuaded to call off his attack, Europe might have followed a different course. According to Manteuffel, Stalin knew all about Wacht am Rein (Watch on the Rhine, the German code-name for the counter attack) through a security leak in German headquarters. He said nothing to his allies."

The magazine says Stalin waited until the German offensive was spent, then sent the Red Army dashing across Eastern Europe a month after the Ardennes battle began.

Three for Koroll

Wharram Stand-in Enjoys Big Night

By CHUCK SYOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Chicago Black Hawks lost a great right winger when Kenny Wharram was sidelined with a heart ailment at the start of the current National Hockey League season, but they appear to have found a promising replacement in rookie Cliff Koroll.

The 23-year-old Canora, Sask., native fired three goals past Philadelphia goalie Doug Favell Sunday night to lead Chicago in a 4-3 victory over the Flyers.

The win kept the Black Hawks within four points of fourth-place Detroit Red Wings who were an equal distance behind Montreal after they whipped the Canadiens 5-2 Sunday. In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs beat New York Rangers 3-1 and Boston Bruins edged Pittsburgh Penguins 5-3.

Saturday, the Canadiens beat Chicago 4-1, Detroit downed Toronto 3-1, New York defeated Minnesota North Stars 5-2, Boston whipped Philadelphia 5-3 and St. Louis Blues walloped Los Angeles Kings 8-1.

A significant part of Wharram's success is ll full seasons with the Black Hawks was the work of centreman Stan Mikita who assisted on all three of Koroll's goals Sunday.

Koroll started his flurry in the first period and then put one behind Favell within a 42-second stretch of the third period.

Favell's goaltending kept the Flyers from a worse humiliation before the 16,666 Chicago fans by stopping 37 Hawks shots while Dejordy had to make only 23 saves in the Chicago nets.

Gordie Howe and Frank Mahovlich each banged two goals past Rogatien Vachon in the Montreal nets to clinch the Detroit victory before 14,628 home fans.

Wayne Connelly got the other Red Wings goal while Henri Richard and Terry Harper replied for the Canadiens.

Mahovlich, Jacques Lemaire of Montreal and Red Berenson of St. Louis now share the goal-scoring lead, each with 13.

Mike Walton set up a goal by Brit Selby scored one himself to give the Leafs their 10th win in 28 starts this season. Norm Ullman beat goalie Ed Giacomin on a breakaway in the third period to wrap up the Toronto scoring.

The New Yorkers pelted goalie Bruce Gamble with 30 shots but he allowed only one goal by Bill Fairbairn in the first period. Giacomin made only 26 saves against Toronto.

The 17,250 New York fans saw the East Division-leading Rangers drop their second loss in the last three games.

Garry Unger scored his first goal of the season to snap a 1-1 tie at 17:48 of the first period at Boston and the Bruins hung on through two more scoreless sessions for the victory.

Ken Schinkel gave Pittsburgh a brief lead before Derek Sanderson scored for Boston.

Al Smith stopped 27 shots on the Penguins nets while Ed Johnston made 29 saves for Boston.

The win moved Boston into second spot in the East Division, just two points behind New York.

At Philadelphia Saturday, Jim Lorentz, Johnny Bucyk, Ed Westfall, Ken Hodge and Sanderson provided the Boston scoring power while Gerry Cheevers stopped 27 shots on goal.

The 14,606 fans saw rookie Bob Clarke score twice for the Flyers with Jean-Guy Gendron connecting once.

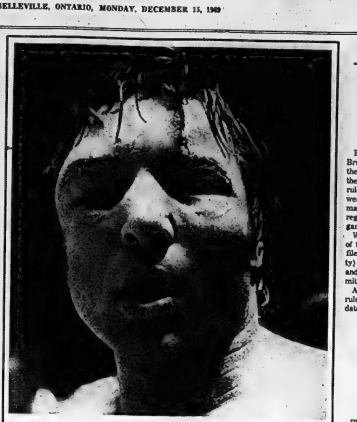
Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent was so angry when Hodge's deciding goal got by him that he threw his stick at an official and drew a 10-minute misconduct.



Vachon made the difference for the Canadiens Saturday, stopping 28 Chicago shots while Montreal tested Dejordy and Tony Esposito with only 35 shots in the game before 17,663 fans at the Forum.

The game saw the return to Montreal of defenceman Jacques Laperriere from a three-game suspension and left winger John Ferguson from a six-game sentence. Ferguson immediately returned to his rough tactics and earned a double minor penalty for fighting with Black Hawks Gilles Marotte midway through the first period.

The Leafs took a 1-0 first-period lead on a goal by defenceman Jim Dorey but second-period marker by Connelly and Pete Stemkowski put the Red Wings in front.

The Leafs rallied to out-shoot Detroit 19-7 in the third period but Crozier kept the goal mouth closed while Bruce MacGregor added another Red Wings goal.

Bruins Press For Helmets

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins announced Sunday night they have filed a motion with the National Hockey League rules committee to make the wearing of helmets by players mandatory in all pre-season, regular-season and playoff games.

Weston W. Adams, chairman of the board of the Boston club, filed the motion with Ian (Scotty) Morrison, referee-in-chief and chairman of the rules committee.

Adams requested that if the rule is adopted, it become mandatory and effective not later than Jan. 15, 1970.

"The Bruins Central League team in Oklahoma City was the first professional club to make helmets mandatory for the players," Adams said.

The question of wearing helmets has been raised strongly this season, partly because of the serious head injury suffered by Bruins defenceman Ted Green in a stick swinging duel with Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues in a pre-season exhibition game in Oklawa. Green suffered a skull fracture and apparently is sidelined for the season.

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — The manager of heavyweight boxer Bob (Presto-Bee) Felstein of Toronto said Saturday he was offering George Chuvalo $25,000 to fight Felstein in Toronto in March. Chuvalo, also of Toronto, knocked out Jerry Quarry in New York City Friday night. Pat Giordano said the fight would decide the Canadian heavyweight championship. Felstein, who fights six-rated Mac-Foster here Tuesday, claims the title because he says Chuvalo, the recognized Canadian champion, refuses to fight him.

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox completed baseball trades Saturday with Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers involving six players. All three teams are in the American League. Boston sent infielder Syd O'Brien and pitcher Billy Farmer plus an unspecified amount of cash to Chicago for veteran left-handed pitcher Gary Peters and catcher Don Pavletich. The Red Sox also traded 26-year-old utility infielder Dalton Jones to Detroit for infielder Tom Matchik. Peters, 32, was the American League Rookie of the Year when he broke in with Chicago in 1963, winning 18 of 27 decisions. Last season his record was 10-15.

Cashman Rapped By Schmidt

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins said Saturday that winger Wayne Cashman has been suspended indefinitely for breaking club training rules in Philadelphia.

The Bruins flew to Philadelphia Friday night for Saturday night's National Hockey League game against the Flyers. Cashman was suspended Saturday by general manager Milt Schmidt and sent back to Boston. There was no word on what rules he had broken.

The club made no immediate move to replace him.

Syndicate Offers Million for Clay Fight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sports promoter Jack Laurence said Sunday he heads a syndicate prepared to offer $1,-000,000 for a heavyweight championship fight between Cassius Clay and Joe Frazier.

The bout would be held at the Sydney, Australia, cricket grounds Feb. 27, Laurence said in Portland, Me.

Toronto and Florida have also been mentioned as possible sites for a fight between Clay, former champion who was stripped of his title after he refused induction into the United States armed services, and Frazier, recognized as champion in five states, Mexico and Argentina.

Negotiations have been started between Harold Ballard, executive vice-president of Maple Leaf Gardens and Clay's lawyers to hold the fight in Toronto.

Other efforts to put on the fight have run into blockades in Miami and Tampa, Fla., but a new face in the promoting rush said Sunday he has offered $700,000 to the boxers.

Billy Herndon, who operates drag racing strips in Tampa and Orlando said he wants to stage the elusive match in Orlando, at either the Tangerine Bowl football stadium or at his drag strip.

Laurence, a frequent visitor to Australia where he has promoted numerous sports events, said he hopes to clear legal obstacles with the two boxers within a few days.

Humber Rink Takes Second Berth in Provincial Final

KINGSTON (CP) — Bob Woods, former Wellish curling champion, defeated Ted Brown of Kingston 10-7 Saturday night to win the B section of the Ontario Curling Association challenge round.

Woods' victory earned him a berth in the provincial final at Oshawa in February. He joined Bob Harris of Unionville who won the A section of the tournament Friday with a 5-0 record. Woods finished with a 6-1 mark in the double-knockout competition.

Woods, now curling out of Toronto's Humber Highland club, could qualify for another world championship. If he wins the provincial final, he could try for the national crown in March at Winnipeg and then the world final at Utica, N.Y.

Woods, a Calgary native, moved to Sweden in 1962. He returned to Canada three months ago and has established himself as one of Ontario's top skips. He won the Swedish title in 1967.

Saturday, Woods capitalized on two misses by Brown in the first end to count three and never looked back, pushing the lead to 6-1 after six ends and 9-3 at the end of eight.

Woods' nly loss came Friday night to Paul Savage of Toronto. Savage was eliminated by Harris.

Woods, curling with third Ron Kelsch, second Brian Longley, and lead Stan ones, whipped Ottawa's Paul Holton 7-1 Saturday morning and then edged Savage 6-5 Saturday afternoon to reach the B section final against Brown.

The Kingston skip got there by downing Bill Lewis of Kingston 10-5 and Tom Howat of Toronto 5-4.

Oilers Gush Late to Beat Boston

By SHEILA MORAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Coach Clive Rush of Boston Patriots is one man who has respect for Houston Oilers, rated as the underdogs in their match with Oakland Raiders in an American Football League playoff game next Saturday.

The Oilers, wrapped up the regular season Sunday by scoring 10 points in the last four minutes to beat Boston 27-23 and Rush said afterwards:

"It was a strong effort by Houston which should help them in the playoffs."

Houston will need all the help it can get. Pete Beathard, playing with a foot injury, passed for two Oiler touchdowns, including the go-ahead score, and saved his team the embarrassment of going into the playoffs with a losing record. The Oilers wound up 6-6-2 while Oakland, the winningest team in the AFL, defends its Western title with a 12-1-1 record.

The Raiders won their division title by beating Kansas City Chiefs 10-6 Saturday.

In other Sunday games, New York Jets whipped Miami Dolphins 27-9 to give the Dolphins the worst record in the AFL, 2-10-1. Denver Broncos beat Cincinnati Bengals 27-16 and San Diego Chargers pounded Buffalo Bills 43-6.

The Oilers play Oakland under the new playoff system which pits the Western Division champion against runner-up in the East. The Jets, defending Super Bowl champions and Eastern Division winners, face Kansas City, No. 2 in the West, in the other playoff game. The winners meet for the league title on Jan. 4.

Beathard entered the game in the second quarter with Boston leading 16-0 and was injured again in the final quarter after passing for the touchdown which tied it 23-23. Roy Gerala kicked the extra point and nine plays later added his second field goal, a 30-yarder, after his injury. Sunday was a "little sprain" to the ankle and that he'll be ready for Oakland.

High-flying Fan Inspiration to Kapp

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Eleven-year-old Rick Snyder must have been an inspiration to Minnesota quarterback Joe Kapp. Rick took to the air at halftime, then Joe went to the air in the fourth quarter to bring the Vikings their 12th straight National Football League victory.

Rick and his mother were in the gondola of a 25-foot hot-air balloon participating in the half-time show of the Vikings-San Francisco game played Sunday in a snow storm in Minnesota. When Mrs. Snyder got out of the gondola, the balloon broke its mooring and carried Rick three miles, landing in the Minnesota River.

A passing motorist got the boy out of the river and returned him to the stadium in time to see Kapp, who threw only 10 passes, put the ball in the air for a 52-yard scoring strike to Gene Washington for a 10-7 victory over the 49ers.

In other NFL action Sunday, Detroit Lions thrashed Los Angeles Rams 28-6, Washington Redskins held off New Orleans Saints 17-14, Green Bay Packers topped Chicago Bears 21-3, Cleveland Browns took St. Louis Cardinals 27-21, New York Giants edged Pittsburgh Steelers 27-17 and Atlanta Falcons trounced Philadelphia Eagles 27-3.

Coach Bud Grant of Minnesota, who formerly coached Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Canadian Football League, was pleased with his club's 12th triumph after a season-opening loss but admitted the unscheduled ballon trip stole the show.

"The game was sort of an anti-climax to that," said Grant.

The game might have been anti-climatic for the hardy Minnesota fans if it hadn't been for Kapp and Washington, Washington got behind Kermit Alexander, headed in ball on the 15 and raced into the end zone. San Francisco had gone ahead on the first play of the fourth quarter when Steve Spurrier passed one yard to Ted Kwalick. Fred Cox kicked a 37-yard field goal in the first half for the Central Division champion Vikings.

With quarterback Roman Gabriel sitting out most of the first half, the Coastal Division champion Rams simply couldn't get untracked against Detroit, being held to 96 yards total offence. Former Ram Bill Munson passed for two touchdowns, Errol Mann booted four field goals and the Lions also got a safety.

Charley Harraway ran 12 yards for a touchdown and caught a 30-yard pass from Sonny Jurgensen for another and Curt Knight added a 30-yard field goal as Washington built a 17-0 halftime lead, then withstood New Orleans. The victory assured the Redskins of their first winning season since 1955.

After a scoreless first half, Green Bay exploded for 21 points in the third quarter. Two of the touchdowns were scored by Travis Williams on a 29-yard run and a 66-yard pass from Don Horn. Chicago's Gale Sayers, the NFL's leading rusher, gained 90 wards in 25 carries and boosted his total to 972 yards.

Down 27-7, St. Louis rallied with two fourth-quarter touchdowns and then missed a chance to pull the game out. The Cardinals blocked a Cleveland punt and the ball rolled out of bounds at the Cleveland six. However, referee Tom Bell ruled Chip Healy of St. Louis kicked the ball and then penalized the protesting Cardinals 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct, giving Cleveland a first down.

Bill Nelsen threw touchdown passes of four and 82 yards to Paul Warfield and Leroy Kelly ran five yards for a score for Cleveland, winner of the Century Division.

Fran Tarkenton threw three touchdown passes for the Giants, the last a four-yarder to Ernie Koy, as New York won the game with less than a minute to go. Dick Shiner hit Roy Jefferson for both Pittsburgh touchdowns.

Bob Berry's three touchdown passes took Atlanta past Philadelphia, which could get only a 20-yard field goal by Sam Baker.

Hornets Show Allan Cup Form

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Hornets, showing the scoring power that won them the Allan Cup championship last spring, began sharpening up their shooting eyes during the weekend for next month's European tour.

The Hornets, who won the European trip as part of the prize for winning the Canadian senior title, walloped Kingston Aces 12-6 Saturday in Ontario Hockey Association senior action.

In other games, Kingston bounced back to down Woodstock Athletics 7-4, Oakville Oaks edged Owen Sound 5-4 and Orillia Terriers edged Barrie Flyers 5-4.

Ron Smith and Howie Dietrich both scored three goals for the Hornets, while Bruce Reier added two and Vance Miller, Dane MacDonald, Pat Adair and Bob Ertel got the others. Bob Clayton paced the Aces with two and team-mates Bob Glajzo, Tom Carty, Hugh Harvey and Ed Long added singles.

Harvey scored three Sunday and Bob Clayton, Carty, Tom Smallman and Doug Senior added the others. Ron Ryan, with two, and Jerry Harrigan and Mac Westgate replied.

Frank Hicks scored twice for Oakville, while Okie O'Brien, Bill Snider and Pete Bellisl got the others. John Lumley, Mayo Paquette, ex-Hamley and Keith Smeltzer replied for Owen Sound.

Grant Moore, just returned from a tournament in Russia with Canada's national team, scored twice for Orillia and George Westfall, Al Osborne and John Patrick added the others.

Mike Dubeau paced the Flyers with three goals and Jack Smith scored once.

Perfect Weekend For Junior Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shutouts never come easy in junior hockey and George Hulme of St. Catharines Black Hawks waited longer than most to get his perfect game.

Hulme posted his first shutout of regular-season play Sunday as the Black Hawks finished a perfect weekend with a 3-0 victory over Ottawa '67s in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action.

Hulme did post a shutout last March during a playoff game against Toronto Marlboros but had not recorded one during the season.

The Hawks started their perfect weekend Saturday by coming from behind a 3-0 deficit to edge Oshawa Generals 5-4. In other weekend action, Kitchener Rangers defeated Toronto Marlboros 3-2 Saturday and Montreal Canadiens walloped Oshawa 8-3 Sunday, while Hamilton Red Wings defeated Toronto 3-1 and London Knights edged Peterborough Petes 2-1.

Marcel Dionne, Brian McKenzie, Duane Wylie and Dennis Giannini, with, two, scored the goals for St. Catharines Saturday, while George Ferguson was pacing the Generals with two. Tom Simpson and Warren Anderson added the others.

Paul Shakes, Al Macdonough and Dionne scored Sunday, while Hulme held the '67s scoreless.

Meanwhile, the double losses for the Marlboros were their first and second of the season at Maple Leaf Gardens after winning their first 10.

Graham Wise scored both Toronto goals Saturday and the single marker Sunday. Bill Barber scored twice for Kitchener and Gary Byers added the other.

Buster Harvey, Ron LeBlanc and Ron Climie scored the Hamilton goals.

Richard Lemieux and Gilbert Perreault both scored two goals for the Canadiens, while Robert Lalonde, Robert Guindon, Jocelyn Guevremont and Camille Lapierre added singles.

Tom Simpson, Henry Kowac and Bob Peppler replied for the Generals.

Israel Underdogs Again

SYDNEY (Reuters) — Israel clinched the last remaining place in next year's World Cup soccer finals with a 1-1 draw with Australia in a Group 15 qualifying return match here Sunday.

Israel, which won the first match of the home-and-home series 1-0 in Tel Aviv, had never previously reached the finals.

The all-amateur Israel team will line up in Mexico next year alongside the crack football teams of Europe and South America.

The 16 teams which have qualified for the Mexico finals are Israel, defending champion England, Mexico, Brazil, Peru, Uruguay, El Salvador, Morocco, West Germany, Belgium, Sweden, Bulgaria, Romania, Italy, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union.

Broken Callus Costs Walt Canadian Weightlifting Mark

By MAURICE SNITZER
Sports Editor

For a weightlifter, a broken callus might as well be a broken hand.

That normally insignificant malady was all that stood between the Apollo Barbell Club's Art Walt and a Canadian record during Saturday's 15th annual Eastern Ontario Teenage Weightlifting Championships.

Fortunately for the up-and-coming 17-year-old city strongman, the trouble - making callus didn't make its presence felt until he had hoisted a 315-pound "clean-and-jerk" to set a provincial teenage record. A 740 - pound, three lift total made Art a shoo - in for the meet's top lifter honors.

"The callus tore right off when I cleaned 315," Art post - mortemed after failing to get a 320 - pound attempt airborne for a Canadian teenage record. Coach Ken Carr - Braint was his usual unsympathetic, analytical self.

"He loosened his grip just before he grabbed the bar on that lift. That's why he broke the callus," noted the veteran tutor.

Walt's 740 total was 10 pounds below his Canadian teenage record set in the provincial championships in Woodstock in November. His 315 "clean - and - jerk" was 10 pounds better than his own previous best, also an Ontario record.

Sharing the spotlight in Saturday's 35 - entry contest at Sir Mackenzie Bowell School was Canadian Olympic Team member Aldo Roy of Ottawa, who won the "Champion of Champions" trophy in its second year of existence.

The award goes to the best "rated" lifter in the province, taking into account the pounds lifted as well as a lifter's body weight.

Fellow Olympic team member Bob Santary of Sarnia, last year's Champion of Champions, was on hand to present the award to Roy.

The third major award on Saturday's program went to 17-year-old Jim Travers, a 132-pound - class lifter whose 1969 performance earned him the Apollo Club's most - improved lifter trophy. Over the last 12 months, Travers improved his three - lift total a whopping 115 pounds, best among the city club's members.

The 211 - pound McNeil hoisted a 270 - pound press, 210 - pound snatch and 275 - pound clean-and-jerk for 705 total to top the heavyweights. Arnprior's Pat Hartwick (645) placed second, and 13-year-old Apollo lifter Richard Bly was listed third in his first competition with a 290 total.

At 286 pounds, Alan Balliett was in the "super-heavyweight" class all by himself. The 18-year-old lifted 135-150-190-475.

Art Walt's 740 - pound tally wasn't necessary to win the light - heavyweight competition, since he was the only lifter entered in that category. In addition to his record 315 clean-and-jerk, Art recorded a 210 press and 215 snatch.

Mike Gibbons of Woodstock (230), Ottawa's Steve Kalogerakos (420), and the Apollo Club's Fred Bly (270) finished one-two-three among the middleweights. At 15, Bly sported the younger Woodstock competitor totalled 360 pounds.

The Apollo Club's Chris Goyer (115-100-145-360) and Ron Hayes (355) staged a battle for 114-pound class honors, with Cameron Mullins of Hamilton nailing down third place with a 310 total.

Robert Kornblum took second place in the 98 - pound bracket by a quarter of a pound body weight. The Apollo's Club's 14-year-old and Woodstock's Roger Kuntze each had 185-pound totals, but the city youngster took runner-up spot by virtue of weighing four ounces less.

Bob Gibbons gave the Woodstock club its third first-place finish with 85-75-110-340 performance in the "paperweight" class.

What Biceps!

Apollo Barbell Club member Art Walt's biceps did the most work in Saturday's Eastern Ontario Teenage Weightlifting Championships. The 17-year-old Belleville lifter's 740-pound three-lift total earned him the meet's best lifter award. Hamming it up is Aldo Roy, Canadian Olympic team member who Saturday was presented with the "Champion of Champions" trophy, for being the province's best rated lifter for 1969. At right is Apollo Club member Jim Travers, who won the city club's most-improved lifter award for the year.

Blow Lead to Trenton

Last-period Woes Return to Juniors

Shades of their early season third-period problems cost the Belleville Ellis Juniors a chance at their fourth straight Eastern Ontario Junior B win last night.

Trenton Golden Hawks poured three goals past goalie Ron Jury in less than two minutes near the end of the third period to pull out a 7-6 win and snap an eight-game winless streak.

Up to the 14-minute mark of the final period Belleville had enjoyed a 6-4 lead. Three goals came from Dave Smith, brought up by Juniors ago by coach Floyd Crawford from the Blake Kerr midget all-stars. Teddy Waite, Danny Lupenette, and John McConnell had got the other Ellis goals.

Then, taking advantage of a Belleville collapse with barely six minutes remaining, the Golden Hawks rapped in three goals within a minute and a half to avenge a 6-0 loss two weeks ago ,their first to Belleville in regular season play in two years.

Jeff Howard, Craig Bennett and Chris Long were the goalgetters in Trenton's third-period, minute and a half spree.

DAVE SMITH
Wore "The Hat"

Each had scored earlier in the game, with Mike Hall getting the other Trenton tally.

Absent from the Trenton bench was coach Red Gravelle who let superstition be his guide after eight win less games.

"I didn't make the trip to Belleville because I had a feeling that if I wasn't there, our boys might pull off a win," Gravelle chuckled today.

With the absence of Kevin Dockrill, Belleville coach Floyd Crawford rotated Brian Coughlin between defence and forward with each regular defenceman getting a turn at double shifts.

Trenton snagged their eighth game winless streak by skating hard and checking the Ellis forwards before they could muster an effective attacking unit. Scoring aces John McConnell and Terry Meagher were tied up most of the night.

Early in the third, Belleville defenceman John Malvihill went crashing into the boards with Trenton forward Pete Ulman. Malvihill was helped off the ice and taken to Belleville General Hospital with a slight concussion. He was released a few hours afterwards and is expected to be back in the lineup for the next game.

There were 20 minutes in penalties handed out in the game with Belleville getting eight minutes.

* * *

The loss leaves the Ellis Juniors in fourth spot in the six - team league, one point ahead of Cobourg Cougars and three points behind third-place Peterborough Don Byes. Their next action comes Saturday when they travel to Oshawa for a 7.15 game with the Crushmen.

Trenton is at home to Oshawa Friday night.

Taylor Nets Seven

In Northern Electric Hockey league action on the weekend, the Bankers defeated the Dukes 9-3 and the Comets and Bruins played to a 2-2 tie.

In the first game Bob Taylor scored seven goals for the Bankers with Ralph Walker and Mario Mior adding one goal each. Doug Bolte scored all three Dukes goals.

Kinsmen Double Winners Of Minor Hockey Weekend

Saturday the Kinsmen beat Brockville 12-6 then handed Peterborough PHHA all-stars a 7-1 loss Sunday.

In Saturday's Brockville game Steve Kirby had three goals while Kevin Lundy and Mark Coates scored two each. Other local scorers were Andy Ricketts, Wally Dainard, Peter Crawford, Dave Flesch and Barry Martz all with one goal each. Martz also had four assists. Bruce Clarke played the entire game in the nets for Belleville.

In Sunday's game at the Memorial Arena Mark Coates had the hat trick with defenceman Wally Dainard scoring two goals. Peter Crawford and Andy Ricketts scored one goal each for the locals. Bob Moore played first two periods with Bruce Clarke playing for the third in goal for Belleville. Peterborough scored their lone goal on Clarke with just 30 seconds remaining.

Andy Lupenette scored two goals for the locals with Doug Shaw, Peter Hall, Bobby Crawford and Dave McBride getting the others. Bruce Hamilton was outstanding in goal for Belleville.

Saturday they tied Brighton 1-1 and Sunday played to a 2-2 deadlock with Marmora, with Gary Frederick accounting for all three Belleville goals.

The Maurice Rollins Peewees were defeated 5-1 by Kingston Sunday. Tony Meagher had Belleville's lone goal.

Bill Jenkins, Kim Elliott, Gord Botting, K. Linseman and Mike Jenkins scored for Kingston.

The Blake Kerr Imperial Midgets won their second consecutive game at the Memorial Arena Sunday by defeating Picton Canadian Tire 10-0.

"I told everybody our boys would start playing hockey soon as they forgot about football" was Belleville's manager Tom Neill's winning comment.

Belleville's Wilson Concrete Tyke all-stars played to a 5-5 tie with Oshawa in Shirley.

Mike Crawford and Wayne Deighton had two goals each for Belleville while Chris Valentine scored the other.

Police Battle Monks Demonstrating Against Vietnam Draft

SAIGON (Reuters) — Heavily armed police today beat Buddhist monks with nightsticks and dispersed them with tear gas as they tried to demonstrate for exemption from the military draft.

The monks, who retaliated by throwing stones at the police, claimed 19 of their number were injured in the clash. Police sources said six of their men were hurt by the stones.

The orange-robed monks, all Khmers of Cambodian origin, were staging a sitdown in an alley outside their temple when the police moved in to force them back into it.

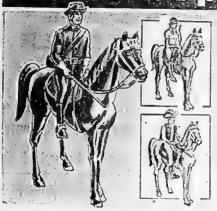
The monks had been milling around the alley since a fierce streetfight with police Sunday after they broke out of the temple to march on the presidential palace a mile away. They were forced back into the alley by tear gas attacks and fire hoses.

The monks have been confined to the pagoda by armed police for four weeks after being hustled away from a five-day squat in outside the presidential palace. They are demanding a return to ethnic minority status for the 500,000 Vietnamese of Cambodian descent, a status which confers exemption from the draft.

Previously enjoyed by the Khmers, the special status was taken from them by President Nguyen Van Thieu last month.

Thieu has refused to restore this status, which would exempt them from military service and confer other privileges.

Police armed with wicker shields today flailed the monks with nightsticks and tossed tear gas grenades into the alley to push them into the pagoda, a spokesman for the monks said. All were shut inside the building and the door to the pagoda had been barricaded by police, he added.



The spokesman claimed 35 monks had been injured in the battles with police Sunday and today. Two are missing and one was arrested and held by police, he added.

The monks are members of the Ravada sect. They have no connection with the militant Au Quang faction, the dominant Buddhist force in Vietnam which has been critical of the Saigon government.

THE BETTER HALF

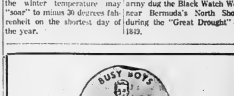
By Bob Barnes



"I do now, by virtue of the authority vested in me as head of this house, release and discharge me from performing all household work, large and small, now and from this day forward."

WARM WINTER DAY

In Barrow, Alaska, northernmost town in the United States, the winter temperature may "soar" to minus 24 degrees Fahrenheit on the shortest day of the year.

WELL DIGGERS

A detachment of the Black Watch Regiment of the British army dug the Black Watch Well near Bermuda's North Shore during the "Great Drought" of 1849.

When your Intelligencer carrier comes to collect, watch his big smile that says "Thank You".

Your Intelligencer carrier knows it is his business to collect at a regular time — convenient to you. That way he comes expected and you can be ready for him

You can help too, by having the money there when he calls so that he won't have to come back.

Because this carrier is in business for himself he depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. Repeat calls for him mean extra work with no extra profit.

Next time your Intelligencer carrier comes to collect, be ready — Watch his big smile that says, "Thank You".

Cottage Entered, Ransacked

PICTON (Staff) — A break-in discovered this weekend at a cottage in Consecon resulted in damage and theft loss totalling $700.

The cottage, owned by an Ottawa area resident, Oliver Laurans, was entered and a television set, a clock radio and quantities of clothing, bedding and food were taken.

Windows in the holiday residence, located on Stinson Block Road, were broken and other acts of vandalism committed.

Picton Detachment of the OPP cannot pinpoint the exact day of the incident, but are still investigating.

REFOREST CROWN LANDS

FREDERICTON (CP) — The New Brunswick department of natural resources is placing emphasis on reforestation to restore productivity to Crown land which has been burned or cut over. In 1968, the department planted about 2,000,000 tree seedlings and plans to plant annually about 5,000,000 seedlings by 1975. The department is being aided by the Agriculture Rehabilitation and Development Act.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange were mixed to higher in light mid-morning trading today.

The market has risen sharply in the last two sessions.

On index, industrials were up .05 to 183.69 and golds .58 to 144.32. Western oils were off .06 to 188.36 and base metals .05 to 113.33.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 486,000 shares compared with 577,000 at the same time Friday.

Chemcell was down ¼ to 9¾ although the company increased its quarterly dividend to seven cents from six cents and declared a five-cent extra dividend.

The shares of Towagmac Exploration have been suspended from trading. The exchange said the company failed to comply with exchange requirements for continued listing but that the company has been given 90 days in which to qualify as an industrial listing.

Tokar Ltd., a company that will result from the consolidation of Towagmac share capital on the basis of one new share for each two old shares, has offered to acquire 500,000 shares of Canadian Goldale on the basis of three Tokar shares for each Canadian Goldale share.

Canadian Goldale gained ¼ to 7 while Towagmac closed Friday at 29 cents, down 1 cent.

Toronto Livestock

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were steady on a fairly good demand for all classes and grades of slaughter cattle at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Veal, calf and lamb prices were steady, hog prices were higher.

Waterfront Apartments Rising

By ELMER BONTER
(Staff Reporter)

TRENTON — A proposed multi-building apartment development has restored activity at the waterfront site of the former busy cooperage mill operation guided by the late Senator W. A. Fraser.

For years, barrel-making for district apple growers was classed as a local industry, providing mainly seasonal employment. The reserves of wood supplies in logs used in the manufacture of the sturdy containers were kept in water in a pond offshore from the mill.

The once thriving enterprise closed down when requirements for this type of packaging changed, then it became necessary to find a new use for the location of the local shoreline and adjoining water lots.

The pond covers 10 acres of the Bay of Quinte. It continues south from Fraser's cooperage property which is separated by CNR tracks running along the Marmora to Picton railbed.

Last week a fleet of dump trucks and heavy land moving equipment moved in to implement the first stage of the planned complex.

First between 25,000 and 45,000 yards of fill made available from the CNR subway project at north Trenton is being hauled to the site. Possibly two loads a minute will be required to finish this part of the fill preparation. The undertaking involves one of the largest pieces of land to be reclaimed from the water by local enterprise.

Planners of the development express intention to build four or five apartment buildings with a total of 250 dwelling units. The construction would be phased over five or 10 years. The buildings will rise as to 10 storeys.

Docking facilities for small boats to be located at the east end of the reclaimed land development is also incorporate in the proposal.

The incorporation of a commercial development to the north of the apartment complex with retail outlets, offices and perhaps a motor hotel is also being studied by the planners.

The complex would be a short walk from the town's central core.

Base Construction Almost Completed

TWEED — Work on another phase of construction of the chief ranger base at Bancroft, is in progress and is expected to be completed shortly after Christmas.

The main section of the base was occupied at the end of 1965. The old office on Chemaushkeg street had been used since before 1929 and was lacking in accommodation. The new site is located one mile west of Bancroft on Highway No. 28.

The new quarters has also been designed for housing of the Gilmour deputy chief ranger office and the transfer of personnel.

LIKES THE HISSES

Carol Bruce, cast as a designing woman in the daytime television serial, Love of Life, has often portrayed a "heavy" on Broadway, and enjoys it. "They're generally the memorable roles," she says. "You may not get a lot of applause, but you'll get a lot of hisses. And if that happens, you know you're succeeding as an actress."

In Days of Herod the King Blood Bathed Land of Jews

The time of Herod the Great, King of Judea when Jesus was born, usually is presented in the context of conditions in Judea of that day. But its impact was far worldwide and should be seen against its total background in human history.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Editor

Carved figures of the sky-god, Zeus, and his offspring god of war, Ares, decorated the prow of the ship that headed north from Joppa along the coastal route and then went toward the Isle of Rhodes. King Herod stood at a forward gunwale, pondering his fate.

By every omen, he faced summary execution. He had sided with the wrong Roman in the struggle for imperial dominion. Yet he had survived desperate predicaments before: now he weighed the stratagems for overcoming his present plight.

He was sailing to confront the new master of the Roman Empire, the lord of the world, the emperor Gaius Octavius, later titled the revered one, Augustus.

The time was the 186th Olympiad — an era of many deities and mystic cults.

It also was the age in which Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, under the rule of Herod, styled "the Great."

Herod had set forth across the sea the year after the forces of his confederate, Mark Antony, were crushed by Octavius at the Bay of Actium in 31 BC, driving Antony and his seductress, Egypt's Queen Cleopatra, to their death.

Herod once had considered killing Cleopatra himself. He should have slain her, he mused, for Antony's good and his own; or better still, set the hounds on her.

Mistakenly, he had supported the passion-smitten Antony, impelled by Cleopatra into fighting Caesar. Now the triumphant new Caesar held in his hands the future of the Judean kingdom—and its king.

Herod shivered.

He was a shrewd, hard, ambitious man, of "severe and unrelenting disposition," writes Flavius Josephus, a historian of that time. He was brutish and a stranger to all humanity." Yet he was "such a warrior as could not be withstood."

But now, at the age of 63, Herod's body had grown heavy and sleek.

In 15 bloodstained years of fighting for power in his realm, 10 of them as king by imperial edict, Herod had skilfully shifted his alliances from one Roman overlord to another, as the reins of power changed hands.

It had been a death-strewn trail for them and for him.

He had drawn his methods from his crafty father, Antipater, who himself had switched allegiances—from Pompey, the Roman conqueror of Jerusalem 16 BC, to the rival who overpowered him, Julius Caesar, under whom Herod first was appointed governor of Galilee and Samaria.

With 200 horsemen and 2,000 armed footmen, Herod had routed the territory, wiping out resistance, terrorizing towns, wreaking carnage on the rebellious Galilean village of Cana, near Nazareth, home of Joseph and Mary, where Jesus would grow to manhood.

Herod captured and executed the rebel guerrillas led by Hezekias.

After Julius Caesar was murdered on the Ides of March, 44 B.C., Herod had thrown in his lot with the assassins, Brutus and Cassius, who named him governor of all Syria.

He had swept through Samaria, his forces augmented by two legions of 6,000 men each and 1,000 horsemen supplied by the Jewish high priest, Hyrcanus II. He fought his way into Jerusalem for the first time in 43 BC, joined by Hyrcanus at the Bay of Actium in 31 BC, driving Antony and his seductress, Egypt's Queen Cleopatra, to their death.

'Manpower' Finds Employment Boom

Air Controllers To Strike Friday

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Air Traffic Control Association announced today its members will walk off the job Friday, Dec. 19, at 12:01 p.m. EST, unless their contract dispute with the government is settled before then.

Announcing the strike of the 4,000 air traffic controllers, the union said it had been advised by the federal transport department that a walkout will mean shutting down all air traffic control services in the nation.

The result is likely to be a shutdown of all airports.

For Story on Christmas Travel See Page 10

Emergency services will be maintained by 132 controllers under agreement by the association and the government.

"We regret taking this action and hope that a solution to the dispute between Treasury Board and the association will be quickly achieved," said union president John David Lyon in a telegram to all locals.

Eleventh-hour talks were reported scheduled between the controllers and treasury board officials today. If fruitful, the strike deadline could be extended.

Whether controllers strike or not there is a possibility that federal electronic technicians, who service the equipment used by controllers to guide aircraft, may walk out.

The technicians have been in a legal strike position since Nov. 21. They plan meetings Wednesday night to assess their position.

Optimistic

Russia Will Buy Wheat

OTTAWA (CP) — Russia will buy the 128,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and flour outstanding under a 1966 sales contract that expired last July, the government announced Monday.

The sale will be worth well over $200,000,000.

Otto Lang, minister without portfolio responsible for the Canadian wheat board, told the Commons that agreement was reached at a meeting last week between wheat board officials and representatives of the Soviet grain-purchasing agency.

Mr. Lang said that about 75,000,000 bushels would be delivered before the end of 1970. This included a flour shipment to Cuba equivalent to 810,660 bushels.

The remaining 53,000,000 bushels would likely be delivered before the end of 1971 but shipment arrangements had not yet been completed, Mr. Lang said at a news conference.

Russian Grain Harvest Is Lower

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today announced a grain harvest of 160,500,000 metric tons, or 5,870,330,000 bushels, almost 10,000,000 tons, or 367,000,000 bushels, less than last year.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Variable skies are forecast for most regions today. Fair weather is indicated for most of southern and central Ontario on Wednesday. A slow upward trend in temperatures is expected for the next day or so.

Jobs Filled Up By Third

By Linda Geldart
Staff Reporter

The economy of the Bay of Quinte area has been called "dynamic" by Manpower officials as they look back on 1969—a year that has seen 30 per cent increase in the number placed in employment — as compared to 1968.

Senior Manpower Counsellor Frank Martin emphasized the increase is definitely of "boom proportions."

"Any employment increase of over 10 per cent we would consider unusual, but when it rises to 30 per cent, boom is the only word adequate to describe the situation."

Mr. Martin attributed the increase to several factors:

- The location of the new Unemployment Insurance Commission's Regional office which added 270 families to the local economy, generating the need for other services;
- Nearly all the local companies are at present operating at or near capacity with staff increases ranging from 10 per cent to as high as 40 per cent;
- Increased expansion of existing production facilities at several local plants;
- The new hospital wing completed this year which brought more individuals and services into the area.

"There are several new plants coming in and at present under construction — for example the Brooke Bond and Constellation Plants," said Mr. Martin.

"We have had an increased amount of inquiries from employment offices not only in Ontario, but other provinces as well."

Mr. Martin attributed the 30 per cent increase entirely to "local activity".

"This is probably one of the last areas between Windsor and Montreal to undergo a rapid industrial expansion."

"The underlying reason for this is the fact that we still do have a substantial supply of labor available," he said.

The counsellor also felt that the increased number of grants and aids through the Ontario Development Corporation played a large part in industrial expansion activities.

Delegates from Biafra Attending Peace Talks

ADDIS ABABA (Reuters) — A Biafran delegation arrived in this Ethiopian capital today for preliminary talks towards ending the Nigerian civil war.

The three delegates from breakaway Biafra, led by Pius Okigbo, economic adviser to Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu, arrived in a chartered Mystere 20 aircraft piloted by a French girl, Danielle Lecure.

But there was no federal Nigerian delegation here for the ### Poor Denied Any Powers

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Economic Council says that if poverty is to be alleviated in Canada it poor should be better represented in public decision-making.

In a report, Poverty and Institutional Reform, the council says there are too many barriers keeping the poor out of such "institutions" as labor unions, corporations and political parties.

Biafrans to negotiate with today and the prospects of one coming were not clear. The Biafrans, in the meantime, said they would wait.

Nigerian Ambassador Olu Sanu told reporters he knew of no immediate plans to send a federal Nigerian team here and said he would not meet the Biafrans until he has specific instructions from Lagos.

Any such meeting would initially be confined to procedural matters such as arranging an agenda, he added.

The Biafran delegation leader, Okigbo, commented: "We came at the invitation of Emperor Haile Selassie. We shall wait for the time being—but there is a war on."

Chicago Black Groups Set Curfew for Whites

CHICAGO (AP) — Spokesmen for a coalition of black groups in Chicago proclaimed Monday an unofficial curfew barring whites from Negro areas of the city from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. But several black leaders swiftly denounced the move.

Rev. C. T. Vivian and Karl Doty declared the curfew in the name of the newly-created United Front of Black Community Organizations, which claims 100 member groups.

The curfew was part of the reaction to the deaths Dec. 4 of two Illinois Black Panther party leaders, Fred Hampton, 21, and Mark Clark, 22, who were shot during a raid by police searching for illegal weapons.

Vivian said: "No whites will be permitted to enter the black community during these hours and those who are in the black community will be expected to leave by the 6 p.m. deadline."

He said the new front includes the group he leads, the Coalition for United Community Action, composed of some 60 organizations which last fall shut down construction sites to press demands for more black jobs in the building trades unions.

Police said no incidents connected with the curfew were reported Monday night.

Loss Nearly $100,000

Propane Gas Blast Causes Tweed Blaze

TWEED (Special) — Loss estimated at close to $100,000 resulted here yesterday noon when an exploding propane gas tank touched off a blaze which heavily damaged two restaurants and a meat store on the village's main street.

Damaged were the new Gateway Restaurant, Kwan's Restaurant next door and the adjoining Thompson Meat Store.

Three families living in upstairs apartments are temporarily homeless as result of the blaze, which was fought by Tweed and Madoc firemen.

Cause of the blaze was said to have been the explosion of one of three propane gas tanks which toppled into an excavation being prepared for a banquet room at the rear of the Gateway Restaurant.

The tanks were undermined as result of the digging and fell into the excavation.

No one was injured by the blast but nearby workmen were thrown to the ground and pies inside the Gateway Restaurant were turned over.

Spraying propane touched off fires at the rear of the three business places and firemen had to chop holes in the roofs and smash open doors to put out the blaze.

Red Infiltration Limits New U.S. Withdrawal to 50,000 Men

WASHINGTON (CP) — Reports of increased North Vietnamese infiltration into South Vietnam forced President Nixon to limit the next withdrawal of American troops to 50,000 men, informed sources said today.

The president, who announced in a television speech Monday night that the 50,000 men will be pulled out of Vietnam by April 15, would have set a higher figure had the infiltration rate remained stable or dropped, the sources reported.

The sources estimated that infiltration now is five to 10 times higher than a few months ago, but less than in 1963.

Despite the president's decision on a lower figure, the withdrawal is the largest disclosed at any one time. It will mean that about 110,000 American troops will have left South Vietnam since the president decided in July to turn the war over to the South Vietnamese.

The actual total of U.S. forces in Vietnam April 15 will be 432,500. At current withdrawal rates, all troop could be pulled out in three years.

Nixon based his latest decision almost entirely on progress of his "Vietnamization" program, which is one of the three criteria used to set the size and timing of American withdrawals.

The others are the level of Communist combat activity, which is linked with the infiltration of troops from North Vietnam, and the Paris peace negotiations, where the president reported continuing deadlock.

Nixon extended the time for completion of the latest withdrawal to four months, evidently because of the possibility of a major new Viet Cong offensive. For his two previous withdrawals he allowed about three months each.

The president coupled his announcement with a renewed warning to North Vietnam that he will take "strong and effective measures" if he finds that "increase enemy action jeopardizes our remaining forces in Vietnam."

At the same time, he said he had received "cautionary optimistic" reports from observers and from U.S. civilian and military leaders in Vietnam.

Nixon did he had been influenced by the views of Sir Robert Thompson, one of the architects of a British victory over guerrillas in Malaya in the 1950s.

Thompson, who once had been deeply pessimistic over the course of the Vietnam war, told Nixon Dec. 3 that the U.S. and its allies had reached a "winning position in the sense of obtaining a just peace . . . and of maintaining an independent non Communist South Vietnam. . . ."

But White House officials dissociated the president from Thompson's view that there was no other alternative to non-communist South Vietnam.

They said the president still held the view that the South Vietnamese people were free to choose their own form of government, including a possible Communist government or coalition, as long as a Communist government was not imposed on them without the people's consent.

Aussies Withdrawing, Too

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Prime Minister John Gorton said tonight that the extent and timing of the reduction in the Australian troop contingent in Vietnam remains to be settled in talks with the governments concerned.

Gorton, who earlier today announced that some of the 8,000 Australian troops in Vietnam would be withdrawn, was speaking in a radio and television address.

He said there was no fixed timetable for the stage at which the Australian withdrawal would be phased into any future pull out of American troops.

Government sources said the cut in Australian troop strength would not be part of the withdrawal of 50,000 American troops announced by President Nixon in Washington Monday night. The Americans will leave by April 15.

Christmas Postal Rush Hitting Peak

City Postal Workers Swamped, Christmas Mailing Deadline Nears

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Tomorrow is D-day at Belleville post office.

It's deadline day — the last chance for mailing that Christmas card to next-door neighbors — if it's to arrive before Dec. 25.

Dec. 17 is the last day for receiving local Christmas mail for delivery in the neighborhoods served by the city's post office.

Right now, volume of mail being processed is peaking — which means it's at least four times the normal daily bulk of 45,000 letters, packages and parcels.

The volume has been building for weeks. By last weekend — the deadline for out-of-town mail — postal workers were sorting through 102,000 pieces of mail daily.

Bellevillians are despatching about 16 per cent more mail than Christmas 1968 — a normal rate of increase, says postmaster Roy Walnwright.

To meet the service demand, some 160 temporary letter carriers and indoor workers have been added to the full-time postal staff of 70, he says.

As usual, the mails carry a fair number of letters to Santa Claus — all of which are handled, with despatch by the postal staff.

But the bulldog doesn't diminish the personal side of postal operations. The post office still endeavors to track the intended destinations of letters which sometime contain the merest address clues.

Lak3 the Christmas airmail letter received recently from Great Britain. It was addressed simply to Miss Lois, R. R. 3, Belleville.

The post office passed it over to one of its rural carriers who successfully traced the missing surname.

Postal Changes

The Post Office has authorized the following changes in postal services for Belleville during the holiday season:

- Christmas Day and New Year's Day all services will be cancelled.
- Boxing Day, Dec. 26, there will be no deliveries by the letter carriers, rural couriers and parcel post.
- All wickets will be closed.
- Special delivery service will be given as usual.
- Street letter box collection will be made on the Sunday schedule.

West Park Villagers Oppose Above Ground Wiring Plan

Homeowners in Belleville's West Park Village subdivision which has underground wiring for all electrical services are concerned about the recent installation of overhead services in a new developing area.

A delegation of village residents objected last night to city council but went away without assurance that city hall can do anything.

The delegation noted that the original registered plan of subdivision for Village called for underground services and wanted to know who authorized the change to overhead wiring.

Hydro poles are now being installed on Lyndale Crescent and along the north end of Village Drive.

Residents claimed the overhead wiring will reduce real estate values, would lead to a cluttered view and to a proliferation of further overhead installations such as Bell Telephone and cablevue.

But City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the installation of underground wiring for the first phase of construction in West Park Village was a special arrangement between the developer and the public utilities. The original agreement had no bearing on the second phase construction now underway, he said.

Today, Mr. Bob Lambert, speaking for Lambert Construction, currently building 10 new homes in West Park Village, said underground wiring, plus higher interest charges, would increase the price of houses by between $200 and $300 per unit.

The price range of houses in this area is between $20,000 and $24,000.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said underground electrical servi- is a necessary costs.

"There is nothing the city can do," he said.

Alderman Douglas Boyle felt that overhead wiring would be a retrograde step in the subdivision. He suggested council should indicate its feeling to the developer.

Alderman E. A. Orr, member of a special council committee named this year to review construction requirements with builders, said the matter of underground wiring will be given consideration.

But in order that homes might be built as cheaply as possible, he said the committee said it would not require underground wiring.

However, council agreed that a letter should go to the developer and the Public Utilities Commission advising them of council's feeling and the concern of present homeowners in the village.

Urban Renewal Decision Delayed

Belleville City Council will take no action until next year on the possible completion of the city's urban renewal report as has been urged by the downtown businessmen's association.

Council yesterday took the view that there was no hurry for action on the matter as Proctor and Redfern would not want to resume work on the survey until after the Ontario Municipal Board rehearing into the northend plaza question.

Deferring action on the urban renewal question would give incoming members the opportunity of expressing their views, it was thought.

Council, however, did formally accept the first interim report on the urban renewal scheme from consultants Proctor and Redfern.

The report was formally presented to council and local committee members at a meeting held last week in Bleecker Auditorium.

Council in September voted to discontinue the urban renewal study, then hired another firm, W. W. Urban Consultants, to do an economic survey to be ready in time for the review date for the northend plaza question, now scheduled for Feb. 2.

Bogus Bill Turns Up

A counterfeit bill, the second in the last two weeks, has turned up in Belleville.

This bill, a $20 note, was discovered at Woolworth's on Front Street. The other bogus $10 bill turned up at the Liquor Control Board store on Station Street.

Propane

Insurance adjusters said the loss to the business premises and could amount to as much as $50,000.

Two couples, Mr. and Mrs. Young and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, living over the Gateway Restaurant were forced to evacuate while the Kwan family living over the Kwan restaurant is also temporarily homeless.

During the height of the blaze, smoke and flames rolled high into the air over the Tweed business district and attracted viewers from a wide area.

Firemen soon had the blaze under control, but kept up a vigil until early this morning to guard against further fire breaking out from smoulder- ing embers.

Wellington Reeve Robert Boyce presents award of recognition to Phyllis Fritz on behalf of county council. In background are councillors Keith Barnett, William Greer and Douglas Marvin.

Prevented Drowning, Phyllis Fritz Honored

By Margaret Haylock
Staff Reporter

WELLINGTON—A Wellington resident, Phyllis Fritz, last night became the first recipient of an award of recognition initiated by Prince Edward County Council.

Village Reeve Robert Boyce presented Mrs. Fritz with an engraved plaque on behalf of county council as a tribute to her courage in rescuing two Wellington boys from near-drowning last winter.

Mrs. Fritz received the plaque in the presence of Reeve Boyce and Wellington councillors Donald Bailey, William Greer, Douglas Marvin and Keith Barnett, during a special meeting.

Last February, while glancing from a window, Mrs. Fritz noticed two village children playing near the ice banks along the shore of Lake Ontario. She called out a warning and when she looked outdoors again the children had disappeared from sight. Investigating, Mrs. Fritz found them in the waters of the lake, clinging to the ice. Through her efforts the two boys, Timothy Gliaznki and Raymond Lavender, were rescued from the freezing waters of the lake.

Shortly after newspaper accounts of Mrs. Fritz' bravery appeared, several county councillors agreed that some type of citizens' award should be initiated to commend meritous acts among the residents of Prince Edward County. It was felt that Mrs. Fritz deserved such a tribute.

In presenting the award of recognition to Mrs. Fritz, Reeve Boyce observed that it was one of his most pleasant duties as village reeve this year. He added that Wellington villagers could be very proud of a courageous woman like Phyllis Fritz.

Separate Planning Boards Concept Nixed

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville City Council has Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, calling for an area planning board rather than the three alternatives proposed last week by Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough and backed by county council.

The recommendation passed by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last week strongly opposes the alternatives proposed by Mr. McKeough and instead calls for an area planning board taking in Belleville and Trenton, Frankford, and Sidney, Thurlow and Murray townships.

The planning board action favoring an area planning board was taken after Hastings county council last week voted preference for replacing existing planning boards with three new planning bodies, one for Belleville, one at Trenton, and one for Hastings County, together with joint planning committee to effect co-ordination.

Mayor J. R. Scott agreed that the planning matter was urgent.

"We must do something," he said.

He said the matter would be further discussed at another future meeting of area clerks and municipal officials.

Alderman E. A. Orr, member of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, said the important thing at this time was to register objection to the No. 3 alternative favored by county council.

Mayor Scott said the minister of municipal affairs would not take any action until the matter had been thoroughly discussed.

He noted the minister's letter setting out the three alternatives had been "something of a feeler" to find out the views of Quinte area municipalities.

City Council Bids Farewell to Parting Aldermen

Normally, one more council session would be held before the end of 1969, but council voted not to hold a meeting Dec. 29 and bade goodbye to four of its members who will not be back for the next three-year term.

One of the retiring council members, Ald. Douglas Boyle expressed regret that his law practice had ruled out his seeking another term of office at this time.

He termed his past six years on council as having been both frustrating and educational and came up with a few suggestions regarding priorities for projects to which, he said, next year's council should give consideration.

High on the priority list in the view of Ald. Boyle were improved traffic patterns, more programs and recreational facilities for the young and regional government.

He said centralized computer control of traffic was necessary as was "vertical" parking to relieve the present parking facilities.

He urged council to take the initiative in planning for regional government and promised workable geographical areas, rather than wait until the provincial government dictates what must be done.

Early completion of the city's official plan was also urged.

Ald. Boyle said he had been concerned that only 14 persons attended themselves as candidates for city council and suggested that higher remuneration for aldermen might encourage more capable people to run for office.

Mayor J. Russell Scott expressed the appreciation of council to members retiring from public office.

"We will miss your advice," said the mayor. "We hope your retirement from council does not mean you will drop interest in the city."

Retiring from council this year are Aldermen Boyle, Don Williams, Kenneth Soden and Richard Ellis, who made an unsuccessful bid for the mayor's chair.

New Virus Insecticide May Help to Eradicate Tobacco Cutworms

A virus insecticide may provide the answer in the current search for a safer, yet effective pesticide to control cutworms in tobacco fields.

Dr. Gordon E. Bucher of the Belleville Research Institute has learned that a virus disease, used alone or in combination with either bacteria or minute quantities of DDT, give cutworm control equally to that from the currently used quantities of DDT.

Cutworms are so serious a problem that when the Ontario government announced restrictions on the use of DDT, it exempted tobacco growers from the ban.

If cutworms were not controlled, up to 70 per cent of the tobacco crop might be lost.

Used alone, the virus disease of cutworms is expensive. That's because the virus is produced under expensive laboratory conditions.

However, the virus dose could be cut to a fifth by combining it with one - fortieth of the normal amount of DDT.

Or, the virus dose could be cut to a fifth by combining it with a spray containing the bacterium Bacillus thuringiensis.

"Virus diseases of cutworms offer a much safer alternative than DDT," says Dr. Bucher. "That's because these viruses are harmless to man and other animals and they won't cause pollution.

"We plan further work on this method of control to try to bring costs down."

The virus was one of three collected from red - backed cutworms in western Canada. Extensive laboratory tests showed it would also attack the principal cutworms of tobacco.

Dr. Bucher's early attempts control in tobacco fields were made by mixing bran baits with virus polyhedra and broadcasting the mixture on bare soil three days before tobacco seedlings were planted.

"The treatments infected a majority of the cutworms present, but didn't kill them soon enough to prevent damage to the tobacco seedlings.

"So, these past two seasons we've been suspending the virus polyhedra in water and spraying it on the rye cover crop in early spring, two weeks before plowing down this rye crop as fertilizer."

Many cutworm larvae ate the contaminated rye and died before the tobacco seedlings were set out.

Damage was reduced from 70 per cent in untreated tobacco plots to about six per cent in the virus-sprayed plots.

This year's tests included the use of the virus in combination with the minute quantities of DDT and in combination with the bacterium.

Break-in Probed

Belleville City Police are investigating a break in discovered yesterday afternoon at 250 George Street, a residence owned by David Waters.

Police said a neighbor, in charge of the home while Mr. Waters is holidaying in Florida, discovered the break-in at 2:30 p.m. It is believed entry was gained sometime between the time of discovery and 2:30 p.m. Saturday through a rear cellar window.

The home was completely ransacked, but police have been unable to discover what, if anything, was taken.

Manpower Reports Job Boom

"Currently two new plants are near completion with their Initial hiring taking place, the Brooks Bond Co. and Wilson Sports Equipment," said Manpower Public Relations Officer Jim Staveley.

Belleville Industrial Commission statistics include these industrial work forces: Brooke Bond (105); Costello's tion (106-120); Wilson Sports ($5).

"A great percentage of those inquiring about employment are individuals who are former Quinte area residents, who want to come back," related Mr. Staveley.

"Then there are the landed Immigrants coming into Canada who make their new home here. Add to this a large number of people who seek more information about employment opportunities here because they have heard and they realize that this area is a growing one."

"There are good prospects for more plants here in the future, plus possible expansions to existing plants," he added.

It was also revealed that the "traffic count" in the Manpower Offices has increased this year by at least 40 per cent.

The traffic count is composed of the number of people coming into the office, as well as those inquiring about employment.

Looking at the 40 per cent increase in the traffic count, Mr. Martin, Senior Counsellor, emphisized that this is no reason to think that because of these increases employment picture is not as good as it could be.

"The traffic count is clear indicator of the fact that more people are being attracted to this area to work and live. As the number of jobs rises, the traffic count increases proportionally."

"Too," he added. "I feel we have a greater variety of jobs to offer, of interest to more people."

"It would seem with present industries the supply and demand for labor will be relatively in balance," said Mr. Martin, projecting into the future.

"Persistent unemployment should only occur where there is a mismatch of skills, that is, where the employer demands one thing, and the labor force is trained for other things. This situation is usually avoided by the government training programs available for this purpose," he concluded.

"There is every indication that in the next year this trend will not decline," he concluded.

Real Estate Board Holds Dinner-Dance

The Belleville Shrine Club was the scene recently of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board Annual Christmas Dinner - Dance. The event was well attended by the local Brokers and Salesmen and their wives and husbands, as well as secretaries and special guests.

Seated at the head table were His Worship Mayor J. Russell Scott; president Frank Folwell and Mrs. Folwell; regional vice-president O.A.R. E.B., J. E. McKinney and Mrs. McKinney; industrial commissioner Ray Brown and Mrs. Brown; managing editor of "The Intelligencer" Donald Soutter and Mrs. Soutter; master of ceremonies Phil Bennett and Mrs. Bennett.

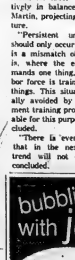
Highlighting the evening's festivities was the presentation of the plaque to the outstanding salesman of the year, won for a second time by Anita O'Hara of J. E. McKinney Realty. First and second runners-up were Mona Chandler and Cec Rutlao, respectively, both of Bowes and Cocks Limited.

Many guests won door prizes, the first of which was drawn by Mayor Scott and won by Mr. Stuart Robertson.

Music for dancing was provided by Jim Cathcart and his three talented assistants; Jack Mosley, Stan Wiggins and Frank Reid.

Menzies to Help Liberals Set Labor Policy

William Menzies, Murray Township resident and member of the Prince Edward - Hastings Liberal Association, has been appointed to the Ontario Liberal Party labor committee.



The committee will meet in Toronto early in 1970 to draft labor policy for discussion at a February convention in Ottawa. It also will be designed for guidance of the party's Queen's Park caucus.

bubbling with JOY

Manor St. Davids Crackling Rose is a happy snappy wine, spreading joy as it crackles quietly in your glass.

It goes Psaaaaaat as it opens, with an easy twist. Pour it, chilled, into glasses and tiny bubbles of crackling pleasure spread the good word around: this is a wine full of joie de vivre, gayety and good cheer.

County Liberals Blast MPs Flight Plans

TRENTON (Staff) — A resolution condemning a recent federal government statement was passed at Monday night's year - end meeting of the Prince Edward-Hastings Liberal Association.

The association condemned the federal government for its statement that the government will fly members of parliament home for the Christmas vacation if there is a nation - wide air strike. To accomplish this end, the government would make use of stadium forces aircraft and air bases.

However, the local Liberals believe that, because the government is the employer of Air Canada, the members of parliament should stay in Ottawa until the threat of a strike has been ended.

Local Liberal members think airline service is essential and that MPs have no right to go on vacation until the issue is settled.

Air controllers are threatening to strike Friday unless their demands for higher wages and better working conditions are met.

The Liberals' opinion is that members of parliament would be disregarding the needs of the public if they took their proposed vacation at this crucial time.

Leftist Threat

Perhaps the only thing that would serve to cure such apostles of the political left as the Company of Young Canadians, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the New Democratic Party would be to have this country become a people's democracy Soviet-style.

We are referring to such phenomena as infiltration of the CYC — in Quebec in particular — by subversive elements; the anti-American content of CBC news and documentary programs, and the demagoguery of such NDP spokesmen as Tommy Douglas and David Lewis who lose no opportunity of tossing off verbal blasts at the United States for its commitment in Vietnam.

The trouble is, a people's democracy Soviet-style where the state is omnipotent and the voice of the individual of no account whatsoever, is so final. If such a calamity ever befell this country there would be no more chance of restoring true democracy than there is in the Soviet orbit today.

If anyone doubts this, consider Hungary . . . and Czechoslovakia . . . and Cuba, to name only a few where the grey, shadowy world of Communism has engulfed whole societies.

And if anyone still doubts this then read the letter elsewhere on this page, from an area resident who knows what it is like to live under Communism.

So we cannot afford to allow such a system even got a foothold in this country; those who pander to this idea should try living in Russia or one of its satellites. Our guess is they would not want to remain there long.

As for the leftist leanings of some of our government-sponsored organizations (mainlained, let it be remembered, at the expense of the taxpayer), their posturings fortunately are not going unnoticed. We say "fortunately" because the danger is that many people may be taken in by such propaganda.

Conservative MP Wallace Nesbitt, for example, complained in Parliament recently of the CBC's program content being politically biased in favor of the Communist position in Vietnam, while Quebec Creditiste leader Real Caouette roasted the NDP's David Lewis for similar outpourings. The NDP denied leader's reply that because the United States is closer and we are selling that country material which is being used in Vietnam did nothing to disprove his party's official anti-American position.

We do not need a people's democracy in Canada, and we do not need a United States on our doorstep so weakened by political subversion from within or without that it too could lose its free democratic traditions. But that is what many misguided people are striving for.

Marriage Asian-Style

A Bangkok (Thailand) reader who recenly wrote to Ann Landers for advice suggested Americans are lucky in having no worse marriage problem than the eternal triangle.

The writer's dilemma concerned an uncle maintaining two wives and seven children (four girls by his first wife, and three boys by his second- whom he had married at the wish of his parents in the hope she would bear sons) in the one home.

The wives, not surprisingly, hate each other, and the house is in constant turmoil between the four daughters and three sons. Ann Landers' advice was that the uncle should maintain his families in separate dwellings; it will be tough on his pocketbook but as Miss Landers suggests, he has no alternative.

It all goes to show that people are the same all over the world. Oriental custom may permit more than one marriage (a factor, incidentally, which likely helps to defuse such powderkeg situations as the eternal triangle), but it is an untactful husband who attempts to maintain the entire menage under one roof.

Strike Threat

Why must strikes or threats of strikes always occur near Christmas — a time when so many people are travelling to be with their families? Such is the perversity of man's inhumanity to man. The air controllers are threatening to walk out and if they do there will be no commercial aircraft flying in Canadian air space. It introduces a big element of uncertainty into the lives of many Canadians during this so-called season of goodwill.

Stanfield in the Wings

Are PCs Just Waiting for PM to Run Out of Gas?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The men around Conservative Leader Stanfield insist the reason he has not come on strong in these last two years and Parliaments is simply that he calculated it would be bad strategy.

So, remaining in the parliamentary shadows and preserving his grey image, he deliberately has allowed the colorful Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau to glow and glitter.

Even in speeches outside the Commons as he quietly campaigns for the next election, now two years away, he has kept things extremely low key.

His intimates contend that at the very outset of the Trudeau years — be they long or short — he knew instinctively that the new prime minister, glowing with the charisma of his triumphant election campaign, darling of the voters, would enjoy a political honeymoon.

And nothing that the leader of Her Majesty's Official Opposition — for that matter, anyone else in Parliament, including Dief the Chief — might try to do about it could lessen the ardor of that passionate national love affair.

It was just too hot to cool down — until about now — 18 months after the fire of political romance was lighted back in June of 1968.

To have attacked the trendy prime minister while he was still the sweetheart of the electorate, Stanfield counselled those who kept urging him to go for the Trudeau throat, would have been to run the unnecessary risk of stirring resentment against the opposition and sympathy for the government.

Or at least this is the claim of the men around Stanfield in explaining why he has seemed only so glad about quietly treating Trudeau almost with detachment.

They concede that, to many people, Stanfield has appeared uninspired and unimaginative, reflecting the dull image of a leader lacking initiative and perhaps even interest.

It had to be by deliberate strategy because it just could not have been by sheer accident.

For the opportunities to hammer the prime minister were simply too numerous.

There have been scores of times when Trudeau's defences were down on controversial government policies and he could have been hurt, perhaps badly, in Parliament.

But Stanfield, from experience knew that to score debating points and draw political blood in the Commons — like the legislature — did not always count across the country.

With the voters still entranced with Trudeau — if in steadily diminishing numbers — Stanfield was convinced there would be little point, maybe even debit, in trying to cut up the prime minister.

Now, after 18 months, Stanfield sees hard evidence in the public opinion polls and in confidential reports from constituencies all across the nation that disillusion, even disenchantment with the prime minister has reached the point of vulnerability.

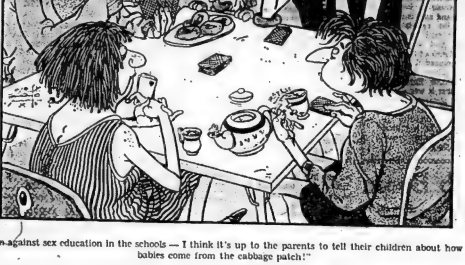
And so, in the new year, at the latest by spring, premise the men around Stanfield, he will emerge from the shadows and become the political focus of public interest in and out of Parliament.

But has he not, in these last disappointing months, come through as a little on the socialist side, what with his deliberately-phrased and badly-misunderstood sort of half-support of a guaranteed annual income and the capital gains tax, you ask?

Did he run a socialist show in his 11 highly successful years as premier of Nova Scotia, respond the Stanfield men?

In no way can the answer to that be anything but a firm, flat no.

But is not Stanfield, after his first federal election disaster, a loser?



Was he a loser, they counter, when he took the Conservative party in Nova Scotia from nowhere in 1948 to power and glory in only six years and kept it there until he came on to Ottawa?

And again the answer can only be no.

But even if he emerges from the shadows in the new year and comes on strong as an aggressive, hard-hitting opposition leader on the make for the office of prime minister, he still lacks the charisma, does he not?

Of course, he does, his men answer, but have Canadians not had a helpful of cutie-pieism and a facetful of kisses?

Canadians will be "glad to come home to Stanfield, a man with whom they are familiar and feel comfortable," insist those who know him best. "especially after the politically souped-up years with Trudeau, a man they still do not really know and can not figure out."

"I'm against sex education in the schools — I think it's up to the parents to tell their children about how babies come from the cabbage patch!"

Despite Repression

Christianity Not Dead in Soviet Union

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We have heard some interesting debates on the Vietnam question and some commentaries about the way our press handles war news.

Personally, I believe our newspapers are fair and impartial. Since we are a democratic nation, the freedom of the press is essential to our well-being.

This freedom however may be our undoing in the long run. To us bad news makes news. Western papers are often filled with details of crimes on the front page. Unlike this, the Communist press is filled with anti-Western propaganda or with Communist achievements. They will not print anything willingly that might cast a shadow on their state. For instance, the incident in 1963 when a group of evangelical Christians from the town of Chernogorsk in Siberia journeyed all the way to the American embassy in Moscow to find refuge from persecution and perhaps exit from there to a free country,' was not mentioned in the press, while it made headlines in the Western world.

We are giving free hand to misinformed and misdirected agitators on our radio and television. The freedom we cherish is exploited to undermine it, not as Nikita Khrushchev once said, "to bury" us.

Freedom loving Westerners would not easily get used to the mental and spiritual straitjacket of the Red world. Unrestricted propaganda is flooding the free nations and the result is not hard to see. Italy and France are too good examplest of Communist penetration in Europe. We are losing also on the home front. Some of our churches have made a policy to change our social structure rather than to let the Gospel change human lives in order to gain a better world.

While we are losing by default at home, the Communists are busy capturing the minds of youth. (Having lived in a Communist country myself, I have some knowledge about their strategy.)

The schools are used for political and anti-religious indoctrination. Children from Christian homes are having a particularly hard time. They are ridiculed and punished if unwilling to swallow the atheistic nonsense dished out by the schoolmaster. If a child remains steadfast, he is taken from the parents and sent to an institution to be indoctrinated more thoroughly.

This is how the system works, L. F. Ilichev, secretary for ideological affairs of the central committee, stated flatly in Jan. 1964: "The majority of Soviet citizens already call themselves atheists, hoq Communists will not tolerate indefinitely a believing minority: every individual Christian must be converted to atheism."

The comfortable assumption that religion would die out with the older generation has been disproved. The government has accepted that educational methods do not eradicate religion. Hatred, ridicule, contempt and prison only strengthened believers in their faith. The 22nd party congress then decided that "sterner measures" must be used in the next 20 years.

Liquor Laws Tumbling

Windsor Star

Ontario's liquor laws, as illogical and perplexing as can be found anywhere, are being relaxed these days at a rate to stagger the imagination. Regulations fall regularly.

The latest example to go is the old discrimination against women sitting alone in that section of the beverage room known with doubtful precision as the "ladies and escorts" room. In the near future, a male or a group of males will be allowed to drink in such rooms, even if they're not accompanied by a woman for lady, as the Liquor Licence Board prefers).

Civilization creeps on! We're looking forward with hope to the day when they repeal that hallowed if unwritten rule of licensed premises in Ontario; you're allowed to take a drink, but please don't show that you're enjoying it.

A Coup in Dahomey While 'Bandits' Menace Chad and Senegal

France's Former Colonies in Africa Have Problems

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The French-speaking countries of Africa, given independence a decade ago but still in some cases closely allied with France, continue to suffer from internal disturbances which their friends hope are merely the growing pains of young states.

The latest victim is Dahomey, bordered on its east by the civil war-torn former British territory of Nigeria and possessor of eight different presidents in nine years.

An event all too familiar throughout West Africa took place there this week with the overthrow of the republic's latest president by army elements.

At almost all levels of society, Dahomey's nearly 3,000,000 people are afflicted with ailments that make political instability inevitable.

The country shares with black Africa in general the problem of carrying on modern government in the face of deeply-rooted rivalries among various regions and tribes. It also is the scene of trade-union militancy, fierce personality conflicts among politicians and a brand of student radicalism causing Dahomey to be known as the Latin Quarter of French Africa.

Emile-Derlin Zinsou's efforts to straighten out the country's chaotic finances helped earn him the unpopularity on which the army based its decision to depose him from the presidency.

Such unsettled conditions have prompted France on occasion to take a close military interest in the survival of those French-speaking African governments to its liking. A current example is the support being given by Paris to the administration in the central African state of Chad.

Although the number of French troops there appears relatively small, a fear is expressed in some Paris quarters that the involvement in Chad—where the International Red Cross now is sending emergency milk supplies—might snowball into a situation resembling the American predicament in Vietnam.

And French military help is not restricted to the fight against what officials call the anti-government "bandits" of Chad.

Arms and transport planes from France have been requested by President Leopold Sedar Senghor of Senegal, close friend of President Pompidou and an internationally-known advocate of solidarity among the world's French-speaking countries.

Senghor's request followed bombardment of his territory by forces from Portuguese Guinea to the south.

The United Nations Security Council blamed Portugal for the attacks, apparently the price of Senghor's alleged support for rebels in Portuguese Guinea.

But the Communist-backed rebels constitute a threat to the mildly-Socialist Senghor as well as to Lisbon's power.

This can only cause extra nervousness in Paris, where the Senegalese president is considered a major bulwark of French interests in Africa.

While Shepherds Watched

Picton's Santa Claus parade marched through town Saturday morning with floats, clowns, music and animals to delight the young folk. Harry Emorey found a quiet resting place on the shepherds' float, where five lambs, unperturbed by the excitement, grazed their way through the parade.

City Engineer Advisor to 'Highwaymen'

Belleville's city engineer, Wilbur Purcell, has been named to the advisory committee to the Ontario Department of Highways.

In a letter to council asking that Mr. Purcell be named to the committee, Highways Minister George Gomme said that municipal engineers could make a valuable contribution to the highways department.

Mayor J. Russell Scott commended the city engineer on his appointment and said the city was honored.

Ride 'Em Cowboy

Smallest participant in the parade was 10-month-old Natalie Mitchell. She rode with her father, Lyle Mitchell, on his pinto — and fell asleep long before the procession reached its end.

Festival Entries Soaring

Entries for the Rotary Club's second annual music festival in February already exceed 400 compared with 310 last year, festival chairman Bob Ord told Rotarians yesterday.

Mr. Ord said there has been a very good response by the community and entries include some from Kingston and Toronto.

Closing date for entries has been extended to December 15.

Assault Conviction

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton youth was convicted yesterday of common assault and was remanded in court here until tomorrow for sentencing.

Robert Friesen, 16, appeared on charges of common assault and indecent assault.

Provincial Judge T. Y. Wills conducted a preliminary hearing on the indecent assault charge after Friesen elected trial by judge and jury. His case was referred on that charge to the Supreme Court for trial.

Last September, Friesen accosted Susan Ackerman, 20, as the girl walked home from school. He grabbed her from behind and threatened her, saying he had a switchblade knife.

He told her he was going to take her to the Picton Fairgrounds. She managed to escape and the incident was reported to Picton police.

Parade Jesters

Santa Parade Gets $300 Grant

Belleville's Santa Claus parade committee is finally to receive its $300 grant from the city.

Yesterday, city council heard a report of this year's parade finances from Les Shore who assured that the Santa Claus parade committee is still active despite its earlier organizational difficulties. The committee, he said, had given full support to the parade sponsored by Donald Foster.

Donations from commercial people had been received and committee members were looking forward to a bigger and better parade next year.

The city's $300 grant had been held up by council pending direction as to whom it should be paid to and yesterday council members voted money be paid to the committee.

Teachers' Contract Settled

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County board of education and its elementary teachers have settled a salary contract.

Teachers resumed school in September without a formal contract.

A board spokesman said details of the settlement are still unavailable for release. Final figures, however, will be revealed at a later date.

The secondary school teachers signed their contract with the board before the school year began.

School Costs Depend on Grant

PICTON (Staff) — No cost figures have yet been obtained for the proposed elementary - secondary school in Ameliasburg.

Last night's meeting of the Prince Edward Board of Education heard that all necessary forms for approval of the plan have been sent to the department of education. A reply has not yet been received.

A board spokesman said cost figures cannot be released until the extent of provincial grants is known.

Canvassers Raise $3,500 For Operation Manna

PICTON (Staff) — Canvassers for Operation Manna, the Prince Edward County fund drive for Biafran relief, will be active throughout this week.

Chairman of the program, Rev. Robert Jones of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here originally had planned to canvass for just three days last week. A shortage of volunteers, coupled with inclement weather, occasioned a change in the campaign.

The goal of Operation Manna is to raise enough money to send one or more flights of food into Biafra. Cost of a single flight is $4,200.

At a rally in Picton United Church last Wednesday, Mayor H. J. McFarland donated $2,000 to launch Operation Manna. Customarily, each Christmas Mayor McFarland makes separate donations to 67 district churches. This year he made a single contribution to the Biafran fund in the names of the churches.

A generous offering of $200 was taken at the rally where guest speaker, Stanley Burke, invited citizens to join in a question and answer discussion period.

Door - to - door canvassing in Picton and Prince Edward County during the past weekend boosted the total of funds raised to $3,500. Contributions large and small combined to produce this figure.

A play, The Emperor's New Clothes, presented by the pupils of the school of St. Gregory the Great, Picton, netted about $30 for Operation Manna.

Hearing of the starving children in Biafra, an 11-year-old boy, who is a pupil at Queen Elizabeth School, made a special contribution. For several weeks he had been depositing his extra nickels in a Christmas fund which he had intended to use as shopping money for holiday gifts.

The young boy last Friday donated his savings, $25, to Operation Manna.

Youth Reporter Wants Ideas on Writing for A Newspaper

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Would you please send me some suggestions on what I could write for the Youth Page. This is a weekly page in the local newspaper to which correspondents from secondary schools send articles.

So far I have written only two articles, one on school spirit and the other regarding our school government. I have one ready for publication re the rock'n'roll disc jockeys in city radio stations.

This may sound unbelievable and foolish, but it is terribly difficult to select a topic because:

1. Anything newsworthy is covered by the professional staff reporters. By the time I get hold of one, it will be almost a week out of date.

2. No sports allowed in the Youth Page.

3. Competition amongst the schools. — Would-Be Reporter

Dear Would-Be: A star reporter develops a nose for news. There are news stories all around you; just try seeing the angles in everyday situations.

Recently I saw stories on a student page about:

1. A girl banjo player who sings homespun ditties at paid engagements.

2. An electronic high school wizard who has built his own computer.

3. A graduate who is now a fashion model.

4. A teacher who has his Black Belt in Karate.

5. A rugged-type student who covered the north in a canoe during the summer.

Since the hot news is covered by the reporters, concentrate on interesting people. They always make good reading. And don't mind if they don't publish every last thing you write. Even top writers get rejection slips.

Dear Doris: Last week my daughter bought a hockey game set for my six-year-old grandson. My son-in-law, an admirer of just such games, feared him a challenge to play.

Well naturally the father defeated the son, resulting in somewhat of a temper scene from the loser. My daughter felt that this was a poor attitude for her son to make such a fuss.

I argued this view, however, saying my grandson more or less at his own level and speed. Who is right? — Grandmother at Heart

Dear Grandmother: We need challenges. We need discipline. We need to learn to be good sports. Your little grandson showed play with some was merely reacting in a very human way to a tough situation. He was disappointed in himself.

Yet he does need Dad for a pal — an encouraging pal. It is more than even money that Junior will soon learn how to win that game, but if the competition is too uneven. I'd suggest that Dad invent some sort of handicap system giving his boy a chance.

Dear Doris: We got your pamphlet on acne and it really worked. Thank you very much. — Success!

Dear Success: Take a bow! Things can certainly be done about this teen-age scourge. If control and discipline along with the right kind of food and drink and exercise.
